TITLE 14—CIVIL AVIATION

Chapter I—Civil Aeronautics Board

Subchapter A—Civil Air Regulations

[Supp. 3, Amdt. 10]

PART 60—AIR TRAFFIC RULES

STANDARD INSTRUMENT APPROACH PROCEDURES

Under sections 205 and 601 of the Civil Aeronautics Act of 1938, as amended, the Civil Aeronautics Board is empowered to delegate to the Administrator of Civil Aeronautics the authority to prescribe rules, regulations, and standards which promote safety of flight in air commerce, and the Administrator of Civil Aeronautics is empowered to make and amend such general or special rules, regulations, and procedures as he deems necessary to exercise and perform his powers and duties under the act. Under § 60.46 of the Civil Air Regulations the Civil Aeronautics Board has authorized the Administrator of Civil Aeronautics to prescribe standard instrument approach procedures.

Acting pursuant to the foregoing statutes and regulations, standard instrument approach procedures were prescribed. Those procedures are hereby amended. This amendment is made effective without delay, in order to promote safety of the flying public. Compliance with the notice, procedures, and effective date provisions of section 4 of the Administrative Procedure Act would be impracticable and contrary to the public interest, and therefore is not required.

1. The low frequency range procedures prescribed in § 60.46–4 are amended to read in part:

LOW FREQUENCY RANGE PROCEDURES

TITLE 32—NATIONAL DEFENSE

Chapter V—Department of the Army

Subchapter F—Personnel

PART 577—MEDICAL AND DENTAL ATTENDANCE

DISPOSITION OF PATIENTS

Rescind § 577.16 and substitute the following in lieu thereof:

§ 577.16 Disposition of patients—(a) General. Unless directed by higher authority, the commanding officer of a hospital will not order a patient discharged or transferred from the hospital until, in such commanding officer's opinion, the discharge or transfer in question will not endanger the life of the patient concerned.

(b) Discharge from hospital of other than military personnel. (1) Persons other than those in the military service will be discharged from the hospital when hospital care and treatment is no longer required.

(2) Civilians admitted to Army medical treatment facilities as patients must, in all particulars, conform to the rules and regulations governing the operation of such facilities, and, in the event of failure or refusal to comply therewith, the patient at once becomes liable to discharge from the facility at the discretion of the commanding officer. A patient discharged from the facility for disregard or disobedience of rules and regulations will be refused admission thereto or to any other Army medical treatment facility within 90 days after such discharge, except when, in the opinion of the commanding officer, earlier admission is necessary to save life or to prevent undue suffering. Whenever beneficiaries of the Veterans' Administration are discharged from the facility under the preceding conditions, the commanding officer of the facility involved will forward to the Administrator of the Veterans' Administration through the regional manager, a report giving the reasons for the patient's discharge, together with his full name and address, and condition at the time of discharge. Similar action will be taken in cases of patients who are beneficiaries of other governmental agencies and the reports required above will be sent to the appropriate agency.

(c) Transfer to other medical treatment facilities. (1) Patients may be transferred, under proper military authority, from one medical treatment facility to another for further observation, treatment, or disposition.

(2) In the continental United States and, when practicable, overseas, and in all cases where patients are being evacuated to the United States, all complete original clinical records including X-ray films, electrocardiograms, and all pertinent laboratory slides, data, progress notes, etc., will accompany the patient to the medical treatment facility to which he is transferred.

(d) Discharge from hospital of members of civilian components (ORC, NG, NGUS) not on extended active duty and members of ROTC—(1) Discharge from hospital of personnel of Organized Reserve Corps. Personnel of the Organized Reserve Corps will be discharged from the hospital when maximum hospitalization benefits have been obtained and further treatment is not indicated.

(i) Personnel who have not completed their tour of active duty will be returned to their duty station.

(ii) Members of the Organized Reserve Corps not on extended active duty hospitalized or rehospitalized for personal injury or for diseases requiring treatment after expiration of the period of active duty during which contracted, will be brought before a board of medical officers (medical board) for final disposition when hospital treatment is no longer necessary, or when discharged upon their own request before maximum hospital improvement has been reached.

(iii) The medical board acting on cases of individuals remaining in hospital subsequent to completion of the period of active duty in which their disability was incurred will recommend the final disposition of the patients, and will incorporate in the proceedings the diagnosis, line of duty status, physical condition on completion of hospitalization, statement that further hospitalization is not required, and a concise medical history of the case. If further medical or surgical treatment will be required after return home, the reasons therefor and the probable duration of such treatment will be included in the proceedings of the medical board. Arrangement for such treatment at Army medical treatment facilities or other authorized facilities as is required after return home, will be made by the patient's local commanding officer with the approval of the commanding general of the continental army concerned. The proceedings of the medical board will be forwarded, in duplicate, to the continental army commander, stating the date upon which hospitalization was terminated. The proceedings will be accompanied by the report of physical examination made by the board on Standard Form 88 (Report of Medical Examination).

(iv) In the event a member of the Organized Reserve Corps not on extended active duty who is eligible for benefits under section 2, act June 20, 1949 (Pub. Law 108, 81st Cong.; 63 Stat. 202; 32 U. S. C. 160a) or under the Career Compensation Act of October 12, 1949 (Pub. Law 351, 81st Cong.; 63 Stat. 802) has suffered a disability which renders him unfit for further military service but further treatment or hospitalization is not indicated, his physical condition will be evaluated by a physical evaluation board with a view toward effecting permanent retirement for physical disability, placing him on the Temporary Disability Retired List, or effecting separation with or without severance pay. Upon completion of the proceedings of the physical evaluation board, the individual will be retained under the jurisdiction of the hospital commander concerned pending final action of the Department of the Army.

(v) When it is determined that a member of the Organized Reserve Corps requires prolonged hospitalization and it is believed he is unfit for further military service, his physical condition will be evaluated as above when he has received maximum hospitalization improvement. Upon completion of review of board proceedings, transfer to a Veterans' Administration facility or other hospital will be effected when authorized. Separation will be effected by the hospital or other appropriate authority. Permanent retirement or placement on the Temporary Disability Retired List will be effected by the Department of the Army.

(2) Discharge from hospital of National Guard personnel. (i) Personnel on active duty will be returned to their duty station.

(ii) Personnel of the National Guard and the National Guard of the United States admitted to hospitals under section 3, act June 20, 1949 (Pub. Law 108, 81st Cong.; 63 Stat. 202; 32 U. S. C. 160a) will be discharged from the hospital when maximum hospital improvement has been obtained and further treatment is not indicated. Arrangement for any further treatment at Army medical treatment facilities or other authorized facilities that is required after return home will be made by the patient's local commanding officer with the approval of the Chief, National Guard Bureau. The appropriate State adjutant general will, in all instances, be furnished a copy of notification of disposition of National Guard personnel.

(iii) In the event a member of the National Guard, who is eligible for benefits under act June 20, 1949 (Pub. Law 108, 81st Cong.; 63 Stat. 202; 32 U. S. C. 160a), or under the Career Compensation Act October 12, 1949 (Pub. Law 351, 81st Cong.; 63 Stat. 802) has suffered a disability which renders him unfit for further military service but further treatment or hospitalization is not indicated, his physical condition will be evaluated by a physical evaluation board with a view toward effecting permanent retirement of the individual for physical disability placing him on the Temporary Disability Retired List or effecting separation from the National Guard with or without severance pay.

(iv) When it is determined that a member of the National Guard requires prolonged hospitalization and it is believed he is unfit for further military service, his physical condition will be evaluated as above when he has received maximum hospital improvement. Transfer to a Veterans' Administration facility when authorized or other hospital will be effected when the review of board proceedings is completed. The proper State adjutant general will be notified as in subdivision (ii) of this subparagraph.

(v) Members of the National Guard, except those on extended active duty, will not be separated from their National Guard status by action of hospital authorities.

(3) Discharge from hospital of members of ROTC. (i) Members of the ROTC who complete their hospitalization prior to termination of encampment will be discharged from the hospital and returned to their camp.

(ii) Members of the ROTC hospitalized or rehospitalized for personal injury or for diseases requiring treatment after termination of period of encampment during which contracted, will be brought before a board of medical officers (medical board) for final disposition when hospital treatment is no longer necessary, or when discharged upon their own request before maximum hospital improvement has been reached. The provisions of subparagraph (1) (iii) of this paragraph will be complied with where ROTC personnel are concerned.

PROPOSED RULE MAKING

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Production and Marketing Administration

[Docket No. AO 196-A 1]

HANDLING OF HOPS GROWN IN OREGON, CALIFORNIA, WASHINGTON, AND IDAHO, AND OF HOP PRODUCTS PRODUCED THEREFROM IN THESE STATES

NOTICE OF HEARING WITH RESPECT TO PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO THE MARKETING AGREEMENT AND ORDER

Pursuant to the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (48 Stat. 31, as amended; 7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.), and in accordance with the applicable rules of practice and procedure governing proceedings to formulate marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900), notice is hereby given of a public hearing to be held in Junior Ballroom, Multnomah Hotel, 319 Southwest Pine Street, Portland, Oregon, beginning at 9:30 a. m. P. s. t., March 19, 1951, with respect to proposed amendments to the marketing agreement and order (14 F. R. 3660) regulating the handling of hops grown in Oregon, California, Washington, and Idaho, and of hop products produced therefrom in these States.

In the past it has been customary to hold hearings in respect to hop marketing agreements and orders in each of the three States of Oregon, Washington, and California. However, limitations as to available personnel and time, resulting from the Defense Program, make it impracticable at this time to hold a hearing at more than one place.

These proposed amendments have not received the approval of the Secretary of Agriculture.

The public hearing will be held for the purpose of receiving evidence with respect to the economic and marketing conditions relating to the proposed amendments which are hereinafter set forth, or appropriate modifications thereof.

The Hop Control Board, the administrative agency for the conducting of operations under the aforementioned marketing agreement and order (hereinafter referred to as "the order"), and the United States Hop Growers Association of San Francisco, California, a non-marketing organization of growers, have requested that a hearing be held on the following proposed amendment of the order:

1. Amend the provisions of § 986.1 (f) of the order so as to read as follows:

(f) "Grower" is synonymous with "producer," and means any person who or which is engaged in a proprietary capacity in the commercial production of hops, and who or which is an individual, partnership, corporation, association, or any other business unit who or which: (1) Owns and farms land, resulting in his or its ownership of the hops produced thereon; (2) rents and farms land, resulting in his or its ownership of all or a portion of the hops produced thereon; or (3) owns land which he or it does not farm and, as rental for such land, obtains the ownership of all or a portion of the hops produced thereon. Ownership of, or leasehold interest in land, and the acquisition, in any manner other than as hereinbefore set forth, of legal title to hops grown thereon shall not be deemed to result in such owners or lessees becoming producers. For the purpose of this definition, the term "partnership" shall be deemed to include a husband and wife, and any others, with respect to land the title to which, or the leasehold interest in which, is vested in them as tenants in common, joint tenants, tenants by the entirety, or, under community property laws, as community property.

2. Amend the provisions of § 986.6 (c) (1) (i) of the order so as to read as follows:

(c) Apportionment of salable quantity among growers—(1) Determination of quantity available for market—(i) Determination by Growers Allocation Committee. As the basis for apportioning equitably among growers the salable quantity of each year's crop, the Growers Allocation Committee each year as early as practicable during or after harvest, shall determine, or cause to be determined under its supervision, the total quantity of hops (net dry weight), meeting the requirements of § 986.5, available for market by each grower from his production of hops during that year. Such determination shall include for each grower, his harvested, unharvested, and total production. Such determination shall include the quantity, if any, of such hops found to have been converted into hop products, except lupulin sweepings shall be included, in the computation, only to the extent of the pounds of lupulin found to be in such quantity of lupulin sweepings. Unharvested hops shall be included only if grown to maturity and remaining unharvested on living vines which remain strung or trained and from which hops have not been picked, and which have not been removed from the wires or poles. In the event any grower does not permit the Growers Allocation Committee, or its representatives, access to any hops grown by that grower, or to any product thereof, or shall fail or refuse to make available to said committee, or its representatives, information relative to such hops or hop products which the Growers Allocation Committee finds to be desirable in order properly to make such determination in accordance with the provisions hereof, the Growers Allocation Committee shall determine or cause to be determined, on the basis of an estimate of the grower's acreage, the average crop conditions in the area, the probable yield per acre on the grower's acreage, and from such other information as is available to it, the respective grower's production as aforesaid. After completing its determination of production by each individual grower, as aforesaid, the Growers Allocation Committee shall, by means of addition, compute the harvested, unharvested, and total production by all growers.

3. Amend the provisions of § 986.6 (c) (1) (ii) of the order so as to read as follows:

(ii) Preliminary estimates. The Growers Allocation Committee each year, prior to the start of harvest, or as soon thereafter as practicable, shall determine, or cause to be determined under its supervision, a preliminary estimate of said total quantity of hops which will become available for market by all growers from that year's crop. Said preliminary estimate shall be based upon then current Federal or Federal-State crop estimates, as the case may be, and upon such other relevant data as are available.

4. Amend the provisions of § 986.6 (c) (1) (iii) of the order so as to read as follows:

(iii) Determination for and protests by members of committee. The determinations pursuant to subdivision (i) of this subparagraph for each member or alternate member of the Growers Allocation Committee shall not be made by any member or alternate member of such committee, but shall be made, and reported in writing to the Secretary and to the Growers Allocation Committee, by such other qualified person or persons as the Control Board or its authorized representative shall designate for that purpose. Any protest by a member or alternate member of the Growers Allocation Committee concerning such determination shall be made directly to, and be determined by, the Secretary.

5. Amend the provisions of § 986.6 (c) (1) (iv) of the order so as to read as follows:

(iv) Notice to growers. The Growers Allocation Committee shall cause to be mailed to each grower notice of the determination pursuant to subdivision (i) of this subparagraph of the respective grower's production for the respective year, and also, the computation of the total quantity determined pursuant to subdivisions (i) and (ii), of this subparagraph, respectively, produced by all growers during that year. The committee shall also publicly announce said computations of said total quantity, both estimated and final.

6. Amend the provisions of § 986.6 (c) (1) (v) of the order so as to read as follows:

(v) Protests by growers. Any grower who may be dissatisfied with the determinations pursuant to subdivision (i) of this subparagraph or pursuant to subparagraph (2) of this paragraph, may protest in writing to the Growers Allocation Committee within 10 days of the date of mailing of the notice and if dissatisfied with the decison in regard to such protest may appeal in writing to the Secretary.

7. Amend the provisions of § 986.6 (c) (1) (vi) of the order so as to read as follows:

(vi) Determination by Secretary. Upon expiration of the time for protest specified in subdivision (v) of this subparagraph, and after completion of action by that committee upon all protests, the Growers Allocation Committee shall report to the Secretary all findings, determinations, and computations made by or for it pursuant to subdivision (i) of this subparagraph, together with the data on which the same were based. On the basis of such findings, determinations, computations, data, and other pertinent information which the Secretary may have, the Secretary shall determine and notify the Growers Allocation Committee of the harvested, unharvested, and total quantity of hops (net dry weight) meeting the requirements of § 986.5 available for market by each grower from his production of hops during that year: Provided, That such determinations shall include the quantity, if any, of such hops converted into hop products except that insofar as lupulin sweepings are concerned there shall be included, in the computation, only the pounds of lupulin in such quantity of lupulin sweepings, and insofar as unharvested hops are concerned, shall include (net dry weight) only hops of that respective year's crop grown to maturity and remaining unharvested on the living vines. The Secretary, after having determined each grower's production, as aforesaid, shall, by means of addition, determine the production by all growers; the total production by all growers is hereinafter referred to as the "aggregate production" for that respective year. Immediately upon receipt of notice thereof from the Secretary, the Growers Allocation Committee shall publicly announce the aforesaid determination by the Secretary.

8. Amend the provisions of the first sentence of § 986.6 (c) (2) (i) of the order so as to change the period at the end thereof to a colon, and so as to add, immediately thereafter, the following: Provided, That, if, prior to the determination by the Secretary of the aggregate production of hops by all growers in any year, it should appear to the Growers Allocation Committee, that the harvested quantity exceeds the salable quantity, but, nevertheless, the aforementioned salable percentage will not result in the availability in normal marketing channels of the salable quantity of hops fixed for that year's crop, such percentage may be increased by the Growers Allocation Committee, with the approval of the Secretary, by an amount equal to the ratio of the indicated deficit to the aggregate production of all growers for that year: And provided further, That, if it should appear to the Growers Allocation Committee, at any time during a marketing season, that the aggregate quantity of hops harvested from that year's crop, and meeting the minimum standards of quality prescribed herein, will be less than the salable quantity fixed for such year's crop, such salable percentage shall, with the approval of the Secretary, be increased to 100 for that year's crop.

9. Amend the provisions of §§ 986.6 (c) (2) (ii) (a) and (b) of the order so that they will read, respectively, as follows:

(a) Preliminary. In order to assist growers to avoid delays in their individual harvesting and marketing, the Control Board, or its authorized representative, each year shall compute an "estimated salable percentage" of estimated aggregate production and shall compute and issue, or cause to be computed and issued, prior to the issuance of final allotments applicable to that year's crop, to any grower who applies therefor to the Growers Allocation Committee, a preliminary allotment representing such proportion of that grower's total production of hops during that year as the Growers Allocation Committee, or its authorized representatives, shall estimate will not be in excess of 50 percent (or such lower percentage as the Control Board, with the approval of the Secretary, may specify) of that grower's estimated salable allotment for that year's crop. Said estimate shall be based upon physical examination of the hop yard, or yards, upon the historical production thereof, upon official crop estimates, and upon such other relevant data as are available.

(b) Supplementary—(1) Eighty percent basis. The Control Board, or its authorized representative, shall each year issue, prior to the issuance of final allotments applicable to that year's crop, to any grower who applies therefor to the Growers Allocation Committee, a supplementary allotment representing such proportion of that grower's total production of hops during that year as the Growers Allocation Committee, or its authorized representatives, shall determine will not be in excess of 80 percent of that grower's probable salable allotment for that year's crop: Provided, That any such supplementary allotment shall be based upon adequate, but not complete, crop production information available to the Growers Allocation Committee, or its authorized representatives, including, but not limited to bale count data or other reasonably accurate information as to such grower's hop production for that year.

(2) Ninety percent basis. The Control Board, or its authorized representative, shall issue, prior to the issuance of final allotments applicable to that year's crop, to any grower who applies therefor to the Growers Allocation Committee, a supplementary allotment representing such proportion of that growers' total production of hops during that year as the Growers Allocation Committee, or its authorized representatives, shall determine will not be in excess of 90 percent of that grower's probable salable allotment for that year's crop: Provided, That any such supplementary allotment shall be based upon complete crop production information available to the Growers Allocation Committee, or its authorized representatives, including, but not limited to, complete weight data on such grower's harvested hop production and the recommended determination by the Growers Allocation Committee, or its authorized representatives, as to any unharvested hop production for that year, and Federal-State Inspection Service evidence of the meeting of all minimum standard requirements for quality provided for therein, by all harvested hops of such grower for that year.

10. Amend the provisions of § 986.6 (f) of the order so as to read as follows:

(f) Diversion privileges—(1) While in control of the grower. In the event harvested hops or hop products, in the control of the respective grower thereof, are destroyed or are so damaged or so deteriorated as, in the judgment of the grower to be unmarketable, or, if, because of quality or type, such hops or hop products are unsatisfactory to the grower, such grower may replace such hops (if the lupulin has not been removed therefrom) or such hop products within the limits of his salable allotment for that year's crop, by acquiring uncertificated hops of that year's crop from the growers thereof: Provided, That, if the Growers Allocation Committee finds and determines that any substantial portion, or all, of any grower's production (which has been brought to maturity) has been damaged seriously by flood, frost, hail, disease, insects, or other factor, where such cause is found by the Growers Allocation Committee, with the approval of the Secretary, to be of a nature which is not within the control of growers generally, then any such grower shall be issued an exemption certificate by the Hop Control Board entitling him to replace such hops within his salable allotment (in the manner provided herein for replacement of harvested hops) following the diversion of such hops from commercial channels by destroying them or leaving them unharvested; it being understood that this provision does not authorize such action for any grower who fails, or is unable, to protect his crop from normal production hazards: Provided further, That such grower shall first submit a written statement to the Growers Allocation Committee, setting forth the year of production, the location, and the quantity of hops he desires to so replace, the name and address of each grower from whom he proposes to acquire uncertificated hops for that purpose, and if the hops to be replaced have been destroyed, the time, place, and cause of such destruction, together with proof of such destruction satisfactory to the Growers Allocation Committee, and makes arrangements with the Growers Allocation Committee whereby the unmarketable, or unsatisfactory, hops which are thus to be replaced will be effectively diverted from or disposed of out of the normal channels of trade, and such disposal or diversion may be in such manner as may be prescribed by the Control Board: And provided also, That, any hops so diverted shall not be diverted or disposed of as hop products as defined in § 986.1 (e). The selling grower as herein defined shall not be regarded as handling hops within the meaning of this regulation insofar as payment of assessments thereon may be concerned, nor shall the hops sold be considered a part of the selling grower's salable allotment. The Growers Allocation Committee shall prepare, and from time to time shall revise, a list of the names and addresses of growers who report to the Growers Allocation Committee that they have uncertificated hops for sale pursuant to this paragraph; and a list of the names and addresses of growers who report to the Growers Allocation Committee that they desire to purchase or acquire uncertificated hops pursuant to this subparagraph. The Growers Allocation Committee shall make such lists available to any grower or handler of hops at each office of the Control Board.

(2) After leaving control of the grower. In the event certificated hops or hop products which have left the control of the respective grower thereof (but which were within the continental United States) are destroyed by fire, flood, or other physical cause (not including such causes as mold, insect damage, nor causes for "perished" hops) beyond the control of the owner thereof, or if such hops or hop products are so damaged by such a cause as to be unsatisfactory for market or use, the owner may replace such hops or hop products (within the limits of the certificated weights of such hops or hop products) by acquiring uncertificated hops of that year's crop from the growers thereof: Provided, That the said owner shall first submit a written statement to the Hop Control Board setting forth the identity of such destroyed or damaged hops or hop products, including the handling certificate number or numbers, other identification, year of production, and certification weights of the bales or other packages so destroyed or damaged, and the time, place, and cause of such destruction or damage, together with proof of such identity and of such destruction or damage satisfactory to the Growers Allocation Committee: And provided further, That the said owner makes arrangements with the Growers Allocation Committee whereby the damaged hops, or hop products, which thus are to be replaced will be diverted from the normal channels of trade, and such diversion shall be in such manner as may be prescribed by the Control Board: And provided also, That, prior to the certification of such replacement hops or hop products, the said owner shall submit to the Growers Allocation Committee, in writing, the name and address of each grower from whom he proposes to acquire uncertificated hops for that purpose.

11. Amend the provisions of § 986.7 (b) (1) of the order so as to read as follows:

(1) Requirement for payment. Each handler shall pay to the Control Board the assessment provided hereinafter with respect to all hops and hop products which are handled or to be handled by that handler as the first handler thereof, except (i) such hops or hop products as are duly certificated pursuant to § 986.6 (d) (2), and (ii) such hop products as have been derived from duly certificated hops with respect to which such assessment previously had been paid: Provided, That any grower who markets or transports to market within the State of production hops produced by that grower, or any hop product produced by that grower from hops produced by that grower, or hops or hop products acquired pursuant to § 986.6 (f), shall not be deemed to be the first handler thereof insofar only as payment of assessments pursuant to the provisions of this paragraph are concerned, and the person who handles such hops or hop products next following such handling by said grower shall be considered the first handler thereof within the provisions of this section: And provided further, That any person other than a grower, who acquires hops or hop products pursuant to § 986.6 (f) shall be deemed to be the first handler of such hops or hop products and shall pay the prescribed assessment thereon. Said assessments shall be paid to the Control Board prior to or at the time of such handling, or at such subsequent time as the Control Board may specify.

12. Amend the provisions of § 986.9 of the order by adding at the end thereof a new paragraph (c), to read as follows:

(c) Uncertificated hops and hop products—(1) Reports by growers. Each grower shall report to the Growers Allocation Committee, prior to June 15 of each marketing season, the quantities (by years of production stated separately) and locations of all uncertificated hops and hop products owned or controlled by him as of the preceding June 1, and each grower shall also furnish to the Growers Allocation Committee reports containing such information as of such other date or dates as the Growers Allocation Committee may specify.

(2) Supervision of disposition. Any grower who desires to dispose of any uncertificated hops or hop products in his possession or control shall first arrange with the Growers Allocation Committee, or its authorized representatives, for supervision of such disposition. The Growers Allocation Committee, or its authorized representatives, shall thereupon provide such supervision at the mutual convenience of such grower and of the committee, or its authorized representatives, and such supervision shall be sufficient to assure disposition consistent with the provisions of this regulation. The requirements set forth in this subparagraph shall cover, but are not limited to, any disposition by destruction, or by sale pursuant to the provisions of § 986.6 (f).

The following amendments are proposed by the Fruit and Vegetable Branch, Production and Marketing Administration, United States Department of Agriculture.

13. Renumber the sections, paragraphs, subparagraphs, and subdivisions throughout the marketing order in accordance with the revised FEDERAL REGISTER regulations, and make similar conforming changes in the numbering of the provisions of the marketing agreement.

14. Make such other changes in the marketing agreement and order as may be necessary to make the entire marketing agreement and order conform with any amendments thereto which may result from this hearing.

15. Amend the provisions of § 986.1 of the order by adding the following at the end thereof:

Part and subpart. "Part" means the order regulating the handling of hops grown in Oregon, California, Washington, and Idaho, and of hop products produced therefrom in these States, and all rules, regulations, and supplementary orders issued thereunder. This order regulating the handling of hops grown in Oregon, California, Washington, and Idaho, and of hop products produced therefrom in these States shall be a "subpart" of such part.

Copies of this notice of hearing may be obtained from the Hearing Clerk, Room 1353, South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C., or may be there inspected, or from any of the Western Marketing Field Offices, Fruit and Vegetable Branch, Production and Marketing Administration, United States Department of Agriculture: 515 SW. Tenth Avenue, Portland 5, Oregon; 335 Fell Street, San Francisco 2, California; and 100 Plaza Building, 921 Tenth Street, Sacramento 14, California.

[Docket No. G-1267]

NORTHEASTERN GAS TRANSMISSION CO.

ORDER REOPENING PROCEEDING AND FIXING DATE OF HEARING

On November 8, 1950, the Commission issued its Opinion No. 202 and accompanying order granting to Northeastern Gas Transmission Company (Northeastern) a certificate of public convenience and necessity in the above captioned docket authorizing the construction and operation of natural gas facilities as specifically described therein.

On December 21, 1950, Northeastern filed a petition for an amendment of said order issued November 8, 1950, requesting that it be authorized to substitute 24-inch pipe for the 20-inch pipe on 144 miles of its Massachusetts main transmission line and that it be authorized to substitute larger pipe sizes for five lateral lines described in the petition.

Pursuant to notice duly given, hearing was held on January 30 and 31, 1951, upon the petition filed December 21, 1950, at which hearings evidence was offered by Northeastern in support of its petition to amend.

On February 5, 1951, the Commission issued its order omitting the intermediate decision procedure, and the record of the hearing held January 30 and 31, 1951, has been certified to the Commission by the Presiding Examiner. All parties participating in that hearing have filed briefs with the Commission.

Upon consideration of the entire record in this matter, including the record of the hearing held January 30 and 31, 1951, and upon consideration of the briefs filed and the arguments made herein, the Commission finds:

(1) The record herein will not permit the granting of the relief requested by Northeastern in its petition filed December 21, 1950.

(2) Although the record will not permit the granting of the relief requested herein, the public interest requires the reopening of the record in these proceedings in order that Northeastern may have a further opportunity to present evidence in support of its petition filed December 21, 1950, and such evidence should be restricted to the issues hereinafter set out.

(3) The record does not show that the additional capacity to be made available through the substitution of larger sizes of pipe as proposed is or will be required by the public convenience and necessity.

(4) The record does not show economic feasibility for each year of the first five years of operation of the enlarged pipeline system proposed by Northeastern in its petition filed December 21, 1950, to amend the certificate heretofore granted to it.

(5) The record shows that prior to the issuance of the Commission's order on November 8, 1950, granting to Northeastern a certificate authorizing the construction and operation of the facilities described therein, the 20-inch pipe referred to in that order was available to Northeastern, whereas the record now shows that such pipe is not scheduled for delivery until commencing in December 1951. The record further shows that schedules for delivery of the 24-inch pipe which Northeastern now proposes to substitute for that authorized are subject to change.

(6) The record herein should be reopened and the petition set for further hearing on the matters and issues mentioned in paragraphs 3, 4, and 5 hereof.

(7) It is reasonable and good cause exists for setting this matter for further hearing on March 8, 1951.

The Commission orders: Pursuant to authority contained in and subject to the jurisdiction conferred upon the Federal Power Commission by sections 7 and 15 of the Natural Gas Act, as amended, and the Commission's rules of practice and procedure, the record in Docket No. G–1267 is hereby reopened and a public hearing be held herein commencing on March 8, 1951, at 10:00 a. m., e. s. t., in the Hearing Room of the Federal Power Commission, 1800 Pennsylvania Avenue NW., Washington, D. C., upon the following matters and issues only:

(i) The market requirements proposed to be met by means of the additional capacity to be made available by means of the substitution of larger sizes of pipe as proposed in Northeastern's petition filed December 21, 1950.

(ii) The economic feasibility for each of the first five years of operation of the enlarged pipe line system proposed in Northeastern's petition to amend its certificate.

(iii) The present availability of the 144 miles of 20-inch pipe required for the service authorized in the Commission's order issued herein November 8, 1950, and of the 144 miles of 24-inch pipe proposed to be substituted therefor.

Date of issuance: March 1, 1951.

[Docket No. G–1540]

TRANSCONTINENTAL GAS PIPE LINE CORP.

ORDER FIXING DATE OF HEARING

FEBRUARY 27, 1951.

On November 22, 1950, Transcontinental Gas Pipe Line Corporation (Applicant), a Delaware corporation with its principal place of business in Houston, Texas, filed an application for a certificate of public convenience and necessity pursuant to the Natural Gas Act, as amended, authorizing the construction and operation of certain natural gas facilities subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission, all as more fully described in such application on file with the Commission and open to the public.

The Commission finds: Applicant has requested that this application be heard under the shortened procedure provided by § 1.32 (b) of the Commission's rules of practice and procedure (18 CFR 1.32 (b)) for non-contested proceedings, and it appears to be a proper one for disposition under the aforesaid rule, no request to be heard, protest or petition raising an issue of substance having been filed subsequent to the giving of due notice of the filing of the application including publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER on December 7, 1950 (15 F. R. 8685).

The Commission orders:

(A) Pursuant to the authority contained in and subject to the jurisdiction conferred upon the Federal Power Commission by sections 7 and 15 of the Natural Gas Act, as amended, and the Commission's rules of practice and procedure, a public hearing be held on March 19, 1951, at 9:45 a. m., e. s. t., in the Hearing Room of the Federal Power Commission, 1800 Pennsylvania Avenue NW., Washington, D. C., concerning the matters involved and the issues presented by such application: Provided, however, That the Commission may, after a noncontested hearing, forthwith dispose of the proceeding pursuant to the provisions of § 1.32 (b) of the Commission's rules of practice and procedure.

(B) Interested State commissions may participate as provided by §§ 1.8 and 1.37 (f) (18 CFR 1.8 and 1.37 (f)) of the said rules of practice and procedure.

Date of issuance: March 1, 1951.

IDAHO POWER CO.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR LICENSE (MAJOR)

MARCH 1, 1951.

Public notice is hereby given pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Power Act (16 U. S. C. 791 (a)–825 (r)) that Idaho Power Company of Boise, Idaho, has made application for license for proposed major project No. 1971 (Oxbow Development) to be located on the Snake River in Adams and Washington Counties, Idaho, and Baker County, Oregon. The proposed project would affect lands of the United States. It would consist of a rockfill dam and gated concrete spillway across Snake River at the Oxbow site creating a reservoir about 13 miles long and covering about 2,000 acres with highwater level at elevation 1,805 feet at the dam; a canal to be excavated across the bow in the river about 1,000 feet long, 275 feet wide at the top; intake works; four 275 foot penstocks; a powerhouse on the Oregon side of the river with installed capacity of about 140,000 kilowatts in 4 units of equal size; three 138-kilovolt transmission lines, one extending about 50 miles to Huntington, another extending approximately 75 miles to Ontario and a third extending to Baker, all in the State of Oregon, and appurtenant facilities.

Any protest against approval of this application or request for hearing thereon, with the reasons for such protest or request, and the name and address of the party or parties so protesting or requesting should be submitted on or before the 16th day of April 1951, to the Federal Power Commission, Washington 25, D. C.

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAY CO. ET AL.

MINNESOTA INTRASTATE RATES AND CHARGES

At a session of the Interstate Commerce Commission, Division 1, held at its office in Washington, D. C., on the 20th day of February A. D. 1951.

It appearing, that in Ex Parte No. 162, Increased Railway Rates, Fares, and Charges, 1946, and Ex Parte No. 148, Increased Railway Rates, Fares, and Charges, 1942, 264 I. C. C. 695, and 266 I. C. C. 537; Ex Parte No. 166, Increased Freight Rates, 1947, 269 I. C. C. 33, 270 I. C. C. 81, 93, and 403; and Ex Parte No. 168, Increased Freight Rates, 1948, 272 I. C. C. 695, and 276 I. C. C. 9, the Commission authorized carriers subject to the Interstate Commerce Act parties thereto to make certain increases in their freight rates and charges for intrastate application throughout the United States, and that increases under such authorizations have been made:

It further appearing, that a petition dated December 22, 1950, has been filed on behalf of the Canadian National Railway Company and other common carriers by railroad operating to, from, and between points in the State of Minnesota, averring that the Railroad and Warehouse Commission of the State of Minnesota, by various orders, has refused to authorize or permit petitioners to establish for intrastate transportation upon their railroads in Minnesota increases in freight rates and charges corresponding to those authorized by this Commission and made by petitioners for application on interstate traffic in the proceedings above cited; such refusals being alleged in the manner and to the extent as stated in the said petition dated December 22, 1950, which petition so filed is referred to for greater certainty;

It further appearing, that petitioners allege that the refusal of the said Railroad and Warehouse Commission of the State of Minnesota to permit the increases on intrastate traffic referred to in the preceding paragraph causes and results in undue and unreasonable advantage, preference, and prejudice as between persons and localities in intrastate commerce on the one hand and interstate commerce on the other hand, and undue, unreasonable and unjust discrimination against interstate commerce, in violation of sections 3, 13 (4), and 15a (2) of the Interstate Commerce Act;

It further appearing, that there have been brought in issue by the said petition rates and charges made or imposed by authority of the State of Minnesota;

And it further appearing, that the investigation hereinafter instituted responsive to the requirements of section 13 is without prejudice to subsequent appropriate consideration on their merits of the arguments made by the Railroad and Warehouse Commission of the State of Minnesota in its answer to the petition:

It is ordered, That in response to the said petition, an investigation be, and it is hereby, instituted, and that a hearing be held therein for the purpose of receiving evidence from the respondents hereinafter designated and any other persons interested, to determine whether the rates and charges of the common carriers by railroad, or any of them, operating in the State of Minnesota for the intrastate transportation of property, made or imposed by authority of the State of Minnesota, cause any undue or unreasonable advantage, preference, or prejudice as between persons or localities in intrastate commerce, on the one hand, and interstate or foreign commerce, on the other hand, or any undue, unreasonable, or unjust discrimination against interstate or foreign commerce; and to determine what rates and charges, if any, or what maximum, or minimum, or maximum and minimum rates and charges, shall be prescribed to remove the unlawful advantage, preference, prejudice, or discrimination, if any, that may be found to exist;

It is further ordered, That all common carriers by railroad operating within the State of Minnesota subject to the jurisdiction of this Commission be, and they are hereby, made respondents to this proceeding; that a copy of this order be served upon each of the said respondents; and that the State of Minnesota be notified of this proceeding by sending copies of this order and of said petition by registered mail to the Governor of the said State and to the Railroad and Warehouse Commission of the State of Minnesota at St. Paul, Minn.;

It is further ordered, That notice of this proceeding be given to the public by depositing a copy of this order in the office of the Secretary of the Commission, at Washington, D. C., for public inspection, and by filing a copy with the Director, Division of the Federal Register, Washington, D. C.;

And it is further ordered, That this proceeding be assigned for hearing at such times and places as the Commission may hereafter direct.

By the Commission, Division 1.

The application is available for public inspection at the Commission's principal office in Washington, D. C.

Notice is hereby given that, upon request of any interested person received prior to March 22, 1951, the Commission will set this matter down for hearing. In addition, any interested person may submit his views or any additional facts bearing on this application by means of a letter addressed to the Secretary of the Securities and Exchange Commission, Washington, D. C. If no one requests a hearing on this matter, this application will be determined by order of the Commission on the basis of the facts stated in the application, and other information contained in the official file of the Commission pertaining to this matter.

By the Commission.

STANDARD GAS AND ELECTRIC CO. AND PHILADELPHIA CO.

NOTICE OF FILING AND NOTICE OF AND ORDER FOR HEARING; NOTICE OF AND ORDER RECONVENING HEARING; NOTICE OF AND ORDER REOPENING HEARING; AND ORDER FOR CONSOLIDATION

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission, held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C., on the 1st day of March 1951.

In the matters of Standard Gas and Electric Company and Philadelphia Company, File No. 54-191; Standard Gas and Electric Company, File No. 59-66; Philadelphia Company and Standard Gas and Electric Company, File No. 54-173.

I. The Commission on December 31, 1948, entered an order (File No. 59-66) under section 11 (b) (2) of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("act") requiring Standard Gas and Electric Company ("Standard Gas"), a registered holding company and a subsidiary of Standard Power and Light Corporation ("Standard Power"), also a registered holding company, to take appropriate steps to liquidate and dissolve or to recapitalize on the basis of a single class of stock, namely, common stock. (See Holding Company Act Release No. 8773). The aforesaid order reserved jurisdiction to entertain further proceedings relating to the appropriateness of the continued existence of Standard Gas under the standards of section 11 (b) (2) of the act.

At the time the Commission's order of December 31, 1948, was entered there was pending a petition, filed in the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia by Standard Gas and its subsidiary Philadelphia Company ("Philadelphia"), a registered holding company, to review an order of the Commission entered June 1, 1948, requiring, among other things, the liquidation and dissolution of Philadelphia. (See Holding Company Act Release No. 8242). In its Findings and Opinion issued in connection with the order of December 31, 1948, the Commission found that in the event of the affirmance by the Court of Appeals of the Commission's order of June 1, 1948, and in the light of the Commission's earlier findings concerning Philadelphia, there would be no useful purpose served by the survival of Standard Gas as a holding company and that its continued existence would be repugnant to the standards of section 11 (b) (2) of the act in that it would unnecessarily complicate the structure of the holding company system of which it would be a part. On October 10, 1949, the Court of Appeals affirmed the Commission's order of June 1, 1948, and the Court's order has become final. See Philadelphia Company et al. v. S. E. C., 177 F. 2d 720.

II. Notice is hereby given that Standard Gas has filed with the Commission pursuant to section 11 (e) of the act, a plan stated to be for compliance by Standard Gas and Philadelphia with the provisions of section 11 of the act. (File No. 54-191). All interested persons are referred to said plan which is on file in the offices of the Commission for a statement of the transactions therein proposed, which are summarized hereinafter.

Standard Gas is solely a holding company. On August 8, 1941, the Commission entered an order which requires Standard Gas to dispose of its holdings of securities in all of its subsidiaries other than the securities of Philadelphia and Public Utility Engineering and Service Corporation, formerly a service company for the Standard Gas system, which is inactive and has no assets other than approximately $140,000 in cash. Standard Gas presently owns 5,024,790 shares or 96.8 percent of the 5,190,852 1/12 outstanding shares of common stock of Philadelphia, which is also solely a holding company. In addition, Philadelphia has outstanding various classes of securities senior to its common stock. A plan for the simplification of the structure of the Philadelphia system is now pending before the Commission. The status of this plan is more fully described in Part III of this notice and order.

Philadelphia's principal subsidiary is Duquesne Light Company ("Duquesne") which supplies electric light and power service in and around Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. Philadelphia owns all of the common stock and $27,500,000 par value of 4 percent preferred stock of Duquesne. Duquesne's wholly owned subsidiary, Allegheny County Steam Heating Company, is a non-utility company which supplies steam heating service in Pittsburgh. Philadelphia also owns 547,678 shares or 50.9 percent of the 1,076,096 outstanding shares of capital stock of the recently reorganized Pittsburgh Railways Company ("Railways") which operates the local transportation system in the Pittsburgh area. Philadelphia's other holdings consist of all the capital stocks of Equitable Real Estate Company and Equitable Auto Company and $6,500,000 principal amount of twenty-year 3 3/8 percent debentures of Equitable Gas Company, a former public utility subsidiary of Philadelphia.

Standard Gas also owns all the 2,000,000 outstanding shares of common stock of the par value of $10 per share of Wisconsin Public Service Corporation ("Wisconsin"), a public utility company, which directly and through a subsidiary supplies electric and gas service and certain transportation facilities in parts of the states of Wisconsin and Michigan; 1,210,090 shares or 56.18 percent of the 2,153,800 outstanding shares of the common stock of the par value of $10 per share of Oklahoma Gas and Electric Company ("Oklahoma"), a public utility company which provides electric service in parts of the states of Oklahoma and Arkansas; and the capital stock of Horseshoe Lake Oil and Gas Company, an inactive company owning mineral rights estimated to have little, if any, value.

The outstanding securities of Standard Gas as of December 31, 1950, were as follows:

	Principal amount or stated value
Debt:
4 percent note payable to Standard Power, due Oct. 10, 1951	$983,330
Capital stock:
Prior preference stock (without par value):
$7 cumulative ("$7 preference stock"), 368,348 shares	36,834,800
$6 cumulative ("$6 preference stock"), 100,000 shares	10,000,000
$4 cumulative preferred stock (without par value) ("$4 preferred stock"), 757,442 shares	37,872,100
Common stock (no par), 2,162,607 shares	21,626,070

The amounts shown above for the three series of preferred stocks represent aggregate liquidation preferences, exclusive of dividend arrearages, for each series. At December 31, 1950, the arrearages on the $7 preference stock were $102.90 per share aggregating $37,903,009.20; on the $6 preference stock, $88.20 per share aggregating $8,820,000; and on the $4 preferred stock, $71.33 1/3 per share aggregating $54,030,862.67. Current dividends are being paid only on the $7 preference stock and the $6 preference stock.

Under the charter of Standard Gas, the $7 preference stock and the $6 preference stock are entitled to equal first preference to cumulative dividends; on liquidation, whether voluntary or involuntary, are entitled to $100 per share plus dividend arrearages in preference to the junior stocks; and are respectively callable at $115 and $110 per share plus arrearages. The $4 preferred stock is junior to the preference stocks as to dividends; is entitled to cumulative dividends ahead of the common stock; on liquidation, whether voluntary or involuntary, is entitled to $50 per share plus dividend arrearages, after the preference stocks but ahead of the common stock; and is not callable.

In addition to the 4 percent note described above, Standard Power also holds 1,160,000 shares or 53.64 percent of the Common Stock and 40,843 shares or 11.1 percent of the $7 preference stock of Standard Gas. The 4 percent note was issued with the permission of the Commission upon the condition that it would be subject to any infirmities which inhered in the former holdings of Standard Power of Standard Gas securities in exchange for which such note was issued. (See Holding Company Act Release No. 6532). In February 1945 this Commission approved a joint plan filed by Standard Power and Standard Gas under section 11 (e) of the act which proposed that Standard Power's holdings of Standard Gas securities would not be accorded the same treatment as the publicly held securities because of certain claims which had been asserted by a special trustee on behalf of Standard Gas against Standard Power. (See Holding Company Act Release No. 5625.) The joint plan, although approved, was never consummated; both Standard Gas and Standard Power have since withdrawn as parties thereto; and the Commission has dismissed the proceedings in connection therewith. (See Holding Company Act Release Nos. 9960 and 10385.)

It is stated that the plan is designed to effect, in the four steps outlined below, the disposition by Philadelphia and Standard Gas of all of the securities of operating companies owned by them and thereupon to effect the liquidation and dissolution of Standard Gas and either the liquidation and dissolution of Philadelphia or its reduction to a relatively minor holding company with only common stock outstanding.

Step 1. 1. Standard Gas will subscribe for and acquire 121,009 shares of additional common stock of Oklahoma as the result of a common stock offering to its stockholders to be made in the near future by Oklahoma. The total holdings of Standard Gas in Oklahoma will then consist of 1,331,099 shares of common stock. The 2,152,828 shares of common stock of Duquesne without par value now held by Philadelphia will be reclassified into 5,750,000 shares of the par value of $10 per share.

2. After the reclassification of the common stock of Duquesne, Philadelphia will distribute to its stockholders, as a dividend in kind, one share of the reclassified common stock of Duquesne for each 5 shares of the common stock of Philadelphia so that Standard Gas will receive 1,004,958 shares of such Duquesne stock. No certificates for fractional shares will be issued but in lieu thereof scrip certificates of Duquesne will be distributed.

3. The $7 and $6 preference stocks of Standard Gas will be retired by the delivery in exchange therefor of certificates as follows: $7 preference stock—for each share, including all dividend arrearages, the holder will receive 4.3 shares of common stock of Wisconsin, 2.9 shares of common stock of Oklahoma, and 2.1 shares of common stock of Duquesne. $6 preference stock—for each share and all dividend arrearages the holder will receive 4.0 shares of common stock of Wisconsin, 2.6 shares of common stock of Oklahoma, and 1.7 shares of common stock of Duquesne.

After these exchanges are effected Standard Gas will have remaining 16,103.6 shares of the common stock of Wisconsin, 2,889.8 shares of the common stock of Oklahoma, and 61,427.2 shares of the common stock of Duquesne.

4. On the effective date of Step I, the securities to be issued in exchange to the holders of the $7 and $6 preference stocks will be deposited with an exchange agent and thereupon Standard Gas shall cease to have any rights with respect to such deposited securities and the holders of the $7 and $6 preference stocks shall cease to have any rights as stockholders of Standard Gas except that they shall be entitled to receive their pro rata distribution of the deposited securities.

5. No certificates for fractional shares of common stock of Wisconsin, Oklahoma, or Duquesne will be issued but in lieu thereof there will be issued scrip certificates which when combined in lots representing one or more full shares may be exchanged for common stock. For a period of six months after the effective date of Step I holders of scrip certificates may sell the same or purchase additional scrip without the payment of any commission. The holders of scrip certificates will not be entitled to the rights of stockholders unless and until the scrip is exchanged for stock certificates but upon such exchange the holder shall be entitled to receive an amount equal to all dividends declared upon the shares received by him after the effective date and prior to receipt of the shares. If the scrip certificates are not exchanged within a period of approximately five years such certificates shall become void.

6. Upon delivery of the stock certificates to the exchange agent, the holders of $7 and $6 preference stock shall be entitled to receive from the exchange agent an amount equal to all dividends (less the amount of taxes, if any, which may be imposed or paid thereon) paid or payable to the exchange agent in respect of the common stock of Wisconsin, Oklahoma, and Duquesne exchanged for such certificates of $7 and $6 preference stock.

7. After five years from the date of deposit with the exchange agent as aforesaid, holders of $7 or $6 preference stock shall cease to be entitled to make exchanges for the deposited securities and their certificates shall become void. All the stock of Wisconsin, Oklahoma, or Duquesne remaining in the hands of the exchange agent after five years and all cash received by the exchange agent as dividends on such shares shall be turned over to either Wisconsin, Oklahoma, or Duquesne, as the case may be, free of any further claim of the holders of $7 and $6 preference stocks. Provision is made for yearly notice to be given to the holders of $7 and $6 preference stocks of their rights under Step I of the plan.

8. Following consummation of the preliminary transactions, Standard Gas proposes to request the Commission, pursuant to section 11 (e) of the act, to apply to a Federal district court to enforce and carry out the proposed exchange of securities. The effective date of Step I is to be determined by the Board of Directors of Standard Gas after the court approves such transactions and such date shall be not later than ninety days after the court's decree becomes final. Notice of the effective date will be given by Standard Gas to holders of the $7 and $6 preference stocks by mail and by newspaper publication at least ten days before such effective date.

Step II. 1. After consummation of Step I, Standard Gas will own 5,024,790 shares of the common stock of Philadelphia, 16,103.6 shares of the common stock of Wisconsin, 2,889.8 shares of common stock of Oklahoma, 61,427.2 shares of the common stock of Duquesne, cash in an undetermined amount, and the capital stocks of Public Utility Engineering and Service Corporation and Horseshoe Lake Oil and Gas Company. The outstanding securities of Standard Gas will be its note to Standard Power and its $4 preferred stock and common stock.

2. Standard will sell its holdings of common stock of Wisconsin and Oklahoma. The common stock of Duquesne will be sold or otherwise disposed of unless retained for delivery to Philadelphia as stated in paragraph 3 below. Public Utility Engineering and Service Corporation will be liquidated or the stock thereof otherwise disposed of and the stock of Horseshoe Lake Oil and Gas Company will be sold or otherwise disposed of.

3. Standard Gas will discharge its note to Standard Power in the amount of $983,930 by payment of $578,850 in cash. Appropriate steps will be taken to prosecute or settle any claims of Standard Gas against Standard Power which have been asserted on behalf of Standard Gas by the Special Trustee and any other claims asserted as between Standard Gas and Standard Power.

Any remaining liabilities of Standard Gas will be discharged and thereafter Standard Gas will transfer to Philadelphia all its assets other than the common stock of Philadelphia (including any common stock of Duquesne not otherwise disposed of). Philadelphia will assume all tax and any undetermined liabilities of Standard Gas. In the event the assets of Standard Gas turned over to Philadelphia exceed the liabilities of Standard Gas assumed by Philadelphia, Philadelphia will issue additional common stock to Standard Gas. Following these transactions Standard Gas will dissolve and in this connection will retire its $4 preferred stock and its common stock by exchanging the same for common stock of Philadelphia, on the bases and in the proportions to be fixed in a supplement to the plan.

4. It is stated in the plan that consummation of Step II will necessarily be subject to the prior or simultaneous consummation of Step I. Consummation of Step II is specifically conditioned upon the prior consummation of the Philadelphia plan referred to in Part III hereof.

5. The supplement to the plan mentioned in paragraph 3 immediately above will be filed prior to the completion of the hearings on Step II and such supplement will also contain detailed provisions for declaring Step II effective and for giving notice thereof to security holders.

Step III. While Steps I and II of the plan are in progress, Philadelphia will effect either the dissolution and liquidation of Equitable Real Estate Company and Equitable Auto Company or will sell all their capital stocks owned by it. If either company is dissolved, all or part of its assets may be sold by Philadelphia to Duquesne or Railways. It is stated that Philadelphia also intends to use its best efforts to sell or otherwise dispose of its interest in Railways while Steps I and II are in progress. Any net proceeds received by Philadelphia will either be contributed to Duquesne, invested in additional stock of Duquesne, or applied toward the retirement of Philadelphia's bank loan. Philadelphia proposes to procure the discharge, for a nominal consideration, of its guarantee of certain obligations of Duquesne under a lease from a nonaffiliated company, Monongahela Light and Power Company.

Step IV. 1. Upon consummation of Steps I, II and III of the plan, Philadelphia's security holdings will consist of common stock of Duquesne and, unless the same shall have been previously disposed of by Philadelphia, of 50.9 percent of the common stock of Railways. Philadelphia's capitalization will consist of the then unpaid portion of its bank loan and common stock which will be publicly held except for such shares thereof as may be held by Standard Power.

2. If Philadelphia's holdings of common stock of Railways have been disposed of, Philadelphia will sell enough of the common stock of Duquesne to discharge the bank loan. Philadelphia will then liquidate and dissolve and distribute to its stockholders its remaining holdings of Duquesne common stock except for such amount as may be required to provide for any liability which cannot immediately be liquidated. Any such Duquesne common stock so retained plus any other remaining assets of Philadelphia not required to satisfy the liabilities of Philadelphia will be transferred to Duquesne.

If Philadelphia's holdings of common stock of Railways have not been disposed of, Philadelphia will distribute as a partial liquidating dividend to its stockholders sufficient common stock of Duquesne so that it will retain less than 10 percent of such stock and it will thereupon apply to the Commission for an order declaring it to be no longer a registered holding company under the act and it will continue in existence unless and until it shall have disposed of the Railways stock or until Railways shall have disposed of its assets and liquidated and dissolved. It is stated that upon the eventual disposition of its holdings in Railways, it is presently contemplated that Philadelphia would dissolve and distribute any remaining assets to its stockholders.

3. Standard Gas proposes to request the Commission, pursuant to section 11 (e) of the act, to apply to a Federal district court to enforce the liquidation of Philadelphia unless Philadelphia continues in existence after it shall have ceased to be a registered holding company under the act so contemplated in paragraph 2 immediately above. It is stated that the detailed provisions for consummation of Step IV and for giving notice thereof to security holders will be supplied as a supplement to the plan.

The plan provides that such fees and expenses in connection therewith and any proceedings with respect thereto as the Commission may award or allow shall be paid by Standard Gas to the extent that they relate to Steps I and II and by Philadelphia to the extent that they relate to Steps III and IV except that in either case all fees and expenses in connection with any corporate action or the issuance, exchange, and transfer of securities shall be borne by the acting or issuing corporation.

Consummation of each step of the plan and the transactions incidental thereto is subject to certain conditions among which are the obtaining of all necessary approvals of regulatory agencies having jurisdiction, the securing of satisfactory tax rulings, and the entry by an appropriate court of such decrees or orders as are necessary to enforce and carry out the terms of any such steps or transactions. Standard and Philadelphia reserve the right to modify the provisions of the plan, to vary the sequence in which the various steps and transactions are carried out, and to carry out any step in the plan without regard to the consummation of any other step. Consummation of each step and of any transaction included in each step is conditioned upon the issuance by the Commission of an appropriate order conforming to the requirements of sections 371 and 1808 (f) of the Internal Revenue Code which may be necessary to procure the tax rulings deemed to be satisfactory to Standard Gas and Philadelphia.

III. As noted above, by order of the Commission Philadelphia is required to take appropriate steps to liquidate and dissolve. Standard Gas is directed by the same order to cause this action to be taken.

Philadelphia's outstanding securities as of December 31, 1950, were as follows:

	Principal amount, par value or stated value
Notes payable to banks	$17,500,000
Capital stock:
Preferred 5 percent noncumulative ("5% preferred stock")	2,300
6 percent cumulative preferred ("6% preferred stock")	24,557,000
$5 cumulative preference ("$5 preference stock")	5,386,800
Common (including outstanding scrip)	37,633,684

The Notes Payable consist of 2 percent unsecured notes, dated August 23, 1950, maturing in one year with options on Philadelphia's part, subject to receipt of this Commission's approval, to renew for two successive one-year periods at an interest rate of 2⅛ percent. The proceeds of these notes were applied by Philadelphia as part of the consideration paid by it in connection with the purchase of the $27,500,000 par value 4 percent series preferred stock of Duquesne. Under the loan agreement, pursuant to which these notes were issued, Philadelphia may not dispose of any Duquesne common stock without the consent of the holders of 66⅔ percent of the principal amount of the notes outstanding.

Under Philadelphia's charter, the 5 percent preferred stock has first preference as to current dividends, but on liquidation is entitled to participate only after the holders of other series of preferred and preference stocks have received their liquidation preference. The 6 percent Preferred Stock is junior to the 5 percent preferred stock as to dividends, but on liquidation is entitled to $50 per share plus accrued dividends in preference to the 5 percent preferred stock and the $5 preference stock. The $5 preference stock has preference as to dividends ahead of the common stock but is junior to the 5 and 6 percent preferred stocks, and on liquidation is entitled to $100 per share plus accrued dividends after the 6 percent preferred stock but before the 5 percent preferred stock and common stock. Both the 5 percent and the 6 percent preferred stocks are non-callable. The $5 preference stock is callable at $110 per share plus accrued dividends.

In addition to its own securities, Philadelphia has guaranteed the payment of cumulative dividends to the extent of 4 percent per annum on the non-redeemable 6 percent cumulative preferred stock ("Consolidated preferred stock") of the Consolidated Gas Company of the City of Pittsburgh, an inactive company which ceased to do business in 1919 and has no assets or income, and of which Philadelphia owns securities representing 71 percent of the voting power. There is publicly outstanding $1,729,800 aggregate par value of such stock, represented by 34,596 shares, $50 par value per share. Philadelphia has treated its guarantee of dividends on this stock as a continuing obligation to pay annually 4 percent of the par value thereof.

As a step in partial compliance with the Commission's above-described outstanding order requiring the liquidation and dissolution of Philadelphia, Standard Gas has heretofore filed with this Commission, pursuant to section 11 (e) of the act, an Amended Plan for Simplification of Corporate Structure of the Philadelphia Company System and certain amendments thereto ("Philadelphia Plan") (File No. 54–173). The Philadelphia Plan provides, among other things, for the retirement by Philadelphia of its presently outstanding 6 percent preferred stock, 5 percent preferred stock, and the Consolidated preferred stock, all of which stocks are non-callable, by the delivery in exchange therefor of securities and cash as follows:

(1) For each share of 5 percent preferred stock, $11 in cash, with adjustments for accrued dividends;

(2) For each share of 6 percent preferred stock, one share of 4 percent series preferred stock of Duquesne, plus $3.50 in cash, with adjustments for accrued dividends; and

(3) For each share of Consolidated Preferred Stock, eighty-five hundredths (0.85) of one share of 4 percent series preferred stock of Duquesne, with adjustments for accrued dividends.

The Philadelphia Plan also states that the $5 Preference Stock will be retired by the delivery in exchange therefor of cash and/or securities and that Standard Gas will file a further amendment setting forth the precise allocations to be made to the holders of such stock and specifying the procedural details in connection therewith.

Hearings on the Philadelphia Plan were held and the record was closed on November 16, 1950. By letter dated February 12, 1951, the Commission advised participants in the Philadelphia Plan proceedings of the post-hearing procedure to be followed. On February 21, 1951, a committee representing holders of the Philadelphia 6 percent preferred stock filed with the Commission a motion requesting that the Commission (a) reopen the record in the Philadelphia Plan proceedings, (b) direct Standard Gas to introduce evidence with respect to the estimated earnings for 1951 of Duquesne and Philadelphia, and (c) postpone the post-hearing procedure heretofore fixed.

IV. The Commission being required by the provisions of section 11 (b) (2) of the act to require by order after notice and opportunity for hearing that each registered holding company and each subsidiary company thereof shall take such steps as the Commission shall find necessary to ensure that the continued existence of any company in the holding company system does not unduly or unnecessarily complicate the structure or unfairly or inequitably distribute voting power among security holders of such holding company system; the Commission being required by the provisions of section 11 (e) of the act, before approving any plan submitted thereunder, to find after notice and opportunity for hearing that the plan, as submitted or as modified, is necessary to effectuate the provisions of subsection (b) of section 11 of the act and is fair and equitable to the persons affected thereby; it appearing that evidence with respect to the prospective earnings of Duquesne and Philadelphia will be necessary for the determination of the issues in connection with Step I of the plan filed by Standard Gas and that such evidence will be helpful and relevant to the determination of the issues in connection with the Philadelphia Plan; it further appearing that due to the passage of time and events which have occurred since the hearings were closed on November 16, 1950, the record heretofore made in the Philadelphia Plan proceeding may be inadequate to permit findings as to the prospective earnings of Duquesne and Philadelphia and that the record should be reopened for the limited purpose of taking evidence with respect thereto; and it further appearing appropriate (i) that notice be given and the hearing previously held under section 11 (b) (2) be reconvened in connection with the reservation of jurisdiction as to the continued existence of Standard Gas, contained in the Commission's order dated December 31, 1948, requiring Standard Gas to liquidate and dissolve or to recapitalize on the basis of a single class of stock, namely, common stock, (ii) that notice be given and a hearing be held with respect to Step I of the plan filed by Standard Gas and Philadelphia Company under section 11 (e) of the act and that said plan shall not become effective except pursuant to further order or orders of the Commission, and (iii) that notice be given and the hearing be reopened on the Philadelphia Plan filed under section 11 (e) of the act and that the post-hearing procedure heretofore fixed in such proceeding be vacated; and

It further appearing that common questions of law and fact are involved in the proceeding under section 11 (b) (2) of the act (File No. 59–66), in the proceeding upon the application filed by Standard Gas under section 11 (e) of the act (File No. 54–191), and in the proceeding on the Philadelphia Plan (File No. 54–173); that evidence offered in respect of each of said proceedings may have a bearing on the other and that substantial savings in time, effort, and expense will result if said proceedings are consolidated for the purpose of the hearing hereinafter ordered so that they may be heard as one matter and so that evidence adduced in each proceeding may be considered as evidence in the other; and that at such consolidated hearing the first order of business should be the taking of evidence with respect to the modification of the Commission's order of December 31, 1948, pursuant to section 11 (b) (2) of the act, and the second order of business shall be the taking of evidence with respect to the prospective earnings of Duquesne and Philadelphia:

It is ordered, That the pending proceeding directed to Standard Gas under section 11 (b) (2) of the act (File No. 59–66), the proceeding with respect to the instant plan (File No. 54–191), and the pending proceeding with respect to the Philadelphia Plan (File No. 54–173) be, and they hereby are, consolidated for the purpose of the hearing hereinafter ordered: Provided, That the consolidation with respect to the Philadelphia Plan proceeding is solely for the purpose of receiving evidence with respect to the prospective earnings of Duquesne and Philadelphia: And provided further, That this order of consolidation is without prejudice to the Commission's right to separate, either for hearing, in whole or in part, or for determination, in whole or in part, any issues or questions hereinafter set forth or which may arise in these proceedings, to separate the proceedings consolidated herein, or to take such other action as may appear conducive to an orderly, prompt and economical disposition of the matters involved.

It is further ordered, That a public hearing in the consolidated proceeding be held under the applicable provisions of the act and the rules and regulations promulgated thereunder at 10:00 a. m., e. s. t., at the offices of the Securities and Exchange Commission, 425 Second Street NW., Washington 25, D. C., on the 9th day of April 1951. On that date the hearing room clerk in Room 193 will advise as to the room in which the hearing will be held. In the event that amendments or supplements are filed during the course of said proceedings, no notice of such amendments or supplements need be given unless specifically ordered by the Commission. Any person not having heretofore appeared in the proceedings at File Nos. 59–66 and 54–173 and desiring to be heard in connection with this consolidated proceeding or proposing to intervene herein shall file with the Secretary of the Commission on or before April 4, 1951, his written request or application therefor as provided by Rule XVII of the rules of practice of the Commission.

It is further ordered, That William W. Swift or any other officer or officers of the Commission designated by it for that purpose shall preside at the hearing. The officer so designated to preside at the hearing is hereby authorized to exercise all powers granted to the Commission under section 18 (c) of the act and to a Hearing Officer under the Commission's rules of practice.

It is further ordered, That at the consolidated hearing hereinbefore ordered, and as the first order of business, cause shall be shown why the Commission should not enter an order forthwith pursuant to section 11 (b) (2) of the act modifying the Commission's order of December 31, 1948, so as to require Standard Gas to liquidate and dissolve; and as the second order of business, evidence shall be taken with respect to the prospective earnings of Duquesne and Philadelphia.

It is further ordered, That the post-hearing procedure heretofore fixed in the Philadelphia Plan proceeding be, and the same hereby is, vacated and set aside.

The Division of Public Utilities of the Commission having advised the Commission that it has made a preliminary examination of the instant plan filed by Standard Gas (File No. 54–191) and that, on the basis thereof, the following matters and questions in connection with Step I are presented for consideration by the Commission without prejudice to the presentation of additional matters and questions upon further examination and without consideration at this time of the issues involved in connection with Steps II, III and IV of such plan:

1. Whether Step I of the plan, as submitted or as it may hereafter be modified, is necessary to effectuate the provisions of section 11 (b) of the act;

2. Whether Step I of the plan, as submitted or as it may hereafter be modified, is fair and equitable to the holders of the outstanding securities of Standard Gas, Philadelphia, and Duquesne and to all other persons whose interest in or whose claims against Standard Gas or Philadelphia by reason of holdings of securities or otherwise may be affected thereby;

3. Whether the proposal to treat Standard Power's holdings of Standard Gas $7 Prior Preference Stock on the same basis as the holdings of public security holders is fair and equitable;

4. Whether it is appropriate for Standard Power to acquire the common stocks of Wisconsin, Oklahoma, and Duquesne which would be exchanged for the holdings of Standard Power of the $7 Preference stock of Standard Gas;

5. Generally, whether the transactions proposed in Step I of the plan are in all respects in the public interest and in the interest of investors and consumers and consistent with all applicable requirements of the act and of the rules and regulations thereunder, with particular reference to the following proposals: (a) The reclassification of the common stock of Duquesne; and (b) the distribution by Philadelphia of common stock of Duquesne as a dividend in kind;

6. Whether the fees, expenses and other remuneration which may be claimed or paid in connection with Step I of the plan and the transactions incident thereto are for necessary services and are reasonable in amount, and whether the proposed allocation thereof is appropriate;

7. Whether the accounting treatment to be accorded the proposed transactions is proper and in conformity with sound accounting principles and the Commission's Uniform System of Accounts for Public Utility Holding Companies;

8. Whether the plan as submitted or as it may be modified, or a plan filed by any person having a bona fide interest in the proceeding, should be approved by the Commission for the purposes of section 11 (d) of the act, and, if proposed by the Commission or by a person having a bona fide interest, what the terms and provisions of such plan should be;

It is further ordered, That particular attention be directed at said hearing to the foregoing matters and questions.

It is further ordered, That the Secretary of the Commission shall serve a copy of this notice and order by registered mail on Standard Power; Standard Gas; Philadelphia; Duquesne; Mellon National Bank and Trust Company of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania; The Chase National Bank of New York, of New York, N. Y.; Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Company of Chicago, of Chicago, Illinois; Harris Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago, Illinois; Paul D. Miller, Esq.; Alfred Berman, Esq.; W. Howard Dilks, Jr., Esq.; William L. Fox, Esq.; Milton H. Cohen, Esq.; Leo B. Mittelman, Esq.; Harold C. Ackert, Esq.; H. F. Stambaugh, Esq.; A. Albert Minton, Esq.; Marvin M. Notkins, Esq.; Henry C. Herchenroether; Morton C. Rosenberg, Esq.; Edmond M. Hanrahan, Esq.; I. T. Flatto, Esq.; Lewis Schimberg, Esq.; the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission; the Federal Power Commission, and the City of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania and that notice of said hearing shall be given to all other persons by general release of this Commission which shall be distributed to the press and mailed to persons on the mailing list for releases under the act, and that further notice shall be given to all persons by publication of this notice and order in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

It is further ordered, That Standard Gas shall give further notice of this hearing to all of its security holders (insofar as the identity of such security holders is known or available to it) by mailing to each of said persons a copy of this notice and order to his last known address at least 20 days prior to the date of said hearing.

By the Commission.

UNITED GAS CORP.

ORDER GRANTING APPLICATION AND PERMITTING DECLARATION TO BECOME EFFECTIVE

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C. on the 1st day of March A. D. 1951.

United Gas Corporation ("United"), a gas utility subsidiary of Electric Bond and Share Company, a registered holding company, having filed an application-declaration, and an amendment thereto, under the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935, particularly sections 6 (a), 7, and 12 (e) thereof, and Rules U-62 and U-65 thereunder regarding certain proposed transactions which may be summarized as follows:

United proposes to solicit the affirmative vote of the holders of its outstanding bonds and if such solicitation is successful, proposes to modify in the respects hereinafter described its Mortgage and Deed of Trust dated as of October 1, 1944, made by United in favor of Guaranty Trust Company of New York and Henry A. Theis (Herbert Twyeffort, Successor) as Trustees, as supplemented by a First Supplemental Indenture dated as of July 1, 1947, and a Second Supplemental Indenture dated as of January 1, 1950 (hereinafter collectively referred to as "the Mortgage").

United owns all of the outstanding securities of United Gas Pipe Line Company ("Pipe Line") and Union Producing Company ("Union"). The securities of these subsidiaries are pledged with the Trustees under the Mortgage securing United's outstanding $106,345,000 principal amount of 2¾ percent bonds series due 1967, and $24,649,000 principal amount of 2¾ percent bonds series due 1970. The securities of Pipe Line presently pledged with the Trustees of United's Mortgage consist of the following: $51,003,000 principal amount First Mortgage 4 percent bonds series due 1962, 100,000 shares of no par value common stock and 3 percent notes of an aggregate principal amount of $5,000,000 payable to United; and the securities of Union so pledged consist of $34,000,000 principal amount of 6 percent debentures due March 1, 1952, and 50,000 shares of no par value common stock.

The proposed modification is concerned with sub-section (I) of section 56 of the Mortgage. This subsection now requires the pledge of all stock at any time owned by United of all subsidiary Companies as defined in the Mortgage, and all debt at any time owned by it of any "Class 'A' Subsidiary," as defined in the Mortgage, (presently Pipe Line) or Union (or any successor) except certain indebtedness not in excess of $3,000,000 at any one time outstanding with respect to any one "Class 'A' Subsidiary" or Union and not in excess of $5,000,000 at any one time outstanding with respect to all "Class 'A' Subsidiaries" and Union acquired after the date of the initial issue of bonds under the Mortgage and not made the basis of a credit under the Mortgage. Bonds were initially issued under the Mortgage in 1944.

It is stated that because of the more rapid growth and development of the properties of Pipe Line as compared with those of United, the practical application of the provisions of subsection (I) of section 56 of the Mortgage impedes the free flow of cash between United and Pipe Line. As an illustration, the application - declaration recites, United through the media of downstream loans to Pipe Line, evidenced by promissory notes, has made available to Pipe Line temporary funds with which to meet its construction needs. In this connection, with the approval of this Commission, United recently loaned to Pipe Line an aggregate of $8,000,000 evidenced by the latter's 3 percent promissory notes made to United or order. Of these notes, $3,000,000 principal amount was retained in the portfolio of United and $5,000,000 principal amount was pledged with the Corporate Trustee in accordance with the provisions of subsection (I) of section 56 of the Mortgage. The notes so pledged with the Corporate Trustees remain unfunded indebtedness and any cash substituted therefor or in payment of such notes remains unfunded cash. Thereafter, Pipe Line paid the promissory notes ($3,000,000) held by United in its portfolio as referred to above and despite the fact that there was no unpledged indebtedness between United and Pipe Line, United was unable to draw down up to $3,000,000 of the $5,000,000 of notes held by the Corporate Trustee because the Mortgage in its present form provides no express provisions whereby pledged debt will be automatically released to the extent of the retirement of free debt. Nor could United draw down any cash substituted for or in payment of such notes without certifying property additions on a dollar for dollar basis, although such property additions of United would remain fundable additions.

Because of the much more substantial construction program in Pipe Line and its corresponding need for larger sums of money and since United can use only its own property additions to draw down cash proceeds of debt pledged with the Trustee under subsection (I) of section 56 of the Mortgage, such cash, although remaining unfunded cash, is sterilized in the hands of the Trustee until United is able to certify its own property additions (which remain fundable) as the basis for the release of funds. Since under the Mortgage, Pipe Line can only finance its construction needs through the sale of securities to United or temporary downstream loans from United to Pipe Line, later to be converted into long-term indebtedness through the issue and sale of securities by Pipe Line to United (which long-term securities must be pledged with the corporate trustee), the operation of subsection (I) of section 56 impairs the flow of cash and in the opinion of the management will continue to sterilize substantial amounts of cash in the hands of the Corporate Trustee.

It is proposed to modify subsection (I) of section 56 so that it will be unnecessary for United (except in the case of bonds of Pipe Line or any other Class "A" Subsidiary secured by a Subsidiary Mortgage) to pledge with the Corporate Trustee, debentures, notes or other unsecured indebtedness of Pipe Line or any other Class "A" Subsidiary owned by United and United will be permitted to retain such debentures, notes or other unsecured indebtedness in its securities' portfolio, but any such retained debentures, notes or other unsecured indebtedness will not be transferable except to the Corporate Trustee and by their terms will not be enforceable against or payable out of Mortgaged and Pledged Property of Pipe Line or any other Class "A" Subsidiary or out of proceeds of Mortgaged and Pledged Property. In addition restrictions are imposed with respect to the aggregate principal amount of such retained indebtedness to the effect that (a) the aggregate principal amount of such retained indebtedness shall not be in excess of two-thirds of the aggregate principal amount of all bonds of Pipe Line or any other Class "A" Subsidiary previously issued under the Pipe Line Mortgage or corresponding provisions of another Subsidiary Mortgage, and (b) the aggregate principal amount of all indebtedness of a Class "A" Subsidiary (except certain Permitted Indebtedness) shall not exceed seventy percent of the capitalization of the Class "A" Subsidiary as shown on its books. The proposed modification, it is represented, will not affect the limitations provided in subsection (I) of section 56 with respect to Union Producing Company. Union's debt securities pledged with the Corporate Trustee are not secured by a mortgage on its properties. Furthermore, Union's construction and development program has not been comparable in size or scope with that of Pipe Line, and its indebtedness to United in excess of the permitted maximum pledged with the Corporate Trustee could be unblocked by use of United's property additions.

The Mortgage provides for its modification by the affirmative vote of the holders of 70 percent in principal amount of bonds outstanding, by a resolution of bondholders adopted at a meeting called for such purpose and upon approval of such resolution of the bondholders by a resolution of the Board of Directors of United.

United has engaged the firm of Dillon, Read & Co., Inc., representatives of which will assist United in the solicitation of proxies from United's registered and bearer bondholders for use at the meeting of bondholders to be called for April 3, 1951. United will pay Dillon, Read & Co., Inc., such sum, based upon services rendered, as may be agreed upon between United and Dillon, Read & Co., Inc., and as may be approved as not unreasonable by this Commission.

Said application-declaration having been filed on February 13, 1951, and the last amendment thereto having been filed on February 28, 1951, and notice of said filing having been given in the form and manner prescribed by Rule U-23 promulgated pursuant to said act, and the Commission not having received a request for hearing with respect to said application-declaration, as amended, and not having ordered a hearing thereon; and

The Commission finding with respect to all of the transactions proposed in said application-declaration that the requirements of the applicable provisions of the act and rules thereunder are satisfied, subject to a reservation of jurisdiction to determine the appropriateness and reasonableness of all fees and expenses incurred or to be incurred directly or indirectly by United in connection with the proposed transactions, as to which the record is not now complete, and the Commission deeming it appropriate in the public interest and in the interest of investors and consumers that said amended application-declaration be granted and permitted to become effective forthwith:

It is ordered, Pursuant to Rule U-23 and the applicable provisions of said act that said application-declaration, as amended, be, and the same hereby is, granted and permitted to become effective forthwith, subject to the terms and conditions prescribed in Rule U-24.

It is further ordered, That jurisdiction be, and it hereby is, reserved to determine the appropriateness and reasonableness of all fees and expenses incurred or to be incurred, directly or indirectly, by United in connection with the proposed transactions.

By the Commission.

Secretary.

BAVARIAN PALATINATE CONSOLIDATED CITIES

In re: Coupon account owned by Bavarian Palatinate Consolidated Cities. D-28-10800-E-1.

Under the authority of the Trading With the Enemy Act, as amended, Executive Order 9193, as amended, and Executive Order 9788, and pursuant to law, after investigation, it is hereby found:

1. That Bavarian Palatinate Consolidated Cities are municipalities which are political subdivisions of a designated enemy country (Germany);

2. That the property described as follows: That certain debt or other obligation of Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Company of Chicago, 231 South La Salle Street, Chicago, Illinois, arising out of a checking account, entitled "Ames, Emerich & Co., Inc., Bavarian Palatinate Consolidated Cities Coupon Purchasing Account", maintained at the office of the aforesaid bank, together with any and all accruals thereto, and any and all rights to demand, enforce and collect the same, is property within the United States owned or controlled by, payable or deliverable to, held on behalf of or on account of, or owing to, or which is evidence of ownership or control by, Bavarian Palatinate Consolidated Cities, the aforesaid political subdivisions of a designated enemy country (Germany);

All determinations and all action required by law, including appropriate consultation and certification, having been made and taken, and, it being deemed necessary in the national interest,

There is hereby vested in the Attorney General of the United States the property described above, to be held, used, administered, liquidated, sold or otherwise dealt with in the interest of and for the benefit of the United States.

The term "designated enemy country" as used herein shall have the meaning prescribed in section 10 of Executive Order 9193, as amended.

Executed at Washington, D. C., on February 21, 1951.

TITLE 14—CIVIL AVIATION

Chapter I—Civil Aeronautics Board

[Civil Air Regs., Amdt. 22-4]

PART 22—LIGHTER-THAN-AIR PILOT CERTIFICATES

FREE BALLOON PILOT CERTIFICATES RESTRICTED TO OPERATION OF HOT-AIR BALLOONS

Adopted by the Civil Aeronautics Board at its office in Washington, D. C., on the 2d day of March 1951.

Section 22.13 of the current Civil Air Regulations specifically prescribes the requirements for the issuance of free balloon pilot certificates. Under paragraph (f) of this section each applicant is required to pass an extensive examination on aeronautical matters which include meteorology, navigation, and the servicing and operation of airships. Under paragraph (g) he must comply with the minimum experience requirements with respect to flight instruction and solo flight time. Under paragraph (h) he is required to demonstrate successfully his skill in actual solo flight.

This amendment exempts from the requirements of paragraphs (f), (g), and (h) an applicant who seeks a free balloon pilot certificate restricted to the operation of hot-air balloons and who otherwise meets the requirements of the section. Experience has shown that the knowledge requirements of paragraph (f) are not prerequisite to the safe operation of hot-air balloons and that the experience and skill requirements of paragraphs (g) and (h) are inconsistent with the operating limitations of hot-air balloons. For these reasons the Board intends to permit the issuance of a free balloon pilot certificate limited to the operation of hot-air balloons without requiring compliance with the provisions of § 22.13 (f), (g), and (h).

Interested persons have been afforded an opportunity to participate in the making of this amendment, and due consideration has been given to all relevant matter presented.

In consideration of the foregoing the Civil Aeronautics Board hereby amends Part 22 (14 CFR Part 22, as amended) effective April 6, 1951.

By amending § 22.13, excepting paragraphs (a) through (h), to read as follows:

§ 22.13 Free balloon pilot certificate. An applicant for a free balloon pilot certificate which is not limited to the operation of hot-air balloons shall comply with the requirements of paragraphs (a) through (h) of this section. An applicant for a free balloon pilot certificate which is limited to the operation of hot-air balloons shall comply only with the requirements of paragraphs (a) through (e) of this section.

PART 33—FLIGHT RADIO OPERATOR CERTIFICATE

EXCHANGE OF FLIGHT RADIO OPERATOR CERTIFICATE

Adopted by the Civil Aeronautics Board at its office in Washington, D. C., on the 2d day of March 1951.

Currently effective Civil Air Regulations required individuals who met the requirements of Part 33 for flight radio operator certificates prior to February 15, 1950, to exchange such certificates for new ones prior to January 1, 1951. The requirements of Part 33 presently include standards established in Annex 1 to the Convention on International Civil Aviation, standards which are to become effective among all the nations which are parties to the Convention on May 1, 1953.

It has been noted that certain individuals holding expired certificates have inadvertently failed to exchange them for new ones, in part because of misunderstanding attributable to the conflict between the date of expiration of their certificates and that for general compliance with the international standards under the Convention. Many of these individuals are currently employed as flight radio operators by air carriers and are needed for current operations. This amendment, therefore, provides that the present expiration date on all flight radio operator certificates issued prior to February 15, 1950, shall be extended to May 1, 1953, and that each holder of such certificate who meets or has met the requirements of Part 33 shall surrender his certificate for a new one on or before that date. This amendment also provides for a period of 12 months beyond the new expiration date during which the Administrator may at his discretion renew or reissue a certificate of a qualified individual without requiring any re-examination.

For the reasons set forth above, notice and public procedure hereon are impracticable and unnecessary, and the Board finds that good cause exists for making this amendment effective immediately.

In consideration of the foregoing the Civil Aeronautics Board hereby amends Part 33 of the Civil Air Regulations (14 CFR, Part 33, as amended), effective March 2, 1951.

By amending § 33.8 to read as follows:

§ 33.8 Exchange of certificates. All flight radio operator certificates issued prior to February 15, 1950, shall expire on May 1, 1953. Each certificate holder who surrenders his outstanding certificate to the Administrator on or before May 1, 1953, shall be issued a new certificate if he meets or has met the requirements of this part. Between May 1, 1953, and May 1, 1954, the Administrator may at his discretion renew or reissue a certificate without requiring a re-examination or further demonstration of technical competence.

TITLE 32A—NATIONAL DEFENSE, APPENDIX

Chapter III—Office of Price Stabilization, Economic Stabilization Agency

[Ceiling Price Regulation 6, Amendment 1]

CPR 6—FATS AND OILS

SHORTENING, SALAD OIL, COTTONSEED OIL, SOYBEAN OIL, CORN OIL

Pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.), Executive Order 10161 (15 F. R. 6105), and Economic Stabilization Agency General Order 2 (16 F. R. 738) this Amendment 1 to Ceiling Price Regulation 6 is hereby issued.

STATEMENT OF CONSIDERATIONS

This amendment has two general purposes. The more important is the provision, under paragraph 9, of a new section 11 of CPR 6, which rolls back the prices of most processors of shortening and salad oil. The other purpose, accomplished by paragraphs 1 through 8, is to clarify and correct in a number of details the provisions of CPR 6 with respect to cottonseed, soybean and corn oils.

The rollback of shortening and salad oil prices eliminates advances of from one to two cents per pound by virtually all processors which occurred between January 16 and January 25. These price advances, however, had not in general been reflected at the retail level at the time of the issuance of the General Ceiling Price Regulation. The rollbacks at the processors' level remove any question of adjusting retail prices to reflect increased costs. This solution of the problem was made possible by the rollbacks on cottonseed, soybean and corn oils instituted when CPR 6 was issued on February 14.

Representatives of persons substantially affected by this regulation have been advised and consulted with but it has not been practicable to utilize the formal industry committee which is being established.

An examination has been made of operating margins of representative companies in the shortening and salad oil industry. It is the opinion of the Director of Price Stabilization that the prices established will provide fair and equitable operating margins for the remainder of this crop year. In making this determination the Director has given consideration to operating margins existing in June 1950 and in recent years as well as other relevant factors. Furthermore, the prices established will reflect to producers prices specified in section 402 (d) (3) of the Defense Production Act of 1950. But although operating margins will be generally fair and equitable for the remainder of this crop year, certain of them, as noted below, are below normal. These are generally agreed to by the industry on the assumption that they will be reexamined at the time the broader question of the general structure of fats and oils prices is reviewed in the light of 1951 crop conditions.

Specifically, this Amendment accomplishes the following objectives:

(1) It establishes dollar and cents ceiling prices for most grades and most container sizes of shortening and edible oils at prices below those established by the majority of the companies in the industry under the General Ceiling Price Regulation.

(2) It establishes the customary differentials between most of the various grades of product which have usually prevailed in the normal operation of the industry. In the bulk shortening field, these relationships are maintained with standard shortening at 1.75 cents per pound less than hydrogenated shortening (without mono- and diglycerides), and with hydrogenated shortening (with mono- and diglycerides) at 1 cent per pound above hydrogenated shortening (without mono- and diglycerides).

In the household shortening field Household Consumer Hydrogenated shortening (with mono- and diglycerides) in three-pound airtight cans is less than five cents per pound above Standard Shortening in three-pound cartons. The customary differential is more than six cents per pound, and averages approximately eight cents per pound. In the pre-Korean period the differential was six cents per pound.

In the salad and cooking oil field the usual relationships are maintained with 5-gallon cans 1.26 cents per pound above drums, 1-gallon cans 0.47 cent per pound above 5-gallon cans, quarts 3.90 cents per pound above 1-gallon cans, and pints 1.08 cents per pound above quarts. These differentials have become customary because of variations in package cost, variations in the cost of filling, and variation in the cost of handling and distributing. The top brands have received a premium of from 35 to 40 cents per case, which is less than the usual differential in the free market. These brands normally sell at differentials above other brands of 50 cents per case or more. In the pre-Korean period the differential for these well-known brands was 70 cents per case.

The ceiling prices for salad and cooking oils made from soybean oil allow the same margins and differentials for package sizes as the ceilings for salad and cooking oils made from cottonseed and corn oil.

(3) It establishes differentials for quantity, container, cash discount, area and branch houses and car routes which will enable all sellers to name prices in conformance with their individual historical patterns.

(4) It provides for the determination of a ceiling price for brands not specifically named in the schedule through the application of a normal differential from one of the brands named, or through an application for adjustment in the case of a brand without a customary relationship to another brand.

(5) It permits the Defense Agency or person contracting for the Defense Agency to purchase shortening at ceiling prices exceeding the ceiling prices of shortenings named by not more than two cents per pound.

This differential for Defense Agencies is necessary because the shortenings for which specific ceiling prices are named are made from less costly ingredients mixed with cottonseed oil. Defense Agencies recently have specified shortening containing 100% cottonseed oil. This exemption will permit the Defense Agencies to secure quotations on the desired grade of shortening.

The following are the specific changes in the ceiling prices for cottonseed, soybean and corn oil provided by this Amendment.

1. Dunklin county, Missouri, has been added to the delivery points listed in section 3 (a) as it has been determined that it has been customary in the trade to pay $\frac{1}{8}$ cent per pound over Mississippi Valley for crude cottonseed oil shipped from this point. A further change was necessary to allow a normal flow of cottonseed oil in California and to eliminate inequities created by the delivered price which prevented the oil from moving into San Francisco. The revision establishes f. o. b. mill prices which will make the oil accessible to all buyers throughout the State.

2. Section 3 (b) is amended by deleting three grades of refined cottonseed oil which are not commonly sold. It is the opinion of the trade that special circumstances are so likely to surround transactions in these grades that it is preferable to provide ceilings under the general language of section 3 (b) (3). The prices of basic grades of cottonseed oil are not affected by this action.

3. Section 3 (b) (2) is amplified by designating the types of bulk containers for which customary differentials apply.

4. Most cottonseed oil sold on the West Coast is in the form of bleachable prime summer yellow oil owing to lack of refining capacity at buyer's plants. The spread between crude and refined grades of cottonseed oil in section 3 (b) was not sufficient to cover the cost of delivering the refined oil to Los Angeles and San Francisco, and prices have been adjusted accordingly. Fort Worth, Texas has also been adjusted to bring its ceiling price in line with other Texas points.

5. The delivery points listed in section 3 (b) are amplified in this amendment to include destinations and appropriate ceiling prices for refined grades of cottonseed oil for the purpose of broadening the coverage of CPR 6. This change was made at the request of members of the industry to facilitate the determination of customary location differentials. The techniques use in establishing the original prices for destinations were employed in determining the prices for the new destinations.

6. The f. o. b. Decatur, Illinois, plus freight to destination provision made it possible for some purchasers to pay higher mill prices than others for soybean oil from mills in Delaware, Indiana, and other points listed in section 4 (a). This amendment will enable all buyers to have access to crude soybean oil regardless of their refinery location.

7. Section 4 (c), determining the ceiling price of refined soybean oil by the application of customary differentials above the crude oil ceiling, is replaced by specific prices for various grades on an f. o. b. Decatur basis. Ceiling prices are established for refined grades of soybean oil to allow margins for processing equivalent to those provided for cottonseed oil, and which have been customarily used by the refining industry. Since the price for crude soybean oil is established on an f. o. b. Decatur, Illinois, basis, the refined oils have been treated in a similar manner. However, in order to make necessary refinery and hydrogenation capacity available to users of finished tank car oils, the inclusion of actual freight charges, rather than the direct freight rates from Decatur, Illinois to destination is authorized. This has been customary in normal trade practice and is already permitted under the general language of CPR 6. The specific authorization of actual freight is simply a clarification of normal differentials.

8. This Amendment enlarges the area in which crude corn oil has a ceiling of 24½ cents in section 5 (a) and spells out the customary differential due to favorable location in the East in the case of Geneva, New York, and Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania. Other locations outside the Midwest do not have a customary differential.

9. The change in section 5 (b) permits the buyer to secure his requirements of corn oil in places other than Chicago without being bound to a Chicago price.

In formulating this regulation the Director of Price Stabilization has consulted extensively with industry representatives and has given full consideration to their recommendations. In his judgment the provisions of this regulation are generally fair and equitable and are necessary to effectuate the purposes of Title IV of the Defense Production Act of 1950.

So far as practicable the Director of Price Stabilization gave due consideration to the national effort to achieve maximum production in furtherance of the objective of the Defense Production Act of 1950; to prices prevailing during the period from May 24, 1950, to June 24, 1950, inclusive; and to relevant factors of general applicability.

AMENDATORY PROVISIONS

Ceiling Price Regulation 6 is amended in the following respects:

1. The table of f. o. b. mill prices in section 3 (a) is amended to read as follows:

(a) Crude cottonseed oil. In tank cars, in cents per pound, as follows:

	F. o. b. mill
Arizona (except Graham County); Illinois; North Carolina; South Carolina; Tennessee, Crittenden and Mississippi Counties, Arkansas; New Madrid, Dunklin, and Scott Counties, Mo.; Morgan County, Ala.	23⅞
Alabama (except Morgan County); Arkansas (except Crittenden and Mississippi Counties); Florida; Georgia; Louisiana; Mississippi; Missouri (except New Madrid, Dunklin, and Scott Counties); Graham County, Ariz.	23½
Oklahoma; El Paso County, Tex.; New Mexico	23⅜
Texas (except El Paso County)	23¼
California (except Los Angeles County)	24
Los Angeles County, California	24¼

2. Section 3 (b) is amended by deleting the columns entitled "Refined bleached and undeodorized oil (in tank cars)", "Refined deodorized and unbleached summer oil (in tank cars)" and "High titre hydrogenated deodorized oil (in bags)" and deleting all prices pertaining to these grades of refined cottonseed oil.

3. Section 3 (b) (2) is amended to read:

(2) Differentials for other types of bulk containers. The customary differentials for other types of bulk containers, including tank wagons or drums when shipped on a refining-in-transit rate, shall apply.

4. Delivered prices for various grades of refined cottonseed oil, as shown in section 3 (b) are corrected in respect to three delivery points, in cents per pound, as follows:

	Bleachable prime summer yellow oil (in tanks cars)	Cooking [illegible] refined white Bleached summer oil (in bulk cars)	Salad or winterized [illegible] (in bulk cars)	[illegible]	[illegible] hydrogenated [illegible]

6. The table in section 4 (a) is amended to read as follows:

(a) Crude soybean oil. In tank cars, in cents per pound, as follows:

	F. o. b. mill
California, Oregon, Washington	21⅝.
Arizona	21⅛.
Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Kansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Tennessee, Texas.	20½.
Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota.	20⅜.
Delaware, Indiana, Kentucky, Michigan, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Virginia, Wisconsin.	20½ cents plus freight from Decatur, Illinois, to New York, New York, minus freight from point of sale to New York, New York: Provided, That in no case shall your ceiling be less than 20½ cents.

7. Section 4 (c) is amended to read as follows:

(c) Refined soybean oil. Your ceiling price for sales of refined soybean oil shall be, in cents per pound, as follows:

For sales f. o. b. Decatur, Ill.

Refined unbleached and undeodorized soybean oil for edible use	22.00
Once refined industrial soybean oil for inedible use	22.25
Once refined bleached industrial soybean oil for inedible use	22.75
Deodorized and bleached soybean oil	23.45
Soybean salad oil	23.55
Hydrogenated margarine soybean oil	24.20
High titre undeodorized hydrogenated soybean oil in bags	25.60

For sales at any other place. Wherever refining-in-transit freight rates apply from Decatur, Illinois, through refinery location to final destination, your ceiling price shall be the f. o. b. Decatur, Illinois, price plus refining-in-transit freight from Decatur, Illinois, through refinery location to final destination.

Wherever refining-in-transit rates do not apply from Decatur, Illinois, through refinery location to final destination, your ceiling price shall be the f. o. b. Decatur, Illinois, price plus inbound freight from Decatur, Illinois, and actual outbound freight from refinery location to final destination.

(1) Differentials for other grades. The customary differentials for grades above or below these prices for basic grades shall continue to apply.

(2) Differentials for other types of bulk containers. The customary differentials for other types of bulk containers, including tank wagons or drums when shipped on a refining-in-transit rate, shall continue to apply.

(3) Adjustments for premium quality. If you are an individual seller of refined soybean oil and have customarily charged a premium over the market price for a grade of such oil, you may apply in writing to the Director of Price Stabilization, Washington 25, D. C., for an adjustment in your ceiling price for such premium quality oil. This application shall contain all pertinent information describing the quality characteristics of the particular grade of oil and documentary evidence that you have customarily charged the premium. After March 1, 1951, you may not charge the premium price without the written approval of the Director of Price Stabilization. Until March 1, 1951, you may charge your customary premium over the applicable ceiling prices in Section 3 (b) of this regulation.

8. Section 5 is amended to read as follows:

SEC. 5. Ceiling prices for sellers of corn oil. Your ceiling price for sale of corn oil shall be as follows:

(a) Crude corn oil. In tank cars, in cents per pound, as follows:

F. o. b. all mills in U. S., except Geneva, New York and Wilkes-Barre, Pa.	24½
F. o. b. Geneva, New York, and Wilkes-Barre, Pa.	25

(b) Refined corn oil. In tank cars, in cents per pound, as follows:

Corn salad oil, basis f. o. b. Midwestern Refineries	27½

(1) Differentials for other types of bulk containers. The customary differentials for other types of bulk containers shall continue to prevail.

(2) Differentials for other grades. The customary differentials for grade above or below these prices for basic grades shall continue to apply.

9. A new section 11 is added to read as follows:

SEC. 11. Ceiling prices for processors of shortening and salad and cooking oils—(a) Standard shortening. The delivered ceiling prices of Armour and Co.'s "Star" and "Domino," Cotton Products Co.'s "Lou-Ana," The Cudahy Packing Co.'s "White Ribbon," The Glidden Co.'s (Durkee Famous Foods) "Snowflake," The Humko Co.'s "Humko," Mrs. Tucker's Foods, Inc.'s "Mrs. Tucker's" and "Southern Queen," The Procter and Gamble Co.'s "Fluffo" and "Flakewhite," Swift and Co.'s "Jewel" and "Sanco," Wesson Oil and Snowdrift Sales Co.'s "Crustene" and "Scoco," Wilson and Co.'s "Advance" and "Royal Aster," all other brands of standard shortening manufactured or distributed by the processors of these brands, and all other brands of standard shortening manufactured or distributed by processors not named above but customarily sold in the same price range as the brands mentioned, shall be the following prices:

	North and South	Pacific Coast
	Cents	Cents
Drums (per pound)	30.00	31.00
110-pound tins (per pound)	29.00	30.00

(g) Salad or cooking oil (made from soybean oil). The delivered ceiling prices of The Glidden Co.'s (Durkee Famous Foods) "Capitano", The Procter and Gamble Co.'s "Atlas", C. F. Simonin's Sons, Inc.'s "Sayola", A. E. Staley Manufacturing Co.'s "Edsoy", Swift and Co.'s "Imperial", Spencer Kellog and Sons, Inc.'s "Spensoy", all other brands of salad and cooking oil (made from soybean oil) manufactured or distributed by the processors of these brands and all other brands of salad and cooking oil (made from soybean oil) manufactured or distributed by processors not named above but customarily sold in the same price range as the brands mentioned, shall be the following prices:

	Cents	Cents
Drums (per pound)	28.25	28.25
	Dollars	Dollars
1/5 gallons (per case)	11.35	11.50
6/1 gallons (per case)	13.85	13.95

(h) Differentials—(1) Quantity differentials for shortenings. The delivered ceiling prices of hydrogenated and standard shortenings are the prices for hydrogenated and standard shortenings when shipped in quantity to which the lowest price is applied in the processor's published price lists. For other quantities, the customary differentials shall apply.

(2) Quantity differentials for salad and cooking oils. The delivered ceiling prices of salad and cooking oils are the prices when shipped in the quantities named in the processor's published price lists. When salad and cooking oils are shipped in carload lots on which a refining-in-transit privilege is applicable, the customary discount (if any) from the delivered ceiling prices established in this section shall continue to apply. For other quantities the customary differentials shall apply.

(3) Container. When hydrogenated and standard shortening and salad and cooking oils are sold in containers of different sizes from the container sizes named in this section, the customary differentials for size of container shall apply.

(4) Cash discounts. The delivered ceiling prices of hydrogenated and standard shortenings and salad and cooking oils established in this section are the delivered ceiling prices before cash discounts. The customary discount for receipt of payment within the period specified in the processor's published price lists shall apply.

(5) Area. The delivered ceiling prices of hydrogenated and standard shortenings and salad and cooking oils established are base prices for the three areas named (North, South, and Pacific Coast). The customary differentials which have applied over base prices to some points within as well as to Territories and Possessions of the United States shall apply.

(i) Ceiling prices for defense agencies. A processor selling to a Defense Agency of the United States Government, or its agent, may charge a premium of not more than 2 cents per pound over the ceiling prices established by this section for shortening containing 100% cottonseed oil.

(j) Branch houses and car routes for sales of shortening. Where a processor sells standard or hydrogenated shortenings through a branch house or car route owned by the processor or owned by a corporation more than 50 percent of whose stock is owned or controlled by the processor, to a purchaser other than (1) a jobber, or (2) a wholesaler, or (3) a purchaser who buys a carload lot or that quantity to which the lowest price is applied in the processor's published price lists, the processor's delivered ceiling price on such sales shall be 106 percent of the delivered ceiling price permitted him in this section.

(k) Branch houses and car routes for salad and cooking oils. Where the processor sells salad or cooking oil through a branch house or car route owned by the processor or owned by a corporation more than 50 percent of whose stock is owned or controlled by the processor, to a purchaser other than (1) a jobber, or (2) a wholesaler, or (3) a purchaser who buys a carload lot or that quantity to which the lowest price is applied in the processor's published price lists, the processor's delivered ceiling price on such sales shall be 110 percent of the delivered ceiling price permitted him in this section.

(l) Delivered ceiling prices of other brands. The delivered ceiling price of a brand of standard or hydrogenated shortening or of salad or cooking oil, the delivered ceiling price of which is not established in paragraphs (a) through (g) of this section shall be determined by applying the customary differential above or below the price of one of the brands named.

(m) Applications for adjustment. If the processor of a brand of shortening, or of a brand of salad and cooking oil has no ceiling price because there is no customary differential, or feels that his ceiling price is unduly low, he may file an application for adjustment with the Office of Price Stabilization. Such application should set forth in detail the reasons why the applicant believes his brand should be permitted to sell at the delivered ceiling price requested by the applicant in his application, or why there is no customary price relationship between the applicant's brand and one of the brands named.

(n) Definitions. (1) The term "standard shortening" means a shortening which is (i) made from hardened vegetable oil or (ii) made from a mixture of vegetable oil and animal fat and/or hardened marine animal oils. It must conform with the following specifications:

Suspended matter: The shortening must be free from any appreciable amount of suspended matter.

Taste and odor: The shortening must be free from rancidity, foreign odor, and sourness.

Moisture: The moisture must not exceed 0.3 percent (Vacuum Oven Method, Official Agricultural Chemists Association, 6th ed., 1940, p. 423).

Smoke point: The shortening must withstand a temperature of 400 degrees F. without smoking.

Stability: The stability of the shortening must be not less than three hours (Active Oxygen Method: King, Roschen and Irwin; Oil and Soap, 10, 105, June, 1933).

Plasticity: The shortening must remain solid, and be plastic and workable at a temperature within the range from 70 degrees F. to 90 degrees F.

F. F. A.: The F. F. A. must not exceed 0.3 percent (Method, Official Agricultural Chemists Association, 6th ed., 1940, p. 436).

(2) The term "Hydrogenated Shortening" means a shortening which is (i) made from vegetable oils or (ii) made from a mixture of vegetable oils and animal fats, each of which has been hydrogenated to some extent. It must conform with the following specifications:

No free oils: The shortening must contain no free oils.

Suspended matter: The shortening must be free from any appreciable amount of suspended matter.

Taste and odor: The shortening must be free from rancidity, foreign odor, and sourness.

Moisture: The moisture must not exceed 0.3 percent (Vacuum Oven Method, Official Agricultural Chemists Association, 6th ed., 1940, p. 423).

Smokepoint: The shortening must withstand a temperature of 400 degrees F. without smoking except that shortening containing mono and diglycerides shall be exempted from this specification.

Stability: The stability of the shortening must be not less than three hours (Active Oxygen Method: King, Roschen and Irwin; Oil and Soap, 10, 105, June, 1933).

Plasticity: The shortening must remain solid and be plastic and workable at a temperature within the range from 70 degrees F. to 90 degrees F.

F. F. A.: The F. F. A. must not exceed 0.12 percent (Method, Official Agricultural Chemists Association, 6th ed., 1940, p. 436).

Iodine number: The iodine number must not exceed 80 (Hanus Method, Official Agricultural Chemists Association, 6th ed., 1940, p. 429).

(3) The term "North" includes the following states: Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Washington, D. C., West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, South Dakota, North Dakota, Colorado, Wyoming.

(4) The term "South" includes the following states: Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico.

(5) The term "Pacific Coast" includes the following states: Washington, Oregon, California, Montana, Idaho, Nevada, Utah, Arizona.

Effective date. This amendment is effective March 12, 1951.

Dated: March 6, 1951.

[Ceiling Price Regulation 8, Supplementary Regulation 1]

CPR 8—AMERICAN UPLAND COTTON

SR 1—FUTURES TRADING ON COTTON EXCHANGES AND EXEMPTION OF PRODUCERS' CONTRACTS

Pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.), Executive Order 10161 (15 F. R. 6105), and Economic Stabilization Agency General Order No. 2 (16 F. R. 738), this Supplementary Regulation 1 to Ceiling Price Regulation 8 (16 F. R. 808) is hereby issued.

STATEMENT OF CONSIDERATIONS

This supplementary regulation establishes a uniform ceiling price for all transactions on the cotton futures markets. Under Ceiling Price Regulation 8, the ceiling on any such transaction would vary with any one of a number of delivery points permitted under the rules of the cotton exchanges. Officials of the exchanges have urged that this could create confusion and that it would prove more satisfactory to specify a single ceiling applicable to all futures markets regardless of the delivery point.

The ceiling price for any cotton futures transaction is 44.84 cents per pound, gross weight for White and Extra White, Middling $^{15}/_{16}$ inch plus an allowance of fifty-five hundredths of a cent per pound to cover the costs of compressing and certificating involved in delivering cotton against any futures contract. Thus a ceiling price of 45.39 cents per pound is fixed for all futures contracts of that grade and staple. For any other grade and staple, the differentials in table I of Ceiling Price Regulation 8 apply. The allowance of fifty-five hundredths of a cent is necessary to maintain a proper relationship between the spot market ceiling prices for uncompressed and uncertificated cotton and the futures ceiling price for compressed and certificated cotton. The price of 44.84 cents per pound is the ceiling price for mixed and odd lots at Galveston and Houston, points at which cotton is frequently delivered against futures contracts. The amount of the allowance is taken from the certificated cotton tariffs of licensed warehouses published by the Joint Cotton Inspection Bureau acting for the New York and New Orleans Cotton Exchanges.

This supplementary regulation also permits fulfillment of bona fide contracts for the sale of raw cotton entered into by producers prior to March 5, 1951, the effective date of Ceiling Price Regulation 8. When the General Ceiling Price Regulation was issued on January 26, 1951, it exempted from its coverage cotton when sold by the producer. Taking into account the large number of individual sellers at the farm level exempted from price control during the first five weeks of the General Ceiling Price Regulation, the impracticability at the present time of providing for adjustments in cases of individual hardships among such sellers, the fact that the purchasers under such contracts were and are effectively governed by ceiling prices under the General Ceiling Price Regulation and under CPR 8 and that their ceilings will not be affected, the Director of Price Stabilization is of the opinion that such contracts may be carried out without interfering with the stabilization objectives of the Defense Production Act of 1950.

In the judgment of the Director of Price Stabilization the provisions of this supplementary regulation are generally fair and equitable and are necessary to effectuate the purposes of title IV of the Defense Production Act of 1950.

REGULATORY PROVISIONS

Sec.
1. What this supplementary regulation does.
2. Futures trading on the Cotton Exchange.
3. Other regulatory provisions applicable.
4. Exemption.

AUTHORITY: Sections 1 to 4 issued under Sec. 704, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong. Interpret or apply Title IV, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong., Executive Order 10161, Sept. 9, 1950, 15 F. R. 6105

SECTION 1. What this supplementary regulation does. This supplementary regulation fixes dollars-and-cents ceiling prices for raw American upland cotton sold on a commodity exchange under a contract to deliver in the future. It also permits producers of raw American upland cotton to fulfill contracts which they entered into prior to the effective date of Ceiling Price Regulation 8.

SEC. 2. Futures trading on the Cotton Exchange. If you are a seller of futures on any commodity exchange your ceiling price for White and Extra White, Middling $^{15}/_{16}$ inch, raw American upland cotton is 45.39 cents per pound, gross weight. For any other grade and staple your ceiling price is determined by applying the differentials for grade and staple set forth in table I of Ceiling Price Regulation 8.

SEC. 3. Other regulatory provisions applicable. Sellers of cotton futures subject to this supplementary regulation shall be subject to all other provisions of Ceiling Price Regulation 8 which are not inconsistent with the provisions of this supplementary regulation.

SEC. 4. Exemption. If you are a producer of raw American upland cotton and prior to March 5, 1951, you entered into a bona fide contract for the sale of such cotton you may carry out the contract according to its terms.

Effective date. This supplementary regulation is effective March 7, 1951.

MICHAEL V. DISALLE,
Director of Price Stabilization.

[General Ceiling Price Regulation, Amdt. 1 to Supplementary Regulation 5]

GCPR, SR 5—RETAIL PRICES FOR NEW AND USED AUTOMOBILES

INCREASES FOR NEW AUTOMOBILES

Pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.), Executive Order 10161 (15 F. R. 6105) and Economic Stabilization Agency General Order No. 2 (16 F. R. 738), this Amendment 1 to Supplementary Regulation 5 (16 F. R. 1769) to the General Ceiling Price Regulation is hereby issued.

STATEMENT OF CONSIDERATIONS

Ceiling Price Regulation 1—New Automobiles—has been amended to increase the ceiling price of new automobiles at the manufacturer's level. Inasmuch as there has not been sufficient time to make a comprehensive study of dealers' margins and in view of the fact that it has not yet been possible to form an advisory committee for the purpose of consultation with respect to the role of these dealers in the program of price stabilization, the Director of Price Stabilization has determined that this increase may be passed on by the dealer in the dollars and cents amount of the increase. The situation of the dealers is under study and a determination will later be made whether in light of existing conditions the dealers should be required to absorb some or all of the increases in cost to them.

The method established for pricing used cars under Supplementary Regulation 5 referred to a list of guides that could be used for this purpose. In addition to those listed, several guides are published whose prices are substantially in line with those published in the listed books. This amendment adds these to the guides already listed.

The Territories and possessions of the United States are exempted by this amendment from the provisions of Supplementary Regulation 5, because, as to used car sales, guide books, so far as can be ascertained, are not issued for such Territories and possessions and because, as to new car sales, there are certain customary pricing practices which are peculiar to the sellers in the Territories and possessions. The Agency expects to take special action shortly with regard to sales of automobiles in these areas.

In order to make clear to the dealers selling used cars under the provisions of this regulation their obligation with respect to filing the statement required by the regulation, the regulation is amended to permit the dealers a period of 30 days after their first sale to make this filing.

AMENDATORY PROVISIONS

Supplementary Regulation 5 to the General Ceiling Price Regulation is amended in the following respect:

1. Section 1 (b) is amended to read as follows:

(b) The provisions of this regulation are applicable in the United States and the District of Columbia.

2. Section 3 is amended by adding the following paragraph (h):

(h) With respect to cars purchased by the seller after March 1, 1951, the amount in dollars and cents by which the manufacturer of the automobile has increased the price to the seller after that date.

3. Section 4 (g) is amended to read as follows:

(g) Every seller of used cars except persons not in the business of selling used cars must file with the nearest District Office of the Office of Price Stabilization a statement in writing showing the guide he used during the period December 19, 1950, to January 25, 1951, inclusive, or the guide which he has selected, as the case may be. This statement must be filed by the seller not more than 30 days after the date of his first sale of a used car following the effective date of this regulation.

The following is a list of the guides:

N. A. D. A. Official Used Car Guide;

Red Book National Used Car Market Report;

Blue Book National Used Car Market Report;

Wisconsin Automotive Valuation Guide (this guide may be used only by sellers in the State of Wisconsin);

Kelly Blue Book (this guide may be used only by sellers in the States of Arizona, California, Idaho, Nevada, Oregon, Utah and Washington);

Market Analysis Report (this guide may be used only by sellers in the States of Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island and Vermont); Northwest Used Car Value (this guide may be used only by sellers in the States of Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana and North Dakota).

This amendment shall become effective immediately.

MICHAEL V. DISALLE,
Director of Price Stabilization.

[CGFR 51-8]

Subchapter L—Security of Waterfront Facilities

PART 125—IDENTIFICATION CREDENTIALS FOR PERSONS REQUIRING ACCESS TO WATERFRONT FACILITIES OR VESSELS

APPLICATION FOR COAST GUARD PORT SECURITY CARD

The editorial amendment to 33 CFR 125.19 (f) is to change the phrase "registered mail" to "mail" in the first sentence. The purpose of this editorial amendment is to remove an unnecessary restriction in the mailing of a Port Security Card to the applicant. Because this editorial amendment removes a restriction and will expedite the issuing of Port Security Cards to persons qualified therefor, it is hereby found that compliance with the notice of proposed rule making, public rule making procedure thereon, and effective date requirements of the Administrative Procedure Act is unnecessary.

By virtue of the authority vested in me as Commandant, United States Coast Guard, by Executive Order No. 10173, the following amendment to 33 CFR 125.19 (f) is prescribed, which shall become effective upon date of publication of this document in the FEDERAL REGISTER:

Section 125.19 (f) is amended to read as follows:

§ 125.19 Application for Coast Guard Port Security Card. * * *

(f) The applicant shall indicate the address to which his Coast Guard Port Security Card can be delivered to him by mail. Under special circumstances the applicant may arrange to call in person for the Coast Guard Port Security Card.

TITLE 39—POSTAL SERVICE

Chapter I—Post Office Department

PART 34—CLASSIFICATION AND RATES OF POSTAGE

PARCELS ADDRESSED TO CERTAIN A. P. O.'S

Whereas the Post Office Department has received advice that certain parcels being handled through A. P. O. 55 and A. P. O. 58 must be accompanied by a customs declaration form, and that certain articles are prohibited importation into the countries where the Army Post Offices are located, and it having been found that compliance with the notice, public rule making procedure, and effective date requirements of the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U. S. C. 1003) is impracticable and contrary to the public interest for the reason that such compliance would impede the due and timely execution of the functions of this Department.

Now, therefore, it is ordered, That, effective at once, Part 34 (39 CFR Part 34) be amended as follows:

Amend § 34.95 Parcels addressed to certain A. P. O.'s (15 F. R. 8165) to read as follows:

§ 34.95 Parcels addressed to certain A. P. O.'s—(a) Conditions applicable to parcels addressed to A. P. O.'s 124, 125, 147 and 179, c/o Postmaster, New York, N. Y.—(1) Weight limit. The weight of each parcel shall not exceed 50 pounds.

(2) Customs declaration form. Each parcel must bear customs declaration Form 2966 or 2976 (C–1), as applicable.

(3) Customs duty. Articles will be liable for customs duty and/or purchase tax unless they are bona fide gifts, personal effects, or items for personal use intended for military personnel or their dependents. Where the contents of a parcel meet the foregoing requirements, the mailer should place a certification similar to the following on the customs form under the heading "Description of Contents":

Certified to be a bona fide gift, personal effects, or item for personal use of military personnel and dependents thereof.

(4) Customs inspection. Parcels containing articles which may be liable to customs duty will be plainly endorsed "May be opened for customs inspection."

(5) Prohibited articles. The following articles may not be accepted:

(i) Tobacco in any form.
(ii) Securities.
(iii) Precious metals.
(iv) Currency.

(6) Parcels not acceptable. Parcels which fail to meet these requirements shall not be accepted for mailing. Postmasters are directed to question the mailers as to the contents of parcels addressed for delivery through A. P. O.'s 124 and 125, 147 and 179, and shall refuse to accept for mailing any parcel containing any of the prohibited articles listed in subparagraph (5) of this paragraph.

(b) Conditions applicable to parcels addressed to A. P. O. 55 and 58 c/o Postmaster, New York, N. Y.—(1) Customs declaration. No third- or fourth-class parcel addressed for delivery through A. P. O. 55 or A. P. O. 58 shall be accepted for mailing unless it is accompanied with Form 2966 listing the nature of the articles enclosed and value of contents. Sealed first-class packages, including air-mail packages, for these addresses which contain merchandise must have attached Form 2976 (C1) or be endorsed for opening for customs purposes. The paper form of customs declaration (Form 2976–A) properly completed by the sender or an invoice must also be enclosed therein. Customs inspection will not be made while the mail is in A. P. O. channels, but after its delivery to the addressee or his representatives.

(2) Prohibited articles. The following articles are prohibited importation into the country where these A. P. O.'s are located:

Tobacco, cigars and cigarettes.
Matches.
Phosphorus.
Medicines and vaccines not conforming to French laws.
Narcotics.
Gunpowder.
Explosives.
Non-authorized publications, reprints and publications prohibited on account of their character or immoral contents.
Monies, currencies, gold and silver in bullion.
Securities.

TITLE 42—PUBLIC HEALTH

Chapter I—Public Health Service, Federal Security Agency

PART 53—GRANTS FOR SURVEY, PLANNING AND CONSTRUCTION OF HOSPITALS

MISCELLANEOUS AMENDMENTS

1. The proviso of § 53.77 (c) (10) is amended to read as follows: "Provided, Except with respect to subparagraph (1) of this paragraph, the State Agency, subject to the approval of the Surgeon General, may approve modifications of the assurances required under this paragraph or waive technical compliance with any of the requirements of such assurances, if it finds that the purpose of such assurances and requirements is fulfilled."

2. Appendix B is amended to read as follows:

APPENDIX B—MERIT SYSTEM POLICIES OF THE UNITED STATES PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICE

Introduction. The United States Public Health Service is in accord with other Federal agencies and leaders in the field of public administration who recognize the principle that a system of personnel administration on a merit basis is the most effective method of securing and retaining qualified personnel. The employment of qualified personnel is considered a prerequisite of efficient administration, without which the purposes of sections 314 and 623, of the Public Health Service Act as amended may not effectively be achieved.

Accordingly, the regulations of the United States Public Health Service contain provisions relative to the establishment of merit systems of personnel administration in State and local health departments and other State agencies administering programs assisted by grants-in-aid from the United States Public Health Service. Under these regulations the United States Public Health Service reviews merit systems to determine their conformity with accepted standards of personnel administration.

The application of these policies is required as evidence that minimum standards of efficient personnel administration have been met. They are herewith adopted by the United States Public Health Service as standards for evaluating compliance with § 51.12 of the regulations governing grants to States and § 53.73 of the regulations governing the administration of the Hospital Survey and Construction program.[1]

JURISDICTION

These standards are applicable to all personnel, both State and local, engaged in the administration of programs under titles I, III, IV, V, and X of the Social Security Act, under the Public Health Service Act, and under the Wagner-Peyser Act, as amended, except those hereinafter exempted. The agencies administering these programs are referred to as State agencies.

At the option of the State agencies, the following positions in the several programs may be exempted from application of these standards: members of State and local boards or commissions; members of advisory councils or committees or similar boards paid only for attendance at meetings; State and local officials serving ex officio and performing incidental administrative duties; the executive head of each State agency; one confidential secretary to any of the foregoing exempted officials; janitors; part-time professional personnel who are paid for any form of medical, nursing or other professional service, and who are not engaged in the performance of administrative duties; attorneys serving as legal counsel; members of unemployment compensation appeals tribunals and boards of review representing employer and employee interests. Upon request of the State health authority to the Public Health Service or Children's Bureau, as applicable, exemption of hospital and sanatoria and local health department personnel from application of these standards will be considered on the basis of State and local administration.

MERIT SYSTEM ORGANIZATION

If a State has a State-wide civil service system operating under standards substantially equivalent to those herein provided, such State civil-service system should be applicable to the State agencies as defined above.

In the absence of a State civil service system with substantially equivalent standards, there will be established a merit system administered by an impartial body herein referred to as the Merit System Council, the members of which are appointed by the administrative agencies or by the Governor on recommendation of the administrative agencies, for stated overlapping terms, and no member of which is otherwise employed as an official or employee of any of the State agencies affected.

In the interests of economy and of efficient administration a joint merit system should serve all the State agencies as defined above unless, because of special circumstances, it is not feasible to establish such a joint system.

PROHIBITION OF DISCRIMINATION

Disqualification of any person from taking an examination, from appointment to a position, from promotion, or from holding a position because of political or religious opinions or affiliations will be prohibited.

LIMITATION OF POLITICAL ACTIVITY

Participation of any employee of the State agencies, except those hereinbefore exempted, in political activity will be prohibited except that an employee should have the right freely to express his views as a citizen and to cast his vote. Such prohibited political activity will include in substance the activities prohibited in the rules of the United States Civil Service Commission.

CLASSIFICATION PLAN

A classification plan for all positions in the agency, based upon investigation and analysis of the duties and responsibilities of each position, will be established and maintained. The classification plan will include an appropriate title for each class of position, a description of the duties and responsibilities of positions in the class, and requirements of minimum training, experience, and other qualifications suitable for the performance of the duties of the position.

COMPENSATION PLAN

A plan of compensation for all classes of positions in the agency will be established and maintained. Such plan will include salary schedules for the various classes in which the salary of a class is adjusted to the responsibility and difficulty of the work. The salary range for each class will consist of minimum, intervening, and maximum rates of pay to provide for salary adjustments within the range. In arriving at such salary schedules, consideration will be given to the prevailing rates for comparable positions in other departments of the State and to other relevant factors. The State administrative agencies will adopt plans for salary increases based upon quality and length of service. Salary laws and rules and regulations uniformly applicable to departments of the State government will be given consideration in the formulation of the compensation plan.

RECRUITMENT AND APPOINTMENT OF PERSONNEL

All positions in the State agencies, except those hereinbefore exempted, will be filled by personnel selected on the basis of merit, and in accordance with standards and procedures set forth in rules and regulations for the merit system adopted by the State agency or the State civil-service authority.

Regulations governing the administration of examinations will include the following provisions:

Examinations will be administered by a Merit System Supervisor, appointed under the merit system. Qualifications for the supervisor will include training and experience in a field related to merit system administration, and known sympathy with the principles of the merit system.

Applicants admitted to examinations will meet the minimum requirements for the positions for which they apply as set forth in the specifications for the positions.

Examinations for entrance to the service will be conducted on an open competitive basis, with adequate publicity, and with a reasonable period for filing applications.

Examinations will be practical in nature, constructed to reveal the capacity of the applicant for the position for which he is competing and his general background and related knowledge, and will be rated objectively. A practical written test will be included, except that where exceptional qualifications of a scientific or professional character are required, and competition through an assembled examination is impracticable, an unassembled examination may be held.

Examinations will also include: A rating of training and experience for the more responsible positions; an oral examination for positions requiring frequent contact with the public, or which involve important supervisory or administrative duties; and a performance test for positions involving the operation of office machines.

The Merit System Supervisor will prepare and establish registers of eligibles in the order of their final scores and will maintain the registers, make certification of eligibility, and keep all examination records.

All positions, not specifically exempted herein, are to be filled from registers of eligibles, except for emergency and provisional appointments for limited periods. Appointments will be made by selection from a limited number of the highest available eligibles on the appropriate register.

In the absence of an appropriate register, provisional appointments may be made pending competitive examination, provided each provisional appointee is certified by the Merit System Supervisor as meeting at least the minimum qualifications established for the class of position, and further provided that no individual may receive successive provisional or emergency appointments.

Personnel selected from registers to fill permanent positions will serve a fixed probationary period. Permanent appointment will be based upon an evaluation in writing of the performance of the employee during the probationary period.

An employee of an agency who has received appointment under a merit system with standards substantially comparable to these will retain the status held by him under such merit system in the event the State agency is placed under the jurisdiction of another merit system.

An employee of an agency in which no comparable merit system has been in operation may, upon the extension of the merit system to such agency, obtain status either through open competitive or qualifying examination as specified in the merit system rules and regulations. Such rules and regulations may permit an employee in the service of the agency to be automatically admitted to the examination covering the position held by him, and may permit him to be retained at the discretion of the State agency, providing he attains a passing grade in such examination.

PROMOTIONS

Whenever practicable a vacancy will be filled by promotion of a qualified permanent employee of the agency upon the basis of capacity, and quality and length of service.

Eligibility of an employee for promotion will be determined on recommendation of the agency and certification by the Merit System Supervisor that the employee meets the minimum requirements and is qualified for promotion to the class of position in question.

FURLOUGHS AND SEPARATIONS

Regulations will be established by the agencies governing furloughs, suspensions, and separations, and governing leaves and the conditions for payment of salary at termination of services. Such regulations will include provisions for adequate competition among employees in classes affected by reduction in force, and for retention of employees based upon systematic consideration of type of appointment, length of service and efficiency.

Employees who have completed the required probationary period of appointment and acquire permanent status will not be subject to separation except for cause, or for reasons of curtailment of work or lack of funds. In the event of separation, permanent employees will have the right of appeal to an impartial body through an established procedure provided for in the merit system rules.

SERVICE RATINGS

A system of periodic service ratings for the evaluation of performance will be maintained. The manner in which such ratings are to be used in promotions, salary increases, and separations will be provided for by agency regulation.

PERSONNEL RECORDS AND REPORTS

Such personnel records as are necessary for the proper maintenance of a merit system and effective personnel administration will be maintained by the State administrative agency. Periodic reports will be published by the Merit System Council.

TITLE 49—TRANSPORTATION

Chapter I—Interstate Commerce Commission

[Ex Parte No. MC–5]

PART 174—SURETY BONDS AND POLICIES OF INSURANCE

FILING AND APPROVAL OF SURETY BONDS, POLICIES OF INSURANCE AND QUALIFICATIONS AS A SELF INSURER

In the matter of security for the protection of the public as provided in Part II of the Interstate Commerce Act and of rules and regulations governing the filing and approving of surety bonds, policies of insurance, qualifications as a self-insurer, or other securities and agreements by motor carriers and brokers subject to Part II of the Interstate Commerce Act.

At a session of the Interstate Commerce Commission, Division 5, held at its office in Washington, D. C., on the 28th day of February A. D. 1951.

The matter of amending § 174.1 (b) of our rules and regulations governing the filing and approval of surety bonds, policies of insurance, qualifications as a self-insurer, or other securities and agreements prescribed by our order entered in this proceeding on March 3, 1949 (49 CFR 174.1 (b)), and relating to the matter of security for the protection of the public being under consideration; and

It appearing that in view of the nature of this amendment, the procedure set out in section 4 (a) of the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U. S. C., sec. 1003 (a) is not applicable:

It is ordered, That the proviso of § 174.1 (b) of said rules and regulations be, and it is hereby, amended by adding "cement building blocks" after the term "cinders, coal" in the list of commodities the transportation of which is exempt from the requirements of § 174.1 (b).

It is further ordered, That the amended § 174.1 (b) shall be effective upon publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER by reason of the fact that the amendment is interpretive and also relieves certain motor carriers from restrictions in the rule, thereby falling within the terms of section 4 (a) of the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U. S. C. sec. 1003 (a)).

And it is further ordered, That notice of this order shall be given to the public by depositing a copy thereof in the office of the Secretary of the Commission at Washington, D. C., and by filing with the Division of the Federal Register.

TITLE 50—WILDLIFE

Chapter I—Fish and Wildlife Service, Department of the Interior

Subchapter E—Alaska Wildlife Protection

PART 46—TAKING ANIMALS, BIRDS, AND GAME FISHES

SEASONS FOR BEAVER

Basis and purposes. The Alaska Game Commission has recommended that there be a further amendment of the Alaska Game Law Regulations appearing in the May 19, 1950, issue of the FEDERAL REGISTER (15 F. R. 2777) to permit persons to trap not more than 10 beaver each from March 1 to 31, 1951, in the Kobuk River Drainage in Fur District 5. Inasmuch as the following amendment of the regulations is a relaxation of the present restriction governing the taking of beaver in Fur District 5, publication prior to the effective date thereof is not required (60 Stat. 237, 5 U. S. C. 1001 et seq.).

Effective March 1, 1951 the following revision is made:

1. Section 46.132 Seasons for beaver, subheading 5 "Fur District 5" is amended to read as follows:

Fur District 5: In Kobuk River Drainage, March 1 to March 31. Limit, 10 a season. No open season in rest of the District.

Subchapter F—Alaska Commercial Fisheries

MISCELLANEOUS AMENDMENTS TO SUBCHAPTER

Basis and purposes. On the basis of information produced at public hearings, written briefs submitted by members of the fishing industry, and scientific data acquired by personnel of the Fish and Wildlife Service, amendments to existing regulations for control of the Alaskan fisheries are promulgated whenever necessary to achieve maximum commercial utilization of the resource consistent with sound conservation principles. In order to realize such utilization under current conditions and in conformance with the notice of intention to adopt amendments issued by the Secretary of the Interior on July 7, 1950 (F. R. Doc. 50-5867, 15 F. R. 4318), the following provisions are adopted, to become effective 30 days after their publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

PART 101—DEFINITIONS

1. Section 101.1 is amended by substituting "101.16" in lieu of "101.14."

2. Section 101.9 is amended to read as follows:

§ 101.9 Personal use fishing. The taking or attempting to take, of any species of fish or shellfish for purposes other than for sale or barter, including dog feed.

3. Section 101.13 is amended to read as follows:

§ 101.13 Local representative of the Fish and Wildlife Service. The nearest or most accessible officer of the Fish and Wildlife Service, or any person designated by the Regional Director to perform specific functions of the Service.

4. A new section designated § 101.15 is added to read as follows:

§ 101.15 Regulations in latitude and longitude. All regulations expressed in coordinates of latitude and longitude are based on the North American Datum of 1927, as used by the Coast and Geodetic Survey in the preparation of navigational charts.

5. A new section designated § 101.16 is added to read as follows:

§ 101.16 Legal limit of fishing gear. The maximum aggregate of a single type of fishing gear permitted to be used by one individual or boat in any particular regulatory area or district.

(Sec. 1, 43 Stat. 464, as amended; 48 U. S. C. 221)

PART 102—GENERAL PROVISIONS

1. Sections 102.3 and 102.5 are deleted and a new section designated § 102.3a is inserted in lieu thereof, reading as follows:

§ 102.3a Imposition of additional restrictions and extensions of open seasons. There is hereby delegated to the Director of the Fish and Wildlife Service authority to shorten, lengthen, or reopen for limited periods any closed fishing period and to impose further restrictions on the means, methods, and areas of fishing and on the catch of fish otherwise permitted to be taken. The authority herein granted may be redelegated in whole or in part to the Regional Director of Region 6 and to such employees of the Fish and Wildlife Service as are designated by the Director and shall be exercised solely for the following purposes:

(a) To permit an additional take of any run that is in excess of the escapement required by the act of June 6, 1924 (43 Stat. 464), or to provide for such required escapement.

(b) To offset the damaging effects of any abnormal increase in intensity of fishery operations in any district.

Any shortening, lengthening, or reopening of a closed fishing period or restriction on the means and methods of fishing or on the catch of fish to be taken shall be announced by the Director, or by such other person exercising such authority by redelegation from the Director, which announcement shall be final and reasonable notice thereof shall be made public in the Territory of Alaska.

2. Section 102.4 is amended in headnote to read "Daily reports" and in text by inserting a period after "Fish and Wildlife Service" where it appears the second time, and deleting the remainder of the section beginning with the words "in charge."

3. Section 102.7 is amended in paragraph (d) by adding the following sentence: "Reporting responsibility, where in question, rests with the final buyer or dealer who handles the fish within the Territory."

(Interprets or applies sec. 10, 34 Stat. 480, as amended; 48 U. S. C. 238)

4. Section 102.8a is deleted.

5. Section 102.14 is amended to read as follows:

§ 102.14 Closed areas near salmon streams. (a) Commercial fishing is prohibited at all times between the exposed tideland banks of any salmon stream, within 500 yards of the terminus, as defined herein, of any such stream and within such greater distances from such terminus as may be specified in regulations having particular application to designated streams or areas. For the purpose of the regulations in this part the word "terminus" shall mean a line drawn between the seaward extremities of the exposed tideland banks of any salmon stream.

(b) For the purposes of section 3 of the act of June 6, 1924 (43 Stat. 464; 48 U. S. C. 233), as amended, the mouth of any salmon creek, stream or river is determined to be at a line drawn between the extremities of its banks at high tide. The facts as to the location of any such line shall be ascertained from time to time by the Director of the Fish and Wildlife Service and such other persons as may be designated by the Director and in accordance therewith the mouth of such creek, stream or river shall be appropriately marked and such marking shall be final.

6. Section 102.16 is deleted.

7. Section 102.17 is deleted.

8. A new section designated § 102.16a is added to read as follows:

§ 102.16a Salmon fishing boats and gear. No salmon fishing boat shall operate, assist in operating, or have aboard either it or on any boat towed by it, more than one legal limit of fishing gear: Provided, That (a) where the use of leads is permitted, a purse seine boat may have or use not to exceed one lead of legal length and depth with mesh at least 7 inches stretched measure between knots, (b) a trolling boat may have or use for taking bait, one gill net with mesh not more than 2½ inches stretched measure between knots, made of not greater than number 20 gill-net thread, and not exceeding 10 fathoms in length and 100 meshes in depth, and (c) unhung gear sufficient for mending purposes may be carried aboard.

9. Section 102.19 is amended by deleting all of the text after the first sentence, beginning with the word "No."

10. Section 102.19a is deleted.

11. Section 102.20 is deleted.

12. Section 102.28 is amended to read as follows:

§ 102.28 Method of closing salmon traps. During all periods when fishing is prohibited, the heart walls of salmon traps shall be lifted or lowered in accordance with the method prescribed by section 5 of the act of June 6, 1924. In addition to such closure, a section not less than 6 feet in width and 10 feet in depth on the front of the pot on floating traps, and 6 feet in width and to the depth of mean low water on the front of the pot on pile-driven traps, shall be raised clear of the water by a space of two feet. Provision shall be made for attaching metal seals to the bottom of this section during such times as it is raised and said seals, furnished by the Fish and Wildlife Service, shall be locked on each side of the section during all closed periods in such manner that it cannot be lowered until the seals are broken.

13. Section 102.30 is amended in paragraph (e) to read as follows:

(e) The use of any trawl in fishing for, or taking, salmon, herring, and Dungeness crabs is prohibited.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Production and Marketing Administration

[Docket Nos. AO-14-A19, AO-83-A15, AO-203-A1, AO-204-A1, AO-113-A12]

HANDLING OF MILK IN GREATER BOSTON, LOWELL-LAWRENCE, SPRINGFIELD, WORCESTER, AND FALL RIVER, MASS., MARKETING AREAS

NOTICE OF HEARING ON PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO TENTATIVELY APPROVED MARKETING AGREEMENTS AND TO ORDERS AS NOW IN EFFECT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.) and the applicable rules of practice and procedure governing the formulation of marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900), notice is hereby given of a public hearing to be held in the Hotel Bellevue, Lobby Salon, 21 Beacon Street, Boston, Massachusetts, beginning at 10:00 a. m., e. s. t., March 12, 1951, for the purpose of receiving evidence with respect to emergency and other economic conditions which relate to the handling of milk in the Greater Boston, Lowell-Lawrence, Springfield, Worcester, and Fall River, marketing areas, and to the proposed amendments to the tentatively approved marketing agreements and to the orders, as now in effect, regulating the handling of milk in the said marketing areas (7 CFR Part 900) set forth herein below, or any modification thereof. These proposed amendments have not received the approval of the Secretary of Agriculture.

The following amendment has been proposed by the New England Milk Producers Association; Bellows Falls Cooperative Creamery, Inc.; Connecticut Valley Dairy, Inc., and Granite City Cooperative Creamery Association, Inc.; Northern Farms Cooperative Inc.; Maine Dairymen's Association, Inc.; the Whiting Milk Company, and H. P. Hood & Sons:

1. Amend the classification provisions of the respective orders to provide for the classification of fresh concentrated milk as Class I.

By the Dairy Branch, Production and Marketing Administration:

2. Make such other changes as may be required to make the marketing agreements and orders in their entirety conform with any amendments thereto that may result from this hearing.

Copies of this notice of hearing and of the orders as now in effect may be procured from the respective Market Administrators; Room 403, 230 Congress Street, Boston 10, Massachusetts; 103 Pleasant Street, Fall River, Massachusetts; or National Bank Building, 21 Main Street, Andover, Massachusetts, or from the Hearing Clerk, Room 1353, South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C., or may be there inspected.

Dated: March 5, 1951.

FORT BELKNAP INDIAN IRRIGATION PROJECT, MONTANA

IRRIGATION PROJECTS, OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE

FEBRUARY 27, 1951.

Pursuant to section 4 (a) of the Administrative Procedure Act of June 11, 1946 (Pub. Law 404, 79th Cong., 60 Stat. 238), and authority contained in the acts of Congress approved August 1, 1914; May 18, 1916; and March 7, 1928 (38 Stat. 583, 25 U. S. C. 385; 39 Stat. 1942; and 45 Stat. 210, 25 U. S. C. 367), and by virtue of authority delegated by the Secretary of the Interior to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs August 28, 1946, and by virtue of authority delegated by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs to the Regional Director September 10, 1946 (11 F. R. 10267), notice is hereby given of intention to modify §§ 130.30 and 130.31 of Title 25, Code of Federal Regulations, dealing with irrigable lands of the Fort Belknap Indian Irrigation Project to read as follows:

§ 130.31 Payment. The annual charges fixed in § 130.30 shall become due on April 1 of each year, are payable on or before that date, and any assessment remaining unpaid after the due date shall stand as a first lien against the land. The delivery of water shall be refused to all tracts of land for which the charges have not been paid. Any delinquent charges against land in non-Indian ownership and Indian lands under lease to non-Indians shall be subject to a penalty of one-half of one per cent per month or fraction thereof from the due date until paid.

§ 130.31a Water users responsible for water after delivery. This section shall remain in full force and effect.

Interested persons are hereby given opportunity to participate in preparing the proposed amendments by submitting their views and data or arguments in writing to the Director, U. S. Indian Service, Billings, Montana, within 30 days from the date of publication of this notice of intention in the daily issue of the FEDERAL REGISTER.

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE CHARGES

FEBRUARY 20, 1951.

Pursuant to section 4 (a) of the Administrative Procedure Act of June 11, 1946 (Pub. Law 404, 79th Cong., 60 Stat. 238), and authority contained in the acts of Congress approved August 1, 1914; May 18, 1916; March 7, 1928 (38 Stat. 583, 25 U. S. C. 385; 39 Stat. 1942; 45 Stat. 210, 25 U. S. C. 387), and by virtue of authority delegated by the Secretary of the Interior to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs August 28, 1946, and by virtue of authority delegated by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs to the Regional Director September 10, 1946 (11 F. R. 10267), notice is hereby given of intention to modify §§ 130.95 and 130.96 of Title 25, Code of Federal Regulations, dealing with irrigable lands of the Wind River Indian Irrigation Project, to read as follows:

§ 130.96 Payment. The charges as fixed in § 130.95 shall become due April 1 of each year and are payable on or before that date. To all charges which are not paid on July 1 following the due date, there shall be added a penalty of one-half of 1 percent per month, or fraction thereof, from the due date. April 1, so long as the delinquency continues. No water shall be delivered until such charges have been paid.

Interested persons are hereby given opportunity to participate in preparing the proposed amendments by submitting their views and data or arguments in writing to the Director, U. S. Indian Service, Billings, Montana, within 30 days from the date of publication of this notice of intention in the daily issue of the FEDERAL REGISTER.

AIRCRAFT REGISTRATION CERTIFICATES

ISSUANCE

Notice is hereby given that the Administrator contemplates amending §§ 501.4, 501.7, and 501.8 to read in the manner indicated hereinafter. All interested persons who desire to submit written data, views, or arguments for consideration by the Administrator of Civil Aeronautics in connection with the proposed amendment shall send them to the Civil Aeronautics Administration, Office of Aviation Safety, Washington 25, D. C., within 30 days after publication of this notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

1. Section 501.4 (a) (1) will be amended to read:

§ 501.4 Issuance of registration certificates—(a) New or previously unregistered aircraft. • • •

(1) Mails or delivers a duly executed application for registration to the Administrator accompanied by the required registration fee (see § 406.14 (c) of this chapter);

2. Section 501.4 (b) will be amended to read:

(b) Previously registered aircraft. A registration certificate will be issued by the Administrator for aircraft previously registered under the provisions of the Civil Aeronautics Act of 1938, as amended, if (1) the applicant mails or delivers a duly executed application for registration to the Administrator accompanied by the required registration fee (see § 406.14 (c) of this chapter); (2) the applicant certifies that he is a citizen of the United States; (3) the applicant submits with the application for registration a conveyance which meets the requirements prescribed in Part 503 of this chapter, evidencing applicant's ownership of the aircraft; and (4) the conveyance submitted with the above application establishes in the recordation system of the Administrator, title to the aircraft in the applicant: Provided, That this requirement shall not be applicable to contracts of conditional sale in which the seller is the recorded owner of the aircraft: And provided further, That if for good reason an applicant for registration cannot comply with the provisions of subparagraphs (3) and (4) of this paragraph, other proof of ownership satisfactory to the Administrator must be submitted.

3. Section 501.7 will be amended to reference § 406.14 (c) instead of § 405.31 (c) (1).

4. Section 501.8 will be amended to reference § 406.14 (c) instead of § 405.31 (c) (1).

[File No. 21-322]

RAYON INDUSTRY

NOTICE OF HOLDING OF TRADE PRACTICE CONFERENCE

Notice is hereby given that a trade practice conference, under the auspices of the Federal Trade Commission, will be held for the Rayon Industry in the Bowman Room of the Hotel Biltmore, Madison Avenue and 43d Street, New York City, on April 12 and 13, 1951, beginning at 10 a. m., for the purpose of considering the revision of trade practice rules for this industry as promulgated by the Commission on October 26, 1937.

All persons or organizations having an interest in the matter, including rayon yarn producers, weavers, knitters, converters, cleaners and dyers, garment manufacturers, wholesale and retail distributors of rayon products, consumers and consumer organizations, are invited to attend or be represented at the conference. Any person, firm, or organization as so described may take part in the discussion of such revision of the existing trade practice rules as may be proposed or suggested by the members of the industry at the conference. The conference will afford all segments of the industry an opportunity to cooperate with the Commission in establishing adequate rules for the elimination and prevention of unfair or deceptive acts or practices and unfair methods of competition, thus affording protection to both industry and the public and guidance to all concerned.

The Rayon Yarn Producers Group ask that the definition of the term "rayon" in the existing rayon rules be modified so as to apply only to the regenerated cellulose yarns and textile products made thereof; that the term "acetate" be required as descriptive of cellulose acetate yarns and the textile products made thereof; and that the labeling rules be changed to conform to these modifications. The Group also proposes amendment of rules relating to mixed goods, adulterants, and trade-marks, and further proposes amendment of Group II rules relating to disclosure of proportions of mixed fibers and information as to the treatment and care of products.

By direction of the Commission.

[Docket No. 9909]

MAINTAINING AND RETAINING BROADCAST STATION LOGS

NOTICE OF PROPOSED RULE MAKING

1. Notice is hereby given of proposed rule making in the above-entitled matter.

2. Sections 3.181, 3.182, 3.231, 3.282, 3.581, 3.582, 3.681, 3.682, 3.781 and 3.782 of the Commission's rules contain provisions concerning maintaining and retaining broadcast station logs by the licensees of standard, FM, noncommercial educational FM, television and international broadcast stations. It is proposed to amend each of the above sections by making them applicable to permittees as well as licensees of the various classes of broadcast stations, by adding after the word licensees when used in any of those sections the words "or permittee".

3. These proposed rules are issued under the authority of sections 4 (i) and 303 (j) and (r) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended.

4. Any interested person who is of the opinion that the proposed amendments should not be adopted may file with the Commission on or before April 2, 1951, a written statement or brief setting forth his comments. At the same time, any person who favors the rules as set forth may file a written statement in support thereof. Comments or briefs in reply to the original comments or briefs may be filed within 15 days from the last day for filing said original comments or briefs. The Commission will consider all comments, briefs and statements presented before taking final action in the matter. If any comments are received which appear to warrant the Commission in holding an oral argument before final action is taken, notice of the time and place of such oral argument will be given.

5. In accordance with the provisions of § 1.764 of the Commission's rules, an original and fourteen copies of all statements, briefs or comments filed shall be furnished the Commission.

Released: March 1, 1951.

Adopted: February 28, 1951.

REMOTE PICKUP BROADCAST STATIONS

NOTICE OF PROPOSED RULE MAKING

1. Notice is hereby given of proposed rule making in the above-entitled matter.

2. At the present time, the provisions of § 4.432 (e) permit FM licensees who are also licensees of associated FM STL stations to utilize remote pickup stations to provide communications between the FM station's studio and transmitter. The basis for said rule is the fact that suitable telephone circuits are not always available to the relatively remote transmitter locations of such FM stations. Since the considerations which prompted the Commission to permit such use of remote pickup stations by FM licensees appear to apply equally to licensees of television and standard broadcast stations who are also licensees of associated STL stations, it appears desirable to extend this provision to television and standard broadcast station licensees.

3. It is therefore proposed to amend § 4.432 (e) to read as follows:

(e) Remote pickup broadcast base stations will be licensed for the purpose of providing communications between the studio and transmitter of broadcast stations which utilize a broadcast STL station for program transmission, provided that such operation shall not be conducted on frequencies other than those listed in § 4.402 (a) (3).

4. Authority for the adoption of the proposed amendments is contained in sections 4 (i), 303 (a), (b), (c), (f), and (r) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended.

5. Any interested party who is of the opinion that the proposal herein should or should not be adopted, or should not be adopted in the form set forth herein may file with the Commission on or before April 2, 1951, a written statement or brief setting forth his comments. Comments or briefs in reply to the original comments or briefs may be filed not later than April 12, 1951. The Commission will consider all such comments that are presented before taking action in this matter, and if any comments are submitted which appear to warrant that oral argument be held thereon, notice of the time and place of such oral argument will be given.

6. In accordance with the provisions of § 1.764 of the Commission's rules and regulations, an original and 14 copies of all statements, briefs or comments shall be furnished the Commission.

Released: March 1, 1951.

Adopted: February 28, 1951.

Home Loan Bank Board

[No. 4022]

AMENDMENTS LIBERALIZING BONUS PROVISIONS; AUTHORIZATION OF BONUS ON LARGE LONG-TERM ACCOUNTS

NOTICE OF PROPOSED RULE MAKING

FEBRUARY 28, 1951.

Resolved that pursuant to Part 108 of the general regulations of the Home Loan Bank Board (24 CFR Part 108), amendments of §§ 144.6 and 145.3 of the rules and regulations for the Federal Savings and Loan System (24 CFR 144.6, 145.3), as hereinafter set forth, are hereby proposed.

Resolved further that a hearing will be held on April 10, 1951, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon in Room 827, Federal Home Loan Bank Board Building, 101 Indiana Avenue NW., Washington, D. C., before the Home Loan Bank Board, a member thereof, or a hearing officer designated by the Board, for the purpose of receiving evidence, oral views and arguments on said proposed amendments of the rules and regulations for the Federal Savings and Loan System, if written notice of intention to appear at said hearing is received by the Secretary to the Home Loan Bank Board at least five days before said date. If no such written notice of intention to appear has been received by the Secretary to the Board at least five days before the date set for the hearing, the hearing will be dispensed with. Whether or not a hearing is held, written data, views or arguments on said proposed amendments which are received by the Secretary to the Home Loan Bank Board on or before April 5, 1951, or prior to the conclusion of the hearing, if held, will be considered by the Home Loan Bank Board in connection with its consideration of the proposed amendments of the said rules and regulations.

1. The provisions of § 144.6 of the rules and regulations for the Federal Savings and Loan System, preceding paragraph (a) thereof, shall be amended to read as follows:

§ 144.6 Amendment to bylaws. This section constitutes approval by the Board of any one or more of the following amendments to the bylaws of any Federal association, upon the valid adoption of any such amendment by such association's directors or members as provided in its bylaws, effective when so adopted: Provided, however, That the bylaw amendment set forth in paragraph (e) of this section may only be adopted by a Federal association which has a Charter N:

2. The provisions of paragraph (e) of § 144 6 of the rules and regulations for the Federal Savings and Loan System shall be amended to read as follows:

(e) Bonus on savings accounts. The board of directors of the association may adopt plans for the payment of a bonus on savings accounts, which plans shall be consistent with rules and regulations made by the Home Loan Bank Board, and thereafter a bonus may be paid on savings accounts in accordance with any such plan. Either the members or the board of directors of the association may by resolution abolish any bonus plan: Provided however, That such action shall not affect the bonus rights of savings accounts as to which the association at the date of such abolishment is validly obligated to pay a bonus.

3. Section 145.3 of the rules and regulations for the Federal Savings and Loan System shall be amended to read as follows:

§ 145.3 Bonus on savings accounts— (a) Periodic payment accounts. The members of a Federal association which has a charter not inconsistent with the provisions of this section may, by bylaw provision, authorize the association to pay a bonus for regular payments on savings accounts, in accordance with such plan as is adopted by the board of directors of the association, which plan shall be subject to the following limitations and requirements:

(1) The association shall not pay and no account shall be eligible to receive any such bonus unless, in accordance with agreement in writing by the holder of the account, there has been paid into the account each month for such period as is provided by the agreement, which period shall in no event be less than 36 nor more than 120 months running consecutively from the date of the first payment under the agreement, an amount equal to not less than the amount specified in the agreement, without withdrawal from the account of an amount which at any time reduces the balance thereof to a lesser amount than the product of the monthly payment specified in the agreement times the number of months since the date of the first payment under the agreement: Provided however, That prepayment not in excess of twelve months or delay of any payment for not more than 90 days shall not render the account ineligible to receive such bonus.

(2) The bonus shall be computed in the same manner as is provided by the Federal association's charter for the distribution of earnings; such computation shall be made at the maximum rate of bonus that could be paid under the agreement and the amount of bonus so computed shall be credited to a reserve for bonus as of June 30 and December 31 of each year while the account is eligible to participate in such bonus, but no bonus shall be paid at a per annum rate in excess of:

(i) ½ percent on accounts that continue to be eligible to participate in such bonus for at least 36 months but less than 60 months from the date of the first payment.

(ii) 1 percent on accounts that continue to be eligible to participate in such bonus for at least 60 months from the date of the first payment.

(3) All savings accounts that are eligible to receive a bonus at a particular rate shall participate in such bonus at the same rate and on the same basis; such bonus shall be credited to the account or paid to the holder thereof promptly when due under the terms of the agreement.

(4) No agreement shall be made which binds the association for a period of more than 120 months from the date thereof with respect to the payment of any such bonus.

(b) Other accounts. The members of a Federal association which has a charter not inconsistent with the provisions of this section may, by bylaw provision, authorize the association to pay a bonus on savings accounts other than periodic payment accounts on which the association is obligated to pay a bonus, in accordance with such plan as is adopted by the board of directors of the association, which plan shall be subject to the following limitations and requirements:

(1) The association shall not pay and no account shall be eligible to receive such bonus unless there has been in the account a balance of at least $500 continuously for a period of not less than 3 years, and the association shall not pay and no account shall be eligible to receive such bonus on any larger balance than $500 unless such larger balance has been in the account continuously for a period of at least 3 years: Provided however, That the time required to complete a periodic payment bonus account under the provisions of paragraph (a) of this section may be included in computing the eligibility of such account, or of an account which represents the proceeds thereof, thereafter to receive a bonus under the provisions of this paragraph.

(2) Such bonus shall not exceed ½ percent per annum of the balance that has been in the account for less than 5 years, and shall not exceed 1 percent per annum of the balance that has been in the account for 5 years or more: Provided, That no account shall receive a bonus for any period prior to the date at which the plan for the payment of such bonus becomes effective.

(3) All savings accounts that are eligible to receive a bonus under the plan adopted shall participate in such bonus at the same rate and on the same basis; such bonus shall be computed and either paid in cash or credited to the savings account or to a bonus reserve as of June 30 and December 31.

(4) No bonus agreement or commitment, written or otherwise, shall be made which binds the association for a period of more than 5 years from the date thereof with respect to the payment of any such bonus.

(c) Existing bonus rights. The holder of a savings account of a Federal association which has a Charter K and which amends such charter by the adoption of Charter N shall, upon the exchange of such savings account for a savings account issued under Charter N, have the rights and privileges, and be subject to the duties and liabilities, provided in this section, as if originally created under the provisions hereof: Provided, That the savings account so exchanged entitled the holder thereof, at the time of such exchange, to an interest in any reserve for bonus created under the provisions of such Charter K.

(d) Bonus reserve. A Federal association that is obligated to pay a bonus to any of the holders of its savings accounts shall establish and maintain a Reserve for Bonus sufficient to meet the bonus obligation. The board of directors may transfer to surplus or to other reserves any excess in the Reserve for Bonus.

(e) Abolition of bonus plan. The members of a Federal association may, by amendment of such association's bylaws, abolish the power of the board of directors to adopt plans for bonus on savings accounts: Provided however, That such amendment shall not affect the bonus rights of savings accounts as to which the association at the date of such amendment is validly obligated to pay a bonus.

(Sec. 5 (a), 48 Stat. 132, Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1947, 12 F. R. 4981, 3 CFR 1947 Supp. 61 Stat. 954; 12 U. S. C. 1464 (a), 5 U. S. C. 133y-16)

SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION

[17 CFR, Part 240]

PRESERVATION OF RECORDS AND REPORTS OF CERTAIN STABILIZING ACTIVITIES

NOTICE OF PROPOSED RULE MAKING

Notice is hereby given that the Securities and Exchange Commission has under consideration a proposal to adopt a new rule designated § 240.17a-6 (Rule X-17A-6) under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 and to amend § 240.24b-3 (Rule X-24B-3) under that act.

Rule X-17A-6 will permit national securities exchanges to destroy or otherwise dispose of applications, reports and documents which have been on file with the exchanges for more than five years under sections 12, 13, 14 or 16 of the act, if they have filed a plan for destroying or disposing of this material with the Commission and the Commission has declared the plan effective. Under the proposed rule the Commission reserves the right to limit the material to be destroyed or disposed of and to impose other conditions which it deems necessary or appropriate in the public interest or for the protection of investors. The proposal is intended to alleviate the record storage problem of exchanges.

Originals or copies of the material destroyed or disposed of pursuant to the rule would be on file with the Commission where they would continue to be available for record purposes and for public reference.

The new Rule X-17A-6 (§ 240.17a-6) would read as follows:

(a) Any application, report or document, or portion thereof, which has been on file with a national securities exchange for more than five years pursuant to sections 12, 13, 14 or 16 of the act or any rule or regulation promulgated by the Commission pursuant to any of such sections may be destroyed or otherwise disposed of by such exchange pursuant to the terms of a plan for the destruction or disposition of such application, report or document, if such plan has been filed with the Commission by such exchange and has been declared effective by the Commission.

(b) For the purposes of this section a plan filed with the Commission by a national securities exchange shall not become effective unless the Commission, having due regard for the public interest and for the protection of investors, declares the plan to be effective. The Commission in its declaration may limit the applications, reports, and documents as to which it shall apply, and may impose any other terms and conditions to the plan and to the period of its effectiveness which it deems necessary or appropriate in the public interest or for the protection of investors.

Rule X-24B-3 (§ 240.24b-3) would be amended to reflect the adoption of Rule X-17A-6 (§ 240.17a-6) and to require that information filed pursuant to section 14 of the act or the rules and regulations thereunder also be kept available by exchanges for public inspection.

Rule X-24B-3 (§ 240.24b-3) as amended would read as follows:

(a) Except as otherwise provided in this section and in § 240.17a-6, each exchange shall keep available to the public, under reasonable regulations as to the manner of inspection, during reasonable office hours, all information regarding a security registered on such exchange which is filed with it pursuant to sections 12, 13, 14 or 16, or any rules or regulations thereunder. This requirement shall not apply to any information to the disclosure of which objection has been filed pursuant to § 240.24b-2, which objection shall not have been overruled by the Commission pursuant to section 24 (b). The making of such information available pursuant to this section shall not be deemed a representation by any exchange as to the accuracy, completeness, or genuineness thereof.

(b) In the case of an application for registration of a security pursuant to section 12 an exchange may delay making available the information contained therein until it has certified to the Commission its approval of such security for listing and registration.

These proposals are made pursuant to the provisions of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, particularly sections 17 (a), 23 (a) and 24 (b) thereof. All interested persons are invited to submit their views and comments in writing to the Securities and Exchange Commission, 425 Second Street NW., Washington 25, D. C., on or before March 15, 1951.

By the Commission.

RECORDS OF ENTRY AND CLEARANCE OF VESSELS AND OF IMPORTS AND EXPORTS

RESTRICTIONS IMPOSED UPON PUBLIC INSPECTION

Reference is made to T. D. 52583 (15 F. R. 7295), imposing restrictions on public inspection of records of entry and clearance of vessels and upon the disclosure of information concerning imports and exports, and T. D. 52608 (15 F. R. 7994), stating that the matter was being reconsidered and providing that the prohibitions in T. D. 52583 should be limited to information concerning the clearance of vessels and the exportation of merchandise, until further notice.

The Bureau of Customs is informed that the agencies primarily concerned with security matters have determined that at the present time the movement of merchant vessels is not classified information and that it would appear that at this time there are no compelling reasons for restricting the availability of entrance and clearance information.

Therefore, you are hereby instructed that the restrictions imposed by T. D. 52583 shall not be applied to information concerning the entry and clearance of vessels.

Until completion of the pending reconsideration of disclosure of information concerning imports and exports, the prohibitions in T. D. 52583 shall be limited to information concerning the exportation of merchandise.

2. Charges and terms of payment. The minimum water rental charge shall be $2.00 per irrigable acre for each irrigable acre of land for which water service is requested, payment of which will entitle the applicant to 2 acre-feet of water per irrigable acre. Additional water, if available, will be furnished during the irrigation season at the rate of $1.50 per acre-foot. All charges shall be payable in advance of the delivery of water, and no part thereof shall be refunded.

3. Water will be delivered and measured by Government forces at the nearest available measuring device to the individual farm.

4. No water will be delivered to isolated tracts where such service would result in excessive canal losses or excessive costs.

5. Water will be delivered only to lands the owners of which have executed and delivered recordable contracts as required by articles 38 and 39 of the contract of August 3, 1935, between the United States and the Casper-Alcova Irrigation District.

6. Individual applications for water and the payments required by this notice will be received at the office of the District Manager, Bureau of Reclamation, Room 1, Reclamation Center, Casper, Wyoming. The United States reserves the right to reject any applications.

Notice for Filing Objections to Order Withdrawing Public Lands for the Colorado River Storage Project, Arizona

Notice is hereby given that for a period of 30 days from the date of publication of this notice, persons having cause to object to the terms of the above order withdrawing certain public lands in the State of Arizona, for use in connection with the Colorado River Storage Project may present their objections to the Secretary of the Interior. Such objections should be in writing, should be addressed to the Secretary of the Interior, and should be filed in duplicate in the Department of the Interior, Washington 25, D. C.

In case any objection is filed and the nature of the opposition is such as to warrant it, a public hearing will be held at a convenient time and place, which will be announced, where opponents to the order may state their views and where the proponents of the order can explain its purpose, intent and extent. Should any objection be filed, notice of the determination by the Secretary as to whether the order should be rescinded, modified or let stand will be given to all interested parties of record and the general public.

Forest Service

TONTO NATIONAL FOREST, ARIZONA

REMOVAL OF TRESPASSING BURROS

Whereas a number of burros are trespassing and grazing on portions of the St. Clair, Chalk Mountain, LX Bar and Red Hill Sheep Allotments on the Tonto National Forest, in the State of Arizona; and

Whereas these burros are consuming forage needed for permitted livestock, are causing extra expense to established permittees, and are injuring national-forest lands;

Now, therefore, by virtue of the authority vested in the Secretary of Agriculture by the act of June 4, 1897 (30 Stat., 35; 16 U. S. C. 551), and the act of February 1, 1905 (33 Stat. 628; 16 U. S. C. 472), the following order is issued for the occupancy, use, protection, and administration of land in the St. Clair, Chalk Mountain, LX Bar, and Red Hill Sheep Allotments of the Tonto National Forest, within Maricopa and Yavapai Counties, State of Arizona, as described below:

Temporary closure from livestock grazing. (a) The following-described areas within the Tonto National Forest are hereby closed from April 1 to June 30, 1951, to the grazing of burros, excepting those that are lawfully grazing on or crossing land in such areas pursuant to the regulations of the Secretary of Agriculture, or which are used in connection with operations authorized by such regulations, or used as riding, pack, or draft animals by persons traveling over such land:

St. Clair allotment in Maricopa County, Ariz., consists of 12 sections in NW portion of T. 6 N., R. 7 E.; 4 sections in the SW corner of T. 7 N., R. 7 E.; all of the T. 7 N., R. 6 E. except 4½ sections in the NW corner; 6 sections in the NW portion of T. 6 N., R. 6 E.; and 3 sections in the NE corner of T. 6 N., R. 5 E.

Chalk Mountain sheep allotment in Yavapai County, Ariz., consists of approximately 5 sections in the E. portion of T. 9 N., R. 8 E.; 15 sections in the S. portion of T. 9 N., R. 7 E.; 19 sections in the N. portion of T. 8 N., R. 7 E.; 28 sections in the E. portion of T. 8 N., R. 6 E.; 7½ sections in the S. portion of T. 9 N., R. 6 E.

Soil Conservation Service

CUBA-RIO PUERCO PROJECT, SANDOVAL COUNTY, NEW MEXICO

REMOVAL OF TRESPASSING HORSES, MULES, AND BURROS FROM OJO DEL ESPIRITU SANTO GRANT

Whereas a number of horses, mules, and burros are trespassing and grazing on lands in the Ojo del Espiritu Santo Grant within the Cuba-Rio Puerco Project, NM-LU-22, administered by the Soil Conservation Service, in Sandoval County, in the State of New Mexico; and

Whereas these horses, mules, and burros are consuming forage needed for livestock grazing under permits, are causing extra expense to permittees, and are injuring project lands;

Now, therefore, by virtue of the authority vested in the Secretary of Agriculture by section 32 (f), title III, of the Bankhead-Jones Farm Tenant Act,[1] the following order for the prevention of trespasses and regulation of the use and occupancy of lands in the Ojo del Espiritu Santo Grant within the Cuba-Rio Puerco Project in Sandoval County, in the State of New Mexico, is issued:

Temporary closure from livestock grazing. (a) The lands comprising the Ojo del Espiritu Santo Grant within the Cuba-Rio Puerco Project, Sandoval

County, in the State of New Mexico, are hereby closed for the period beginning March 16, 1951, and ending March 15, 1952, to the grazing of horses, mules, and burros, except those horses, mules, and burros that are lawfully grazing on or crossing lands in such project pursuant to the regulations heretofore promulgated by the Secretary of Agriculture, or that are used in connection with operations authorized by such regulations, or that are used as riding, pack, or draft animals by persons traveling over such lands.

(b) Officers of the Soil Conservation Service are hereby authorized to dispose of, in the most humane manner, all horses, mules, and burros found trespassing or grazing in violation of this notice.

(c) Public notice of intention to dispose of such horses, mules, and burros shall be given by posting notices in public places or advertising in a newspaper of general circulation in the locality in which the Ojo del Espiritu Santo Grant is located.

Issued this 2d day of March 1951.

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE

Federal Maritime Board

MEMBER LINES OF FAR EAST CONFERENCE ET AL.

NOTICE OF AGREEMENTS FILED FOR APPROVAL

Notice is hereby given that the following described agreements have been filed with the Board for approval pursuant to section 15 of the Shipping Act, 1916, as amended.

Agreement No. 17-24 provides that the membership of Ellerman & Bucknall Steamship Co., Limited, in the Far East Conference will be replaced by the four carriers comprising the Ellerman and Bucknall Associated Lines joint service as a single party only with one vote pursuant to the provisions of their joint service agreement (No. 7788).

Agreement No. 90-5, between the member lines of the Java-New York Rate Agreement, modifies said agreement (a) to include a more complete admission provision, (b) to provide for loss of voting rights upon failure to maintain sailings, (c) to provide for termination of membership upon abandonment of service, and (d) to clarify the language of certain other provisions of the basic agreement.

Agreement No. 5590-7, between the member lines of the United States Atlantic and Gulf-Haiti Conference, modifies the basic agreement of said conference (No. 5590) by providing for the cancellation of Item 6 of the rules and regulations forming a part of said agreement. Item 6 provides that claims for adjustment of charges due to incorrect weights or measurements or misdescription of merchandise must be presented to the conference, and that instances of undercharges which remain unpaid at the end of 60 days after they have become due and payable shall be reported to the Conference Secretary.

Agreement No. 6120-5, between the member lines of the United States Atlantic & Gulf-Puerto Rico Conference, modifies the basic agreement of said conference (No. 6120) to include a rule that on-board bills of lading will not be issued unless and until the cargo is actually on board the carrying vessel and the on-board endorsement shall definitely name the date on which the cargo was actually aboard.

Agreement No. 7540-4, between the member lines of the Leeward and Windward Islands and Guianas Conference, modifies the basic agreement of said conference (No. 7540) by providing for the cancellation of Item 4 of the rules and regulations forming a part of said agreement. Item 4 provides that claims for adjustment of charges due to incorrect weights or measurements or misdescription of merchandise must be presented to the Conference.

Agreement No. 7590-4, between the member lines of the East Coast Colombia Conference, modifies the basic agreement of said conference (No. 7590) by providing for the cancellation of Item 4 of the rules and regulations forming a part of said agreement. Item 4 provides that claims for adjustment of charges due to incorrect weights or measurements or misdescription of merchandise must be presented to the Conference.

Agreement No. 7616-1, between Lykes Bros. Steamship Co., Inc., and Thos. & Jas. Harrison Limited (Harrison Line), modifies the basic agreement of the carriers (No. 7616) to substitute Thos. & Jas. Harrison Limited, a corporation, for Thos. & Jas. Harrison, a partnership, as a party thereto. Agreement No. 7616 provides for the apportionment of sailings and the pooling and apportionment of revenue derived from traffic moving in the trade from U. S. Gulf ports to United Kingdom ports.

Agreement No. 7650-3, between the member lines of the Santiago de Cuba Conference, modifies the basic agreement of said conference (No. 7650) by providing for the cancellation of Item 4 of the rules and regulations forming a part of said agreement. Item 4 provides that claims for adjustment of charges due to incorrect weights or measurements or misdescription of merchandise must be presented to the conference.

Interested parties may inspect these agreements and obtain copies thereof at the Regulation Office, Federal Maritime Board, Washington, D. C., and may submit, within 20 days after publication of this notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER, written statements with reference to any of the agreements and their position as to approval, disapproval or modification together with request for hearing should such hearing be desired.

Dated: March 5, 1951.

By order of the Federal Maritime Board.

[Docket No. 4603 et al.]

NORTH CENTRAL ROUTE INVESTIGATION CASE

NOTICE OF HEARING

In the matter of the North Central Route Investigation Case.

Pursuant to the Civil Aeronautics Act of 1938, as amended, notice is hereby given that a hearing in the above-entitled proceeding is assigned to be held on March 19, 1951, at 10:00 a. m., e. s. t., in Conference Room B, Department Auditorium, Constitution Avenue between Twelfth and Fourteenth Streets NW., Washington, D. C., before Examiner Warren E. Baker.

Without limiting the scope of the issues presented in said proceeding, particular attention will be directed to the following matters and questions:

1. Does the public convenience and necessity require and shall the Board order the suspension, in whole or in part, of the temporary certificate of public convenience and necessity of Mid-Continent Airlines, Inc., for route No. 106?

2. In the event of suspension, in whole or in part, as in "1" above, does the public convenience and necessity require and shall the Board authorize service to any or all of the suspended portion of said route by a feeder carrier?

3. In the event of authorization under "2" above, what carrier, if any, is fit, willing and able to perform such services?

4. Does the public convenience and necessity require and shall the Board authorize an amendment of route No. 86 so as to authorize service between the terminal point Chicago, Ill., the intermediate points Beloit-Janesville, Madison, LaCrosse, Wis., Winona and Rochester, Minn., and the terminal point Minneapolis-St. Paul, Minn.?

5. Is Wisconsin Central Airlines, Inc., fit, willing and able to perform the services proposed in "4" above?

6. In the event Wisconsin Central Airlines, Inc., is authorized under "4" and "5" above, should segment No. 1 of route No. 86 be modified so as to eliminate provision for service between Madison, Wis., and Wisconsin Rapids - Stevens Point, Wis., thereby dividing said segment as follows:

(a) Between the terminal point Chicago, Ill., and the intermediate point Milwaukee, Wis., and the terminal point Madison, Wis.; and

(b) Between the terminal point Wisconsin Rapids-Stevens Point, Wis., the intermediate points Wausau, Wis., Rhinelander, Wis., Ironwood, Mich., and the terminal point Duluth, Minn.-Superior, Wis.

7. Does the public convenience and necessity require and should the Board authorize an amendment of route No. 90 so as to authorize service:

(a) Between the terminal point Sioux City, Iowa, the intermediate points Fort Dodge, Mason City, Waterloo, Dubuque, Iowa, and Freeport, Rockford, and Elgin, Ill., and the terminal point Chicago, Ill.;

(b) Between the terminal point Moline, Ill., the intermediate points Clinton, Dubuque, Iowa, and the terminal point Rochester, Minn.; and

(c) Between the terminal point Des Moines, Iowa, the intermediate points Cedar Rapids, Muscatine, Clinton, Iowa, Rockford, Ill., and the terminal point Chicago, Ill.

8. In the event the Board should authorize the services outlined in "7" above, is Mid-West Airlines, Inc., fit, willing and able to provide such services?

9. Does the public convenience and necessity require and should the Board issue a certificate of public convenience and necessity to Ozark Air Lines, Inc., authorizing that carrier to provide air transportation:

(a) Between the terminal point Chicago, Ill., the intermediate points Elgin, Rockford, Freeport, Ill., Dubuque, Waterloo, and Fort Dodge, Iowa, and the terminal point Sioux City, Iowa;

(b) Between the terminal point Chicago, Ill., the intermediate points Elgin, Rockford, Ill., Beloit-Janesville, Madison, Baraboo-Portage, La Crosse, Wis., Winona, Rochester, and Red Wing, Minn., and the terminal point Minneapolis-St. Paul, Minn.;

(c) Between the terminal point Chicago, Ill., the intermediate points Aurora, La Salle-Ottawa, Kewanee, Galesburg, Ill., Burlington, Ottumwa, and Oskaloosa, Iowa, and the terminal point Des Moines, Iowa;

(d) Between the terminal point Galesburg, Ill., and the terminal point Moline, Ill.; and

(e) Between the terminal point Milwaukee, Wis., the intermediate points Rockford, Sterling, Ill., Clinton, Iowa, Moline, Ill., Muscatine, Cedar Rapids, Waterloo and Marshalltown, Iowa, and the terminal point Des Moines, Iowa.

10. Is Ozark Air Lines, Inc., fit, willing and able to provide the service outlined in "9" above?

For further details with respect to the subject proceeding, persons are referred to the applications, the Prehearing Conference Report, and other pleadings on file in the subject docket in the Dockets Section of the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Notice is further given that any person other than the parties and interveners of record as of March 2, 1951 desiring to be heard in this proceeding may file with the Board on or before March 19, 1951 a statement setting forth the issues of fact and law raised by this proceeding which he desires to controvert and such person may appear and participate in the hearing in accordance with § 302.6 (a) of the Procedural Regulations under Title I of the Civil Aeronautics Act of 1938, as amended.

Dated at Washington, D. C., March 2, 1951.

[Docket No. 8381]

GILA BROADCASTING CO.

ORDER CONTINUING HEARING

In re application of Gila Broadcasting Company, Winslow, Arizona, Docket No. 8381, File No. B5-P-5406; for construction permit.

The Commission having under consideration a petition filed on February 26, 1951, by the Gila Broadcasting Company, Winslow, Arizona, requesting that the hearing herein presently scheduled for March 5, 1951, be continued for a period of ninety days in order to allow sufficient time for the preparation of an engineering amendment covering the revised nighttime directional antenna pattern in connection with engineering studies being made by applicant, and requesting a waiver of the Commission's four-day rule in order that the instant petition may receive immediate action; and

It appearing that there are no other parties to this proceeding, that the Commission Counsel has consented to immediate action thereupon and therefore the requirements of § 1.745 of the Commission's rules have been met; and that good cause has been shown for a grant hereof;

It is therefore ordered, This 28th day of February 1951 that the petition of the Gila Broadcasting Company requesting a continuance of the hearing on its pending application is hereby granted and the hearing is continued to June 5, 1951, at 10:00 a. m., in Washington, D. C.

COASTWISE LINE

ORDER CONTINUING HEARING

In the matter of petition of the Coastwise Line requesting reconsideration by the Commission of its denial of the application of Coastwise Line for relief from forfeitures imposed in connection with the sailing of the S. S. "William Black Yates" in violation of sections 351 and 353 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended. Docket No. 9758.

The Commission having under consideration a motion filed February 26, 1951, by Coastwise Line, requesting indefinite continuance of the hearing on the above-entitled proceeding presently scheduled for March 2, 1951, in order to allow sufficient time for the Commission to pass upon a petition filed simultaneously with the motion for continuance, requesting Commission to accept mitigated forfeiture; and

It appearing that if the Commission should grant said petition to accept mitigated forfeiture, the hearing presently scheduled would become moot; and

It further appearing that Commission Counsel has consented to a waiver of § 1.745 of the Commission's rules and regulations to permit the early consideration and grant of such motion for continuance;

It is ordered, This 27th day of February 1951, that the motion for continuance of the hearing date be, and it is hereby, granted; and the hearing on the above-entitled application be, and it is hereby, continued until further order.

CHRISTIAN COUNTY BROADCASTING CO. (WTIM)

ORDER CONTINUING HEARING

In re application of Christian County Broadcasting Company, (WTIM), Taylorville, Illinois, Docket No. 9821, File No. BP-7755; for construction permit to replace expired permit.

The Commission having under consideration a petition filed February 23, 1951, by the Christian County Broadcasting Company, Taylorville, Illinois, requesting that the hearing on its application be continued from March 12, 1951, for a period of sixty days, stating that a necessary witness on this matter is ill and unable to appear and testify on March 12, and counsel for applicant has other commitments on March 12 which will prevent him from being able to participate in this proceeding, and requesting a waiver of the Commission's four-day rule; and

It appearing that there are no other parties to this proceeding, that Commission Counsel has consented to immediate action on this petition and therefore the requirements of § 1.745 of the Commission's rules have been met, and that good cause has been shown for granting the petition;

It is therefore ordered, This 28th day of February 1951 that the petition of the Christian County Broadcasting Company, be and it is hereby granted and the hearing herein is hereby continued to May 14, 1951, at 10:00 a. m., in Washington, D. C.

CIRCLE BROADCASTING CORP.

ORDER CONTINUING HEARING

In re application of Circle Broadcasting Corporation, Hollywood, Florida, Docket No. 9884, File No. BP-7750; for construction permit.

The Commission having under consideration a petition, filed by the applicant herein on February 27, 1951, requesting a 30-day continuance of the hearing now scheduled for March 1, 1951; and

It appearing that counsel for the applicant was not retained until February 26, 1951 and additional time is needed to prepare the case for hearing; and

It further appearing that Commission Counsel has informally waived the notice and time of filing requirements of § 1.745 and has no objection to the requested continuance as hereinafter ordered, that there are no other parties in this proceeding, and that a continuance as ordered will conduce to the orderly dispatch of the Commission's business;

Now therefore, it is ordered, This 28th day of February 1951, that the hearing in the above-entitled case is continued to April 3, 1951, at Washington, D. C.

NORTH PENN GAS CO. ET AL.

ORDER FIXING DATE OF HEARING

MARCH 1, 1951.

In the matter of North Penn Gas Company, Allegany Gas Company, Alum Rock Gas Company and Dempseytown Gas Company; Docket No. G-1557.

On December 12, 1950, North Penn Gas Company, Allegany Gas Company, Alum Rock Gas Company and Dempseytown Gas Company (Applicants), all Pennsylvania corporations having their principal places of business at Port Allegany, Pennsylvania, filed an application for a certificate of public convenience and necessity pursuant to section 7 of the Natural Gas Act authorizing their merger and consolidation into a new company to be known as North Penn Gas Company, Inc. all as more fully described in such application on file with the Commission and open to public inspection.

The Commission finds: This proceeding is a proper one for disposition under the provisions of § 1.32 (b) (18 CFR 1.32 (b)) of the Commission's rules of practice and procedure, Applicants having requested that their application be heard under the shortened procedure provided by the aforesaid rule for non-contested proceedings, and no request to be heard, protest or petition having been filed subsequent to the giving of due notice of the filing of the application, including publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER on December 21, 1950 (15 F. R. 9158).

The Commission orders:

(A) Pursuant to the authority contained in and subject to the jurisdiction conferred upon the Federal Power Commission by sections 7 and 15 of the Natural Gas Act, as amended, and the Commission's rules of practice and procedure, a hearing be held on March 16, 1951, at 9: 30 a. m. in the Hearing Room of the Federal Power Commission, 1800 Pennsylvania Avenue NW., Washington, D. The installation of the proposed facilities, according to the application, will increase Applicant's system capacity north of Kansas from 600,000 Mcf to an estimated 825,000 Mcf per day. By means of this increased capacity Applicant proposes to supply the additional contract demand volumes which Applicant's existing gas utility customers have requested for presently served areas or communities and, in addition, proposes to provide approximately 17,725 Mcf for serving new communities not presently served with natural gas. Applicant states that it plans to file with the Commission separate applications for authorization to serve the new communities.

The facilities for which a certificate is sought are estimated to cost $33,095,000. Applicant states it plans to begin the construction and installation of the proposed facilities through temporary financing pending final Commission action on proposed rate increases now pending before the Commission.

Materials for the proposed construction, Applicant states, are presently on order and scheduled by suppliers for shipment in 1951. Applicant states it has planned its proposed construction program so as to increase its system sales capacity first to 650,000 Mcf per day, then 675,000 Mcf, 700,000 Mcf, 730,000 Mcf, 780,000 Mcf, 800,000 Mcf and finally 825,000 Mcf per day, so that it will have a maximum deliverability available to its customers at any time if there should be a postponement of delivery of materials as a result of the national defense program or other reasons.

Protests or petitions to intervene may be filed with the Federal Power Commission, Washington 25, D. C., in accordance with the rules of practice and procedure (18 CFR 1.8 and 1.10) on or before the 21st day of March 1951. The application is on file with the Commission for public inspection.

NORTHERN STATES POWER CO.

SUPPLEMENTAL ORDER RELEASING JURISDICTION AS TO FEES AND EXPENSES OF PIONEER SERVICE & ENGINEERING CO.

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C., on the 28th day of February A. D. 1951.

Northern States Power Company, a Minnesota corporation which is a registered holding company and also an operating public-utility company, having filed an application-declaration and amendments thereto pursuant to the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935, particularly sections 7, 10, and 12 thereof and Rule U-50 thereunder, with respect to the issuance and sale of 1,584,238 shares of its common stock, without par value, subject to a rights offering to its present common stockholders on the basis of one share of additional stock for each six shares presently held, with a limited offering to employees of the system; and

The Commission, by order dated November 7, 1949, and by Supplemental Order dated November 16, 1949, having granted and permitted to become effective said application-declaration, subject to a reservation of jurisdiction with respect to the payment of certain fees and expenses; and

The Commission, by Supplemental Order dated May 18, 1950, having released jurisdiction as to the fees and expenses of the Subscription Agents, and having continued the reservation of jurisdiction over the fees and expenses of Pioneer Service & Engineering Co.;

Pioneer Service & Engineering Co. having filed further information with respect to its fees and expenses in this matter, which fees aggregated $45,393.51 for services and $11,616.10 for actual expenses, making a total of fees and expenses for said applicant of $57,009.61; and

It appearing to the Commission, on the basis of facts in the record including the further information submitted, that the fees and expenses requested by Pioneer Service & Engineering Co. are not unreasonable, and that it is appropriate that the jurisdiction heretofore reserved over such fees and expenses be now released;

It is ordered, That jurisdiction heretofore reserved with respect to the said fees and expenses of Pioneer Service & Engineering Co. be and the same hereby is released.

PHILADELPHIA CO.

ORDER GRANTING APPLICATION

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission, held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C., on the 1st day of March 1951.

Philadelphia Company ("Philadelphia"), a registered holding company and a subsidiary of Standard Gas and Electric Company ("Standard Gas") and Standard Power and Light Corporation, both registered holding companies, has filed an application and amendments thereto, pursuant to the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("Holding Company Act"), for an order approving certain proposed accounting adjustments and has designated section 20 of the Holding Company Act and Rule U-24 promulgated thereunder as applicable to the proposed transactions which are summarized below:

By order of this Commission dated June 1, 1948, (Holding Company Act Release No. 8242) Philadelphia is required to dispose of its interest in its nonutility subsidiary, Pittsburgh Railways Company ("Railways Company"), and, among other things, to take appropriate steps to liquidate and dissolve. This order was affirmed by the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit, Philadelphia Company, et al. v. S. E. C., 177 F. 2d 720.

Prior to January 1, 1951, Philadelphia was the parent of the predecessor of Railways Company, which was also named Pittsburgh Railways Company and which will be referred to hereinafter as "old company", and of certain other companies in old company's system ("Railways System"). Philadelphia was also the owner of bonds, notes and other obligations of old company and of other companies in the Railways System. The Railways System was comprised of old company and a number of other companies which were operated by old company under leases and operating agreements. Philadelphia had guaranteed the performance by old company of certain obligations under lease arrangements, including, inter alia, the making of payments to cover interest and dividends on certain securities of companies in the Railways System and the joinder in refunding of various bonds at maturity.

On May 10, 1938, old company, and its subsidiary Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company, filed petitions for reorganization under the Bankruptcy Act in the United States District Court for the Western District of Pennsylvania ("District Court"). In the bankruptcy reorganization proceedings a plan dated July 1, 1949 ("Combined Plan"), together with certain amendments thereto, for the reorganization of the Railways System under the Bankruptcy Act and for the discharge under the Holding Company Act of Philadelphia's guarantees affecting Railways System securities, was filed with this Commission jointly by Elmer E. Bauer, Reorganization Trustee of old company, and by Philadelphia, under Chapter X of the Bankruptcy Act and sections 11 (e) and 11 (f) of the Holding Company Act.

Pursuant to orders of this Commission, the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission, and the District Court, the Combined Plan was approved and finally consummated as of December 31, 1950. Under the terms of the Combined Plan, Philadelphia was relieved of its various guarantees and exchanged its holdings of securities of, and claims against, Railways System for 50.9 percent of the new common stock issued by Railways Company.

In recapitalization proceedings in 1939 before this Commission (File No. 43-271), Philadelphia proposed an accounting reorganization designed to make provision for loss in its investments in street railway companies. In those proceedings, Philadelphia proposed, inter alia, that it would:

(a) Create a reserve for revaluation of assets;

(b) Retain in its earned surplus beginning in 1940 certain earnings which otherwise would be available for common stock dividends;

(c) Notify the Commission of any charge made by Duquesne Light Company ("Duquesne"), its public utility subsidiary, to Duquesne's earned surplus or special reserve balances at December 31, 1939, and observe any ruling made by this Commission, after notice and hearing, as to credits made to Philadelphia's income or earned surplus accounts after December 31, 1939, where such credits arose from dividends paid on Duquesne's common stock, if and to the extent such dividends were made possible by reason of charges improperly made, under generally accepted accounting principles, by Duquesne to its earned surplus or special reserve balances at December 31, 1939; and

(d) Credit to capital surplus an amount equal to $22.75 for each share sold, minus expenses incurred and taxes paid by reason of such sale, in the event it sold any Duquesne common stock it then owned.

Pursuant to the above proposals, Philadelphia created a Reserve For Revaluation of Assets as of December 31, 1939, and, in the years 1940 and 1941, retained in earned surplus certain earnings which otherwise would have been available for dividends on its common stock.

In proceedings before this Commission in 1941 (File No. 70-324) relative to the issuance of Collateral Trust Sinking Fund Bonds and Collateral Trust Serial Notes, Philadelphia proposed that certain sums, to be determined according to a specified formula, be set aside from earnings each year and credited to the Reserve For Revaluation of Assets, and that the sums so set aside and credited be in lieu of the required retention of earnings as specified in paragraph (b) above. The 1941 proposal subsequently was amended at File Nos. 70-1633, 70-2342 and 70-2343. In each of the years from 1941 to date, Philadelphia has set aside sums from earnings and accrued them to the Reserve For Revaluation of Assets in accordance with the applicable requirements of the 1941 proposal, either as originally made or as subsequently modified.

tion of the gas properties then owned by Philadelphia (File No. 70–1633), the Commission reserved jurisdiction over certain proposed accounting entries by which claimed excess depreciation was credited to Philadelphia's surplus accounts. In connection with this reservation of jurisdication, the Commission imposed limitations as to the use of the surplus arising from such entries.

In 1950, in proceedings before this Commission relative to a further reorganization of the gas properties and the recapitalization of the then gas subsidiaries of Philadelphia and the sale by it of all the outstanding common stock of the reorganized Equitable Gas Company ("Equitable"), then a gas utility subsidiary of Philadelphia (File Nos. 70–2342 and 70–2343), the Commission reserved jurisdiction over proposed accounting entries relating to, and imposed limitations on the availability of (a) Philadelphia's surplus representing profit realized from the sale of Equitable's common stock and (b) Philadelphia's surplus arising from the exchange of gas companies' securities.

During the years in which Philadelphia has been required to make payments because of its guarantees of street railway obligations, it has, by annual appropriations from income, built up a reserve for payments made under the guarantees and not returned to it. In addition, Philadelphia for some years has been crediting to deferred credit accounts certain amounts representing offsets to deferred interest and rents received and receivable from old company which are carried in Philadelphia's investment and fund accounts.

Philadelphia states that appropriate adjustments should now be made in its accounts, as of December 31, 1950, to reflect the effect of the above mentioned Railways System reorganization and it proposes:

(1) That its investments in street railway companies be written down from $79,885,278.12, the present gross carrying value, to $5,476,780, the stated value of the common stock of Railways Company which Philadelphia owns, and that the resulting loss of $74,408,498.12 be written off by charging $30,414,293.81 to the Reserve For Revaluation Of Assets, $10,886,652.50 to the reserve for payments made by Philadelphia under guarantees and not returned, $14,454,895.68 to deferred interest and rents received and receivable, $699,993.11 to paid-in-surplus, $2,737,935.15 to capital surplus (as indicated in paragraph (4) below), and $15,214,722.87 to earned surplus;

(2) That credit items aggregating $2,737,935.15, heretofore credited to Philadelphia's Surplus Prior to January 1, 1940, (consisting of (a) credits in 1948, arising in connection with the reorganization of the gas properties, in the amount of $2,341,299.21 for excess depreciation accruals, $93,471.14 for a dividend in kind from Pittsburgh and West Virginia Gas Company, a former gas utility subsidiary of Philadelphia, and $22,934.81 for salvage received from Philadelphia's manufactured gas properties, and (b) a credit in 1950 of $280,229.99 arising from a dividend in kind from Pittsburgh and West Virginia Gas Company paid with 2,825 shares of 7 percent Cumulative Second Preferred Stock of Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company, a former nonutility subsidiary of Philadelphia), be reclassified and credited to capital surplus;

(3) That charges aggregating $2,737,935.15 which were charged since December 31, 1947, to Philadelphia's Surplus Prior to January 1, 1940, be reclassified and charged to Earned Surplus Since December 31, 1939;

(4) That $2,737,935.15 of the loss which would be reflected by the proposed write-down of Philadelphia's investments in street railway companies be charged to the capital surplus account created by the reclassification proposed in (2) above;

(5) That the Commission terminate Philadelphia's obligation, under its proposal in 1939, to retain in its earned surplus the amounts set aside in 1940 and 1941;

(6) That the Commission terminate Philadelphia's obligation, under its proposal in 1939, to notify the Commission of any charge made by Duquesne to that Company's earned surplus or special reserve balances at December 31, 1939, and to observe any ruling made by the Commission, after notice and hearing, as to credits made to Philadelphia's income or earned surplus accounts after December 31, 1939, where such credits arose from dividends paid on Duquesne's common stock, if and to the extent such dividends were made possible by reason of charges improperly made, under generally accepted accounting principles, by Duquesne to its earned surplus or special reserve balance at December 31, 1939;

(7) That the Commission terminate Philadelphia's obligation, under its proposal in 1939, to credit to capital surplus, if Philadelphia sells any Duquesne common stock owned by it at the time of such proposal, an amount equal to $22.75 for each share sold, minus expenses incurred and taxes paid by reason of such sale;

(8) That with respect to (a) Philadelphia's surplus credits aggregating $2,737,935.15 set forth in proposal (2) above, and (b) its surplus credit in 1948 in the amount of $993,305.12 credited to Earned Surplus Since December 31, 1939 (which amount, together with the amount of $2,341,299.21 set forth in proposal (2) above, arose in 1948 from excess depreciation), the Commission release jurisdiction (to the extent that jurisdiction was reserved by it) over the accounting entries crediting such amounts to Philadelphia's surplus accounts, and remove all limitations heretofore imposed by the Commission on the availability of surplus arising from such entries;

(9) That, with respect to (a) Philadelphia's surplus representing profit realized from the sale of Equitable's common stock and (b) its surplus arising from the exchange of gas companies' securities, the Commission release jurisdiction (reserved by it in proceedings at File Nos. 70–2342 and 70–2343) over accounting entries relating to such surplus, and remove the limitations (imposed by it in the same proceedings) on the availability of such surplus; and

(10) That, effective as of April 1, 1950, the Commission terminate Philadelphia's obligation, under its proposal in 1941 (File No. 70–324 as amended at File Nos. 70–1633, 70–2342, and 70–2343), to set aside certain sums from earnings and accrue them to the Reserve For Revaluation Of Assets.

Said application having been filed on January 17, 1951, and amendments thereto having been filed on January 29, 1951, and February 15, 1951, respectively, and notice of said filing having been duly given in the form and manner prescribed by Rule U-23 promulgated pursuant to the act, and the Commission not having received a request for hearing with respect to said application, as amended, within the period specified in said notice, or otherwise, and not having ordered a hearing thereon; and

Philadelphia having requested that the Commission issue an order approving the proposed transactions at the earliest possible date; and

The Commission finding that the proposed transactions are in compliance with the applicable standards of the act, and that no adverse findings are necessary in connection therewith, and the Commission deeming it appropriate that said application, as amended, be granted forthwith without the imposition of terms and conditions other than those specified in Rule U-24:

It is ordered, Pursuant to said Rule U-23 and the applicable provisions of said act that said application, as amended, be, and the same hereby is, granted forthwith, subject to the terms and conditions contained in Rule U-24.

By the Commission.

[Controlled Housing Rent Reg., Amdt. 356]

[Controlled Rooms in Rooming Houses and Other Establishments Rent Reg., Amdt. 351]

PART 825—RENT REGULATIONS UNDER THE HOUSING AND RENT ACT OF 1947, AS AMENDED

CALIFORNIA, NEW JERSEY, OHIO AND SOUTH DAKOTA

Amendment 356 to the Controlled Housing Rent Regulation (§§ 825.1 to 825.12) and Amendment 351 to the Rent Regulation for Controlled Rooms in Rooming Houses and Other Establishments (§§ 825.81 to 825.92). Said regulations are amended in the following respects:

1. Schedule A, Item 40a, is amended to describe the counties in the Defense-Rental Area as follows:

Ventura County, except the Cities of Fillmore, Ojai, Port Hueneme, San Buenaventura and Santa Paula, and all unincorporated localities.

This decontrols the Cities of Ojai and Port Hueneme in Ventura County, California, portions of the Ventura, California, Defense-Rental Area.

2. Schedule A, Item 188a, is amended to describe the counties in the Defense-Rental Area as follows:

Camden County, except the Boroughs of Haddonfield and Merchantville; Gloucester County; and Burlington County, except the Townships of Bass River, Tabernacle, Shamong, Woodland and Washington, and the Borough of Medford Lakes in Medford Township.

In Cape May County, the Borough of Woodbine; and in Cumberland County, the City of Millville.

This decontrols the Borough of Merchantville in Camden County, New Jersey, a portion of the Southern New Jersey Defense-Rental Area.

3. Schedule A, Item 233, is amended to describe the counties in the Defense-Rental Area as follows:

Lorain County, except the Townships of Brighton, Huntington, Penfield, Rochester and Wellington, and the Villages of Avon Lake, Oberlin, Wellington and Rochester.

This decontrols the Village of Avon Lake in Lorain County, Ohio, a portion of the Lorain-Elyria, Ohio, Defense-Rental Area.

4. Schedule A, Item 285b, is amended to read:

(285b) [Revoked and decontrolled.]

This decontrols the Vermillion, South Dakota, Defense-Rental Area, on the Housing Expediter's own initiative in accordance with section 204 (c) of the Housing and Rent Act of 1947, as Amended.

All decontrols effected by this amendment, except Item 4 thereof, are based on resolutions submitted in accordance with section 204 (j) (3) of the Housing and Rent Act of 1947, as Amended.

(Sec. 204, 61 Stat. 197, as amended; 50 U. S. C. App. Sup., 1894)

This amendment shall become effective March 7, 1951.

Issued this 6th day of March 1951.

TIGHE E. WOODS,
Housing Expediter.

(6) Manipulation or manufacture in a warehouse or in a foreign-trade zone with respect to merchandise arriving in the United States from any country after that date if the country of origin of such merchandise is China (except Formosa) or North Korea until

(i) A specific license pursuant to this chapter is presented, or

(ii) The provisions of paragraph (e) of this section shall have been complied with, or

(iii) Instructions from the Foreign Assets Control either directly or through the Federal Reserve Bank of New York authorizing the transaction are received.

(b) Whenever a specific license is presented to a collector of customs in accordance with this section, two additional legible copies of the entry, withdrawal or other appropriate document with respect to the merchandise involved shall be filed with the collector of customs at the port where the transaction is to take place. Each copy of any such entry, withdrawal or other appropriate document including the two additional copies, shall bear plainly on its face the number of the license pursuant to which it is filed. The original copy of the specific license shall be presented to the collector in respect of each such transaction and shall bear a notation in ink by the licensee or person presenting the license showing the description, quantity, and value of the merchandise to be entered, withdrawn or otherwise dealt with. This notation should be so placed and so written that there will exist no possibility of confusing it with anything placed on the license at the time of its issuance. If the license in fact authorizes the entry, withdrawal or other transaction with regard to the merchandise the collector, or other authorized customs employee, shall verify the notation by signing or initialing it after first assuring himself that it accurately describes the merchandise it purports to represent. The license shall thereafter be returned to the person presenting it and the two additional copies of the entry, withdrawal or other appropriate document shall be forwarded by the collector to the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

(c) (1) The collector of customs at any port at which merchandise is to be entered or withdrawn pursuant to the terms of a specific license may waive the requirement of presentation of the original copy of such license: Provided, That:

(i) The person presenting the entry or withdrawal presents to the collector an affidavit stating:

(a) Facts indicating that it would be a hardship for him to present the original copy of the license, and

(b) That the entry or withdrawal is one of a large number which are to be made pursuant to the same license, and

(c) That all the entries or withdrawals are to be made at the same port; and

(ii) The collector receiving such an affidavit is satisfied that the circumstances in fact warrant the waiver; and

(iii) There is presented to the collector either a photostatic copy of the original license or a copy of the license signed by the officer who issued and signed the original.

(2) If such waiver is granted, the collector shall retain the copy of the license presented to him and shall note on it, or cause to be noted on it, the description, quantity, and value of all merchandise entered or withdrawn from time to time pursuant to the authority therein contained.

(3) When such waiver is granted and all the merchandise authorized to be entered or withdrawn under a specific license has been entered or withdrawn, the copy of the license on file with the collector shall be endorsed to indicate this fact and shall be forwarded to the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. When a license expires, unless it is renewed and the collector is advised of its renewal, any copy thereof which is on file with the collector shall be endorsed to show the expiration and shall be forwarded to the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

(d) The requirement that two additional copies of each entry or withdrawal be filed in connection with every transaction under a specific license shall remain in effect notwithstanding any waiver of the requirement of presenting the original copy of the license.

(e) Whenever a person shall present an entry, withdrawal or other appropriate document and shall assert that the entry, withdrawal or other transaction with respect to the merchandise affected by this section is authorized pursuant to § 500.534 he shall be required to file two additional legible copies of the entry, withdrawal or other appropriate document upon the face of each of which shall appear the statement "Effected pursuant to § 500.534 of the Foreign Assets Control Regulations". He shall also attach to each of the two additional copies a signed additional statement setting forth full details regarding all payments made or to be made with respect to the merchandise or its importation, including the names of all persons who have been or will be paid in connection therewith and the manner of such payment. This statement shall include a declaration with respect to the name of the domestic bank or banks in which payments have been or will be made and the names of blocked account or accounts in such banks which have been or will be credited and shall specify the amount or amounts so credited or to be credited. The two additional copies of the entry, withdrawal or other appropriate document together with the attached copies of the additional statement, shall be forwarded by the collector of customs to the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

(f) Whenever a person shall present an entry, withdrawal or other appropriate document affected by this section and shall assert that no Foreign Assets Control license is required in connection therewith, the collector of customs shall withhold action thereon and shall advise such person to communicate directly with the Federal Reserve Bank of New York to request that instructions be issued to the collector to authorize him to take action with regard thereto.

TITLE 32A—NATIONAL DEFENSE, APPENDIX

Chapter III—Office of Price Stabilization, Economic Stabilization Agency

[Ceiling Price Regulation 9]

CPR 9—TERRITORIES AND POSSESSIONS

Pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Public Law 774, 81st Congress), Executive Order 10161 (15 F. R. 6105), and Economic Stabilization Agency General Order No. 2 (16 F. R. 738), this Ceiling Price Regulation 9 is hereby issued.

STATEMENT OF CONSIDERATIONS

The General Ceiling Price Regulation, issued January 26, 1951, established maximum prices for the territories and possessions on the basis of delivered prices during the base period from December 19, 1950, to January 25, 1951, inclusive.

The difficulties with applying the freeze prices under the General Ceiling Price Regulation to the territories and possessions are bound up with the problems of isolation and transportation facilities. The abnormal lag which exists because of the distances which must be traversed to make deliveries in the territories and possessions has caused, and is causing, serious maladjustments and undue hardship. Many commodities essential to life in the territories and possessions have been delivered, are being delivered, and will be delivered to sellers at prices in excess of the seller's ceiling prices as established under the General Ceiling Price Regulation, or at prices which make it impossible for sellers at any level to sell at a profit. Prices are being quoted for future delivery of some of these essential commodities to sellers in the territories and possessions substantially above the seller's ceiling under the General Ceiling Price Regulation. The flow of many commodities to the territories and possessions has stopped completely. An example of this situation is the fact that no rice is now being shipped to Puerto Rico. Rice is the basic food of Puerto Rico and, with the exception of an inconsequential amount which is grown on the island, all of the rice consumed there is shipped from the Continental United States. Most items marketed in the territories and possessions are purchased in the Continental United States and within ceilings established for the Continental United States.

This regulation establishes ceiling prices on all commodities sold in the territories and possessions which are not actually manufactured or produced in the territory or possession where the commodity is offered for sale, based on the direct cost to the seller of the commodities sold plus the dollar-and-cents markup included in the price at which the seller sold the same commodity to a purchaser of the same class during the period from December 19, 1950, to January 25, 1951, inclusive. Alternative methods of establishing ceiling prices are established where the seller made no sale of the commodity during the base period or did not previously handle the same commodity.

This regulation will effect a general adjustment in the prices of the territorial sellers on commodities not manufactured or produced in the particular territory or possession so as to authorize the passing through of increases in the direct costs where such increases occurred in the base period but were not reflected in the sellers' prices in the territories or where increases in the direct costs continue. At the same time, this regulation freezes the dollar-and-cents markup to the amount received during or prior to the base period. The hardship situation now experienced by territorial sellers on commodities covered by the regulation will as a result of it be relieved in a manner consistent with the effectuation of the fundamental stabilization objectives of the Defense Production Act of 1950.

FINDINGS OF THE DIRECTOR OF PRICE STABILIZATION

In the judgment of the Director of Price Stabilization the discrepancies in the ceiling prices for the Continental United States and the territories and possessions have created a situation that is inconsistent with the purposes of the Defense Production Act of 1950.

In the judgment of the Director of Price Stabilization, the ceiling prices established by this regulation are generally fair and equitable and are necessary to effectuate the purposes of Title IV of the Defense Production Act of 1950.

So far as practicable, the Director of Price Stabilization gave due consideration to the national effort to achieve maximum production in furtherance of the objectives of the Defense Production Act of 1950; to prevailing prices during the period from May 24, 1950, to June 24, 1950, inclusive; and to relevant factors of applicability.

In the formulation of this regulation special circumstances have rendered impracticable consultation with industry representatives including trade association representatives. However, prior to the formulation of this regulation public hearings were conducted in the territories and possessions under the direction of the territorial directors of the Office of Price Stabilization for each of said territories, as a result of which the Director of Price Stabilization has received advice from a large number of persons representing substantial segments of the trade and industry which will be affected by this regulation.

AUTHORITY: Sections 1 to 15 issued under sec. 704, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong. Interpret or apply Title IV, Public Law 774, 81st Cong.; E. O. 10161, Sept. 9, 1950, 15 F. R. 6105, 3 CFR, 1950 Supp.

SECTION 1. What this regulation does. The purpose of this regulation is to establish ceiling prices for all commodities (except those specifically exempt under any price regulation or order issued under the authority of the Director of Price Stabilization) which are not actually manufactured or produced in the particular territory or possession in which they are sold, upon the basis of the direct cost plus the dollar-and-cents markup in effect during the period from December 19, 1950, to January 25, 1951, inclusive. This period is referred to as the "base period." This regulation supersedes the General Ceiling Price Regulation for all commodities included within this section.

SEC. 2. Applicability and prohibitions—(a) Applicability. The provisions of this regulation are applicable to Alaska, Guam, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, Samoa and the Virgin Islands.

(b) Prohibitions. After the date of this regulation, regardless of any contract or other obligation, no commodity included within section 1 shall be sold, or purchased, in the regular course of business or trade, at a price exceeding the ceiling price established by this regulation.

SEC. 3. Ceiling prices for commodities sold in the base period. Your ceiling price for sale of a commodity is your direct cost of the commodity plus the dollar-and-cents markup included in the price at which you delivered it during the base period to a purchaser of the same class. If you delivered the commodity to purchasers of the same class at more than one price, your ceiling price is your direct cost of the commodity plus the average of your dollar-and-cents markups included in the prices at which the commodity was so delivered during the base period.

If you did not deliver the commodity during the base period, your ceiling price is your direct cost of the commodity plus the dollar-and-cents markup included in the price at which you offered it for base period delivery to a purchaser of the same class. If you offered the commodity for delivery to purchasers of the same class at more than one price your ceiling price shall be your direct cost of the commodity plus the average of your dollar-and-cents markups included in the prices at which the commodity was so offered for delivery during the base period. The offer must have been made in writing, but in the case of a retailer may have been made by display.

SEC. 4. Ceiling prices for commodities customarily handled by sellers but not sold in the base period. If you wish to determine a ceiling price for a commodity which you customarily handle in the course of your business, but which you did not deliver or offer for delivery during the base period, you may determine your ceiling price by adding to your direct cost the average of the dollar-and-cents markups included in the price (or prices) at which you delivered the commodity to a purchaser (or purchasers) of the same class in the calendar year 1950, provided that you can establish through your records the direct cost of the commodity and the average markup which you charged for it.

SEC. 5. Ceiling prices for new commodities falling within categories dealt in during the base period. Your ceiling price for a commodity you did not deliver or offer for delivery in the base period, and for which you do not choose to determine your ceiling price under section 4, which falls within a "category" in which you dealt during the base period, is determined by adding to your direct cost the dollar-and-cents markup you are currently receiving on a "comparison commodity."

The comparison commodity must be in the same category as the commodity being priced; must be a commodity for which your ceiling price was determined under section 3; and must be, of the commodities in that category, the one customarily bearing the same markup as the commodity being priced.

You are required, by section 9 of this regulation, to prepare a list of your categories and in applying the pricing provisions of this section refer to this list.

SEC. 6. Sellers who cannot price under other sections. If you claim that you are unable to determine your ceiling price for a commodity under any of the foregoing provisions of this regulation, you may apply in writing to the territorial director for the territory in which the sale is to be made for the establishment of a ceiling price. This application shall contain an explanation of why you are unable to determine your ceiling price under any other provision of this regulation; all pertinent information describing the commodity or service, and the nature of your business; your proposed ceiling price and the method used by you to determine it; and the reason you believe the proposed price is in line with the level of ceiling prices otherwise established by this regulation. You may not sell the commodity until the Director of Price Stabilization, in writing, notifies you of your ceiling price.

SEC. 7. Modification of proposed ceiling prices by Director of Price Stabilization. The Director of Price Stabilization may at any time disapprove or revise ceiling prices reported or proposed under this regulation so as to bring them into line with the level of ceiling prices otherwise established by this regulation.

SEC. 8. Customary price differentials. Your ceiling prices, when determined, shall reflect your customary price differentials, including discounts, allowances, premiums and extras, based upon differences in classes or location of purchasers, or in terms and conditions of sale or delivery.

SEC. 9. Records.[1] This section tells you what records you must preserve and what additional records you must prepare.

(a) Base period records. (1) You must preserve and keep available for examination by the Director of Price Stabilization those records in your possession showing the prices charged by you for the commodities which you delivered or offered to deliver during the base period, and also sufficient records to establish the latest direct cost incurred by you prior to the end of the base period in purchasing the commodities.

(2) In addition, on or before April 1, 1951, you must prepare and preserve a statement showing the categories of commodities in which you made deliveries and offers for delivery during the base period.

(3) On or before April 1, 1951, you must also prepare and preserve a price list, showing the dollar-and-cents markups on the commodities in each category (listing each model, type, style, and kind), delivered or offered for delivery by you during the base period together with a description or identification of each such commodity. If you are a retailer you may satisfy the requirement of this paragraph (3) by recording on your purchase invoices, covering the commodities (including every model, type, style, and kind) delivered or offered for delivery by you during the base period, the price at which you sold, or offered the commodities for delivery, during the base period.

(4) You must also prepare and preserve a statement of your customary price differentials for terms and conditions of sale and classes of purchasers, which you had in effect during the base period.

(b) Current records. If you sell commodities covered by this regulation you must prepare and keep available for examination by the Director of Price Stabilization for a period of two years, records of the kind which you customarily keep showing the dollar-and-cents markups which you add to your direct costs in arriving at the prices which you charge for commodities. In addition, you must prepare and preserve records indicating clearly the basis upon which you have determined the ceiling price for any commodities not delivered by you or offered for delivery during the base period. If you are a retailer you are required to preserve your purchase invoices and to record thereon both your initial selling price and the section of this regulation under which you have determined your ceiling price.

SEC. 10. Sales slips and receipts. Any seller who has customarily given a purchaser a sales slip, receipt, or similar evidence of purchase, shall continue to do so. Upon request from a purchaser any seller, regardless of previous custom, shall give the purchaser a receipt showing the date, the name and address of the seller, the name of each commodity sold, and the price received for it.

SEC. 11. Evasion. Any practice which results in obtaining indirectly a higher price than is permitted by this regulation is a violation of this regulation. Such practices include, but are not limited to, devices making use of commissions, services, cross sales, transportation arrangements, premiums, discounts, special privileges, tie-in agreements and trade understandings.

SEC. 12. Transfers of business or stock in trade. If the business, assets or stock in trade of any business are sold or otherwise transferred after January 25, 1951, and the transferee carries on the business, or continues to deal in the same type of commodities in an establishment separate from any other establishment previously owned or operated by him, the maximum prices of the transferee shall be the same as those to which his transferor would have been subject if no such transfer had taken place, and his obligation to keep records sufficient to verify such prices shall be the same. The transferor shall either preserve and make available, or turn over, to the transferee all records of transactions prior to the transfer which are necessary to enable the transferee to comply with the record provisions of this regulation.

SEC. 13. Separate statement of taxes. In addition to your ceiling price, you may collect the amount of any excise, sales or similar taxes paid by you as such only if, during the base period, you stated and collected such taxes separately from your selling price. In the case of such a tax imposed by law which is not effective until after the date of issuance of this regulation, you may collect the amount of the tax actually paid as such by you, in addition to your ceiling price, if not prohibited by the tax law. You must in all such cases state separately the amount of the tax.

SEC. 14. Penalties. Persons violating any provision of this regulation are subject to the criminal penalties, civil enforcement actions, and suits for treble damages provided for by the Defense Production Act of 1950.

SEC. 15. Definitions and explanations. This Ceiling Price Regulation and the terms which appear in it shall be construed in the following manner, unless otherwise clearly required by the context:

Average dollar-and-cents markup. To find your average dollar-and-cents markup add together all the dollar-and-cents markups received on sales of the commodity (or included in the price, or prices, at which the commodity was offered for sale), and divide by the number of sales (or offers for sale). The result is your average dollar-and-cents markup.

(NOTE: As indicated in the definition of "dollar-and-cents markup" this term refers to your most recent "direct cost" for the commodity; the average markup is therefore based upon your most recent direct cost of the commodity and can be computed only from sales of a commodity covered by a single purchase invoice.

Category. This term means a line of merchandise, a merchandise department, or a group of commodities which are normally classed together in your trade for selling, buying, merchandising or accounting. You might, for example, have a category such as one of the following: men's clothing; men's furnishings; infants' wear; canned fruits; cosmetics and toiletries; frozen foods; notions; musical instruments; women's coats and suits; cotton piece goods; major household appliances; women's house dresses; office furniture; hand tools.

Class of purchaser or purchaser of same class. This term refers to the practice adopted by a seller in setting different prices for sales to different purchasers or kinds of purchasers (for example, manufacturer, wholesaler, shopper, retailer, Government agency, public institutions or individual consumer), or for purchasers located in different areas or for purchasers of different quantities or grades or under different terms or conditions of sale or delivery.

Commodity. This term includes commodities, materials, articles, products, supplies, components, processes and contracts to buy, sell or deliver any of the foregoing.

Delivered. A commodity shall be deemed to have been delivered during a specified period if during that period it was received by the purchaser or by any carrier, including a carrier owned or controlled by the seller, for shipment to the purchaser.

Direct cost. This term refers to your invoice cost less any discount or allowance you took or could have taken. It includes separately stated charges such as freight, warehousing, taxes, etc. It does not include local trucking or local unloading, except where it can be clearly established that such service customarily was not included in the invoice cost or in your markup.

Director of Price Stabilization. This term extends to any official (including officials of regional or local offices) to whom the Director of Price Stabilization by order delegates the function, power or authority referred to in this regulation.

Dollar-and-cents markup. This term refers to the difference between your most recent direct cost for the commodity sold or offered for sale and the selling or offering price of that commodity.

Offering price. The price at which a commodity was offered means the price quoted in the seller's price list, or if he had no price list, the price which he regularly quoted in any other manner. This regulation requires that an offer for sale other than at retail must have been in writing. For sales of commodities at retail the offer must have been made at the immediate point of sale (e. g., the shelves or counters). The term offering price does not include a price intended to withhold a commodity from the market or a price offered as a bargaining price by a seller who usually sells at a price lower than his asking price.

Person. This term includes any individual, corporation, partnership, association or any other organized group of persons, or legal successors or representatives of the foregoing, and the United States or any other Government or their political subdivisions or agencies.

Records. This term means books of account, sales lists, sales slips, orders, vouchers, contracts, receipts, invoices, bills of lading, and other papers and documents.

Sell. This term includes sell, supply, dispose, barter, exchange, lease, transfer, deliver, and contracts and offers to do any of the foregoing. The terms buy and purchase shall be construed accordingly.

Seller. This term includes the seller of any commodity. Where a seller at retail makes sales through more than one selling unit (other than salesmen making sales at uniform price) each such separate place of business shall be deemed to be a separate seller.

You. The pronoun you as used in this regulation indicates the person subject to the regulation.

NOTE: The record keeping and reporting requirements of this regulation have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

Effective date. This regulation is effective immediately.

MICHAEL V. DISALLE,
Director of Price Stabilization.

[General Ceiling Price Regulation, Supplementary Regulation 1, Amdt. 4]

GCPR, SR 1—DEFENSE AGENCY PRICING

SALES OF SOAP TO OFFICE OF RUBBER RESERVE

Pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.), Executive Order 10161 (15 F. R. 6105), and Economic Stabilization Agency General Order No. 2 (16 F. R. 738), this Amendment 4 to Supplementary Regulation 1 to the General Ceiling Price Regulation (16 F. R. 808) is hereby issued.

STATEMENT OF CONSIDERATIONS

This Amendment 4 to Supplementary Regulation 1 to the General Ceiling Price Regulation adds the Office of Rubber Reserve, Reconstruction Finance Corporation to the list of Defense Agencies named in section 16 (b) insofar as the sale of soap for use in the manufacture of synthetic rubber is concerned.

The manufacture of synthetic rubber, conducted almost entirely under the auspices of the Office of Rubber Reserve, requires soaps made from specially processed tallow to serve as an emulsifying agent in the polymerization of butadiene and styrene, principal ingredients of most synthetic rubber. There is no satisfactory substitute.

The Office of Rubber Reserve purchases these special soaps, manufactured to its specifications, through a competitive bid system under which contracts are normally awarded from 30 to 60 days prior to actual delivery. Soap manufacturers claim that price increases in the cost of the special tallow have made it impossible for them to furnish the necessary soap to the Office of Rubber Reserve at ceiling prices.

This amendment is considered necessary in order that the manufacture of synthetic rubber, which is critically needed for civilian and military products, shall not be impeded pending consideration of adjustment applications filed by the soap manufacturers. Under it, manufacturers of these soaps can continue making deliveries and at the same time file their applications for price adjustments in accordance with the provisions of sections 10 through 13 of Supplementary Regulation 1.

AMENDATORY PROVISIONS

1. Section 16 (b) of Supplementary Regulation 1 is amended by inserting after the words "Coast Guard" the words "the Office of Rubber Reserve, Reconstruction Finance Corporation in the purchase of soap for use in synthetic rubber manufacture."

2. Section 16 (b) of Supplementary Regulation 1, as amended, reads as follows:

(b) The term "Defense Agency" as used in this regulation means the Department of Defense (including the Department of the Army, the Department of the Navy, and the Department of the Air Force) the Maritime Administration of the Department of Commerce, the United States Coast Guard, the Office of Rubber Reserve, Reconstruction Finance Corporation in the purchase of soap for use in synthetic rubber manufacture, and the Atomic Energy Commission.

Effective date: This amendment is effective March 7, 1951.

[F. R. Doc. 51-3193; Filed, Mar. 8, 1951; 10:58 a. m.]

[1] The record-keeping requirements imposed by this regulation on commodities of the type described in section 1 differ in certain respects from those imposed by the General Ceiling Price Regulation. In place of the "net cost", a term employed in the General Ceiling Price Regulation, this regulation refers to "direct cost", which is defined in section 15 to include certain elements not included under "net cost". Whereas the General Ceiling Price Regulation required the preparation of a list of ceiling prices, this regulation requires that the list include, also, dollar-and-cents margins. The current record requirement of the General Ceiling Price Regulation relates to prices; the current record requirement of this regulation relates to markups. The dates by which certain records must be prepared differ in the two regulations. A seller handling commodities covered by this regulation and also commodities still covered by the General Ceiling Price Regulation may include in a single list, as required by this regulation the appropriate information required by either regulation.

Chapter VI—National Production Authority, Department of Commerce

[NPA Order M-47]

M-47—Use of Iron and Steel

This order is found necessary and appropriate to promote the national defense and is issued pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950. In the formulation of this order, there has been consultation with industry representatives, including trade association representatives, and consideration has been given to their recommendations. However, consultation with representatives of all trades and industries affected in advance of the issuance of this order has been rendered impracticable by the fact that the order affects a large number of different trades and industries.

Authority: Sections 1 through 10 issued under sec. 704, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong. Interpret or apply sec. 101, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.; sec. 101, E. O. 10161, Sept. 9, 1950, 15 F. R. 6105; 3 CFR, 1950 Supp.; sec. 2, E. O. 10200, Jan. 3, 1951, 16 F. R. 61.

Section 1. What this order does. The purpose of this order is to limit the use of iron and steel in the manufacture and assembly of certain products.

Sec. 2. Definitions. As used in this order:

(a) "Person" means any individual, corporation, partnership, association, or any other organized group of persons and includes any agency of the United States or any other government.

(b) "Base period" means the 6 months' period ending June 30, 1950.

(c) "Manufacture" means to put into process, machine, fabricate, or otherwise alter materials by physical or chemical means.

(d) "Conversion steel" means steel mill products which have been obtained by the consumer in consequence of the consumer or some other person having furnished, directly or indirectly, to one or more steel producers or converters, steel mill products in a less finished form such as, but not limited to, ingots, blooms, billets, slabs, rods, skelp, and hot rolled sheets in coils, for the express purpose of procuring such steel mill products.

Sec. 3. Iron and steel forms and products to which this order applies. This order applies to the iron and steel forms and products listed in Table I of NPA Order M-1, as amended.

Sec. 4. Application of order. This order applies to persons who use iron and steel products for purposes of manufacture or assembly, and limits the use of such materials in the manufacture or assembly of certain items. This order does not apply to the production of iron and steel.

Sec. 5. Use of iron and steel products in consumer durable goods. (a) Subject to the exemptions stated in section 6, and unless specifically authorized in writing by the National Production Authority, no person shall use during the calendar quarter commencing on April 1, 1951, in the manufacture of any item included in List A at the end of this order a total quantity by weight of iron and steel products in excess of 80 percent of his average quarterly use of such materials in the manufactured item during the base period: Provided, however, That such use in any one month shall not exceed 40 percent of the permitted quarterly use. However, if such person has changed since July 1, 1950, or hereafter changes, from the manufacture of any part made wholly or partly from iron or steel products to the purchase of such part, he shall make a deduction from his total permitted use of iron and steel products under this paragraph in an amount equal to 80 percent of the material which he used in the manufacture of such part during the base period. During the calendar quarter commencing on April 1, 1951, any person who does not use any iron or steel product in the manufacture of an item in List A but who assembles parts made wholly or partly from such material into such item shall not assemble a total number of units of such item in excess of 40 percent of the number of such units which he assembled during the base period.

(b) Any person who, during the 6 months' period ending December 31, 1950, used conversion steel in the manufacture or assembly of any items included in List A shall, during the calendar quarter commencing on April 1, 1951, use conversion steel in the manufacture or assembly of such items to the extent stated in this paragraph. The ratio between conversion steel and total steel so used by such person shall not be less than the ratio between conversion steel and total steel received by him during the 6 months' period ending December 31, 1950: Provided, however, That in the alternative and in the event it is not practicable to determine the quantity of conversion steel used in the manufacture or assembly of items in List A, the relationship between conversion steel and total steel shall be as follows: The ratio between conversion steel and total steel used in his total production, including all items in List A, shall not be less than the ratio between conversion steel and total steel received by him during said period. Any person who selects and applies either of the alternatives above stated may not subsequently apply the other alternative without the written approval of National Production Authority.

Sec. 6. Exemptions. (a) The manufacture or assembly of any item in List A to fill rated orders, or to meet any mandatory order of the National Production Authority, is permitted in addition to the manufacture or assembly permitted by section 5.

(b) Section 5 does not apply to persons who use less than 100 short tons of iron and steel products in any calendar quarter. However, any person who by reason of the provisions of section 5 would be permitted to use less than 100 short tons of such materials during any calendar quarter, may use during such period a quantity up to 100 short tons: Provided, That notwithstanding the foregoing, no person shall use during the calendar quarter commencing April 1, 1951, in the manufacture or assembly of any items included in List A a total quantity by weight of such materials in excess of his average quarterly use thereof for such purposes during the base period.

Sec. 7. Application for adjustment. Any person affected by any provision of this order may file a request for adjustment or exception upon the ground that his business operation was commenced during or after the base period, or because any provision otherwise works an undue and exceptional hardship upon him not suffered generally by others in the same trade or industry, or its enforcement against him would not be in the interest of the national defense or in the public interest. Each request shall be in writing and shall set forth all pertinent facts and the nature of the relief sought, and shall state the justification therefor.

Sec. 8. Records and reports. (a) Each person participating in any transaction covered by this order shall retain in his possession for at least 2 years records of receipts, deliveries, inventories, and use, in sufficient detail to permit an audit that determines for each transaction that the provisions of this order have been met. This does not specify any particular accounting method and does not require alteration of the system of records customarily maintained, provided such records supply an adequate basis for audit. Records may be retained in the form of microfilm or other photographic copies instead of the originals.

(b) All records required by this order shall be made available at the usual place of business where maintained for inspection and audit by duly authorized representatives of the National Production Authority.

(c) Persons subject to this order shall make such records and submit such reports to the National Production Authority as it shall require, subject to the terms of the Federal Reports Act (Pub. Law 831, 77th Cong., 5 U. S. C. 139–139F).

Sec. 9. Communications. All communications concerning this order shall be addressed to the National Production Authority, Washington 25, D. C., Ref: M-47.

Sec. 10. Violations. Any person who wilfully violates any provisions of this order or any other order or regulation of the National Production Authority or wilfully conceals a material fact or furnishes false information in the course of operation under this order is guilty of a crime and upon conviction may be punished by fine or imprisonment or both. In addition, administrative action may be taken against any such person to suspend his privilege of making or receiving further deliveries of materials or using facilities under priority or allocation control and to deprive him of further priorities assistance.

Note: All reporting and record-keeping requirements of this order have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act.

This order shall take effect, except as otherwise specifically stated, on March 7, 1951.

National Production Authority,
[SEAL] Manly Fleischmann,
Administrator.

S. C. 617, 16 U. S. C. 9a, 460a–2, 462, 4031, 460a, 460a–3, 450z)

4. Section 20.45 Everglades National Park is amended to read as follows:

§ 20.45 Everglades National Park—(a) Commercial fishing. (1) The regulations in this paragraph apply only to the area of Everglades National Park known as Florida Bay and described as follows: All of the park waters and keys lying easterly and northerly of a line drawn south true from East Cape Sable to the park boundary, thence following the park boundary southeasterly to the Intracoastal Waterway at a point near Jewfish Key, thence northeasterly following said Intracoastal Waterway to Jewfish Creek. Nets and traps may be used in accordance with the provisions of subparagraphs (2) to (10) of this paragraph.

(2) Gill nets shall not exceed 400 yards in length and shall have a stretched mesh of not less than 3 inches measured from knot to knot after being shrunk. Twine used in gill nets shall not be heavier than 9/20 cotton or 16/3 linen or No. 139 nylon. Only one lead line is permitted and neither lead lines nor cork lines shall be more than one-fourth inch in diameter. No purses, pockets, trammels, or other special devices for entrapping or catching fish shall be used on gill nets. No gill net may be tarred, or contain hoops. Gill nets may be tied together and used in groups of not more than three, provided that the nearest net of any group shall be at least 1,000 yards from any other gill net.

(3) Cast nets shall be of the type thrown and hauled by hand by one person, and shall not exceed 18 feet in diameter of spread.

(4) Bully nets may have a spread of not more than 3 feet and a pocket of not more than 3 feet measured from rim to tip.

(5) Bait nets shall not be more than 100 feet in length and not more than 4 feet in depth.

(6) Bait traps shall not be more than 2 feet by 2 feet by 1 foot in size, built of ¼ inch to ½ inch wire mesh containing not more than 2 openings 2½ inches by 4 inches or smaller. Bait traps must be buoyed.

(7) Crab traps shall have openings 4 inches by 4 inches or smaller. Crab traps must be buoyed.

(8) No other net, seine, trap, spear, explosive, or other device for entrapping, catching, killing, or taking fish, bait, or other similar edible products of the waters may be used or be in the possession of any person within the Florida Bay section of the Everglades National Park, except hook and line, the pole or line being held in hand, and further excepting the shrimp and silver mullet nets permitted under subparagraph (9) of this paragraph.

(9) The taking of shrimp, prawn, silver mullet, or other products of the waters of the park for sale as bait is prohibited: Provided, That fishermen may obtain bait for their own use without permit: Provided further, That persons holding permits may be authorized to take shrimp, prawn, silver mullet, or other products of the waters of the park for sale as bait. Bait nets, shrimp nets, or silver mullet nets may be used by holders of permits and by fishermen obtaining bait for their own use.

(10) With the exception of the gill nets mentioned in subparagraph (2) of this paragraph, no nets may be tied together, and no net shall be used within 100 yards of another net (excepting shrimp nets or silver mullet nets).

(b) Closed waters. (1) The following-described areas are closed to fishing with nets or seines, except cast nets, bully nets, or shrimp nets.

(i) All inland lakes, bays, canals, rivers and other bodies of water being 1/8 of a mile inland from the nearest recognizable mainland shoreline from the intersection of the northern park boundary with the Gulf of Mexico shore line southward to East Cape Sable excluding First Bay and including the area of Ponce de Leon Bay lying east of 81 degrees 08 minutes west longitude.

(ii) All inland lakes, bays, canals, rivers, and other bodies lying inland from the north shore of Florida Bay and Joy Bay and, in addition, the area north of a line drawn from Christian Point north of Joe Kemp Key to Shark Point and thence to Mosquito Point, including Otter Key. Entrances to such of the areas mentioned in this subparagraph as open on Florida Bay or the Gulf of Mexico will be posted with warning signs.

(2) The following-described area in the vicinity of Royal Palm Ranger Station is closed to all fishing: Township 58 south, range 37 east, sections 10 to 15, inclusive.

(3) The following-described area bordering Seven Mile Road (also known as Humble Oil Well Road) from Tamiami Trail south, is closed to all fishing: Township 54 south, range 36 east, sections 19, 30, and 31; township 55 south, range 36 east, sections 6, 7, 18, and 19.

(c) Protection of turtles. The killing, wounding, capturing, molesting, or attempting to kill, wound, or capture any sea turtle or terrapin, or the disturbance of the nests or eggs thereof at any time is prohibited. The unauthorized possession within the park of the dead body or any part thereof, or of the eggs of any sea turtle or terrapin shall be prima facie evidence that the person or persons having such possession are guilty of violating this regulation.

(d) Use of park roads. The use of federally owned roads within Everglades National Park by trucks or other conveyances for hauling out of the park for commercial purposes, fish, shrimp, prawn, silver mullet, or other bait or edible products of the park waters, is prohibited except when such hauling is done by persons who own land within the park, or by their employees.

(e) Prohibited conveyances. No vehicle or conveyance, including conveyances commonly referred to as "glade buggies" or "airboats," designed to operate in, on, or over waters, swamps, or land areas, may be operated upon or across federally owned lands, including swamps and watered areas, unless prior authorization has been obtained from the Superintendent. This restriction shall not apply, however, to the operation of vehicles or conveyances over established or well-defined roadways or trails, or to boats operated by oars, sails, or underwater propellers.

(f) Applicability of State law. Except as otherwise provided in this section and by § 1.4 of this chapter, all fishing in the waters of Everglades National Park shall be done in accordance with the laws of Florida and the regulations made pursuant thereto by the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission and the State Board of Conservation.

(g) Effective date. The regulations in this section shall become effective upon publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

Issued this 2d day of March 1951.

TITLE 39—POSTAL SERVICE

Chapter I—Post Office Department

PART 7—POSTAL REVENUE AND OTHER PUBLIC FUNDS: SOURCES AND DISPOSAL OF

PART 99—MAIL EQUIPMENT

CARE OF PUBLIC FUNDS AND PROPERTY AND USE OF MAIL BAGS RESTRICTED TO TRANSMISSION OF MAIL

a. In § 7.4 Care of public funds and property (39 CFR 7.4), amend paragraph (b) by striking out the third sentence and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "Money and stamps shall not be left at night or when the office is closed temporarily during the day in tin or iron boxes even though locked, nor in cash drawers secured by finger-combination locks, except that postmasters may, if deemed necessary for the convenience of the public outside of the usual business hours, maintain a small working supply of stamps and change. Such working supply of stamps and change, not exceeding $10.00, need not be placed in the safe at night, provided it is kept in a strong drawer or other fixed receptacle securely fastened with a good lock."

b. In § 99.4 Use of mail bags restricted to transmission of mail (39 CFR 99.4), amend paragraph (a) to read as follows:

(a) Mail bags shall be used only for the transmission of mailable matter while under the care, custody, and control of the Post Office Department, through its postmasters and other authorized agents, and shall not be used for other purposes, except as stated in § 99.5: Provided, That mail bags may be used for the shipment of postal supplies by official mail, freight, or express.

PROPOSED RULE MAKING

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Production and Marketing Administration

[7 CFR, Part 936]

HANDLING OF FRESH BARTLETT PEARS, PLUMS, AND ELBERTA PEACHES GROWN IN CALIFORNIA

FINDINGS AND DETERMINATION WITH RESPECT TO THE CONTINUATION IN EFFECT OF THE AMENDED MARKETING AGREEMENT AND ORDER

Pursuant to the applicable provisions of Marketing Agreement No. 85, as amended, and Order No. 36, as amended (7 CFR Part 936), and the applicable provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (48 Stat. 31, as amended; 7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.), notice was given in the FEDERAL REGISTER on December 19, 1950 (15 F. R. 9074), that a referendum would be conducted among the producers who, during the current marketing season beginning on March 1, 1950 (which period was determined to be a representative period for the purpose of such referendum), had been engaged, in the State of California, in the production of Bartlett pears, plums, and Elberta peaches for shipment in fresh form to determine whether a majority of such producers favor the termination of the said amended marketing agreement and order as to any one or more of the fruits covered thereby.

Upon the basis of the results of the aforesaid referendum, which was conducted during the period January 20 to January 31, 1951, both dates inclusive, it is hereby found and determined that the termination of the amended marketing agreement and order, regulating the handling of fresh Bartlett pears, plums, and Elberta peaches grown in the State of California, is not favored by the requisite majority of such growers with respect to any of the fruits covered thereby.

Done at Washington, D. C., this 6th day of March 1951.

[SEAL] CHARLES F. BRANNAN,
Secretary of Agriculture.

CIVIL AERONAUTICS BOARD

[14 CFR, Parts 20, 22]

CONVENTION ON INTERNATIONAL CIVIL AVIATION; GLIDER AND FREE BALLOON PILOTS

NOTICE OF PROPOSED RULE MAKING

Pursuant to authority delegated by the Civil Aeronautics Board to the Bureau of Safety Regulation, notice is hereby given that the Bureau will propose to the Board amendments of Parts 20 and 22 of the Civil Air Regulations as hereinafter set forth.

Interested persons may participate in the making of the proposed rules by submitting such written data, views, or arguments as they may desire. Communications should be submitted to the Civil Aeronautics Board, attention Bureau of Safety Regulation, Washington 25, D. C. All communications received by March 26, 1951, will be considered by the Board before taking further action. Copies of such communications will be available after March 30, 1951, for examination by interested persons at the Docket Section of the Board, Room 5412, Commerce Building, Washington, D. C.

On March 22, 1950, the ICAO Council adopted Amendments 1 to 123 of Annex 1 to the Convention on International Civil Aviation, effective April 1, 1951. Amendments 65 and 66 prescribe new ICAO standards for private glider pilots and free balloon pilots. The new standards are essentially those of the Federation Aeronautique Internationale who applied them in international glider and free balloon meets. These standards were adopted by ICAO especially for their value in such international meets and because the Federation urged that only applicants licensed in accordance with international standards be authorized to participate in future international meets. The proposed amendments of Parts 20 and 22 are intended to make our standards uniform as far as practicable with those established under the Convention. The amendments required for such compliance appear to impose few additional burdens on applicants for these certificates. Moreover, under the proposed amendments, the certificates would be issued without operating limitations, so that qualified pilots may, consistent with safety, exercise their privileges in full.

Amendment 65 establishes standards for the issuance of flight certificates to private glider pilots. To comply with those standards, Part 20 of the currently effective Civil Air Regulations would need to be amended: (1) To raise the age minimum from 14 to 16 years, (2) to include among our knowledge requirements a knowledge of aeronautical charts, navigation or other instruments used in operating gliders, meteorology, theory of flight, and glider operating limitations, (3) to require 6 aero-tow flights as a part of our experience requirements, and (4) to require 3 hours in a glider suitable for cross-country flight. In all other respects, Part 20 currently complies with the principal ICAO standards in Amendment 65.

Amendment 66 of Annex 1 establishes standards for the issuance of flight certificates to free balloon pilots. To comply, or to make our requirements uniform, with those standards, Part 22 of our present regulations would need to be amended: (1) To reduce the age minimum from 18 to 17 years, and (2) to require 8 ascents of an average duration of two hours as part of our experience requirements. At present Part 22 requires 6 instruction flights of not less than one-hour duration each and a solo flight of the same duration. The proposed amendment requires 6 ascents under the supervision of a certificated free balloon pilot, 1 ascent in control to an altitude of 10,000 feet under such supervision, 2 night ascents of an average duration of two hours under such supervision, and 1 solo ascent. In all other respects, Part 22 currently complies with the principal ICAO standards in Amendment 66.

It is proposed to amend Parts 20 and 22 as follows:

1. By amending § 20.20 (b) to read as follows:

§ 20.20 Age. • • •

(b) Glider: 16 years.

2. By amending § 20.24 to read as follows:

§ 20.24 Aeronautical knowledge. Applicant for a powered aircraft rating shall have passed the written examination prescribed in § 43.53 (a) of this subchapter within the preceding 24 calendar months. An applicant for a glider rating shall demonstrate a knowledge of such portions of Part 60 of this subchapter as are pertinent to glider operations and of aeronautical charts, meteorology in relation to glider flights, navigation and other instruments used in the operation of gliders, theory of flight, and glider operating limitations.

3. By amending § 20.25 (b) to read as follows:

§ 20.25 Aeronautical experience. • • •

(b) Glider. Applicant for a glider rating shall have made at least 100 glider flights, or have acquired 10 hours of glider flight time including at least 50 glider flights. The total number of required flights shall include at least (1) 25 glider flights during each of which a 360° turn is made; (2) 6 aerotow flights, aggregating one hour, during which the applicant is the sole occupant of the towed glider; (3) 1 hour of flight instruction in the recovery from stalls entered from all normally anticipated flight attitudes; (4) 2 hours in the aggregate during which the applicant is the sole occupant of the glider; and (5) at least 3 hours in a glider suitable for cross-country flight.

4. By amending § 22.13 (a) to read as follows:

§ 22.13 Free balloon pilot certificate. • • •

(a) Age. Applicant shall be at least 17 years of age.

5. By amending § 22.13 (g) to read as follows:

§ 22.13 Free balloon pilot certificate. • • •

(g) Aeronautical experience. Applicant shall have made not less than 8 ascents of an average duration of 2 hours, including 6 ascents under the supervision of a certificated free balloon pilot, 1 ascent in control to an altitude of 10,000 feet under such supervision, 2 night ascents of an average duration of 2 hours each under such supervision, and 1 ascent as the sole occupant of the balloon.

These amendments are proposed under the authority of Title VI of the Civil Aeronautics Act of 1938, as amended. The proposed amendments may be changed in view of comments received in response to this notice of proposed rule making.

L. M., were withdrawn by the Secretary of the Interior on August 27, 1909, under Power Site Reserve No. 42, and conformed by "E" of June 21, 1948, Miscellaneous No. 1367370. All of sec. 1, T. 19 S., R. 16 E., was withdrawn on May 6, 1942, under the first form for reclamation purposes in connection with the Rattlesnake Reservoir Site.

No applications for the remainder of the described lands may be allowed under the homestead, desert-land, small tract, or any other nonmineral public land laws unless the land has already been classified as valuable or suitable for such application or shall be so classified upon consideration of an application.

According to the field notes and as shown by the plat, there is a spring of water designated Coyote Spring in the $SE\frac{1}{4}SW\frac{1}{4}$ sec. 34, T. 19 S., R. 15 E., S. L. M.

The legal subdivison containing springs and the lands within a quarter of a mile of such springs may be affected by the general withdrawal made by Executive order of April 17, 1926 (43 CFR 292.1), creating Public Water Reserve No. 107, but the question of whether this spring is of such size or value or so needed by the public as to bring the lands within the scope of the withdrawal is left for future determination.

At the hour and date specified above the said lands shall, subject to valid existing rights and the provisions of existing withdrawals, become subject to application, petition, location, or selection as follows:

(a) Ninety-one day period for preference-right filings. For a period of 91 days, commencing at the hour and on the day specified above, the public lands affected by this notice shall be subject only to (1) application under the homestead or the desert-land laws or the Small Tract Act of June 1, 1938, 52 Stat. 609 (43 U. S. C. 682a), as amended, by qualified veterans of World War II and other qualified persons entitled to preference under the act of September 27, 1944, 58 Stat. 747 (43 U. S. C. 279–284), as amended, subject to the requirements of applicable law, and (2) application under any applicable public-land law, based on prior existing valid settlement rights and preference rights conferred by existing laws or equitable claims subject to allowance and confirmation. Applications under subdivision (1) of this paragraph shall be subject to applications and claims of the classes described in subdivision (2) of this paragraph. All applications filed under this paragraph either at or before 10:00 a. m., on the 35th day after the date of this notice shall be treated as though filed simultaneously at that time. All applications filed under this paragraph after 10:00 a. m., on the said 35th day shall be considered in the order of filing.

(b) Date for non-preference-right filings. Commencing at 10:00 a. m., on the 126th day after the date of this notice, any lands remaining unappropriated shall become subject to such application, petition, location, selection, or other appropriation by the public generally as may be authorized by the public-land laws. All such applications filed either at or before 10:00 a. m., on the 126th day after the date of this notice, shall be treated as though filed simultaneously at the hour specified on such 126th day. All applications filed thereafter shall be considered in the order of filing.

A veteran shall accompany his application with a complete photostatic, or other copy (both sides), of his certificate of honorable discharge, or of an official document of his branch of the service which shows clearly his honorable discharge as defined in § 181.36 of Title 43 of the Code of Federal Regulations, or constitutes evidence of other facts upon which the claim for preference is based and which shows clearly the period of service. Other persons claiming credit for service of veterans must furnish like proof in support of their claims. Persons asserting preference rights, through settlement or otherwise, and those having equitable claims, shall accompany their applications by duly corroborated statements in support thereof, setting forth in detail all facts relevant to their claims.

Applications for these lands, which shall be filed in the Land and Survey Office, Salt Lake City, Utah, shall be acted upon in accordance with the regulations contained in § 295.8 of Title 43 of the Code of Federal Regulations and Part 296 of that title, to the extent that such regulations are applicable. Applications under the homestead laws shall be governed by the regulations contained in Parts 166 to 170, inclusive, of Title 43 of the Code of Federal Regulations, and applications under the desert-land laws and the said Small Tract Act of June 1, 1938, shall be governed by the regulations contained in Parts 232 and 257, respectively, of that title.

Inquiries concerning these lands shall be addressed to the Manager, Land and Survey Office, Salt Lake City, Utah.

WILLIAM ZIMMERMAN, Jr.,
Assistant Director.

[Misc. 21160]

ARIZONA

ORDER PROVIDING FOR THE OPENING OF PUBLIC LANDS RESTORED FROM THE SALT RIVER PROJECT

MARCH 2, 1951.

An order of the Bureau of Reclamation dated February 4, 1949 concurred in by the Director, Bureau of Land Management, February 17, 1949 revoked the Departmental Order of August 21, 1909 so far as it withdrew in the first form prescribed by Section 3 of the Reclamation Act of June 17, 1902, 32 Stat. 388, the following-described land in connection with the Salt River Project, Arizona, and provided that such revocation shall not affect the withdrawal of any other lands by said order or affect any other order withdrawing or reserving the lands described:

GILA AND SALT RIVER MERIDIAN

T. 1 N., R. 8 E.,
Sec. 11, E½ and E½NW¼, containing 400 acres.

The land is primarily suitable for grazing.

No applications for the land may be allowed under the homestead, small tract, desert-land, or any other nonmineral public-land laws, unless the land has already been classified as valuable or suitable for such type of application, or shall be so classified upon consideration of an application.

This order shall not otherwise become effective to change the status of such lands until 10:00 a. m. on the 35th day after the date of this order. At that time the said lands shall, subject to valid existing rights and the provisions of existing withdrawals, become subject to application, petition, location, and selection as follows:

(a) Ninety-one day period for preference-right filings. For a period of 91 days, commencing at the hour and on the day specified above, the public lands affected by this order shall be subject only to (1) application under the homestead or the desert-land laws or the Small Tract Act of June 1, 1938, 52 Stat. 609 (43 U. S. C. 682a), as amended, by qualified veterans of World War II and other qualified persons entitled to preference under the act of September 27, 1944, 58 Stat. 747 (43 U. S. C. 279–284), as amended, subject to the requirements of applicable law, and (2) application under any applicable public-land law, based on prior existing valid settlement rights and preference rights conferred by existing laws or equitable claims subject to allowance and confirmation. Applications under subdivision (1) of this paragraph shall be subject to applications and claims of the classes described in subdivision (2) of this paragraph. All applications filed under this paragraph either at or before 10:00 a. m. on the 35th day after the date of this order shall be treated as though filed simultaneously at that time. All applications filed under this paragraph after 10:00 a. m. on the said 35th day shall be considered in the order of filing.

(b) Date for non-preference-right filings. Commencing at 10:00 a. m. on the 126th day after the date of this order, any lands remaining unappropriated shall become subject to such application, petition, location, selection, or other appropriation by the public generally as may be authorized by the public-land laws. All such applications filed either at or before 10:00 a. m. on the 126th day after the date of this order, shall be treated as though filed simultaneously at the hour specified on such 126th day. All applications filed thereafter shall be considered in the order of filing.

A veteran shall accompany his application with a complete photostatic, or other copy (both sides), of his certificate of honorable discharge, or of an official document of his branch of the service which shows clearly his honorable discharge as defined in § 181.36 of Title 43 of the Code of Federal Regulations, or constitutes evidence of other facts upon which the claim for preference is based and which shows clearly the period of service. Other persons claiming credit for service of veterans must furnish like proof in support of their claims. Persons asserting preference rights, through settlement or otherwise, and those having equitable claims, shall accompany their applications by duly corroborated statements in support thereof, setting forth in detail all facts relevant to their claims.

Applications for these lands, which shall be filed in the Land and Survey Office, Phoenix, Arizona, shall be acted upon in accordance with the regulations contained in § 295.8 of Title 43 of the Code of Federal Regulations and Part 296 of that title, to the extent that such regulations are applicable. Applications under the homestead laws shall be governed by the regulations contained in Parts 166 to 170, inclusive, of Title 43 of the Code of Federal Regulations, and applications under the desert-land laws and the said Small Tract Act of June 1, 1938, shall be governed by the regulations contained in Parts 232 and 257, respectively, of that title.

Inquiries concerning these lands shall be addressed to the Manager, Land and Survey Office, Phoenix, Ariz.

WILLIAM ZIMMERMAN, Jr.,
Assistant Director.

UTAH

NOTICE OF FILING OF PLAT OF SURVEY

MARCH 2, 1951.

Notice is given that the plats of extension survey of the following described lands, accepted October 2, 1947, will be officially filed in the Land and Survey Office, Salt Lake City, Utah, effective at 10 a. m. on the 35th day after the date of this notice:

SALT LAKE MERIDIAN

T. 20 S., R. 13 E.,
All of secs. 1 to 4 inclusive;
All of secs. 10 to 13 inclusive;
All of secs. 23 to 26 inclusive;
All of secs. 35, 36.
T. 21 S., R. 14 E.,
Sec. 5, Lots 1 to 15 incl., S½NE¼, SW¼NW¼, W½SW¼;
Sec. 8, Lots 1, 2, 3, 4, W½W½;
Sec. 17, Lots 1, 2, 3, 4, W½W½;
Sec. 20, Lots 1, 2, 3, 4, W½W½;
Sec. 29, Lots 1 to 8 inclusive.

The areas, described aggregate 11,210.52 acres.

Available information indicates that the described lands are desert mountain lands.

All of sec. 20, NW¼, S½SW¼ sec. 29, T. 21 S., R. 14 E., were classified and included in Power Site Classification No. 91, Utah No. 14, by the Secretary of the Interior, April 7, 1925.

No applications for any of the lands described may be allowed under the homestead, desert-land, small tract, or any other non-mineral public land law unless the land has already been classified as valuable or suitable for such application or shall be so classified upon consideration of an application.

At the hour and date specified above the said land shall, subject to valid existing rights and the provisions of existing withdrawals, become subject to application, petition, location, or selection as follows:

(a) Ninety-one day period for preference-right filings. For a period of 91 days commencing at the hour and on the day specified above, the public lands affected by this notice shall be subject only to (1) application under the homestead or the desert-land laws or the Small Tract Act of June 1, 1938, 52 Stat. 609 (43 U. S. C. 682a), as amended, by qualified veterans of World War II and other qualified persons entitled to preference under the act of September 27, 1944, 58 Stat. 747 (43 U. S. C. 279–284), as amended, subject to the requirements of applicable law, and (2) application under any applicable public-land law, based on prior existing valid settlement rights and preference rights conferred by existing laws or equitable claims subject to allowance and confirmation. Applications under subdivision (1) of this paragraph shall be subject to applications and claims of the classes described in subdivision (2) of this paragraph. All applications filed under this paragraph either at or before 10:00 a. m. on the 35th day after the date of this notice shall be treated as though filed simultaneously at that time. All applications filed under this paragraph after 10:00 a. m. on the said 35th day shall be considered in the order of filing.

(b) Date for non-preference-right filings. Commencing at 10:00 a. m. on the 126th day after the date of this notice, any lands remaining unappropriated shall become subject to such application, petition, location, selection, or other appropriation by the public generally as may be authorized by the public-land laws. All such applications filed either at or before 10:00 a. m. on the 126th day after the date of this notice, shall be treated as though filed simultaneously at the hour specified on such 126th day. All applications filed thereafter shall be considered in the order of filing.

A veteran shall accompany his application with a complete photostatic, or other copy (both sides), of his certificate of honorable discharge, or of an official document of his branch of the service which shows clearly his honorable discharge as defined in § 181.36 of Title 43 of the Code of Federal Regulations, or constitutes evidence of other facts upon which the claim for preference is based and which shows clearly the period of service. Other persons claiming credit for service of veterans must furnish like proof in support of their claims. Persons asserting preference rights through settlement or otherwise, and those having equitable claims, shall accompany their applications by duly corroborated statements in support thereof, setting forth in detail all facts relevant to their claims.

Applications for these lands, which shall be filed in the Land and Survey Office, Salt Like City, Utah, shall be acted upon in accordance with the regulations contained in § 295.8 of Title 43 of the Code of Federal Regulations and Part 296 of that title, to the extent that such regulations are applicable. Applications under the homestead laws shall be governed by the regulations contained in Parts 166 to 170, inclusive, of Title 43 of the Code of Federal Regulations, and applications under the desert-land laws and the said Small Tract Act of June 1, 1938, shall be governed by the regulations contained in Parts 232 and 257, respectively, of that title.

Inquiries concerning these lands shall be addressed to the Manager, Land and Survey Office, Salt Lake City, Utah.

CALIFORNIA

CLASSIFICATION ORDER

MARCH 2, 1951.

1. Pursuant to the authority delegated to me by the Director, Bureau of Land Management, by Order No. 427 dated August 16, 1950, I hereby classify under the Small Tract Act of June 1, 1938 (52 Stat. 609), as amended July 14, 1945 (59 Stat. 467, 43 U. S. C. 682a), as hereinafter indicated, the following described land in the Los Angeles, California, land district, embracing approximately 2,760 acres.

CALIFORNIA SMALL TRACT CLASSIFICATION No. 262

For lease and sale for homesites only:

T. 6 N., R. 8 W., S. B. M.,
Sec. 1, N½N½;
Sec. 2, NW¼SE¼;
Sec. 3, N½NE¼;
Sec. 22, NW¼SE¼;
Sec. 30, E½ and SW¼;
Sec. 32, S¼NW¼;
Sec. 33, SW¼.
T. 7 N., R. 8 W., S. B. M.,
Sec. 11, NE¼, N½NW¼, SW¼NW¼, N½SE¼, SE¼SE¼;
Sec. 18, SW¼;
Sec. 19, N½, N½SW¼, SE¼;
Sec. 25, SE¼, S½SW¼.
T. 7 N., R. 9 W., S. B. M.,
Sec. 31, S½SW¼.
T. 8 N., R. 10 W., S. B. M.,
Sec. 23, W½SW¼.
T. 7 N., R. 11 W., S. B. M.,
Sec. 35, E½SE¼.
T. 10 N., R. 13 W., S. B. M.,
Sec. 14, NW¼.

Leases will not be issued for any of the above-described subdivisions that are irregular in size until supplemental plats have been prepared assigning tract numbers to such irregular areas.

The lands are situated in northern Los Angeles County, California, in an area known as the Mojave Desert. Being on the desert, there is very little rainfall, and the summers are very hot and the winters mild. All of the lands are within a reasonable distance of the Towns of Palmdale, Lancaster, and Mojave, California, all of which towns have the usual community services, such as churches, schools and stores.

2. As to applications regularly filed prior to 9 a. m., January 17, 1951, and are for the type of site for which the land is classified, this order shall become effective upon the date it is signed.

3. As to the land not covered by applications referred to in paragraph 2, this order shall not become effective to permit leasing under the Small Tract Act until 10 a. m., May 4, 1951. At that time such land shall, subject to valid existing rights, become subject to application as follows:

(a) Ninety-day preference period for qualified veterans of World War II from 10 a. m., May 4, 1951, to close of business on August 2, 1951.

(b) Advance period for veterans' simultaneous filings from 9 a. m., January 17, 1951, to 10 a. m., May 4, 1951.

4. Any of the land remaining unappropriated shall become subject to application under the Small Tract Act by the public generally, commencing at 10 a. m., August 3, 1951.

(a) Advance period for simultaneous nonpreference filings from 9 a. m., January 17, 1951, to 10 a. m., August 3, 1951.

5. Applications filed within the periods mentioned in paragraphs 3 (b) and 4 (a) will be treated as simultaneously filed.

A veteran shall accompany his application with a complete photostatic, or other copy (both sides), of his certificate of honorable discharge, or of an official document of his branch of the service which shows clearly his honorable discharge as defined in § 181.36 of Title 43 of the Code of Federal Regulations, or constitutes evidence of other facts upon which the claim for preference is based and which shows clearly the period of service. Other persons claiming credit for service of veterans must furnish like proof in support of their claims. Persons asserting preference rights, through settlement or otherwise, and those having equitable claims, shall accompany their application by duly corroborated statements in support thereof, setting forth in detail all facts relevant to their claims.

6. All of the lands will be leased in tracts of approximately 5 acres, each being approximately 330 by 660 feet, the longer dimension to extend north and south except in secs. 2, 3, and 11, T. 6 N., R. 8 W.; sec. 25, T. 7 N., R. 8 W.; sec. 23, T. 8 N., R. 10 W.; and sec. 35, T. 7 N., R. 11 W., S. B. M., where the tracts extend east and west.

7. Preference right leases referred to in paragraph 2 will be issued for the land described in the application irrespective of the direction of the tract, provided the tract conforms to or is made to conform to the area and the dimension specified in paragraph 6.

8. Where only one 5-acre tract in a 10-acre subdivision is embraced in a preference right application, an application for the remaining 5-acre tract extending in the same direction will be accepted in order to fill out the subdivision notwithstanding the direction specified in paragraph 6.

9. Leases will be for a period of three years at an annual rental of $5 payable for the entire lease period in advance of the issuance of the lease. Leases will contain an option to purchase clause at the appraised value of $100 per tract, application for which may be filed at or after the expiration of one year from date the lease is issued.

10. Tracts will be subject to all existing rights-of-way and to rights-of-way not exceeding 33 feet in width along or near the edges thereof for road purposes and public utilities. Such rights-of-way may be utilized by the Federal Government, or the State, county or municipality in which the tract is situated, or by any agency thereof. The rights-of-way may, in the discretion of the authorized officer of the Bureau of Land Management, be definitely located prior to the issuance of the patent. If not so located, they may be subject to location after patent is issued.

11. All inquiries relating to these lands should be addressed to the Manager, Land Office, Los Angeles, California.

L. T. HOFFMAN,
Regional Administrator.

OIL AND GAS OPERATIONS IN THE SUBMERGED COASTAL LANDS OF THE GULF OF MEXICO

This is a further supplement to part II of the notice issued by the Secretary of the Interior on December 11, 1950, concerning "Oil and Gas Operations in the Submerged Coastal Lands of the Gulf of Mexico" (15 F. R. 8835), as previously supplemented by the notice issued by the Secretary of the Interior on February 2, 1951 (16 F. R. 1203).

Persons conducting oil and gas operations in accordance with part II of the notice dated December 11, 1950, as supplemented by the notice dated February 2, 1951, are hereby authorized to continue such operations to and including May 8, 1951. This supplementary authorization is subject to the conditions prescribed in Part II.

This notice does not authorize (as the notices of December 11, 1950, and February 2, 1951, did not authorize) the drilling of, or production from, any wells the drilling of which had not been commenced on or before December 11, 1950.

OSCAR L. CHAPMAN,
Secretary of the Interior.

TONKAWA SALES CO.

DEPOSTING OF STOCKYARD

It has been ascertained that the Tonkawa Sales Company, Tonkawa, Oklahoma, originally posted on December 7, 1949, as being subject to the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921, as amended (7 U. S. C. 181 et seq.), no longer comes within the definition of a stockyard under said act for the reason that it no longer meets the area requirements. Therefore, notice is given to the owner of such stockyard and to the public that such stockyard is no longer subject to the provisions of said act.

Notice of public rule making has not preceded promulgation of the foregoing rule since it is found that the giving of such notice would prevent the due and timely administration of the Packers and Stockyards Act and would, therefore, be impractical. There is no legal warrant or justification for not deposting promptly a stockyard which no longer meets the area requirements of the act and is, therefore, no longer a stockyard within the definition contained in said act.

The foregoing rule is in the nature of a rule granting an exemption or relieving a restriction and, therefore, may be made effective in less than 30 days after publication thereof in the FEDERAL REGISTER. This notice shall become effective upon publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

Done at Washington, D. C., this 5th day of March 1951.

Director, Livestock Branch, Production and Marketing Administration.

SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION

E. F. HICKEY ET AL.

MEMORANDUM OPINION AND ORDER REVOKING REGISTRATIONS

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission, held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C., on the 2d day of March A. D. 1951.

In the matter of E. F. Hickey, c/o Young Men's Christian Association, 125 Northwest Second Street, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma; in the matter of Bob Higgins, Box 11, Wellston, Oklahoma; in the matter of Orville Lymon Likens, 706 Northwest Twenty-ninth Street, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma; in the matter of Frederick H. Savage, 730 Fifth Avenue, New York, New York; in the matter of James L. Simpson, 50 Broadway, New York, New York; in the matter of Louis R. Soresi, 308 West Forty-eighth Street, New York, New York; in the matter of Stanley & Company, 120 Wall Street, New York, New York; in the matter of John Tallton Walker, Washington-Youree Hotel, Shreveport, Louisiana; in the matter of William Herbert West, Valley Falls, Kansas; in the matter of Glen B. Young, Olpe, Kansas.

These are proceedings pursuant to section 15 (b) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 ("the act") to determine whether the registrants named above, each of whom is registered as broker and dealer or as dealer only, willfully violated section 17 (a) of the act and rule X-17A-5 thereunder, and, if so, whether it is in the public interest to revoke their registrations.[1]

The proceedings were instituted by separate notices and orders for hearing issued as to some of the above-named registrants on December 19, and to the others on December 22, 1950. On December 19 and December 26, 1950, copies of the notices and orders were sent by registered mail to the addresses last furnished to us by the registrants. These registered notices were returned to us by the Post Office Department with notations indicating that the registrants could not be found at the addresses given. None of the registrants appeared in person or through a representative on January 26, or January 29, 1951, the dates set for hearings.[2]

On November 28, 1942, we promulgated Rule X-17A-5 under section 17 (a) of the act, which provides, among other things, that every registered broker or dealer must file with this Commission a report of financial condition during each calendar year commencing with the year 1943. Promulgation of the rule was announced by publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER, by release to the press, and by distribution to persons on our mailing list.

The registrations of the registrants became effective prior to 1943, and have not been withdrawn, cancelled, revoked or suspended. Our records show that none of the registrants filed the required reports during any year from 1943 through 1949.

Upon review of the records in these proceedings we have concluded that each of the registrants violated section 17 (a) of the act and Rule X-17A-5 thereunder as a result of his failure to file such reports. We conclude also that such violations were willful within the meaning of section 15 (b).[3]

We conclude, on the basis of the foregoing, that it is necessary in the public interest to revoke the registration of each of the registrants. However, in view of the fact that our records do not show whether any of them actually received personal notice of the scheduled

[1] Section 15 (b) provides in part:
"The Commission shall, after appropriate notice and opportunity for hearing, by order • • • revoke the registration of any broker or dealer if it finds that such • • • revocation is in the public interest and that (1) such broker or dealer • • • (D) has willfully violated any provision • • • of this title, or of any rule or regulation thereunder."

[2] Our orders and notices instituting these proceedings provided that the same be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER not later than 15 days prior to January 26, or January 29, 1951. Pursuant to this provision the orders and notices were published in the FEDERAL REGISTER either on December 27, or December 30, 1950. 15 F. R. 250, 9338 and 15 F. R. 253, 9542-5.

hearings, and to avoid any possible prejudice to them, our order will provide that the revocation of registrations be without prejudice to a motion on the part of any registrant to reopen the proceedings and to seek, upon a proper showing, to set aside the order of revocation applicable to said registrant.[4]

Accordingly it is ordered, That the registrations of E. F. Hickey, Bob Higgins, Orville Lymon Likens, Frederick H. Savage, James L. Simpson, Louis R. Soresi, Stanley Peter Mulvey and James Sylvester Kelly, doing business as Stanley & Company, John Tallton Walker, William Herbert West, and Glen B. Young be, and they hereby are, revoked without prejudice to a motion by any of the said registrants to reopen the record in the proceeding and, upon a proper showing, to set aside the order of revocation applicable to said registrant.

By the Commission.

PUBLIC SERVICE CO. OF NEW HAMPSHIRE

NOTICE OF FILING

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C., on the 2d day of March A. D. 1951.

Notice is hereby given that Public Service Company of New Hampshire ("New Hampshire"), an operating utility company and a direct subsidiary of New England Public Service Company, a registered holding company which in turn is a subsidiary of Northern New England Company, also a registered holding company, has filed with the Commission pursuant to the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 a further amendment to its application under the first sentence of section 6 (b) of said act which, as previously amended, was granted by order of this Commission dated December 20, 1950. Holding Company Act Releases Nos. 10065 and 10301.

All interested parties are referred to said application, as amended, on file in the office of the Commission for a statement of the transactions therein proposed, which are summarized as follows:

The amendment proposes that the authorization granted New Hampshire by said order of December 20, 1950, with respect to the issuance or renewal of short-term notes, i. e., notes having a maturity of nine months or less, up to a maximum aggregate amount of $6,500,000 of short-term notes at any time outstanding, which expires on March 31, 1951, be extended to June 30, 1951. New Hampshire states that it now has outstanding short-term notes in the amount of $4,950,000, that it anticipates additional short-term borrowings of $500,000 in April and $1,250,000 in June 1951, and that it plans to issue and sell $3,000,000 principal amount of its First Mortgage Bonds in May 1951, the proceeds of which will be applied on the short-term notes then outstanding.

New Hampshire requests that the order of the Commission herein be made effective upon issuance.

Notice is further given that any interested person may, not later than March 21, 1951 at 5:30 p. m., e. s. t., request the Commission in writing that a hearing be held on such matter, stating the nature of his interest, the reason for such request, and the issues, if any, of fact or law proposed to be controverted; or he may request that he be notified if the Commission should order a hearing thereon. Any such request should be addressed: Secretary, Securities and Exchange Commission, 425 Second Street NW., Washington 25, D. C. At any time after said date said application, as amended, may be granted as provided in Rule U-23 of the rules and regulations promulgated under said act, or the Commission may exempt such transaction as provided in Rules U-20 and U-100 thereof.

By the Commission.

UTAH POWER & LIGHT CO. AND WESTERN COLORADO POWER CO.

NOTICE OF FILING

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission, held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C., on the 5th day of March A. D. 1951.

Notice is hereby given that Utah Power & Light Company ("Utah"), a registered holding company and its electric utility subsidiary, The Western Colorado Power Company ("Colorado"), have filed a joint application-declaration and an amendment thereto, pursuant to the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 and have designated sections 6, 7, 9, 10, and 12 (f) of the act and Rule U-45 of the rules and regulations promulgated thereunder, as applicable to the proposed transactions which are summarized as follows:

Colorado proposes to borrow from Utah from time to time during the year 1951 up to an aggregate amount of $600,000, such borrowings to be evidenced by promissory notes maturing eleven months after date of issuance, and bearing interest at the rate of 3½ percent per annum. Proceeds from the borrowings will be used in connection with Colorado's construction program.

Colorado also requests authority to refinance $1,000,000 principal amount of 3½ percent eleven-month notes issued to Utah during the year 1950, through the issuance of Colorado's 4 percent note maturing July 1, 1963.

Utah owns all of the outstanding securities of Colorado consisting of 125,000 shares of $20 par value common stock, $3,375,000 principal amount of 4 percent notes maturing July 1, 1963, and $1,000,000 principal amount of 3½ percent eleven month notes.

The application-declaration, as amended, requests that the Commission's order herein issue as promptly as may be practicable and that it become effective forthwith upon issuance:

Notice is further given that any interested person may, not later than March 19, 1951, at 5:30 p. m., e. s. t., request the Commission in writing that a hearing be held on such matter, stating the nature of his interest, the reasons for such request and the issues, if any, of fact or law raised by said application-declaration, as amended, which he desires to controvert, or may request that he be notified if the Commission should order a hearing thereon. Any such request should be addressed: Secretary, Securities and Exchange Commission, 425 Second Street, N. W., Washington 25, D. C. At any time after March 19, 1951 at 5:30 p. m., e. s. t., said application-declaration as filed, or as amended, may be granted and permitted to become effective as provided by Rule U-23 of the rules and regulations promulgated under the act, or the Commission may exempt such transactions as provided in Rule U-20 (a) and Rule U-100 thereof. All interested persons are referred to said application-declaration, as amended, which is on file with the Commission for a statement of the transactions therein proposed.

UNITED GAS IMPROVEMENT CO. ET AL.

NOTICE OF FILING

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission, held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C., on the 6th day of March A. D. 1951.

In the matter of the United Gas Improvement Company, Lancaster Gas Company, File No. 70-2580; in the matter of the United Gas Improvement Company, Consumers Gas Company; File No. 70-2581.

Notice is hereby given that joint declarations have been filed with this Commission, pursuant to the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("act"), by the United Gas Improvement Company ("UGI"), a registered holding company, and two of its public utility subsidiaries, Lancaster County Gas Company ("Lancaster") and Consumers Gas Company ("Consumers"), Declarants have designated section 12 of the act and Rule U-45 promulgated thereunder as applicable to the proposed transactions.

Notice is further given that any interested person may, not later than March 13, 1951, at 5:30 p. m., e. s. t., request the Commission in writing that a hearing be held on either or both of such matters, stating the reasons for such request, the nature of his interest and the issues of fact or law raised by said declarations which he desires to controvert, or may request that he be notified if the Commission should order a hearing thereon. Any such request should be addressed: Secretary, Securities and Exchange Commission, 425 Second Street NW., Washington 25, D. C. At any time after March 13, 1951, said declarations, as filed or as amended, may be permitted to become effective as provided in Rule U-23 of the rules and regulations promulgated under the act, or the Commission may exempt such transactions as provided in Rule U-20 (a) and Rule U-100 thereof.

All interested persons are referred to said declarations, which are on file in the offices of this Commission, for a statement of the transactions therein proposed, and which are summarized as follows:

UGI proposes to advance to Lancaster and to Consumers, on open book account from time to time on or before December 31, 1951, as Lancaster and Consumers may need funds, amounts not exceeding $250,000 and $900,000 respectively, bearing interest at the rate of 3¼ percent per annum.

The funds advanced to Lancaster will be used in part to finance its 1951 construction budget, to repay a $100,000 bank loan at maturity, and to repay an emergency loan owed to UGI in the amount of $50,000.

The funds advanced to Consumers will be used to meet a portion of the cost of its 1949-50-51 construction program, and to finance the cost of the conversion of customers' appliances to utilize a higher B. t. u. gas.

Declarants state that a program for the permanent financing of both companies is being delayed until they can establish a satisfactory period of earnings under operations utilizing natural gas, in order to complete the successful marketing of securities at a more favorable cost.

According to the declarants no State commission and no regulatory body, other than this Commission, has jurisdiction over the proposed transactions. No fees, commissions, or other remunerations are to be paid in connection with the proposed transactions.

Declarants request that the Commission issue an order by March 14, 1951, because of the immediate need of the funds by Lancaster and Consumers, and that said order become effective upon the issuance thereof.

By the Commission.

Secretary.

MIDDLE SOUTH UTILITIES, INC., AND ARKANSAS POWER & LIGHT CO.

NOTICE OF FILING

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C., on the 6th day of March A. D. 1951.

Notice is hereby given that Middle South Utilities, Inc. ("Middle South"), a registered holding company, and its electric utility subsidiary Arkansas Power & Light Company ("Arkansas"), have filed an application-declaration pursuant to the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935, particularly sections 6 (b), 7, and 12 (f) thereof, with respect to the following proposed transactions:

Arkansas has outstanding 2,420,000 shares of common stock of the par value of $12.50 per share, all of which are owned by Middle South. Arkansas proposes to issue and sell to Middle South, and Middle South proposes to acquire from time to time prior to June 1, 1951, an aggregate amount of 640,000 additional shares of the common stock of Arkansas at the par value thereof, or for an aggregate cash consideration of $8,000,000.

Arkansas proposes to amend its charter as promptly as practicable so as to increase its authorized shares of common stock from 3,000,000 shares to 5,000,000 shares. The adoption of this amendment will enable Arkansas to issue the full amount of shares proposed to be purchased by Middle South and will allow for the issuance of additional common stock subsequently without further authorization from the stockholders.

The funds proposed to be invested by Middle South will be derived from the proceeds of its proposed sale of common stock. The proceeds of the sale of common stock by Arkansas will be used in connection with its construction program.

Notice is further given that any interested person may, not later than March 15, 1951, at 5:30 p. m., e. s. t., request in writing that a hearing be held on such matter, stating the nature of his interest, the reasons for such request and the issues of fact or law, if any, raised by said application-declaration, which he desires to controvert, or may request that he be notified if the Commission should order a hearing thereon. Any such request should be addressed: Secretary, Securities and Exchange Commission, 425 Second Street NW., Washington 25, D. C. At any time after March 15, 1951, at 5:30 p. m., e. s. t., said application-declaration, as filed or as amended, may be granted and permitted to become effective as provided in Rule U-23 of the rules and regulations promulgated under said act, or the Commission may exempt such transactions as provided in Rule U-20 (a) and Rule U-100 thereof. All interested persons are referred to said application-declaration which is on file with this Commission for a statement of the transactions therein proposed.

By the Commission.

In re: Estate of Clarissa E. Le Breton, a/k/a Emile Clarissa Le Breton, deceased, and trust created pursuant to the will of Clarissa E. Le Breton by declaration of trust made by Wayne Pflueger pursuant to court order. File No. F-28-12981.

Under the authority of the Trading With the Enemy Act, as amended, Executive Order 9193, as amended, and Executive Order 9788, and pursuant to law, after investigation, it is hereby found:

1. That Martha Elizabeth Liesau and Wilhelm Karl Hermann Liesau, whose last known address is Germany, are residents of Germany and nationals of a designated enemy country (Germany);

2. That the domiciliary personal representatives, heirs, next of kin, legatees and distributees, names unknown, of Herbert Liesau, deceased, who there is reasonable cause to believe are residents of Germany, are nationals of a designated enemy country (Germany);

3. That all right, title, interest and claim of any kind or character whatsoever of the persons identified in subparagraphs 1 and 2 hereof and each of them, in and to and arising out of or under that certain declaration of trust by Wayne Pflueger pursuant to an order of the Circuit Court, First Judicial Circuit, Territory of Hawaii, entered January 2, 1935, is property payable or deliverable to or claimed by the aforesaid nationals of a designated enemy country (Germany);

4. That such property is in the process of administration by Wayne Pflueger, as trustee, acting under the judicial supervision of the Circuit Court, First Judicial Circuit, Territory of Hawaii;

and it is hereby determined:

5. That to the extent that the persons named in subparagraph 1 hereof and the domiciliary personal representatives, heirs, next of kin, legatees and distributees, names unknown, of Herbert Liesau, deceased, are not within a designated enemy country, the national interest of the United States requires that such persons be treated as nationals of a designated enemy country (Germany).

All determinations and all action required by law, including appropriate consultation and certification, having been made and taken, and, it being deemed necessary in the national interest,

There is hereby vested in the Attorney General of the United States the property described above, to be held, used, administered, liquidated, sold or otherwise dealt with in the interest of and for the benefit of the United States.

The terms "national" and "designated enemy country" as used herein shall have the meanings prescribed in section 10 of Executive Order 9193, as amended.

Executed at Washington, D. C., on February 28, 1951.

For the Attorney General.

UNION BANK OF SWITZERLAND

In re: Accounts maintained in the name of Union Bank of Switzerland, Vevey, Switzerland, and owned by persons whose names are unknown. F-63-139 (Vevey).

Under the authority of the Trading With the Enemy Act, as amended, Executive Orders 9193, as amended, 9788 and 9939, and pursuant to law, after investigation, it is hereby found:

1. That the property described as follows: All property, rights and interests in the accounts identified in Exhibit A attached hereto and by reference made a part hereof, together with

(a) Any other property, rights and interests which represent accumulations or accruals to, changes in form of, or substitutions for, any of the property, rights and interests in said identified accounts on October 2, 1950, and which are now held in other accounts being maintained as blocked or otherwise subject to the restrictions of Executive Order 8389, as amended, or regulations, rulings, orders or instructions issued thereunder, and

(b) Any and all rights in, to and under any securities (including, without limitation, bonds, coupons, mortgage participation certificates, shares of stock, scrip and warrants) and any and all declared and unpaid dividends on any shares of stock in any of said accounts, excepting from the foregoing, however, all lawful liens and setoffs of the respective institutions in the United States with whom the aforesaid accounts are maintained, is property within the United States;

2. That the property described in subparagraph 1 hereof is owned or controlled by, payable or deliverable to, held on behalf of or on account of, or owing to, or is evidence of ownership or control by persons, names unknown, who, if individuals, there is reasonable cause to believe are residents of a designated enemy country and which, if partnerships, associations, corporations, or other organizations, there is reasonable cause to believe are organized under the laws of a designated enemy country or on or since the effective date of Executive Order 8389, as amended, have had their principal places of business in a designated enemy country;

3. That the persons referred to in subparagraph 2 hereof are nationals of a designated enemy country;

and it is hereby determined:

4. That to the extent that the persons referred to in subparagraph 2 hereof are not within a designated enemy country, the national interest of the United States requires that such persons be treated as nationals of a designated enemy country.

All determinations and all action required by law, including appropriate consultation and certification, having been made and taken, and, it being deemed necessary in the national interest,

There is hereby vested in the Attorney General of the United States the property described above, to be held, used, administered, liquidated, sold or otherwise dealt with in the interest of and for the benefit of the United States.

The terms "national" and "designated enemy country" as used herein shall have the meanings prescribed in section 10 of Executive Order 9193, as amended, and the term "designated enemy country" has reference to Germany or Japan.

Executed at Washington, D. C., on February 28, 1951.

For the Attorney General.

TITLE 7—AGRICULTURE

Chapter I—Production and Marketing Administration (Standards, Inspections, Marketing Practices), Department of Agriculture

Subchapter C—Regulations and Standards Under the Form Products Inspection Act

PART 53—MEATS, PREPARED MEATS, AND MEAT PRODUCTS (GRADING, CERTIFICATION, AND STANDARDS)

REVISION OF OFFICIAL U. S. STANDARDS FOR GRADES OF VEAL AND CALF CARCASSES AND VEALERS AND SLAUGHTER CALVES

On January 30, 1951, a notice of rule making was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (16 F. R. 861) regarding the proposed revision of the official U. S. standards for grades of veal and calf carcasses (7 CFR 53.107 to 53.113, inclusive) and the proposed revision of the standards for grades of vealers and slaughter calves (U. S. D. A., P. M. A., Service and Regulatory Announcement No. 113), under sections 203 and 205 of the Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946 (7 U. S. C. 1622 and 1624) and the item for Market Inspection of Farm Products recurring in the annual appropriation acts for the Department of Agriculture and currently found in the Department of Agriculture Appropriation Act, 1951 (Chapter VI, Pub. Law 759, 81st Cong., 1 U. S. C. Sup. 414).

After due consideration of all relevant material furnished pursuant to the notice and pursuant to the statutory authorities cited above, the said standards are hereby revised to appear in 7 CFR, Part 53, as follows:

VEAL AND CALF CARCASSES

Sec.
53.107 Differentiation between veal and calf carcasses.
53.108 Classes of veal and calf carcasses.
53.109 Application of standards.
53.110 Specifications for official United States standards for grades of veal carcasses.
53.111 Specifications for official United States standards for grades of calf carcasses.

VEAL AND SLAUGHTER CALVES

53.120 Differentiation between vealers and calves.
53.121 Classes of vealers and calves.
53.122 Application of standards.
53.123 Specifications for official United States standards for grades of vealers.
53.124 Specifications for official United States standards for grades of slaughter calves.

AUTHORITY: §§ 53.107 to 53.124 issued under sec. 205, 60 Stat. 1090, Ch. VI, Pub. Law 759, 81st Cong.; 7 U. S. C. 1624. Interprets or applies sec. 203, 60 Stat. 1088; 7 U. S. C. 1624.

VEAL AND CALF CARCASSES

§ 53.107 Differentiation between veal and calf carcasses. Differentiation between veal and calf carcasses is made primarily on the basis of the color of the lean, although factors such as texture of lean, character of fat, size and color of the rib bones, and carcass weight are also considered. Typical veal carcasses have a grayish pink color of lean that is very smooth and velvety in texture. They also have a slightly soft, pliable character of fat and narrow, very red rib bones, and weigh less than 100 pounds. By contrast, typical calf carcasses have a distinctly reddish color of lean, a harder, flakier type of fat and somewhat wider rib bones with less pronounced evidences of red color, and weigh more than 150 pounds.

§ 53.108 Classes of veal and calf carcasses. Class determination is based on the apparent sex condition of the animal at time of slaughter. Hence, there are three classes of veal and calf carcasses—steers, heifers, and bulls. While recognition may sometimes be given to these different classes on the market, especially in the case of calf carcasses that are approaching beef in maturity, the differences between the various classes are so slight that accurate description of them is impractical. Therefore, the grade standards which follow are equally applicable to all classes of veal and calf carcasses.

§ 53.109 Application of standards. (a) Veal and calf carcasses are graded on a composite evaluation of three general grade factors—conformation, finish, and quality. These factors are concerned with the proportions of the various wholesale cuts in the carcass, the proportions of fat, lean, and bone in the carcass, and the quality of the flesh. Carcasses qualifying for any particular grade may vary with respect to their relative development of the three grade factors; and there will be carcasses which qualify for a particular grade, some of whose characteristics may be more nearly typical of another grade. Because it is impractical to describe the nearly limitless numbers of such recognizable combinations of characteristics, the standards for each grade describe only carcasses which have a relatively similar development of conformation, finish, and quality and which are also representative of the lower limit of each grade.

(b) The standards specify only one degree of fatness for each grade of veal and calf. However, this degree of fatness applies only to carcasses of average weight and maturity. In order to qualify for any particular grade, heavier, more mature carcasses are required to have a somewhat greater quantity of fat and lighter, younger carcasses somewhat less fat than that specified. Because of the greater variability in weight and maturity among calf carcasses, a somewhat greater variation in degree of fatness will be present within each grade of that class than will be present among carcasses of each grade of veal carcasses.

(c) While color of lean is of primary importance in differentiating between veal and calf carcasses, the range of colors within the various grades is slightly different. Very young veal usually has a very light grayish pink color of lean regardless of grade. As veal carcasses approach calf in development and maturity, the color of the lean becomes progressively more reddish. However, in the higher grades the color remains light and bright; whereas, in the lower grades the color may become progressively darker and duller. A similar variation in color is found among the various grades of calf.

§ 53.110 Specifications for official United States standards for grades of veal carcasses—(a) Prime. (1) A veal carcass possessing the minimum qualifications for Prime grade is superior in conformation, finish, and quality.

(2) In conformation it is blocky and compact and tends to be broad in proportion to its length. It tends to be thickly fleshed and has a rather plump, full, well-rounded appearance.

(3) Rounds tend to be thick and bulging. Loin and back tend to be full and plump. Shoulders and breasts tend to be thick.

(4) There is a thin covering of fat over the rump, loin, back, top of the shoulders, and over the inner walls of the chest and abdomen. There are slightly large deposits of fat in the breast, flanks, and crotch, and around the kidneys, the latter being completely covered. All exterior fat is smooth.

(5) The flesh is rather firm, fine textured and, in a cut surface, velvety to sight and touch. All bones are small in proportion to the size and weight of the carcass.

(b) Choice. (1) A veal carcass possessing the minimum qualifications for Choice grade is moderately blocky and compact and tends to be moderately broad in proportion to its length. It is slightly thick-fleshed and has a slightly plump appearance.

(2) Rounds are slightly thick and bulging. Loin and back tend to be moderately full and plump. Shoulders and breast are slightly thick.

(3) There is a very thin covering of fat over the loin and back and over the inner walls of the chest and abdomen. There are slightly small deposits of fat in the breast, flanks and crotch, and around the kidneys. All exterior fat is moderately smooth. The flesh is slightly firm and fine textured, and may be slightly moist to sight and touch. All bones are moderately small in proportion to the size and weight of the carcass.

(c) Good. (1) A veal carcass possessing the minimum qualifications for the Good grade tends to be slightly blocky and compact and tends to be slightly broad in proportion to its length. It tends to be slightly thin fleshed and has little or no evidence of plumpness.

(2) Loin, back and rounds are slightly thin and nearly flat. Shoulders and breasts tend to be slightly thin.

(3) There are very thin patches of fat over the loin and back and over the inner walls of the chest and abdomen. There are small deposits of fat in the breast, flanks, and crotch and around the kidneys. The flesh is moderately soft, and, in a cut surface, slightly moist to sight and touch. All bones are slightly large in proportion to the size and weight of the carcass.

(d) Commercial. (1) A veal carcass possessing the minimum qualifications for the Commercial grade is rough and rangy and is narrow in proportion to its length. It is thinly fleshed and has an empty, sunken, or hollowed-out appearance.

(2) Rounds are thin and tapering and slightly concave. Loin and back are depressed. Shoulders and breast are narrow and thin.

(3) There are extremely thin patches of fat over the back and loin and over a portion of the inner walls of the chest and abdomen. There are very small deposits of fat in the breast, flanks and crotch and around the kidneys, the latter being incompletely covered.

(4) The flesh is soft, and in a cut surface, moist to the touch. All bones are moderately large in proportion to the size and weight of the carcass.

(e) Utility. (1) A veal carcass possessing the minimum qualifications for the Utility grade is very rough and rangy and very narrow in proportion to its length. It is very thinly fleshed and has a very depressed or hollowed-out appearance.

(2) Rounds are very thin and tapering and moderately concave. Loin and back are very shallow and depressed. Shoulders and breast are very narrow and thin.

(3) There is no fat covering over the back, loin, or inner walls of the chest and abdomen. There are extremely small deposits of fat in the breast, flanks and crotch, and around the kidneys.

(4) The flesh is very soft, and, in a cut surface, very moist to the touch. All bones are large in proportion to the size and weight of the carcass.

(f) Cull. (1) A typical Cull grade veal carcass is extremely rough and rangy and extremely narrow in proportion to its length. It is extremely deficient in fleshing and has an extremely shallow, depressed, or hollowed-out appearance.

(2) Rounds are concave and extremely thin and tapering. Loin and back are extremely depressed. Shoulders and breast are extremely narrow and thin.

(3) There is no fat covering over any part of the exterior of the carcass and none on the inner walls of the chest and abdomen. There are no discernible fat deposits in the breast, flanks, or crotch, and only extremely small quantities around the kidneys.

(4) The flesh is very soft and watery. All bones are very large in proportion to the size and weight of the carcass.

§ 53.111 Specifications for official United States standards for grades of calf carcasses—(a) Prime. (1) A calf carcass possessing the minimum qualifications for the Prime grade is superior in conformation, finish, and quality.

(2) In conformation, it is blocky and compact and tends to be broad in proportion to its length. It is thickly fleshed and has a plump, full, well-rounded appearance.

(3) Rounds tend to be thick and bulging. Loin and back tend to be full and plump. Shoulders and breasts tend to be thick.

(4) There is a slightly thick covering of fat over the back and loin and a slightly thin fat covering over the rump and the top of the shoulders and over the inner walls of the chest and abdomen. There are moderately large deposits of fat in the breast, flanks and crotch, and around the kidneys, the latter being completely covered. All exterior fat is smooth and moderately firm.

(5) The flesh is firm, fine textured and, in a cut surface, velvety to sight and touch, and has a small amount of marbling. Calf carcasses which are approaching beef in maturity and development will have a moderate amount of marbling. All bones are small in proportion to the size and weight of the carcass.

(b) Choice. (1) A calf carcass possessing the minimum qualifications for the Choice grade tends to be moderately blocky and compact and tends to be moderately broad in proportion to its length. It tends to be moderately thick-fleshed and has a moderately plump appearance.

(2) Rounds tend to be moderately thick and bulging. Loin and back tend to be moderately full and plump. Shoulders and breast tend to be moderately thick.

(3) There is a moderately thin covering of fat over the loin and back and over the inner walls of the chest and abdomen and a very thin fat covering over the rump and tops of the shoulders. There are moderate deposits of fat in the breast, flanks, and crotch, and around the kidneys.

(4) The flesh tends to be moderately firm and fine textured, and, in a cut surface, may be slightly moist to sight and touch, and has traces of marbling. Calf carcasses approaching beef in maturity and development will have a slight amount of marbling. All bones are moderately small in proportion to the size and weight of the carcass.

(c) Good. (1) A calf carcass possessing the minimum qualifications for the Good grade tends to be slightly blocky and compact and tends to be slightly broad in proportion to its length. It tends to be only slightly thick fleshed and has a slightly plump appearance.

(2) Rounds are slightly thick but have little evidence of plumpness. Loin and back are very slightly full and plump. Shoulders and breast are slightly thick.

(3) There is a very thin covering of fat over the loin and back and over the inner walls of the chest and abdomen. There are very thin patches of fat over the rump and top of the shoulders. There are slightly small deposits of fat in the breast, flanks and crotch, and around the kidneys.

(4) The flesh is slightly soft and, in a cut surface, is somewhat moist to sight and touch. All bones are slightly large in proportion to the size and weight of the carcass.

(d) Commercial. (1) A calf carcass possessing the minimum qualifications for the Commercial grade is rough and rangy and narrow in proportion to its length. It tends to be thinly fleshed and has a depressed, sunken, or hollowed-out appearance.

(2) Rounds are thin and tapering and very slightly concave. Loins and back are slightly shallow and depressed. Shoulders and breasts are thin.

(3) There are very small, thin patches of fat on the back and loin and on the inner walls of the chest and abdomen. There are very small deposits of fat in the breast, flanks and crotch, and around the kidneys, the latter being only partially covered.

(4) The flesh is moderately soft, and, in a cut surface, is slightly watery in appearance. All bones are moderately large in proportion to the size and weight of the carcass.

(e) Utility. (1) A calf carcass possessing the minimum qualifications for the Utility grade is very rough and rangy and very narrow in proportion to its length. It is very thinly fleshed and has a very depressed, sunken, or hollowed-out appearance.

(2) Rounds are very thin and tapering and are moderately concave. Loin and back are very shallow and depressed. Shoulders and breast are very narrow and thin.

(3) The exterior surface of the carcass is practically devoid of fat covering and there is no discernible fat over the inner walls of the chest and abdomen. There are extremely small deposits of fat in the breast, flanks, and crotch, and around the kidneys.

(4) The flesh is very soft and very moist and watery. All bones are very large in proportion to the size and weight of the carcass.

(f) Cull. (1) A typical Cull grade calf carcass is extremely rough and rangy and extremely narrow in proportion to its length. It is extremely thinly fleshed and has an extremely depressed, sunken, or hollowed-out appearance.

(2) Rounds are extremely thin, tapering and concave. Loins and back are extremely shallow and depressed. Shoulders and breast are extremely narrow and thin.

(3) There is usually no visible exterior fat and the interior fat is limited to extremely small amounts in the crotch and around the kidneys.

(4) The flesh is very soft and watery. All bones are extremely large in proportion to the size and weight of the carcass.

VEALERS AND SLAUGHTER CALVES

§ 53.120 Differentiation between vealers and calves. Young bovine animals are segregated for market purposes as vealers or calves. The basis for differentiation between vealers and calves is made primarily on age and certain evidences of type of feeding. Typical vealers are less than 3 months of age and have subsisted largely on milk. Since vealers have consumed little, if any, roughages, they have the characteristic trimness of middle associated with limited paunch development. Calves are usually between 3 and 8 months of age, have subsisted partially or entirely on feeds other than milk for a substantial period of time, and have developed the heavier middles and physical characteristics associated with maturity beyond the vealer stage.

§ 53.121 Classes of vealers and calves. There are three classes of vealers and calves, based on sex condition—steers, heifers, and bulls. However, the influence of sex condition on physical characteristics is not sufficient to merit separate grade standards for each class.

§ 53.122 Application of standards—(a) Grade factors. Vealers and calves are graded largely on a composite evaluation of three general factors—conformation, finish, and quality. Conformation refers to the general body proportions of the animal and to the ratio of meat to bone. While primarily determined by the inherent muscular and skeletal system, it is also influenced by degree of fatness. Finish refers to the fatness of the animal. The quality, quantity, and distribution of finish are all closely associated with the palatability and quality of the meat. Quality in the slaughter animal refers to the refinement of hair, hide, and bone and to the smoothness and symmetry of the body. Quality is also closely associated with carcass yield and the proportion of meat to bone.

(b) General principles. (1) The determination of the carcass grade that the live animal will produce requires the exercising of well regulated judgment. Each animal presents a different combination of the grade determining factors. It is not unusual to find an animal of one grade that has some of the characteristics associated with another grade or grades. Therefore, a composite evaluation of the total inherent physical characteristics of the animal is essential for accuracy in determining grade.

(2) The descriptions of the physical characteristics of the grades of vealers and calves represent the lower limits of each grade. No attempt is made to describe the numerous combinations of grade factors which may meet the minimum requirements for a particular grade. Descriptions are limited largely to animals considered as typical of the lower limits of the grade.

(3) The grade descriptions of both vealers and calves apply to those of average age or maturity. In order to qualify for a specific grade, more mature animals should carry somewhat more finish, while very young animals may carry somewhat less finish than specified herein.

§ 53.123 Specifications for official United States standards for grades of vealers—(a) Prime. Vealers possessing the minimum qualifications for Prime grade are superior in conformation, quality, and finish. In conformation, Prime vealers tend to be low-set, compact, short of neck and body, and relatively thick fleshed. They are wide over the back, loin, and rump. Shoulders and hips are moderately neat and smoothly laid in. The twist is deep and full, and the rounds are thick and moderately plump. There is a slight fullness or plumpness evident over the crops, loin, and rump, which contributes to a rather well-rounded appearance. Prime vealers have a thin fat covering over the crops, back, loin, rump, and upper ribs. The brisket, rear flanks, and cod or udder show distinct evidences of fullness. Prime vealers exhibit evidences of high quality. The bones tend to be proportionately small, joints smooth, the hide moderately thin and pliable, and the body very trim, smooth, and symmetrical.

(b) Choice. Vealers possessing the minimum qualifications for Choice grade tend to be moderately low-set, short necked, and compact. They are slightly thick-fleshed and moderately wide over the back and loin. Shoulders and hips are usually moderately neat and smoothly laid in, with only a slight tendency toward prominence. The loin, rump, and rounds may appear almost flat, with little evidence of fullness. Choice vealers have a very thin fat covering over the back, loin, and upper ribs. The brisket, rear flanks, and cod or udder may show a very slight fullness. Choice vealers usually present a moderately refined appearance.

(c) Good. Vealers possessing the minimum qualifications for Good grade tend to be slightly compact and slightly wide of back and loin. The neck may be slightly long and thin. Good grade vealers tend to be slightly thin fleshed, and the loin, rump, and rounds are flat and may present a very slight sunken or hollowed-out appearance. The shoulders and hips are slightly prominent. The fat covering is very limited and is discernible only over portions of the back and loin. The brisket, rear flanks, and cod or udder may have small fat deposits but have no apparent fullness. Good grade vealers are usually moderately smooth and slightly refined in appearance.

(d) Commercial. Vealers possessing the minimum requirements for Commercial grade tend to be rangy, upstanding, long and thin of neck, narrow over the back, loin, and rump, and shallow in the twist. They are thin fleshed, and there is a distinctly sunken or hollowed-out appearance over the back, loin, and rounds. Hips and shoulders appear moderately prominent. There is an extremely thin fat covering over portions of the back and loin that is difficult to detect in the live animal. Such vealers may show the heavy bones, thick hide, prominent hips and shoulders associated with coarseness, or they may show the small bones, tight hide, and angularity denoting over-refinement.

(e) Utility. Vealers possessing the minimum requirements for the Utility grade may tend to be very rangy, angular, and long and thin of neck. They are very thinly fleshed, narrow over the back, loin, and rump, and shallow in the twist. Hips and shoulders are very prominent, and the crops, back, loin, rump, and round present a very sunken or hollowed-out appearance. Utility vealers show no visible evidence of any fat covering. Utility vealers tend to be of low quality. The bones and joints are usually proportionately large and the hide either thick or tight and inelastic.

(f) Cull. The typical Cull grade vealer appears extremely rangy, angular, long and thin necked, narrow and shallow bodied. Shoulders and hips are extremely prominent, and the crops, back, loin, rump, and round present an extremely sunken or hollowed-out appearance. The general appearance denotes low quality. The relative proportion of meat to bone is very low, joints appear large and coarse, and the body is very unsymmetrical.

§ 53.124 Specifications for official United States standards for grades of slaughter calves—(a) Prime. Calves possessing the minimum qualifications for Prime grade are superior in conformation, quality, and finish. In conformation, Prime calves tend to be low-set, compact, and short of neck and body and thick-fleshed. They are wide over the back, loin, and rump. Shoulders and hips are neat and smoothly laid in. The twist is deep and full and the rounds are thick and moderately plump. There is a fullness or plumpness evident over the crops, loin, and rump which contributes to a well-rounded appearance. Prime calves have a slightly thick fat covering over the crops, back, loin, rump, and upper ribs. The brisket, rear flanks, and cod or udder show a marked fullness. Prime calves exhibit evidences of high quality. The bones tend to be proportionately small, joints smooth, the hide moderately thin and pliable, and the body very trim, smooth, and symmetrical.

(b) Choice. Calves possessing the minimum qualifications for Choice grade tend to be moderately low-set, short-necked, and compact. They tend to be moderately thick-fleshed, and are moderately wide over the back and loin. Shoulders and hips are usually moderately neat and smoothly laid in. There is a slight fullness or plumpness over the crops, loin, rump, and rounds which contributes to a rather well-rounded appearance. Choice calves have a moderately thin fat covering over the back, loin, rump, and upper ribs. The brisket, rear flanks, and cod or udder are slightly full. Choice calves usually present a moderately refined appearance.

(c) Good. Calves possessing the minimum qualifications for Good grade tend to be slightly compact and slightly wide of back and loin. The neck may be slightly long and thin. Good grade calves tend to be only slightly thick-fleshed, and the loin, rump, and rounds may appear almost flat with little or no evidence of fullness. The shoulders and hips are usually moderately neat and smoothly laid in but may appear slightly prominent. There is a very thin fat covering over the back, loin, and upper ribs. The brisket, rear flanks, and cod or udder may show a very slight fullness. Good grade calves are usually moderately smooth and slightly refined in appearance.

(d) Commercial. Calves possessing the minimum requirements for Commercial grade tend to be rangy, upstanding, long and thin of neck, narrow over the back, loin, and rump, and shallow in the twist. They tend to be thinly fleshed, and there is a slightly sunken or hollowed-out appearance over the back, loin, and rounds. Hips and shoulders appear somewhat prominent. There is a very thin fat covering that is discernible only over portions of the back and loin. Such calves may show the heavy bones, thick hide, prominent hips and shoulders associated with coarseness; or they may show the small bones, tight hide, and angularity denoting over-refinement.

(e) Utility. Calves possessing the minimum requirements for the Utility grade tend to be very rangy, angular, and long and thin of neck. They tend to be very thinly fleshed, narrow over the back, loin, and rump, and shallow in the twist. Hips and shoulders are very prominent, and the crops, back, loin, rump, and round present a very sunken or hollowed-out appearance. There is an extremely thin fat covering over the back and loin that is difficult to detect in the live animal. Utility calves tend to be of low quality. The bones and joints are usually proportionately large, and the hide either thick or tight and inelastic.

(f) Cull. The typical Cull grade calf appears extremely rangy, angular, long and thin necked, narrow, and shallow bodied. Shoulders and hips are extremely prominent, and the crops, back, loin, rump, and round present an extremely sunken or hollowed-out appearance. The general appearance denotes low quality. The relative proportion of meat to bone is very low, joints appear large and coarse, and the body is very unsymmetrical.

This order brings the veal and calf and vealer and slaughter calf standards into full agreement with the revised standards for grades of carcass beef and slaughter cattle which became effective December 29, 1950, and December 30, 1950, respectively. It is desirable that these standards become effective immediately to facilitate trading by providing the basis for a uniform and similar application of comparable grades to the various segments of the bovine species. Accordingly good cause is found under section 4 of the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U. S. C. 1003) for issuance of this order effective less than 30 days after its publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

This order shall become effective immediately upon publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

Done at Washington, D. C., this 5th day of March 1951.

[SEAL] CHARLES F. BRANNAN,
Secretary of Agriculture.

Chapter IX—Production and Marketing Administration (Marketing Agreements and Orders), Department of Agriculture

[Orange Reg. 195]

PART 933—ORANGES, GRAPEFRUIT, AND TANGERINES GROWN IN FLORIDA

LIMITATION OF SHIPMENTS

§ 933.518 Orange Regulation 195—(a) Findings. (1) Pursuant to the marketing agreement, as amended, and Order No. 33, as amended (7 CFR Part 933), regulating the handling of oranges, grapefruit, and tangerines grown in the State of Florida, effective under the applicable provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended, and upon the basis of the recommendations of the committees established under the aforesaid amended marketing agreement and order, and upon other available information, it is hereby found that the limitation of shipments of oranges, as hereinafter provided, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act.

(2) It is hereby further found that it is impracticable and contrary to the public interest to give preliminary notice, engage in public rule making procedure, and postpone the effective date of this section until 30 days after publication thereof in the FEDERAL REGISTER (60 Stat. 237; 5 U. S. C. 1001 et seq.) because the time intervening between the date when information upon which this section is based became available and the time when this section must become effective in order to effectuate the declared policy of the act is insufficient; a reasonable time is permitted, under the circumstances, for preparation for such effective time; and good cause exists for making the provisions hereof effective not later than March 12, 1951. Shipments of oranges, grown in the State of Florida, have been subject to regulation by grades and sizes, pursuant to the amended marketing agreement and order, since September 11, 1950, and will so continue until March 12, 1951; the recommendation and supporting information for continued regulation subsequent to March 11 was promptly submitted to the Department after an open meeting of the Growers Administrative Committee on March 6; such meeting was held to consider recommendations for regulation, after giving due notice of such meeting, and interested persons were afforded an opportunity to submit their views at this meeting; the provisions of this section, including the effective time hereof, are identical with the aforesaid recommendation of the committee, and information concerning such provisions and effective time has been disseminated among handlers of such oranges; it is necessary, in order to effectuate the declared policy of the act, to make this section effective during the period hereinafter set forth so as to provide for the continued regulation of the handling of oranges; and compliance with this section will not require any special preparation on the part of persons subject thereto which cannot be completed by the effective time hereof.

(b) Order. (1) During the period beginning at 12:01 a. m., e. s. t., March 12, 1951, and ending at 12:01 a. m., e. s. t., April 9, 1951, no handler shall ship:

(i) Any oranges, except Temple oranges, grown in Regulation Area I which grade U. S. No. 2 Bright, U. S. No. 2, U. S. No. 2 Russet, U. S. No. 3, or lower than U. S. No. 3 grade;

(ii) Any oranges, except Temple oranges, grown in Regulation Area II which grade U. S. No. 2 Russet, U. S. No. 3, or lower than U. S. No. 3 grade;

(iii) Any oranges, except Temple oranges, grown in Regulation Area II which grade U. S. No. 2 or U. S. No. 2 Bright unless such oranges (a) are in the same container with oranges which grade at least U. S. No. 1 Russet and (b) are not in excess of 50 percent, by count, of the number of all oranges in such container;

(iv) Any oranges, except Temple oranges, grown in Regulation Area I or Regulation Area II which are of a size smaller than 2⅛₁₆ inches in diameter, measured midway at a right angle to a straight line running from the stem to the blossom end of the fruit, except that a tolerance of 20 percent, by count, of oranges smaller than such minimum size shall be permitted, which tolerance shall be applied in accordance with the provisions for the application of tolerances, specified in the revised United States Standards for Oranges (7 CFR 51.192): Provided, That in determining the percentage of oranges in any lot which are smaller than 2⅛₁₆ inches in diameter, such percentage shall be based only on those oranges in such lot which are of a size 2¹⁵⁄₁₆ inches in diameter and smaller; or

(v) Any Temple oranges, grown in Regulation Area I or Regulation Area II, which grade U. S. No. 2 Russet, U. S. No. 3, or lower than U. S. No. 3 grade.

(2) As used in this section, the terms "handler," "ship," "Regulation Area I," "Regulation Area II," and "Growers Administrative Committee" shall each have the same meaning as when used in said amended marketing agreement and order; and the terms "U. [Grapefruit Reg. 139]

PART 933—ORANGES, GRAPEFRUIT, AND TANGERINES GROWN IN FLORIDA

LIMITATION OF SHIPMENTS

§ 933.519 Grapefruit Regulation 139—(a) Findings. (1) Pursuant to the marketing agreement, as amended, and Order No. 33, as amended (7 CFR Part 933), regulating the handling of oranges, grapefruit, and tangerines grown in the State of Florida, effective under the applicable provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended, and upon the basis of the recommendations of the committees established under the aforesaid amended marketing agreement and order, and upon other available information, it is hereby found that the limitation of shipments of grapefruit, as hereinafter provided, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act.

(2) It is hereby further found that it is impracticable and contrary to the public interest to give preliminary notice, engage in public rule making procedure, and postpone the effective date of this section until 30 days after publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER (60 Stat. 237; 5 U. S. C. 1001 et seq.) because the time intervening between the date when information upon which this section is based became available and the time when this section must become effective in order to effectuate the declared policy of the act is insufficient; a reasonable time is permitted, under the circumstances, for preparation for such effective time; and good cause exists for making the provisions hereof effective not later than March 12, 1951. Shipments of grapefruit grown in the State of Florida, have been subject to regulation by grades and sizes, pursuant to the amended marketing agreement and order, since September 11, 1950, and will so continue until March 12, 1951; the recommendation and supporting information for continued regulation subsequent to March 11 was promptly submitted to the Department after an open meeting of the Growers Administrative Committee on March 6; such meeting was held to consider recommendations for regulation, after giving due notice of such meeting, and interested persons were afforded an opportunity to submit their views at this meeting; the provisions of this section, including the effective time thereof, are identical with the aforesaid recommendation of the committee, and information concerning such provisions and effective time has been disseminated among handlers of such grapefruit; it is necessary, in order to effectuate the declared policy of the act, to make this section effective during the period hereinafter set forth so as to provide for the continued regulation of the handling of grapefruit; and compliance with this section will not require any special preparation on the part of persons subject thereto which cannot be completed by the effective time hereof.

(b) Order. (1) During the period beginning at 12:01 a. m., e. s. t., March 12, 1951, and ending at 12:01 a. m., e. s. t., April 9, 1951, no handler shall ship:

(i) Any grapefruit of any variety, grown in Regulation Area I, which do not grade at least U. S. No. 2;

(ii) Any white seeded grapefruit, grown in Regulation Area I, which are of a size smaller than a size that will pack 70 grapefruit, packed in accordance with the requirements of a standard pack, in a standard nailed box;

(iii) Any pink seeded grapefruit, grown in Regulation Area I, which are of a size smaller than a size that will pack 80 grapefruit, packed in accordance with the requirements of a standard pack, in a standard nailed box;

(iv) Any seedless grapefruit, grown in Regulation Area I, which are of a size smaller than a size that will pack 126 grapefruit, packed in accordance with the requirements of a standard pack, in a standard nailed box;

(v) Any grapefruit of any variety, grown in Regulation Area II, which grade U. S. No. 3 or lower than U. S. No. 3 Grade;

(vi) Any white seeded grapefruit, grown in Regulation Area II, which grade U. S. No. 2, U. S. No. 2 Bright, or U. S. No. 2 Russet, unless such grapefruit are of a size not smaller than a size that will pack 70 grapefruit, packed in accordance with the requirements of a standard pack, in a standard nailed box;

(vii) Any white seeded grapefruit, grown in Regulation Area II, which grade at least U. S. No. 1 Russet, unless such grapefruit are not smaller than a size that will pack 80 grapefruit, packed in accordance with the requirements of a standard pack, in a standard nailed box;

(viii) Any pink seeded grapefruit, grown in Regulation Area II, which do not grade at least U. S. No. 2 Russet and are of a size not smaller than a size that will pack 80 grapefruit, packed in accordance with the requirements of a standard pack, in a standard nailed box; or

(ix) Any seedless grapefruit, grown in Regulation Area II, which do not grade at least U. S. No. 2 Russet and are of a size not smaller than a size that will pack 126 grapefruit, packed in accordance with the requirements of a standard pack, in a standard nailed box.

(2) As used in this section, "Regulation Area I," "Regulation Area II," "handler," "variety," "ship," and "Growers Administrative Committee," shall have the same meaning as when used in said amended marketing agreement and order; and "U. S. No. 1 Russet," "U. S. No. 2," "U. S. No. 2 Bright," "U. S. No. 2 Russet," "U. S. No. 3," "standard pack," and "standard nailed box" shall have the same meaning as when used in the revised United States Standards for Grapefruit (7 CFR 51.191).

[Tangerine Reg. 110]

PART 933—ORANGES, GRAPEFRUIT, AND TANGERINES GROWN IN FLORIDA

LIMITATION OF SHIPMENTS

§ 933.520 Tangerine Regulation 110—(a) Findings. (1) Pursuant to the marketing agreement, as amended, and Order No. 33, as amended (7 CFR Part 933), regulating the handling of oranges, grapefruit, and tangerines grown in the State of Florida, effective under the applicable provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended, and upon the basis of the recommendations of the committees established under the aforesaid amended marketing agreement and order, and upon other available information, it is hereby found that the limitation of shipments of tangerines, as hereinafter provided, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act.

(2) It is hereby further found that it is impracticable and contrary to the public interest to give preliminary notice, engage in public rule making procedure, and postpone the effective date of this section until 30 days after publication thereof in the FEDERAL REGISTER (60 Stat. 237; 5 U. S. C. 1001 et seq.) because the time intervening between the date when information upon which this section is based became available and the time when this section must become effective in order to effectuate the declared policy of the act is insufficient; a reasonable time is permitted, under the circumstances, for preparation for such effective time; and good cause exists for making the provisions hereof effective not later than March 12, 1951. Shipments of tangerines, grown in the State of Florida, that are of a size smaller than the size that will pack 246 tangerines, packed in accordance with the requirements of a standard pack, in a half-standard box (inside dimensions 9½ x 9½ x 19⅛ inches; capacity 1,726 cubic inches), are currently subject to regulation by grades and sizes, pursuant to the amended marketing agreement and order, since October 23, 1950, and will so continue until March 12, 1951; the recommendation and supporting information for continued regulation subsequent to March 11 was promptly submitted to the Department after an open meeting of the Growers Administrative Committee on March 6; such meeting was held to consider recommendations for regulation, after giving due notice of such meeting, and interested persons were afforded an opportunity to submit their views at this meeting; the provisions of this section, including the effective time thereof, are identical with the aforesaid recommendation of the committee, and information concerning such provisions and effective time has been disseminated among handlers of such tangerines; it is necessary, in order to effectuate the declared policy of the act, to make this section effective during the period hereinafter set forth so as to provide for the continued regulation of the handling of tangerines; and compliance with this section will not require any special preparation on the part of persons subject thereto which cannot be completed by the effective time hereof.

(b) Order. (1) During the period beginning at 12:01 a. m., e. s. t., March 12, 1951, and ending at 12:01 a. m., e. s. t., July 31, 1951, no handler shall ship:

(i) Any tangerines, grown in the State of Florida, that do not grade at least U. S. No. 2; or

(ii) Any tangerines, grown in the State of Florida, that are of a size smaller than the size that will pack 246 tangerines, packed in accordance with the requirements of a standard pack, in a half-standard box (inside dimensions 9½ x 9½ x 19⅛ inches; capacity 1,726 cubic inches).

(2) As used in this section, "handler," "ship," and "Growers Administrative Committee" shall have the same meaning as when used in said amended marketing agreement and order; and "U. S. No. 2," and "standard pack" shall have the same meaning as when used in the United States Standards for Tangerines (7 CFR 51.416).

[Lemon Reg. 372, Amdt. 1]

PART 953—LEMONS GROWN IN CALIFORNIA AND ARIZONA

LIMITATION OF SHIPMENTS

a. Findings. 1. Pursuant to the marketing agreement, as amended, and Order No. 53, as amended (7 CFR Part 953; 14 F. R. 3612), regulating the handling of lemons grown in the State of California or in the State of Arizona, effective under the applicable provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended, and upon the basis of the recommendation and information submitted by the Lemon Administrative Committee, established under the said amended marketing agreement and order, and upon other available information, it is hereby found that the limitation of the quantity of such lemons which may be handled, as hereinafter provided, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act.

2. It is hereby further found that it is impracticable and contrary to the public interest to give preliminary notice and engage in public rule making procedure (60 Stat. 237; 5 U. S. C. 1001 et seq.) because the time intervening between the date when information upon which this amendment is based became available and the time when this amendment must become effective in order to effectuate the declared policy of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended, is insufficient; and this amendment relieves restrictions on the handling of lemons grown in the State of California or in the State of Arizona.

b. Order, as amended. The provisions in paragraph (b) (1) (ii) of § 953.479 (Lemon Regulation 372, 16 F. R. 2021) are hereby amended to read as follows:

(ii) District 2: 323 carloads.

PART 953—LEMONS GROWN IN CALIFORNIA AND ARIZONA

LIMITATION OF SHIPMENTS

§ 953.480 Lemon Regulation 373—(a) Findings. (1) Pursuant to the marketing agreement, as amended, and Order No. 53, as amended (7 CFR Part 953; 14 F. R. 3612), regulating the handling of lemons grown in the State of California or in the State of Arizona, effective under the applicable provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.), and upon the basis of the recommendation and information submitted by the Lemon Administrative Committee, established under the said amended marketing agreement and order, and upon other available information, it is hereby found that the limitation of the quantity of such lemons which may be handled, as hereinafter provided, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act.

(2) It is hereby further found that it is impracticable and contrary to the public interest to give preliminary notice, engage in public rule making procedure, and postpone the effective date of this section until 30 days after publication thereof in the FEDERAL REGISTER (60 Stat. 237; 5 U. S. C. 1001 et seq. because the time intervening between the date when information upon which this section is based became available and the time when this section must become effective in order to effectuate the declared policy of the act is insufficient, and a reasonable time is permitted, under the circumstances, for preparation for such effective time; and good cause exists for making the provisions of this section effective as hereinafter set forth. Shipments of lemons, grown in the State of California or in the State of Arizona, are currently subject to regulation pursuant to said amended marketing agreement and order; the recommendation and supporting information for regulation during the period specified herein was promptly submitted to the Department after an open meeting of the Lemon Administrative Committee on March 7, 1951, such meeting was held, after giving due notice thereof to consider recommendations for regulation, and interested persons were afforded an opportunity to submit their views at this meeting; the provisions of this section, including its effective time, are identical with the aforesaid recommendation of the committee, and information concerning such provisions and effective time has been disseminated among handlers of such lemons; it is necessary, in order to effectuate the declared policy of the act, to make this section effective during the period hereinafter specified; and compliance with this section will not require any special preparation on the part of persons subject thereto which cannot be completed by the effective time thereof.

(b) Order. (1) The quantity of lemons grown in the State of California or in the State of Arizona which may be handled during the period beginning at 12:01 a. m., P. s. t., March 11, 1951, and ending at 12:01 a. m., P. s. t., March 18, 1951, is hereby fixed as follows:

(i) District 1: 1 carload;

(ii) District 2: 324 carloads;

(iii) District 3: Unlimited movement.

(2) The prorate base of each handler who has made application therefor, as provided in the said amended marketing agreement and order, is hereby fixed in accordance with the prorate base schedule which is attached hereto and made a part hereof by this reference.

(3) As used in this section, "handled," "handler," "carloads," "prorate base," "District 1," "District 2," and "District 3," shall have the same meaning as when used in the said amended marketing agreement and order.

[Orange Reg. 362]

PART 966—ORANGES GROWN IN CALIFORNIA OR IN ARIZONA

LIMITATION OF SHIPMENTS

§ 966.508 Orange Regulation 362—(a) Findings. (1) Pursuant to the provisions of Order No. 66, as amended (7 CFR Part 966; 14 F. R. 3614), regulating the handling of oranges grown in the State of California or in the State of Arizona, effective under the applicable provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.), and upon the basis of the recommendation and information submitted by the Orange Administrative Committee, established under the said amended order, and upon other available information, it is hereby found that the limitation of the quantity of such oranges which may be handled, as hereinafter provided, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act.

(2) It is hereby further found that it is impracticable and contrary to the public interest to give preliminary notice, engage in public rule making procedure, and postpone the effective date of this section until 30 days after publication thereof in the FEDERAL REGISTER (69 Stat. 237; 5 U. S. C. 1001 et seq.) because the time intervening between the date when information upon which this section is based became available and the time when this section must become effective in order to effectuate the declared policy of the act is insufficient, and a reasonable time is permitted, under the circumstances, for preparation for such effective time; and good cause exists for making the provisions hereof effective as hereinafter set forth. Shipments of oranges, grown in the State of California or in the State of Arizona, are currently subject to regulation pursuant to said amended order; the recommendation and supporting information for regulation during the period specified herein was promptly submitted to the Department after an open meeting of the Orange Administrative Committee on March 8, 1951, such meeting was held, after giving due notice thereof to consider recommendations for regulation, and interested persons were afforded an opportunity to submit their views at this meeting; the provisions of this section, including its effective time, are identical with the aforesaid recommendation of the committee, and information concerning such provisions and effective time has been disseminated among handlers of such oranges; it is necessary, in order to effectuate the declared policy of the act, to make this section effective during the period hereinafter specified; and compliance with this section will not require any special preparation on the part of persons subject thereto which cannot be completed by the effective time thereof.

(b) Order. (1) The quantity of oranges grown in the State of California or in the State of Arizona which may be handled during the period beginning 12:01 a. m., P. s. t., March 11, 1951, and ending at 12:01 a. m., P. s. t., March 18, 1951, is hereby fixed as follows:

(i) Valencia oranges. (a) Prorate District No. 1: No movement;

(b) Prorate District No. 2: No movement;

(c) Prorate District No. 3: 80 carloads;

(d) Prorate District No. 4: No movement.

(b) Prorate District No. 2: 1200 carloads;

(c) Prorate District No. 3: Unlimited movement;

(d) Prorate District No. 4: Unlimited movement.

(2) The prorate base of each handler who has made application therefor, as provided in the said amended order, is hereby fixed in accordance with the prorate base schedule which is attached hereto and made a part hereof by this reference.

(3) As used in this section "handled," "handler," "varieties," "carloads," and "prorate base" shall have the same meaning as when used in the said amended order; and the terms "Prorate District No. 1," "Prorate District No. 2," "Prorate District No. 3," and "Prorate District No. 4" shall each have the same meaning as given to the respective terms in § 966.107, as amended (15 F. R. 8712), of the current rules and regulations (7 CFR 966.103 et seq.), as amended (15 F. R. 8712).

TITLE 14—CIVIL AVIATION

Chapter I—Civil Aeronautics Board

Subchapter B—Economic Regulations

[Regs., Serial No. ER-169]

PART 291—CLASSIFICATION AND EXEMPTION OF IRREGULAR AIR CARRIERS

OPERATIONAL LIMITATIONS ON EXERCISE OF TEMPORARY EXEMPTION BY LARGE IRREGULAR CARRIERS

Adopted by the Civil Aeronautics Board at its office in Washington, D. C., on the 2d day of March 1951.

By the Civil Aeronautics Act of 1938 the Congress established a policy of limited competition in air transportation and provided that no air carrier should engage in any air transportation without a certificate issued by the Board after a full public hearing in which the applicant proved that the service requested was required by the public convenience and necessity and that he was fit, willing, and able to perform it. By section 416 (b) of the act the Board is empowered, however, to exempt an air carrier or class of air carriers from this requirement among others if it finds that the enforcement of such requirement is or would be an undue burden on the air carrier or class of air carriers concerned by reason of the limited extent of, or unusual circumstances affecting, the operation of such air carrier and that the enforcement of such requirement is not in the public interest.

Acting pursuant to the exemption authority referred to above, the Board on May 7, 1947, exempted a certain class of air carrier conducting irregular operations and employing aircraft with a gross weight in excess of 10,000 (later amended to 12,500) pounds for any one unit from the requirement of holding a certificate of public convenience and necessity. However the basic limitation upon frequency of operations which had been in force since 1938 was retained although it was stated in more precise form, and the carriers were made subject to more of the regulatory provisions of Title IV of the act.

The exemption of this class of carriers, known as the large irregular carriers, was terminated by action of the Board under date of April 13, 1949. Although the blanket authority to these carriers as a class was terminated on that date, the Board's order ending the exemption contemplated that the majority of the carriers comprising the class would file applications for individual exemptions. In order to provide interim operating authority to conduct truly irregular services during the time such applications were being considered, the Board's regulations as amended at that time provided for the continuation of the earlier authority under section 291 in those cases where application for an individual exemption had been filed prior to June 20, 1949, until such time as the Board acted on the application concerned.

On May 25, 1950, the Board issued its opinion setting forth the policy to be followed in disposing of the applications of the large irregular carriers for individual exemption which were filed pursuant to § 291.16 of the Economic Regulations. On the same date the Board issued several orders disposing of certain carriers' applications. In order to assure compliance with our regulations and to prevent operations exceeding those authorized, these orders included specific conditions and restrictions which were not present in the earlier exemption authority, and since that date similar conditions and restrictions have been inserted in the individual exemptions granted to other carriers. It is expected that, subject to variations in individual cases, similar conditions will be included in all further individual exemptions which may be granted to any of the remaining large irregular carriers whose applications have not yet been processed.

Thus the interim authority granted by the provisions of § 291.16 of the Economic Regulations to large irregular carriers whose cases have not been processed is at variance with the standard terms and conditions contained in the individual exemption orders issued to carriers of essentially the same class. In order to cure this inequality and to set forth specifically the exact limitations of the operational authority conferred upon large irregular carriers under § 291.16, the Board is promulgating this regulation.

It should be noted that the purpose of the authorization conferred herein, as in all prior exemption regulations dealing with this class of carrier, is to permit the performance of services supplementary and complementary to those performed by carriers holding certificates of public convenience and necessity, but no more. It is the Board's opinion that the number of flights permitted hereunder will adequately take care of the demand for such supplementary service whether provided in common carriage or by way of private carriage for hire. While the Board has no direct economic control over noncommon carriage or the number of flights performed therein, and does not by this section purport to regulate such carriage, we believe that the amount of supplementary common carrier service which is in the public interest and which should be authorized herein can be fixed only after the service, if any, performed by the carrier in other carriage for hire has been taken into account. Consequently, while an aircraft operator who devotes himself exclusively to a bona fide noncommon carrier operation may perform as many flights as he wishes, he may not enjoy the benefits of this exemption unless the total of all flights performed for compensation or hire are within the maximum provided for herein. An exception to this restriction in the case of contract operations performed for the Defense Forces is being issued by separate exemption order simultaneously herewith.

Interested persons have been afforded an opportunity to participate in the making of this rule and to present oral argument before the Board, and due consideration has been given to all relevant matter submitted and arguments presented.

In consideration of the foregoing the Board hereby amends Part 291 of the Economic Regulations effective April 6, 1951, by adding a new § 291.27 to read as follows:

§ 291.27 Large irregular carriers; conditions on operating authority; extent of operations. (a) As an express condition on the operating authority granted by this Part and the letters of registration issued hereunder, no large irregular carrier shall engage in flights for compensation or hire, whether such flights are regarded by the carrier as common carriage or noncommon carriage:

(1) In excess of a total of three (3) flights in the same direction during any period of four successive calendar weeks between the following points:

(i) New York and Miami,
(ii) New York and Los Angeles,
(iii) New York and San Francisco,
(iv) New York and Chicago,
(v) New York and Detroit,
(vi) Los Angeles and San Francisco,
(vii) Chicago and Los Angeles,
(viii) Chicago and San Francisco,
(ix) Chicago and Seattle,
(x) Chicago and Washington, and
(xi) Chicago and Miami,

(2) In excess of a total of eight (8) flights in the same direction during any period of four successive calendar weeks between any two points other than those specified in subparagraph (1) of this paragraph,

(3) Between any two points in the same direction on the same day of two or more successive calendar weeks,

(4) In excess of a total of three (3) flights between any two points in the same direction during any period of two successive calendar weeks unless such period is followed by a break of at least one calendar week during which no flights are operated between such points,

(5) Which are so arranged as to result in the observance of breaks required by subparagraph (4) of this paragraph at regularly recurring intervals, or

(6) Which are so arranged as to result in any uniform pattern or normal consistency of operations between any two points.

(b) Notwithstanding the provisions of § 291.1 (b), the term "point" as used in this section shall mean any city or any airport or place where aircraft may be landed or taken off, including the area within a 50-mile radius of such city, airport, or place.

The following statement of policy is issued:

§ 291.51 Statement of policy regarding the role of the large irregular carrier. (a) The role of the Large Irregular Carrier in the air transportation industry is two-fold—innovation and supplemental service. Their role does not include the performance of route-type services. Such services can and should be provided only upon due application and public notice and hearing in accordance with the certification requirements laid down in the Civil Aeronautics Act. Essentially, this role of the Large Irregular Carrier can best be fulfilled through the performance of an on-demand, charter-type service, frequently but not necessarily in combination with other aviation activities.

(b) It is important to the air transportation industry that there should exist carriers with aircraft, personnel, and facilities available to fill the unpredictable demands which can not be met by the certificated air carriers who must provide adequate and regular air service to the communities they have been authorized to serve. Since they are free from this requirement of rendering adequate service to specified points, irregular carriers are in a position to seek out new fields of exploitation, thus broadening the area of service of the air transportation industry. In the present period of national emergency, however, the role of innovation is subordinate, since great demands have arisen for the performance of special charter services for the Department of Defense and for groups of servicemen on furlough. There is every indication that the need for such services will increase, perhaps to a point where the combined efforts of certificated and irregular air carriers will not meet the demand.

(c) The number and size of carriers that can profitably engage in irregular air services are matters for economic forces to determine. In consequence, the field should be left open to newcomers, but in place of the blanket exemption formerly granted certain operators of nonscheduled air services will be substituted a system of individual exemptions issued only after a careful screening of the individual applicants to determine whether they have made a clear and convincing showing of special circumstances justifying the exemption requested, and of their willingness and ability to conform to the requirements of the act and of the Board's regulations.

(d) To write a regulation limiting the large irregulars to a charter-type service is a peculiarly difficult task because of the economic factors which tempt them to utilize the many devices for engaging in route-type services without following the pattern for certification required by the act. The experience of the past three years has provided abundant evidence of this fact. The regulation must therefore be drawn in terms which define precisely the boundaries beyond which the irregular air carriers may not go. Draft Release 43 is such a regulation, setting exact numerical limits upon the number of flights which may be performed by a carrier in one month between any two points, and prescribing definite standards of irregularity. The purpose of this draft regulation is primarily to encourage the Large Irregular Carriers to direct their energies into the charter type activities which they are exempted to perform, for our information shows that carriers performing such services would rarely if ever be hampered in their operations by reason of the restrictions proposed in Draft Release 43. It is only because experience has demonstrated the impracticability of any other form of regulation that it must be drawn in the form of a statement of prohibitions.

(e) Draft Release 43 is therefore being promulgated as an amendment to Part 291 of the Economic Regulations of the Board. However, in one respect the regulation will vary from the Draft Release. Included among the route segments over which a Large Irregular Carrier might conduct not more than three flights a month were New York-Puerto Rico and Miami-Puerto Rico. Because the Territory of Puerto Rico, like the other territories, has special needs for air transportation to and from the mainland, that special restriction will be removed with respect to Puerto Rico, so that it will be on the same basis as the other territories, and under the regulation, any Large Irregular Carrier may provide up to eight trips in four weeks so long as the flights conform to the standards of irregularity.

(f) The continued existence of temptations to engage in route-type services will mean that the Board must act promptly against the irregular air carriers that directly or indirectly subvert the purpose of the regulation by engaging in such activities. The present program for disposing of the applications for individual exemptions will therefore be pushed as rapidly as possible. Applications of carriers that have in the past, despite official warnings, engaged primarily in route-type services will be denied.

(g) The relationship of the Large Irregular Carriers to the present national emergency requires special attention. The policy of the Department of Defense is to deal with carriers at the various bases through associations of carriers rather than directly with the individual carrier. The lack of any such approved association of irregular air carriers has to some extent precluded full use being made of their services by the Department of Defense and by groups of servicemen. We therefore are inclined to view favorably any efforts of the Large Irregular Carriers to form themselves into a reputable association, or associations, in order to eliminate this difficulty. For our own part, for a period of six months we shall exempt all of the irregular air carriers with transport-type aircraft in order to permit them to carry traffic, moving at government expense pursuant to contract calling for the furnishing of the full capacity of the aircraft, for the Department of Defense without regard to the restrictions against regularity or the restrictions against the carriage of persons in foreign air transportation.

(h) With respect to the carriage of military traffic traveling at the expense of the individual concerned, these restrictions will not be lifted in regard to the carriers individually, but they will be permitted to act collectively to furnish transportation to service personnel when so authorized by the Military Establishment, even though the collective transportation so furnished exceeds the amount permissible for the individual carriers.

(i) The Department of Defense is, of course, interested in dealing with those carriers whose records establish them as reliable and trustworthy. In consequence, we believe that the program of strict enforcement, which we intend to intensify, will tend to promote the kind of air transportation most needed at the present time. Certain individual carriers will be eliminated, but we believe that the policy we have outlined will simply tend to direct their personnel and aircraft into channels more in conformity with the general public interest.

Chapter I—Bureau of Indian Affairs, Department of the Interior

Subchapter L—Irrigation Projects: Operation and Maintenance

PART 130—ORDERS FIXING OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE CHARGES

KLAMATH INDIAN IRRIGATION PROJECT

On January 9, 1951, notice of intention to amend § 130.47 operation and maintenance charge, of Title 25, Code of Federal Regulations, was published in the daily issue of the FEDERAL REGISTER. Interested parties were thereby given opportunity to participate in the preparing of the amendment by submitting data or arguments within 30 days from the date of publication of the notice. No data were submitted which would provide sufficient justification for not increasing the operation and maintenance rates. Therefore, the said section is hereby amended and promulgated as follows:

§ 130.47 Assessments. The rate of assessment of operation and maintenance charges on land of the Modoc Point and Sand Creek Units of the Klamath Indian Irrigation Project is hereby fixed at $3.00 per acre per annum for the calendar year 1951, and until further order.

PART 29—INCOME TAX; TAXABLE YEARS BEGINNING AFTER DECEMBER 31, 1941

FIGURE TO BE USED IN DETERMINING RESERVE AND OTHER POLICY LIABILITY CREDIT FOR LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES

MARCH 7, 1951.

PARAGRAPH 1. By virtue of the authority vested in me by section 202 (b) of the Internal Revenue Code, as amended by section 163 of the Revenue Act of 1942 (53 Stat. 71, 56 Stat. 870; 26 U. S. C. 1946 ed., 202 (b)) and as further amended by section 401 of the Revenue Act of 1950, approved September 23, 1950, it is hereby determined that the figure to be used in computing the "reserve and other policy liability credit" of life insurance companies for the taxable year 1950 shall be 0.9063.

PAR. 2. It is found that notice and public procedure are unnecessary, since the figure announced in this Treasury decision is computed from information contained in the income tax returns of life insurance companies for the year 1949 which are not open to public inspection. The public accordingly cannot effectively participate in the determination of such figure.

PART 76—EXEMPTION OF CERTAIN PERSONNEL FROM THE OPERATION OF SECTIONS 281, 283, 284, 434 AND 1914 OF TITLE 18, UNITED STATES CODE, AND SECTION 190 OF THE REVISED STATUTES

§ 76.1 Exemption of certain personnel from operation of sections 281, 283, 284, 434 and 1914 of Title 18, United States Code, and section 190 of the Revised Statutes. Any person employed under the authority of section 704 of the Second Supplemental Appropriation Act, 1951, Public Law 911, 81st Congress, is hereby exempted, with respect to such employment, from the operation of sections 281, 283, 284, 434 and 1914 of Title 18 of the United States Code, and section 190 of the Revised Statutes (5 U. S. C. 99), except as specified in the following paragraphs:

(a) Exemption hereunder shall not extend to the negotiation or execution, by an appointee under section 704, aforesaid, of Government contracts with the private employer of such appointee or with any corporation, joint stock company, association, firm, partnership or other entity in the pecuniary profits or contracts of which the appointee has any direct or indirect interest.

(b) Exemption hereunder shall not extend to making any recommendation or taking any action with respect to individual applications to the Government for relief or assistance, on appeal or otherwise, made by the private employer of the appointee or by any corporation, joint stock company, association, firm, partnership, or other entity in the pecuniary profits or contracts of which the appointee has any direct or indirect interest.

(c) Exemption hereunder shall not extend to the prosecution by the appointee, or participation by the appointee in any fashion in the prosecution, of any claims against the Government involving any matter concerning which the appointee had any responsibility during his employment under section 704, aforesaid, during the period of such employment and the further period of two years after the termination of such employment.

(d) Exemption hereunder shall not extend to the receipt or payment of salary in connection with the appointee's Government service under section 704 from any source other than the private employer of the appointee at the time of his appointment under section 704, aforesaid.

(e) Exemption from sections 434 and 1914 of Title 18, United States Code, shall not extend to persons appointed as experts or consultants under section 704, aforesaid.

This regulation shall become effective on February 28, 1951.

DERIVATION: AFR 35-83.

§ 868.1 Purpose. This part defines the categories of Reservists eligible to request delays in reporting for active duty; establishes the basic criteria upon which requests for delays and appeals will be considered; and delineates the procedures for the processing and evaluation of such requests and appeals.

§ 868.2 Policy. It is the traditional policy of this country to rely for national security largely upon the readiness and willingness of its citizens to mobilize rapidly as armed forces in the event of a national emergency. In an emergency the national interest may dictate that the ordering to active duty of some Reservists be delayed temporarily. Some Reservists are engaged in civilian occupations essential to activities critically necessary to the maintenance of the national health, safety, or interest. Personnel with experience and skills in such occupations will be required by the Air Force and by the civilian economy in numbers far exceeding the supply. The Air Force is interested in seeing that military manpower objectives for these critical skills are attained and, at the same time, that production and research vital to the national military effort are not seriously impaired by a sudden withdrawal of these critical skills from the civilian economy. Because the Air Force has these dual interests, the immediate military requirement in a national emergency for Reservists possessing such skills must be weighed, balanced, and reconciled with the civilian requirements to the maximum extent possible in the interest of national security.

§ 868.3 Definitions. For the purpose of the regulations in this part, the following definitions will apply:

(a) Appeal. An appeal is a request for reconsideration of a decision on a request for delay.

(b) Critical occupation. A critical occupation is an occupation listed and defined in the Department of Labor List of Critical Occupations.

(c) Deferment. A deferment is the authority granted to an individual not a member of the reserve forces of the armed services, postponing the reporting date from military service under existing Selective Service laws. This term will be used only in referring to selectees under these laws and will not be used in referring to members of the reserve forces.

(d) Delay. A delay is the postponement of the reporting date specified in the initial orders to active duty for Reservists.

(e) Essential activity. An essential activity is an activity necessary to the national health, safety, or interest, as defined in the Department of Commerce List of Essential Activities, or an activity which is in furtherance of the military effort, production, services, or research necessary to the national health, safety, or interest.

(f) Full-time course of instruction. A full-time course of instruction is a full-time schedule prescribed for a resident student in accordance with the regulations of the particular institution of higher education.

(g) Institution of higher education. An institution of higher education is an institution, offering at least a two-year program of college-level studies, that is either (1) accredited by a recognized nation-wide, regional, or State accrediting agency, or operating under State control, or (2) able to furnish evidence that its credits are accepted unconditionally (at full value) by three fully-accredited institutions. (The Education Directory, Part 3: Higher Education published annually by the Office of Education, Federal Security Agency, contains a list of institutions meeting such qualifications.)

(h) Key job. A key job is a job which is in furtherance of the military effort or national interests and one to which all of the following conditions apply:

(1) Performance of the duties of the job are essential to the effectiveness of the activity to which it belongs.

(2) The job cannot be filled be a replacement within a period less than that for which the delay is requested despite aggresive efforts of recruiting, training, or upgrading; and

(3) The operation to which the job contributes cannot be sustained by an alternative such as:

(i) Job breakdown or simplification; or

(ii) Modification of production process.

(i) Key managerial job. A key managerial job is a job on the management level in an activity which is in the furtherance of the military effort or national interests, the duties of which are critically essential to the effective operation of that activity.

(j) Key technician. A key technician is a person skilled in a particular critical operation or critical occupation.

(k) Reservist. A Reservist is an individual who has commissioned, or enlisted status in the United States Air Force Reserve.

§ 868.4 Basic considerations. (a) Delays granted to Reservists will not be considered as a means of exempting Reservists indefinitely from military service and may be terminated at any time due to overriding military considerations. With limited exceptions, delays are granted in the national interest, and are not for the benefit of the individual.

(b) Delays will be granted on an individual basis only. Under no circumstances will blanket delays be granted.

(c) Initial delays and subsequent renewals, except as specifically indicated in this part, will be granted for the minimum periods appropriate, but will not exceed 6 months.

(d) A stricter application of the criteria for the granting of initial delays will be made in evaluating requests for renewal of delays.

(e) Requests for delay submitted by Reservists under 26 years of age will be considered only in exceptional cases.

(f) Any change with respect to the status of a Reservist granted a delay which would change his availability for active duty will be immediately reported by him to the headquarters which granted the delay.

(g) A delay will be granted only where the urgency of the civilian work appears to outweigh the need of the Air Force for the services of the Reservist.

(h) No request for delay submitted by an employer of a Reservist will be granted unless the Reservist in writing acquiesces in such request.

§ 868.5 Categories of Reservists. Reservists will be considered as eligible for delay only if they meet the requirements of one of the categories established in §§ 868.6 through 868.10 and are assigned an Availability Classification Code as provided in § 868.11.

§ 868.6 Category A—(a) Eligibility. A Reservist principally employed or engaged in a critical occupation in an essential activity shall be considered as being in Category A.

(b) Criteria for delay. In order for a Reservist in Category A to be considered for delay, it must be shown by documentary evidence that

(1) He is, in fact, principally employed or engaged in a critical occupation in an essential activity;

(2) There are unique circumstances surrounding his employment or work which give him essential knowledge or experience not possessed by any available replacement possessing the same skill, and

(3) The assigned Availability Classification Code is justified.

§ 868.7 Category B—(a) Eligibility. To be considered as being in Category B, the Reservist must be employed:

(1) In a key managerial job in an activity, the duties of which are critically essential to the overall effectiveness of the operations of that activity;

(2) In a key job in an activity, the duties of which are critically essential to that activity; or

(3) As a key technician.

(b) Criteria for delay. In order for a Reservist in Category B to be considered for delay, it must be shown by documentary evidence that

(1) He is engaged or employed in an essential activity, or by a Government agency which is in furtherance of the military effort, production, services, or research necessary to the national health, safety, or interest; and

(2) The assigned Availability Classification Code is justified.

§ 868.8 Category C—(a) Eligibility. Reservists enrolled in educational institutions, or engaged in essential research, scientific, or educational activities will be considered as being in Category C.

(b) Criteria for delay. (1) Members of officer training programs of the Military Departments may be delayed during satisfactory progress of the course.

(2) A Reservist who is a secondary school student may be delayed while in good standing until completion of the twelfth grade, unless manpower requirements of the Air Force necessitate his being ordered to active duty.

(3) A Reservist who is a full-time undergraduate college student enrolled with second year or more advanced standing in an institution of higher education may be delayed for the then current school year, provided he satisfactorily maintains the standards of the institution and manpower requirements of the Air Force will permit. A first year undergraduate student, unless he has had one year of previous active military service, normally will not be delayed beyond the then current school semester except as indicated in subparagraph (4) of this paragraph.

(4) A Reservist currently enrolled in a full-time course of instruction in an institution of higher education which requires five or more years for completion and who holds, or is eligible for, a commission as a Reserve officer prior to completion of the course, may be delayed until the completion of the then current school year if he continues in good standing and the course successfully pursued will qualify the Reservist for a critical skill of primary interest to the Air Force. (See § 868.19 (b)) A Reservist in his third or fourth year will be eligible to receive a renewal of such delay for a period not to exceed the next school year if he continues in good standing.

(5) A Reservist enrolled or accepted for admission in a professional graduate course in an institution of higher education, or pursuing full-time research in a field of primary interest to the Air Force may be delayed until completion of such graduate course or research. (See § 868.19 (b)) Reservists enrolled or accepted for admission in other graduate courses may be delayed until completion of the then current school semester.

(6) A Reservist who is a teacher and who instructs students in an institution of higher education, or apprentices or other workers in essential activities, for the purpose of developing skills and knowledge essential and unique to the performance of critical occupations in any of the fields of primary interest of the Air Force may be delayed until completion of the school year or the course taught whichever is appropriate.

(7) Requests for delay from teachers not included in subparagraph (6) of this paragraph may be considered under Category D, on the basis of community hardship. (See § 868.9)

§ 868.9 Category D—(a) Eligibility. Reservists requiring delay compassionate reasons shall be considered as being in Category D.

(b) Criteria for delay—(1) Personal hardship. The same criteria as those established in Air Force Regulations authorizing separation from the Air Force for dependency or hardship shall be employed in evaluating requests for delay based on personal hardship. (See §§ 882.16 to 882.27; 15 F. R. 1269–70)

(2) Community hardship. The Reservist must submit written justification to show that his withdrawal from his community will jeopardize the health, safety and welfare of that community.

§ 868.10 Category E. Certain officials of the Government described in section 6 (f), Selective Service Act of 1948, as amended (sec. 6, 62 Stat. 609; 50 U. S. C., App. Sup., 456), will not be ordered to active duty without their consent.

§ 868.11 Availability Classification Code. (a) All Reservists granted a delay will be assigned one of the following Availability Classification Codes. The classification will indicate the length of time required to obtain and train or indoctrinate an adequate civilian replacement for Reservists in Categories A and B, or the period of time required by Reservists in Categories C, D, and E before they will be available for active duty:

Availability Classification Code:	Time required
I	1 through 3 months.
II	4 through 6 months.
III	7 through 12 months.
IV	More than 12 months.

(b) The assignment of Availability Classification Codes III and IV for Reservists under twenty-six years of age will be considered only in exceptional cases.

§ 868.12 Establishment of Delay and Appeal Boards. (a) Each commander authorized to grant or to deny requests for delay will establish an adequate number of Delay Boards each consisting of at least one officer for the purpose of considering and determining requests for delay. One Delay Board will be located at each processing station. The officers selected for the Board will be of field grade, whenever possible, and at least one member will be a member of the Judge Advocate General's Department, United States Air Force, the United States Air Force Reserve Judge Advocate General's Department, or an officer with comparable qualifications. A sufficient number of officers will be assigned each Board to insure expeditious handling of delay requests.

(b) The Commanding General, Continental Air Command, will establish an Appeals Board consisting of at least three senior Air Force officers who possess broad, extensive and diversified experience, for the purpose of considering and determining appeals. At least one such officer will be a general officer and at least one will be a member of The Judge Advocate General's Department, United States Air Force.

§ 868.13 Authority to grant delays. All commanders authorized by Headquarters United States Air Force to order Reservists into the active military service will have authority to grant or deny requests for delay submitted by Reservists (or their employers) under their jurisdiction. This authority may be delegated by such commanders to their subordinate commanders only upon specific approval of Headquarters United States Air Force.

§ 868.14 Authority to grant appeals. The Commanding General, Continental Air Command, will have authority to grant or deny appeals. This authority may not be redelegated.

§ 868.15 Requests for delay and appeals—(a) By whom submitted. A request for delay may be submitted or an appeal may be filed by either the individual Reservists of his employer.

(b) Form of request. A request for delay or an appeal may be in any form, but it must be in writing and signed by the person initiating the request or appeal.

(c) When submitted. A request for delay may be submitted only after a Reservist has received notification of intent to order him to active duty or actual orders ordering him to active duty. An appeal may be filed only after notification of the denial of the request for delay.

(d) To whom submitted. (1) Requests for delay and appeals, except as provided in subparagraphs (2) and (3) of this paragraph will be submitted to the commander issuing the active duty orders. Appeals thereupon will be forwarded to the Continental Air Command Appeals Board for determination.

(2) Requests for delay and appeals filed by chaplains will be submitted for determination to the Chief of Air Force Chaplains, Headquarters United States Air Force, Washington 25, D. C.

(3) Requests for delay and appeals filed by physicians, dentists, and veterinarians wil be submitted for determination to the Surgeon General, Headquarters United States Air Force, Washington 25, D. C.

§ 868.16 Evidence to substantiate requests. The person requesting a delay or filing an appeal will submit complete information to identify the Reservist concerned and to describe the civilian status of the Reservist and will set forth the reasons why a delay should be granted. Mere reference to the category classification applicable to the Reservist will not be sufficient. Paragraph (a) through (e) of this section describe by category the information which should be submitted to support a request for delay or an appeal.

(a) Category A. (1) A complete description of the occupation must be furnished. It must be shown that the occupation is one listed on the Department of Labor List of Critical Occupations. It must be shown also that the Reservist is employed in an activity listed on the Department of Commerce List of Essential Activities, or in one which is in furtherance of the military effort, production, services, or research necessary to the national health, safety, or interest.

(2) It must be shown that there are unique circumstances surrounding his employment or work which give him essential knowledge or experience not possessed by any available replacement possessing the same skill.

(3) It must be shown that the urgency of the civilian work appears to outweigh the need of the Air Force for the services of the Reservist.

(b) Category B. (1) A complete description of the occupation must be furnished.

(2) It must be shown that the Reservist is engaged or employed in an activity listed on the Department of Commerce List of Essential Activities; or in one which is in furtherance of the military effort, production, services, or research necessary to the national health, safety, or interest; or in a Government agency which is in furtherance of the military effort, production, or services; or in research necessary to the national health, safety or interest.

(3) It must be shown that the urgency of the civilian work appears to outweigh the need of the Air Force for the services of the Reservist.

(c) Category C—(1) Supporting information for students. (i) The name and location of the institution.

(ii) The date of enrollment; the date that the current school term or semester ends; and, whether or not the Reservist is in good standing.

(iii) The grade in which enrolled; if a graduate student, state the year of graduate work.

(iv) The type and length of the course. The duties for which the course will qualify the Reservist to perform. Will the Reservist be eligible for a commission as a Reserve officer in any branch of service upon or prior to completion of the course?

(2) Supporting information for those engaged in research or scientific activities. (i) The applicable information required by paragraph (a) of this section will be submitted.

(ii) Specifically describe the field of research or scientific work.

(3) Supporting information for those engaged in educational activities, including teaching. (i) The applicable information required by paragraph (a) of this section will be submitted.

(2) The subjects being taught, and the number of teaching hours per week.

(3) Are the students full-time students? Are they workers employed in essential activities as described in the Department of Commerce List of Essential Activities? If neither, who are they?

(4) Will the subjects taught qualify students to perform critical occupations? If so, list the occupations.

(d) Category D. (1) Detailed information regarding the circumstances necessitating request on this basis will be furnished.

(2) If the request is based on community hardship, complete written justification must be submitted to show that the Reservist's withdrawal from the community will jeopardize the health, safety, and welfare of the community.

(e) Category E. Information to indicate the exact position held and the term for which elected will be furnished.

§ 868.17 Necessity for prompt action. (a) In all cases where a delay is considered necessary, all individuals eligible to initiate a request for delay or an appeal will initiate such action promptly upon receipt by the Reservist of active duty orders or notification of the denial of a request for delay.

(b) All requests for delay and all appeals will be acted upon promptly by every agency processing them in order to eliminate to the maximum extent possible unnecessary travel on the part of Reservists. Each such agency will take every positive action to notify an applicant for delay or appeal of the final action taken thereon, and if possible, will notify the Reservist prior to the date he must depart from his home to comply with his active duty orders.

§ 868.18 Action by Reservist pending decision on requests. (a) Pending notification of the granting of a delay or an appeal, the Reservist will comply with his orders. In no instance will the mere submission of a request for delay or the filing of an appeal be considered as relieving the Reservist from responsibility for reporting as directed by the active duty orders.

(b) Upon reporting to the processing station, the Reservist awaiting decision on his request for delay or appeal will promptly notify the Delay Board at the processing station of the existence of a request or appeal and request expeditious action thereon. Under no circumstances will the Reservist or his employer submit a duplicate request for delay or an appeal.

§ 868.19 Air Force critical skill and primary interest list. (a) List of occupations for which the Department of the Air Force has outstanding requirements.

(1) Professional and related occupations:

Aeronautical Engineer.
Chemical Engineer.
Civil Engineer.
Electrical Engineer.
Industrial Engineer.
Mechanical Engineer.
Petroleum Engineer.
Sanitary Engineer.

(2) Skilled occupations:

TITLE 32A—NATIONAL DEFENSE, APPENDIX

Chapter II—Economic Stabilization Agency

[General Wage Regulation 8, Including Amdt. 1]

GWR 8—COST-OF-LIVING INCREASES PROVIDED BY ESCALATOR CLAUSES AND WAGE AND SALARY PLANS

Pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.) and Executive Order 10161 (15 F. R. 6105) this General Wage Regulation No. 8, including Amendment 1, is hereby issued.

1. Section 1 is revised to include cost-of-living provisions in written wage and salary plans.

2. Section 2 is enlarged to permit increases required by cost-of-living provisions in written wage and salary plans formally determined and communicated to the employees on or before January 25, 1951.

3. Section 3 is amended to include reports of increases made pursuant to cost-of-living provisions contained in wage and salary plans.

General Wage Regulation No. 8, as hereby amended, reads as follows:

STATEMENT OF CONSIDERATIONS

This general regulation is issued by the Economic Stabilization Administrator in discharge of his responsibility under the provisions of the Defense Production Act of 1950, and Executive Order 10161. It is designed to stabilize wages, salaries, and other compensation and to effectuate the purposes and intent of said statute and order. Due consideration has been given to the standards established by section 402 of the Act. In the formulation of the provisions hereof, there has been consultation with industry and labor representatives, including trade association and labor-union representatives, and consideration has been given to their recommendations.

Some collective bargaining contracts and some wage and salary plans in existence on January 25—the effective date of the first general price and wage control regulations—contain provisions for subsequent changes in wages and salaries. Such changes depend on the changes—up or down—in the cost of living. Those adjustments called for within the next few months will be upward because the cost-of-living has been rising since the Korean conflict.

For the most part such increases will be covered by the ten per cent allowable rise in General Regulation No. 6. However, a few of the existing contracts and plans will provide in the near future for increases somewhat exceeding the allowable figure. General Regulation No. 6 makes no provision for such cases. This Regulation, with certain limitations, will permit the operation of such cost-of-living provisions until June 30, 1951.

REGULATORY PROVISIONS

Sec.
1. Definitions.
2. Certain cost-of-living increases permissible without prior approval.
3. Reports of increases made under this regulation required.
4. Time limitation on increases.

AUTHORITY: Sections 1 to 4 issued under sec. 704, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong. Interpret or apply Title IV, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.; E. O. 10161, Sept. 9, 1950, 15 F. R. 6105, 3 CFR, 1950 Supp.

SECTION 1. Definitions. As used in this regulation:

(a) The term "cost-of-living escalator clause" shall mean a provision in a collective bargaining agreement which establishes a defined relationship between the rates of wages, salaries and other compensation covered by the agreement and the cost-of-living index figure published by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, or such other cost-of-living indices as may be determined by the Administrator to be acceptable for the purposes of this regulation.

(b) The term "cost-of-living provision" shall mean a provision in a written wage and salary plan which establishes a defined relationship between the rates of wages, salaries and other compensation covered by the plan and the cost-of-living index figure published by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, or such other cost-of-living indices as may be determined by the Administrator to be acceptable for the purposes of this regulation.

SEC. 2. Certain cost-of-living increases permissible without prior approval. No prior approval is required for the putting into effect of increases which are required by: (a) The terms of cost-of-living escalator clauses contained in contracts executed on or before January 25, 1951; or (b) the terms of a cost-of-living provision contained in a written wage and salary plan which was formally determined and communicated to the employees on or before said date.

General increases agreed upon or formally determined and communicated to the employees after January 25, 1951, together with cost-of-living increases made pursuant to this section, shall not exceed the ten per cent formula provided in section 1 of General Regulation No. 6 (16 F. R. 1951).

SEC. 3. Reports of increases made under this regulation required. Reports of increases made under this Regulation shall be filed with the nearest office of the Wage and Hour Division of the United States Department of Labor not more than twenty days after any general increase made hereunder is effective. Such reports shall include:

(a) Copies of the written wage and salary plans or collective bargaining agreements containing the cost-of-living provisions, unless copies thereof have been filed with the Wage Stabilization Board under General Regulation No. 2 (16 F. R. 1014).

(b) An identification of the escalator clause in the agreement; or of the cost-of-living provision in the wage and salary plan, and a statement of the manner in which it was communicated.

(c) A statement of the amount of the increase and the unit of employees to which it is applicable.

(d) A statement of any general increases applicable to the same wages, salaries and other compensations that have been put into effect after January 25, 1951.

SEC. 4. Time limitation on increases. No increase herein authorized shall be made effective subsequent to June 30, 1951.

This regulation, including Amendment 1, shall be effective as of March 1, 1951, and shall terminate June 30, 1951. All other Orders, Regulations and Directives of the Wage Stabilization Board and the Economic Stabilization Administrator, including General Order No. 3 of January 24, 1951 (16 F. R. 739), are hereby superseded to the extent that they are inconsistent herewith.

NOTE: The record keeping and reporting requirements of this regulation have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

Issued: March 8, 1951.

GWR 9—WAGE SCHEDULES FOR NEW PLANTS

Pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.) and Executive Order 10161 (15 F. R. 6105) this General Wage Regulation No. 9 is hereby issued.

STATEMENT OF CONSIDERATIONS

This General Wage Regulation is issued by the Administrator in discharge of his responsibilities under the provisions of the Defense Production Act of 1950 and Executive Order 10161. It is designed to stabilize wages, salaries and other compensation and to effectuate the purposes and intent of said statute and order. Due consideration has been given to the standards established by section 402 of the act.

The purpose of this regulation is to provide procedures for obtaining approval of rates of wages, salaries, and other compensation for employees of new plants, enterprises, and other employment units. Insofar as practicable, these procedures preserve existing practices.

In the formulation of the provisions hereof it has been impracticable to consult formally with industry and labor representatives.

REGULATORY PROVISIONS

Sec.
1. Definitions.
2. Criteria for establishing rates of wages in new plants.
3. Procedures for establishing rates of wages in new plants.

SECTION 1. Definitions. As used in this regulation:

(a) The word "wages" shall mean wages, salaries and other compensation as defined in section 702 (e) of the Defense Production Act of 1950.

(b) The term "new plant" means a plant, enterprise, or other employment unit, which on January 25, 1951, had not commenced the production of the materials or services for which it is established or converted.

SEC. 2. Criteria for establishing rates of wages in new plants. The following criteria shall be applied in determining and evaluating a schedule of rates of wages in new plants:

(a) In a new plant of an existing enterprise, established at the same location, the rates of wages for the jobs in the new plant shall be the same as the lawful rates for the same or comparable jobs in the existing enterprise.

(b) In all other cases the schedule of rates for the new plant shall not exceed:

(1) Rates for the same or comparable jobs in the same industry in the same local labor market area, or, if none

(2) Rates for the same or comparable jobs in a comparable industry in the same local labor market area, or, if none

(3) Rates for the same or comparable jobs in the same industry located in the most nearly comparable labor market area.

(c) For the purposes of paragraph (b) of this section, where only the comparable rates for key jobs are available in a given labor market, such rates may be selected, and the schedule may be constructed by interpolation with proper relationships between the rates of other jobs and the rates of the key jobs.

SEC. 3. Procedures for establishing rates of wages in new plants. (a) A new plant shall file with the nearest office of the Wage and Hour Division of the United States Department of Labor, a report containing the following:

(1) A statement of the facts relied upon to support the conclusion that it is a new plant; and

(2) A schedule of the rates of wages which are in effect for each job classification; and

(3) A statement explaining how the criteria specified in section 2 of this regulation have been applied in determining the rates of wages; and

(4) A statement by the collective bargaining agent for the employees involved, if there be one, indicating whether such bargaining agent has agreed to the schedule and statements as submitted.

(b) In the case of employees who qualify as "executive, administrative, professional or outside sales personnel", within the meaning of the Fair Labor Standards Act, as amended, the report shall be filed with the Executive Director of the Wage Stabilization Board.

(c) A new plant commencing operation on or before April 15, 1951, must file the report required by paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section by May 1, 1951; and may put or continue in effect the schedule of rates as reported, subject to such review and modification as the Administrator may hereafter provide.

(d) A new plant commencing operation after April 15, 1951, must file the report required by paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section at least three weeks prior to the proposed date for hiring employees. If, after submitting the report, the employer receives no communications pertinent thereto from the Wage-Hour Office or the Executive Director of the Wage Stabilization Board, the rates may be put into effect, subject to the condition, which shall be communicated by the employer to all employees affected by the schedule, that the rates are interim rates payable pending receipt of a ruling as to their approvability and subject to adjustment with respect to payroll periods beginning after the date of receipt by the employer of any ruling of partial disapproval.

This regulation shall become effective immediately.

All other orders, regulations and directives of the Wage Stabilization Board and of the Economic Stabilization Administrator, including General Order No. 3 of January 24, 1951 (16 F. R. 739), are hereby superseded to the extent that they are inconsistent herewith.

NOTE: The record keeping and reporting requirements of this regulation have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

Issued: March 8, 1951.

[General Wage Regulation 10]

GWR 10—TANDEM WAGE INCREASES

Pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.) and Executive Order 10161 (15 F. R. 6105) this General Wage Regulation No. 10 is hereby issued.

STATEMENT OF CONSIDERATIONS

This general wage regulation is issued by the Administrator in discharge of his responsibilities under the provisions of the Defense Production Act of 1950 and Executive Order 10161. It is designed to stabilize wages, salaries and other compensation and to effectuate the purposes and intent of said statute and order. Due consideration has been given to the standards established by section 402 of the act. In the formulation of the provisions hereof formal consultation with industry and labor representatives has been impracticable and unnecessary.

This regulation recognizes, within prescribed limits, that a tandem relationship and practice existed on and before January 25, 1951, whereby general rate increases of some employee units were dependent upon and governed by negotiations, agreements, and rate movements of other employee units of the same employer, or of other employers in the same industry and labor market area.

General Regulation No. 2 authorized general increases provided for by written agreement executed on or before January 25, 1951, or formally determined and communicated to the employees on or before said date, which increases were by the terms of the agreement or communications to take effect and be applicable to work performed on or before February 9, 1951.

This regulation is designed to permit, under certain conditions, general increases in those tandem relationships, which, by well-established practice, would have automatically been put into effect and have been applicable to work performed on or before February 9, 1951.

REGULATORY PROVISIONS

Sec.
1. Definitions.
2. Submission of proof.
3. Tandem increases permissible only after notification that proof is adequate.

AUTHORITY: Sections 1 to 3 issued under sec. 704, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong. Interpret or apply Title IV, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong; E. O. 10161, Sept. 9, 1950, 15 F. R. 6105, 3 CFR, 1950 Supp.

SECTION 1. Definitions. As used in this regulation, the terms:

(a) "Appropriate unit" means a group comprised of all employees in a bargaining unit, in a plant or other establishment, or in a department thereof, or in a company, or in an industry, as best adapted to preserve contractual or historical relationships;

(b) "Tandem relationship" means a well-established and consistently maintained practice whereby the precise timing, amount and nature of general increases in the wages, salaries and other compensation of a given appropriate unit have so followed those of another unit of employees of the same employer or of other employers in the same industry and the same labor market area, that a general increase, in the normal operation of the practice, would have been put into effect and have been applicable to work performed on or before February 9, 1951, but for the operation of General Wage Stabilization Regulation 1.

SEC. 2. Submission of proof. Proof of a tandem relationship may be submitted to the Executive Director of the Wage Stabilization Board. This proof shall consist of a statement showing the manner in which rates have been determined in the appropriate unit involved during the last ten years, including the identification of the rates which have been the basis for determining the rates of the employees in an appropriate unit for which an increase is sought under this Regulation, together with such supporting data as the person submitting proof may deem material.

SEC. 3. Tandem increases permissible only after notification that proof is adequate. Upon, but not before, receipt of notification from the Executive Director that the proof is adequate, increases in wages, salaries and other compensation may be made pursuant to this regulation. Such an increase may be made effective as of the date on which it would have taken effect in the normal operation of the practice, but not earlier.

This regulation shall be effective immediately and shall terminate June 30, 1951. All other orders and directives of the Wage Stabilization Board and the Economic Stabilization Administrator, including General Order No. 3 of January 24, 1951 (16 F. R. 739) are hereby superseded to the extent that they are inconsistent herewith.

NOTE: The record keeping and reporting requirements of this Regulation have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

Issued: March 8, 1951.

Chapter III—Office of Price Stabilization, Economic Stabilization Agency

[Ceiling Price Regulation 6, Amdt. 2]

CPR 6—INEDIBLE TALLOWS, GREASES, AND FAT-BEARING AND OIL-BEARING ANIMAL WASTE MATERIALS

Pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.), Executive Order 10161 (15 F. R. 6105), and Economic Stabilization Agency General Order No. 2 (16 F. R. 738), this Amendment 2 to Ceiling Price Regulation 6 is hereby issued.

STATEMENT OF CONSIDERATIONS

This statement of considerations covers companion ceiling price actions on household soaps, on tallows and greases, the principal raw materials used in manufacturing soap, and on the raw materials from which tallow and grease are made. The ceiling price action on soap is accomplished by a new regulation, CPR 10. That on tallows and greases and their raw materials is accomplished by Amendment 2 to CPR 6.

For convenience, reference is made in the discussion below to "tallow" and the market quotations cited are for the fancy grade of tallow on an f. o. b. basis. Unless the context indicates the contrary, it is to be understood that the description refers to all of the various grades of tallows and greases and that prices of these were moving in their normal relationship, one to another.

Since the outbreak of hostilities in Korea, the prices of tallow and soap have advanced rapidly. When prices were frozen under the General Ceiling Price Regulation, it was inevitable that disparities in the various ceilings should exist, requiring prompt rectification. Broadly speaking, tallow prices had outrun manufacturers' selling prices for soap. The latter in turn had outrun increases at the wholesale and retail levels. Correction of this situation involves the following adjustments:

1. Working out a system of tallow and grease prices which bears a logical relationship to the prices of other fats and oils, and

2. Working out a system of soap prices at the manufacturer, wholesale and retail levels, internally consistent, and bearing a proper relationship to the prices for tallow and grease.

It was necessary that these solutions should be determined within the framework of the obligation of the Office of Price Stabilization to protect the consumer interest in soap, an important cost of living commodity.

For some months prior to July of 1950, tallow prices had been severely depressed, and there was indication that this might be a chronic condition. At its low point in June 1950, tallow sold for as little as 5 cents per pound. It had not declined sharply to this figure but rather during the preceding months had drifted down to it from the 6- to 7-cent range. Between June, 1950 and January, 1951, the price advanced from 5 cents to 18 cents, one of the sharpest advances in the entire commodity field. By this amendment, tallow is rolled back to 15 cents per pound. On this basis, tallow is about 2.75 cents under current loose lard prices, as determined by the General Ceiling Price Regulation. The differential in the first six months of 1950 widened from about 2.6 cents to about 4.9 cents. On an annual basis the average differential in 1947 was about 3 cents, in 1948 about 4 cents and in 1949 about 4.7 cents. Furthermore, after making allowances for the fact that tallow was severely depressed in the pre-Korean period, an advance is permitted fully in line with that permitted on vegetable oils by previous action under CPR 6.

Tallow contracts entered into prior to the effective date of this Amendment may be carried out according to their terms. This is an exception to the general policy of the Office of Price Stabilization. It is permitted in the present instance to obviate the hardship which many producers of tallow would suffer if contracts were cut across. Such producers and dealers operate on very short margins and with limited capital. On the other hand, their customers, the soap manufacturers, comprise a much smaller group of larger firms. A number of them carry substantial inventories which will cushion the effect upon cost of the high-priced tallow which they absorb pursuant to this provision. Avoiding a hardship to tallow producers and dealers therefore does not represent a transfer of an equivalent burden to their customers.

An important effect of this action will be to make uniform the ceiling prices of all sellers of tallow. Under the General Ceiling Price Regulation there was considerable lack of uniformity, which placed those with low ceilings relative to their competitors, at a severe disadvantage.

The 15-cent level for tallow is approximately that which prevailed in early December, 1950. To permit renderers to continue to receive a normal margin, this amendment rolls the ceiling price for shop fats and other tallow-yielding materials back to the levels which prevailed in the first week of December, 1950. These materials are discards to the butcher. They are sold for what they will bring. The effect of this rollback on the over-all operations of these sellers will be of very minor significance.

Prior to reaching the decision to price tallow at the 15-cent level, the Director called a meeting of a representative group of producers, comprised of both meat packers and renderers, which also was attended by a representative of the United States Department of Agriculture. Full expression of views was obtained with respect to each of several alternative tallow price levels, including the one which the Director has adopted.

Inedible tallows and greases comprise the chief fatty material used in the production of soap, in recent years constituting more than 70 percent of the 1.8 billion pounds of all fats and oils used annually in soap manufacture. Individual soap products vary in fat content, with such familiar products as bar toilet soap, usually containing about 85 percent fat, and packaged chips and flakes containing about 75 percent fat. It is apparent therefore that tallow and soap ceilings must be closely integrated.

The discussion which follows refers to the price relationships which have prevailed on tallow and soap since June, 1950, and further describes the approximate position of soap manufacturers under the ceiling prices provided by CPR 10.

During the period under review soap prices have been set by manufacturers in accordance with their normal procedure. Soap prices do not follow the day-by-day changes in the raw materials markets but more closely follow changes in the cost of manufacturers' inventories of such materials. In an advancing tallow market, the cost of current purchases is high relative to the average cost of inventories. If inventories are small, the average is increased more by a high priced purchase than if inventories are large. With each substantial rise in inventory costs, soap prices are raised.

A further factor in determining soap prices is the price of glycerine, which to the soap manufacturer is a by-product. If glycerine prices are increasing along with tallow prices, the credit on the former becomes an increasingly important offset to the latter.

June 1950 marked the end of a period of months during which soap prices had been stable, as had those for tallow. There followed a series of price increases for soap, each reflecting average inventory cost (adjusted for glycerine credit), each falling short of reflecting the current tallow market. The final general advance by the three large soap companies, followed by the rest of the industry, took place on December 8 and on the few days immediately following.

The market price of tallow was about 15 cents and inventories were held at a slightly lower cost. Between December 8 and January 13, tallow continued to advance and prior to the latter date two of the three largest manufacturers of soap gave notice to this Agency of their intention to advance their prices on soap. At this time the market for tallow was about 17 cents and the inventories of soap manufacturers were held at a slightly lower figure. This increase became effective a week later since the two manufacturers were among the many who were complying with the request of the Director to give 7-days' notice of price advances. The January 20 increase was followed by virtually every manufacturer except one of the three largest. This latter manufacturer likewise filed notice of an increase but the 7-day period had not elapsed when the General Ceiling Price Regulation became effective on January 25.

Under the General Ceiling Price Regulation, as noted above, most sellers of tallow had ceilings of about 18 cents although some had lower ceilings and a few had higher ceilings. It is evident that these ceilings were not fully reflected in the ceiling prices of the soap manufacturers generally and fell far short of being reflected in the ceilings of the one manufacturer who had delayed taking action.

Similarly, since only a few days remained in what was to become the December 19–January 25 base period of the General Ceiling Price Regulation, many wholesalers and retailers did not reflect to their customers the last advances by the soap manufacturers.

Having established the feasibility of reducing tallow prices to the 15 cent level, the Director called a meeting of representative soap manufacturers to obtain their advice on his proposals to reduce their ceiling prices to the levels established on December 8 and of cancelling the advances effective January 20. While the conclusion was reached that such action would be fair and equitable, it is recognized that since tallow prices and soap prices will be reduced proportionately the question remains open whether the profit margins of manufacturers are squeezed at the present time. As noted above, it is indicated that soap prices have not fully reflected advancing tallow costs. Nor does this action reflect any determination with respect to additional burdens imposed by the advancing price of coconut oil (which is not subject to price control), of packaging and other materials or of direct labor.

A relatively small amount of soap is sold by purchasers or brand-name owners who purchase the saponified or detergent product from others. Prices for this category of seller have been established so as to reflect December, 1950 tallow prices.

Export price ceilings have been established at one quarter of a cent above domestic ceiling prices. This figure will adequately cover exporters' actual costs of preparing tallow and greases for export.

In summary the following are the results which will be accomplished by these price actions:

1. In many cases retailers will be able to reduce their selling prices to the consumer for these important cost-of-living items. Conversely the necessity of an increase in retail prices is avoided.

2. Many retailers and wholesalers are relieved of a serious squeeze on profit margins.

3. Many contract and bid purchasers of soap will be able to secure offerings, with tallow at 15 cents, which were not forthcoming with tallow at 18 cents because of the low ceiling prices of their suppliers under the General Ceiling Price Regulation.

4. Soap manufacturers generally will be left in about the same continuing position relative to tallow prices as they have been under the General Ceiling Price Regulation. It will be necessary for them to absorb high cost tallow purchased under existing contracts and in some cases, in accordance with trade practice, to protect warehouse stocks.

5. It will permit owners of soap brand names and soap packagers to establish prices reflecting December 1950, tallow prices.

6. The status of the renderer is approximately unchanged because of the rollback in the price of both his raw materials and of his finished products.

7. The income of the retail meat dealer is reduced by a very small amount because of the small rollback in prices paid to him for his waste materials by the renderer.

AMENDATORY PROVISIONS

Ceiling Price Regulation 6 is amended in the following respects:

1. Section 2 (d) is amended to read as follows:

(d) Exemptions. If prior to the effective date of this regulation or of Amendments 1 and 2, as to commodities covered thereby, you entered, consistently with any outstanding ceiling price regulation, into a written contract for the sale of fats and oils for which ceiling prices are provided by this regulation, you may carry out the contract according to its terms.

2. A new section 12 is added to the regulation to read as follows:

SEC. 12. Ceiling prices for the sellers of tallows and greases. The ceiling prices of inedible tallows and greases shall be as follows:

[1] Iodine value shall not be less than 70.
[2] Maximum titre.

(a) Materials of less than 40 titre shall be deemed greases and shall be priced only on the basis of the ceiling prices set forth above for greases; and materials of more than 39.9 titre shall be deemed tallows and shall be priced only on the basis of the ceiling prices set forth above for tallows:

(b) Each type or grade of tallow or grease must be designated by the name customarily applied to it by the trade, and must be priced on the basis of the specifications prescribed in this section for such type or grade.

(c) The usual or normal differentials for grades, with specifications other than those listed above, shall continue to apply.

(d) When any of the above-named tallows or greases are sold in drums, barrels, or tierces at buyer's request, the ceiling prices for such tallows or greases shall be the prices set forth above, plus the differentials hereinafter set forth for the type of container in which the tallows or greases are shipped:

Container	Differentials to be added in cents per pound
Returnable drums, barrels or tierces	¾
Nonreturnable drums, barrels or tierces	1½

3. A new section 13 is added to the regulation to read as follows:

SEC. 13. Ceiling prices for imported tallows and greases. The ceiling prices of imported tallows and greases, with duties and taxes paid, f. o. b. port of entry, shall be the ceiling prices set forth in section 12 of this regulation.

4. A new section 14 is added to the regulation to read as follows:

SEC. 14. Ceiling prices for exported tallows and greases. The ceiling prices for exported tallows and greases listed in section 12 of this regulation shall be the ceiling prices listed in such section plus the cost of additional expenses for preparing such tallows and greases for export. These additional costs shall include: sampling, analysis, stenciling of drums, surveying, cartage, lighterage, and pumping to vessels deep tanks.

These additional costs may not exceed a total of one quarter of one cent per pound.

5. A new section 15 is added to the regulation to read as follows:

SEC. 15. Ceiling prices for fat-bearing and oil-bearing animal waste materials. Ceiling prices for fat-bearing or oil-bearing animal waste materials are the highest prices at which such materials were delivered to a purchaser of the same class during the period from November 7 to December 7, 1950, inclusive. If such materials were not delivered during this period, the ceiling price shall be the highest price at which such materials were offered for delivery during this period to a purchaser of the same class. This offer must have been in writing. If no such materials were offered for delivery or dealt in during the above period, the ceiling prices for such materials shall be those of the seller's most closely competitive seller of the same class selling the same materials to the same class of purchaser.

6. A new section 16 is added to the regulation to read as follows:

SEC. 16. Definitions. (a) Terms used in this regulation shall, unless defined in this section, or unless the context requires a different meaning, have the same meaning as when used in the General Ceiling Price Regulation.

(b) The term "inedible tallows" as used in this regulation means those tallows obtained from the rendering of fats from animals, such as cattle and sheep, as are not considered suitable for human consumption.

(c) The term "inedible greases" as used in this regulation means those greases obtained by rendering fats from hogs. Also, the lower grades of rendered fats, such as those obtained from catch basin skimmings, are termed "greases" regardless of whether the source of the original raw material was from cattle, sheep, or hogs. In general, tallows are firmer in texture than greases, ranging in titre or hardness from 40° to 45° C, while greases range from 34 to 39.9° C titre.

(d) The terms "oil-bearing raw materials and waste animal fat" used by renderers in the production of inedible tallow and greases means those materials including but not limited to butcher shop fats, suet and trimmings; breast fats or rattles; offal; bones, cooked grease, clear, rough or mixed; interceptor or trap grease.

(e) "Rendering" as used in this regulation means the process of separating the oil content from the solid materials in fatty animal tissues.

CPR 10—HOUSEHOLD SOAPS AND CLEANSERS

Pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.), Executive Order 10161 (15 F. R. 6105), and Economic Stabilization Agency General Order No. 2 (16 F. R. 738), this Ceiling Price Regulation 10 is hereby issued.

STATEMENT OF CONSIDERATIONS

This statement of considerations covers companion ceiling price actions on household soaps, on tallows and greases, the principal raw materials used in manufacturing soap, and on the raw materials from which tallow and grease are made. The ceiling price action on soap is accomplished by a new regulation, CPR 10. That on tallows and greases and their raw materials is accomplished by Amendment 2 to CPR 6.

For convenience, reference is made in the discussion below to "tallow" and the market quotations cited are for the fancy grade of tallow on an f. o. b. basis. Unless the context indicates the contrary, it is to be understood that the description refers to all of the various grades of tallows and greases and that prices of these were moving in their normal relationship, one to another.

Since the outbreak of hostilities in Korea, the prices of tallow and soap have advanced rapidly. When prices were frozen under the General Ceiling Price Regulation, it was inevitable that disparities in the various ceilings should exist, requiring prompt rectification. Broadly speaking, tallow prices had outrun manufacturers' selling prices for soap. The latter in turn had outrun increases at the wholesale and retail levels. Correction of this situation involves the following adjustments:

1. Working out a system of tallow and grease prices which bears a logical relationship to the prices of other fats and oils, and

2. Working out a system of soap prices at the manufacturer, wholesale and retail levels, internally consistent, and bearing a proper relationship to the prices for tallow and grease.

It was necessary that these solutions should be determined within the framework of the obligation of the Office of Price Stabilization to protect the consumer interest on soap, a cost of living commodity.

For some months prior to July of 1950, tallow prices had been severely depressed, and there was indication that this might be a chronic condition. At its low point in June 1950, tallow sold for as little as 5 cents per pound. It had not declined sharply to this figure but rather during the preceding months had drifted down to it from the 6- to 7-cent range. Between June 1950 and January 1951, the price advanced from 5 cents to 18 cents, one of the sharpest advances in the entire commodity field. By this amendment, tallow is rolled back to 15 cents per pound. On this basis, tallow is about 2.75 cents under current loose lard prices, as determined by the General Ceiling Price Regulation. The differential in the first six months of 1950 widened from about 2.6 cents to about 4.9 cents. On an annual basis the average differential in 1947 was about 3 cents, in 1948 about 4 cents and in 1949 about 4.7 cents. Furthermore, after making allowances for the fact that tallow was severely depressed in the pre-Korean period, an advance is permitted fully in line with that permitted on vegetable oils by previous action under CPR 6.

Tallow contracts entered into prior to the effective date of this amendment may be carried out according to their terms. This is an exception to the general policy of the Office of Price Stabilization. It is permitted in the present instance to obviate the hardship which many producers of tallow would suffer if contracts were cut across. Such producers and dealers operate on very short margins and with limited capital. On the other hand, their customers, the soap manufacturers, comprise a much smaller group of larger firms. A number of them carry substantial inventories which will cushion the effect upon cost of the high priced tallow which they absorb pursuant to this provision. Avoiding a hardship to tallow producers and dealers therefore does not represent a transfer of an equivalent burden to their customers.

An important effect of this action will be to make uniform the ceiling prices of all sellers of tallow. Under the General Ceiling Price Regulation there was considerable lack of uniformity, which placed those with low ceilings, relative to their competitors, at a severe disadvantage.

The 15 cent level for tallow is approximately that which prevailed in early December, 1950. To permit renderers to continue to receive a normal margin, this amendment rolls the ceiling prices for shop fats and other tallow-yielding materials back to the levels which prevailed in the first week of December, 1950. These materials are discards to the butcher. They are sold for what they will bring. The effect of this rollback on the over-all operations of these sellers will be of very minor significance.

Prior to reaching the decision to price tallow at the 15 cent level, the Director called a meeting of a representative group of producers, comprised of both meat packers and renderers, which also was attended by a representative of the United States Department of Agriculture. Full expression of views was obtained with respect to each of several alternative tallow price levels, including the one which the Director has adopted.

Inedible tallows and greases comprise the chief fatty material used in the production of soap, in recent years constituting more than 70 percent of the 1.8 billion pounds of all fats and oils used annually in soap manufacture. Individual soap products vary in fat content, with such familiar products as bar toilet soap, usually containing about 85 percent fat, and packaged chips and flakes containing about 75 percent fat. It is apparent therefore that tallow and soap ceilings must be closely integrated.

The discussion which follows refers to the price relationships which have prevailed on tallow and soap since June 1950, and further describes the approximate position of soap manufacturers under the ceiling prices provided by CPR 10.

During the period under review, soap prices have been set by manufacturers in accordance with their normal procedure. Soap prices do not follow the day-by-day changes in the raw materials markets but more closely follow changes in the cost of manufacturers' inventories of such materials. In an advancing tallow market, the cost of current purchases is high relative to the average cost of manufacturers' inventories. If inventories are small, the average is increased more by a high priced purchase than if inventories are large. With each substantial rise in inventory costs, soap prices are raised.

A further factor in determining soap prices, is the price of glycerine, which to the soap manufacturer is a by-product. If glycerine prices are increasing along with tallow prices, the credit on the former becomes an increasingly important offset to the latter.

June 1950 marked the end of a period of months during which soap prices had been stable as had those for tallow. There followed a series of price increases for soap, each reflecting average inventory cost (adjusted for glycerine credit), each falling short of reflecting the current tallow market. The final general advance by the three large soap companies, followed by the rest of the industry, took place on December 8 and on the few days immediately following. The market price of tallow was about 15 cents, and inventories were held at a slightly lower cost. Between December 8 and January 15, tallow continued to advance and prior to the latter date, two of the three largest manufacturers of soap gave notice to this Agency of their intention to advance their prices on soap. At this time the market for tallow was about 17 cents and the inventories of soap manufacturers were held at a slightly lower figure. This increase became effective a week later since the two manufacturers were among the many who were complying with the request of the Director to give 7-days' notice of price advances. The January 20 increase was followed by virtually every manufacturer except one of the three largest. This latter manufacturer likewise filed notice of an increase but the 7-day period had not elapsed when the General Ceiling Price Regulation became effective on January 25.

Under the General Ceiling Price Regulation, as noted above, most sellers of tallow had ceilings of about 18 cents although some had lower ceilings and a few had higher ceilings. It is evident that these ceilings were not fully reflected in the ceiling prices of the soap manufacturers generally and fell far short of being reflected in the ceilings of the one manufacturer who had delayed taking action.

Similarly, since only a few days remained in what was to become the December 19–January 25 base period of the General Ceiling Price Regulation, many wholesalers and retailers did not reflect to their customers the last advances by the soap manufacturers.

Having established the feasibility of reducing tallow prices to the 15 cent level, the Director called a meeting of representative soap manufacturers to obtain their advice on his proposals to reduce their ceiling prices to the levels established on December 8 and of cancelling the advances effective January 20. While the conclusion was reached that such action would be fair and equitable, it is recognized that since tallow prices and soap prices will be reduced proportionately the question remains open whether the profit margins of manufacturers are squeezed at the present time. As noted above, it is indicated that soap prices have not fully reflected advancing tallow costs. Nor does this action reflect any determination with respect to additional burdens imposed by the advancing price of coconut oil (which is not subject to price control), of packaging and other materials, or of direct labor.

A relatively small amount of soap is sold by packagers or brand name owners who purchase the saponified or detergent product from others. Prices for this category of seller have been established so as to reflect December 1950 tallow prices.

Export price ceilings have been established at one quarter of a cent above domestic ceiling prices. This figure will adequately cover exporters' actual costs of preparing tallows and greases for export.

In summary the following are the results which will be accomplished by these price actions:

1. In many cases retailers will be able to reduce their selling prices to the consumer for these important cost-of-living items. Conversely the necessity of an increase in retail prices is avoided.

2. Many retailers and wholesalers are relieved of a serious squeeze on profit margins.

3. Many contract and bid purchasers of soap will be able to secure offerings, with tallow at 15 cents, which were not forthcoming with tallow at 18 cents because of the low ceiling prices of their suppliers under the General Ceiling Price Regulation.

4. Soap manufacturers generally will be left in about the same continuing position relative to tallow prices as they have been under the General Ceiling Price Regulation. It will be necessary for them to absorb high cost tallow purchased under existing contracts and in some cases, in accordance with trade practice, to protect warehouse stocks.

5. It will permit owners of soap brand names and soap packagers to establish prices reflecting December 1950 tallow prices.

6. The status of the renderer is approximately unchanged because of the rollback in the price of both of his raw materials and his finished products.

7. The income of the retail meat dealer is reduced by a very small amount because of the small rollback in prices paid to him for his waste materials by the renderer.

REGULATORY PROVISIONS

Sec.
1. What this regulation does.
2. Applicability, effective date, and prohibitions.
3. Ceiling prices for manufacturers of soaps and cleansers.
4. Evasion.
5. Enforcement.
6. Records.
7. Petitions for amendment.
8. Definitions.

AUTHORITY: Sections 1 to 8 issued under sec. 704, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong. Interpret or apply Title IV, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.; E. O. 10161, Sept. 9, 1950, 15 F. R. 6105, 3 CFR, 1950 Supp.

SECTION 1. What this regulation does. The purpose of this regulation is to establish specific ceiling prices for manufacturers of household soaps and cleansers. These ceiling prices supersede those established for household soaps and cleansers by the General Ceiling Price Regulation.

SEC. 2. Applicability and prohibitions—(a) Applicability. The provisions of this regulation are applicable to the United States and the District of Columbia.

(b) Prohibitions. After the date of this regulation you shall not sell, and you shall not buy in the regular course of business or trade, at a price exceeding the ceiling prices established by this regulation, any household soaps or cleansers for which a ceiling price or a method for computing a ceiling price is set forth in this regulation.

SEC. 3. Ceiling prices for manufacturers of household soaps and cleansers. (a) If you converted tallows and greases into soap, during the month of December 1950, your ceiling prices for household soaps and cleansers are the highest prices at which you made a bona fide offer to deliver such soaps and cleansers to a purchaser of the same class during the month of December 1950. If you did not offer such soaps and cleansers for delivery during the above period, your ceiling prices for such soaps and cleansers shall be those of your most closely competitive seller of the same class selling the same types of soaps and cleansers to the same class of purchaser.

(b) If you did not convert tallows and greases into soap, but purchased the saponified or detergent product from another manufacturer, your ceiling price is the price established in paragraph (a) of this section plus an amount equal to the difference between your last purchasing price prior to December 1950, and your supplier's ceiling price under this regulation.

SEC. 4. Evasion. You shall not evade or attempt to avoid the operation of the provisions of this regulation by direct or indirect methods in connection with the purchase, sale, delivery or transfer of household soaps and cleansers or by way of premium, commission, service, transportation or other charge or by trade agreement, trade understanding, or otherwise.

SEC. 5. Enforcement. If you violate any provisions of this regulation, you are subject to the criminal penalties, civil enforcement actions, and suits for damages provided for by the Defense Production Act of 1950.

SEC. 6. Records. (a) From the effective date of this regulation, if you sell household soaps and cleansers for which ceiling prices are established by this regulation, you must preserve and keep available for a period of two years accurate records of each sale. Your records must inclule:

(1) Date of each sale;
(2) The name of the purchaser;
(3) The price paid or received;
(4) The grade, quality, and amounts sold.

(b) With respect to commodities covered by this regulation, the record requirements in sections 16 (a) (2) and (3) and 16 (b) of the General Ceiling Price Regulation are hereby superseded.

SEC. 7. Petitions for amendment. If you wish to have this regulation amended, you may file a petition for amendment in accordance with the provisions of Price Procedural Regulation 1, 15 F. R. 9055.

Sec. 8. Definitions. (a) The terms used in this regulation shall, unless defined herein, or unless the context requires a different meaning, have the same meaning as when used in the General Ceiling Price Regulation.

(b) The term "household soaps and cleansers" means any brand or unbranded, cut, packaged, or bulk, soap, soap product, synthetic detergent or cleanser which is customarily sold for household use. Such products may include, but are not limited to:

(1) "Bar toilet soap," meaning any bar or cake soap or synthetic detergent in cake or bar form sold for toilet use.

(2) "Bar laundry soap," meaning any bar soap sold for laundry use, including, but not limited to, white or yellow bar laundry soap.

(3) "Cleanser or scouring powder," meaning any soap product containing soap and/or synthetic detergent, powdered abrasive material with or without alkali builders.

(4) "Package soap," meaning any fine fabric or general laundry soap in the form of chips, flakes, granules, powder or similar forms with anhydrous soap content of 50 per cent or more, or any synthetic detergents in flake, granular, powder or liquid form which have the same use and purpose as such soaps, or products containing a combination of soap and synthetic detergents with or without alkaline builders.

(5) "Washing powders," meaning any soap powders with anhydrous soap content of less than 50 per cent.

(c) "Manufacturer," meaning a person who:

(1) Produces a household soap or cleanser;

(2) Puts a household soap or cleanser into packages or cuts or stamps these products into bars or cakes and sells said packages, bars or cakes under his own or another's brand name; or

(3) Owns the brand name of a household soap or cleanser; or

(4) Uses soap, soap products, soapless detergents or cleansers made by others as a raw material, and by the addition of other materials makes a finished product which is sold for detergent uses.

Effective date: This regulation shall become effective the 12th day of March 1951.

NOTES: The record keeping and reporting requirements of this regulation have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

Chapter VI—National Production Authority, Department of Commerce

[NPA Order M-5, as amended, March 7, 1951]

M-5—RATED ORDERS FOR ALUMINUM

This amendment to NPA Order M-5, dated February 1, 1951, is found necessary and appropriate to promote the national defense and is issued pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950. In the formulation of this order there has been consultation with industry representatives, including trade association representatives, and consideration has been given to their recommendations.

This amendment affects NPA Order M-5 by changing the percentage in paragraph (a) of section 5.

As amended, this order now reads as follows:

Sec.
1. What this order does.

AUTHORITY: Sections 1 to 13 issued under sec. 704, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong. Interprets or applies sec. 101, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.; sec. 101, E. O. 10161, Sept. 9, 1950, 15 F. R. 6105; 3 CFR, 1950 Supp., sec. 2, E. O. 10200, Jan. 3, 1951, 16 F. R. 61.

SECTION 1. What this order does. This order applies particularly to primary and secondary producers, fabricators, distributors and jobbers of aluminum and provides rules for placing, accepting, and scheduling rated orders for aluminum. Its purpose is to make possible maximum production of aluminum by reducing to a minimum disruption of normal distribution and by providing equitable distribution of rated orders among all aluminum producers and fabricators and all distributors and jobbers of aluminum. It supplements NPA Reg. 2, but only those provisions of Reg. 2 which are contradictory to this order are superseded, and all other provisions of that order continue to apply to the aluminum industry.

SEC. 2. Aluminum forms and products to which this order applies. This order applies to the following forms and products of aluminum.

Rod and bar.
Wire (under ⅜").
Cable (electrical transmission only).
Rivets.
Forgings and pressings (before machining).
Impact extrusions.
Castings.
Rolled structural shapes (angles, channels, zees, tees, etc.).
Extruded shapes.
Sheet, strip and plate.
Slugs.
Foil.
Tubing.
Tube blooms.
Powder (including atomized, granular, flake, paste and pigment).
Ingot, pig, billets, slabs.

SEC. 3. Required delivery dates. A rated order for aluminum in the forms listed in section 2 must specify shipment on a particular date or during a particular month, which in no case may be earlier than required by the person placing the order. The producer of aluminum must schedule the order for shipment within the requested month as close to the requested shipment date as is practicable considering the need for maximum production.

SEC. 4. Rejection of rated orders. Producers and fabricators of aluminum in the forms listed in section 2 need not accept a rated order which is received less than 60 days prior to the first day of the month in which shipment is requested, unless specifically directed to accept the order by the National Production Authority.

SEC. 5. Limitations for acceptance of rated orders. Subject to the tonnage limitation stated in section 6 and unless specifically directed by the National Production Authority:

(a) In order to make provision for a supply of metal to independent fabricators of aluminum, producers of primary aluminum shall accept rated orders from such fabricators up to 11½ percent of their scheduled production each month of primary pig and ingot;

(b) No aluminum producer or fabricator shall be required to accept rated orders for the products listed below for shipment in any one month in excess of the following percentages of his average monthly shipments of such products during the first eight months of 1950:

	Percent
Sheet (coiled and flat), Plate, Circles, and Blanks	40
Extrusions and Tubing	45
Rolled Shapes	30
Rod, Bar, Wire and Cable	35
Forgings and Pressings	60
Castings	40
Secondary Ingots	45
All Other Mill Products, Each	40

SEC. 6. Total tonnage limitation for acceptance of rated orders. Unless specifically directed by the National Production Authority:

(a) No producer of primary aluminum shall be required to accept rated orders for shipment in any one month of a total tonnage of aluminum products, including pig and ingot, in excess of 45 percent of his scheduled production in terms of total primary pig tonnage for that month; no producer of secondary aluminum shall be required to accept rated orders for shipment in any one month of a total tonnage of aluminum products, including ingots, in excess of 45 percent of his scheduled production in terms of total ingot tonnage for that month;

(b) No fabricator of aluminum shall be required to accept rated orders for shipment in any one month of a total tonnage of aluminum products in excess of 45 percent of his average monthly shipments during the first 8 months of 1950.

SEC. 7. Distributors and jobbers. Unless specifically directed by the National Production Authority, no distributor or jobber of aluminum products shall be required to accept rated orders for shipment in any one month of a total tonnage of aluminum products in excess of 25 percent of the products available to him during such month.

SEC. 8. Scheduled programs. The National Production Authority will from time to time approve scheduled programs calling for the production and delivery of aluminum products for stated purposes over specified periods of time. Upon approval of major programs of this type, supplements to this order will be issued describing such programs and specifying the manner in which they are to be carried out by the Aluminum Industry. Thereafter, directives will be issued to individual concerns establishing schedules for their participation in such programs. Such directives shall be complied with by the recipients in accordance with the terms thereof, unless otherwise directed by the National Production Authority.

SEC. 9. NPA assistance in placing rated orders. Any person who is unable to place a rated order for aluminum due to the limitations imposed by sections 5, 6 or 7 should apply to the National Production Authority, Light Metals Division, Washington 25, D. C., Ref. M-5, specifying the producers, fabricators, distributors or jobbers who refused to accept the order. The National Production Authority will arrange to assist him in locating sources of supply.

SEC. 10. Adjustments and exceptions. Any person affected by any provision of this order may file a request for adjustment or exception upon the ground that such provision works an unreasonable hardship upon him not suffered generally by others in the same trade or industry or that its enforcement against him would not be in the interest of national defense. Each request shall be in writing and shall set forth all pertinent facts and the nature of the relief sought, and shall state the reasons why denial of the request could result in undue and exceptional hardship.

SEC. 11. Communications. All communications concerning this order shall be addressed to National Production Authority, Washington 25, D. C., Ref: M-5.

SEC. 12. Reports. Persons subject to this order shall make such records and submit such reports to the National Production Authority as it shall require, subject to the terms of the Federal Reports Act.

SEC. 13. Violations. Any person who wilfully violates any provision of this order or any other order or regulation of the National Production Authority or wilfully conceals a material fact or furnishes false information in the course of operation under this order is guilty of a crime and upon conviction may be punished by fine or imprisonment or both. In addition, administrative action may be taken against any such person to suspend his privilege of making or receiving further deliveries of materials or using facilities under priority or allocation control and to deprive him of further priorities assistance.

This order, as amended, shall take effect on April 1, 1951.

[NPA Order M-34 as amended Mar. 8, 1951]

SOLE LEATHER

This order as amended is found necessary and appropriate to promote the national defense and is issued pursuant to the authority granted by section 101 of the Defense Production Act of 1950. In the formulation of this order, there has been consultation with industry representatives, including trade association representatives, and consideration has been given to their recommendations.

This amendment affects NPA Order M-34 by amending section 4 (d). As amended this order now reads as follows:

Sec.
1. What this order does.
2. Definitions.
3. Restrictions on tanning of sole leather.
4. Restrictions on cutting hides and on cutting and sale of sole leather.
5. Restrictions on sales, deliveries and use of cut stock.
6. Limitation for acceptance of rated orders.
7. NPA assistance in placing rated orders and disposing of inventories of midsoles and innersoles.
8. Adjustments and exceptions.
9. Records.
10. Audit and inspection.
11. Reports.
12. Communications.
13. Violations.

AUTHORITY: Sections 1 to 13 issued under sec. 704, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong. Interprets or applies sec. 101, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.; sec. 101, E. O. 10161, Sept. 9, 1950, 15 F. R. 6105; 3 CFR, 1950 Supp., sec. 2, E. O. 10200, Jan. 3, 1951, 16 F. R. 61.

SECTION 1. What this order does. This order applies particularly to tanners, cutters and any person who owns or possesses sole leather whole stock, midsoles of military weight and quality or innersoles of military weight and quality. It does not apply to any person whose use of sole leather is confined exclusively to the repairing of shoes for the general public. The purpose of this order is to insure the production of military grade midsoles and innersoles in quantities necessary to meet military requirements. This order prescribes how sole leather must be processed and cut; prohibits the cutting of sole leather unless so cut as to produce the quantities of military grade midsoles and innersoles set forth in Schedule A at the end of this order, which Schedule is hereby made a part of this order; and restricts the sale, delivery, processing or other use of all such soles cut after the effective date of this order, to the filling of orders for military shoes. This order further provides for equitable distribution of rated orders among all sole cutters in order to make possible maximum production of such soles and to reduce to a minimum disruption of normal distribution. In addition it calls for monthly reports by every sole cutter on the quantities of sole leather cut. This order supplements NPA Reg. 2, but only those provisions of Reg. 2 which are inconsistent with this order are superseded and all other provisions of Reg. 2 continue to apply to the sole leather industry.

SEC. 2. Definitions. As used in this order:

(a) "Person" means any individual, corporation, partnership, association or any other organized group of persons and includes agencies of the United States or any other government.

(b) "Sole leather" means vegetable tanned sole leather commercially known as "manufacturers' " type.

(c) "Midsoles of military weight and quality" means men's cut soles of 7 to 8 iron, inclusive, of fine, semi-fine, imperfect fine, and No. 1 scratch grade or as otherwise required by the applicable specifications for military shoes.

(d) "Innersoles of military weight and quality" means men's soles of 5½ to 7½ iron, inclusive, first quality, full grain leather with strong fibre, of quality adapted to innersole use.

(e) "Whole stock" means sole leather sides, backs, bends, crops, strips, shoulders, bellies, and belly centers.

(f) "Sole cutter" means any person who produces outer soles, midsoles, innersoles, blocks, squares, strips, or taps from sole leather, including an independent cutter, a tanner cutter, a packer-tanner cutter, a shoe manufacturer cutter, and a tanner-shoe manufacturer cutter. Such term does not include a person whose use of sole leather is confined exclusively to the repairing of shoes for the general public.

(g) "Military shoes" means shoes required to fill orders for the United States Department of Defense and Coast Guard.

(h) "Put into process" with respect to midsoles and innersoles means the first step taken in the preparation of such cut stock for shoe making or for attachments to shoes or shoe uppers.

(i) "NPA" means National Production Authority.

(j) All trade terms shall have their usual trade significance unless otherwise specified in this order.

SEC. 3. Restrictions on tanning of sole leather. No person shall process sole leather except in accordance with the requirements of Federal Specification KK-L-261C, including any emergency alternate specifications, or amendments thereof.

SEC. 4. Restrictions on cutting hides and on cutting and sale of sole leather. (a) No person shall cut bellies from cattle hides processed for sole leather (excluding stags and bulls) except in accordance with standard practice, but bellies weighing 3 pounds or more when finished shall not be cut to measure less than 6 inches across the navel when finished.

(b) No persons shall cut shoulders from cattle hides processed for sole leather (excluding stags and bulls) except in a line running perpendicularly to line of backbone at a point within the limits of the break in the foreflank.

(c) No sole cutter shall cut any whole stock unless such cutting will produce at least the quantities of midsoles of military weight and quality and innersoles of military weight and quality set forth in Schedule A at the end of this order. Counters meeting military specifications may be cut in substitution for innersoles but only to the extent necessary to meet orders for military shoes and in the ratio set forth in said Schedule A. All such midsoles and innersoles shall be cut on Army size dies or commercial patterns fitting the Munson last currently used for the Department of Army, in sizes and widths to fit the sizes of shoes bought on U. S. Army tariffs as issued, or shall be cut in accordance with the shoe order schedules of the Navy or Marine Corps. In the absence of such tariffs or schedules the cut stock to which this order applies shall be of sizes meeting normal commercial cut stock casing practices.

(d) No person shall sell or deliver whole stock to any person other than a sole cutter or a person engaged in the business of selling and delivering whole stock to sole cutters exclusively.

SEC. 5. Restrictions on sales, deliveries and use of cut stock. No sole cutter shall, after the effective date of this order, sell, deliver, put into process, or otherwise use any midsoles of military weight and quality or innersoles of military weight and quality which are cut pursuant to section 4, except to fill DO rated orders for military shoes.

SEC. 6. Limitation for acceptance of rated orders. Unless otherwise specifically directed by NPA, no sole cutter shall be required to accept DO rated orders for midsoles of military weight and quality or innersoles of military weight and quality for shipment in any one month in excess of his scheduled production of such midsoles or innersoles in that month, in accordance with the provisions of this order.

SEC. 7. NPA assistance in placing rated orders and disposing of inventories of midsoles and innersoles. Any person who is unable to place a rated order for midsoles of military weight and quality or innersoles of military weight and quality due to a limitation imposed by section 6 should apply to NPA, Ref. Order M-34, specifying the sole cutters who refused to accept the order. NPA will arrange to assist him in locating sources of supply. A sole cutter may at any time apply to NPA for assistance in disposing of his inventories of midsoles and innersoles which may be accumulated as a result of this order. Provision is made for such requests in the form referred to in section 11.

SEC. 8. Adjustments and exceptions. Any person affected by any provision of this order may file with NPA a request for adjustment or exception upon the ground that such provision works an undue or exceptional hardship upon him not suffered generally by others in the same trade or industry or that its enforcement against him would not be in the interests of national defense or in the public interest. In considering requests for adjustment which claim that the public interest is prejudiced by the application of any provision of this order, consideration will be given to the requirements of public health and safety, civilian defense, and dislocation of labor and resulting unemployment that would impair the defense program. Each such request shall be in writing and shall set forth all pertinent facts, the nature of the relief sought and the justification therefor.

SEC. 9. Records. Each person participating in any transaction covered by this order shall retain in his possession for at least 2 years records of receipts, deliveries, inventories and use, in sufficient detail to permit an audit that determines for each transaction whether the provisions of this order have been met. This does not specify any particular accounting method and does not require alteration of the system of records customarily maintained, provided such records supply an adequate basis for audit. Records may be retained in the form of microfilm or other photographic copies instead of the originals.

SEC. 10. Audit and inspection. All records required by this order shall be made available at the usual place of business where maintained for inspection and audit by duly authorized representatives of NPA.

SEC. 11. Reports. (a) Every sole cutter shall on or before the 10th day of each month, commencing March 10, 1951, file with NPA a report on Form NPAF-28, setting forth the number of pieces of sole leather cut and all other information required by such form. The first of such reports shall cover the period from the effective date of this order to and including February 28, 1951. Thereafter each such report shall cover the calendar month immediately preceding the month in which such report is required to be filed.

(b) Persons subject to this order shall make such records and submit such other reports to NPA as it shall require, subject to the terms of the Federal Reports Act of 1942 (Pub. Law 831, 77th Cong., 5 U. S. C. 139-139F).

SEC. 12. Communications. All communications and reports concerning this order shall be addressed to National Production Authority, Washington 25, D. C., Ref. M-34.

SEC. 13. Violations. Any person who wilfully violates any provision of this order or any other order or regulation of NPA or wilfully conceals a material fact or furnishes false information in the course of operation under this order is guilty of a crime and upon conviction may be punished by fine or imprisonment or both. In addition, administrative action may be taken against such person to suspend his privilege of making or receiving further deliveries of materials or using facilities under priority or allocation control and to deprive him of further priorities assistance.

NOTE: All reporting and record-keeping requirements of this order have been approved by the Bureau of Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

This order as amended shall take effect on March 8, 1951.

NATIONAL PRODUCTION AUTHORITY,
[SEAL] MANLY FLEISCHMANN,
Administrator.

Schedule A

From each day's cutting of whole stock (1) the total number of pairs of midsoles of military weight and quality shall be at least equal to the total number of pieces of the respective whole stock part (listed in Column A) cut that day, multiplied by the number of pairs, if any, in Column B set opposite the name of such respective whole stock part, and (2) the total number of pairs of innersoles of military weight and quality shall be at least equal to the total number of pieces of such respective whole stock part cut that day, multiplied by the number of pairs, if any, in Column C, or, in the case of belly and belly center parts, multiplied by the maximum possible number of pairs, as follows:

Column A	Column B	Column C
Whole stock part	Pairs of midsoles per piece cut	Pairs of innersoles per piece cut[1]
Bend, any weight[2]	1½	1 (5½ to 7½ iron, incl.).
Crop, any weight	1½	3 (6 to 7½ iron, incl.).
Back, any weight	1½	3 (6 to 7½ iron, incl.).
Belly	0	Maximum possible (5½ to 7½ iron, incl.).
Belly center	0	Maximum possible (5½ to 7½ iron, incl.).
Single shoulder	0	2 (6 to 7½ iron, incl.).

[1] Subject to the provisions of section 4 of Order M-34 (of which this Schedule is a part), counters may be cut in substitution for innersoles to the extent required by military orders in the ratio of two pairs of counters to one pair of innersoles.

[2] Includes bend strips, blocks or squares on the basis of ten pounds equals one bend.

Chapter X—Defense Solid Fuels Administration, Department of the Interior

[Order 2605, Amdt. 2]

ORDER 2605—DEFENSE ADMINISTRATIONS FOR MINERALS, POWER, SOLID FUELS, AND FISHERIES

MARCH 6, 1951.

Order No. 2605 (15 F. R. 8718) is revised to read as follows:

Sec.
1. Purpose.
2. Establishment of Administrations.
3. Delegation of authority.
4. Limitations.
5. Policies and procedures.

AUTHORITY: Sections 1 to 5 issued under sec. 704, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.

SECTION 1. Purpose. The purpose of this order is to establish the Defense Minerals Administration, the Defense Electric Power Administration, the Defense Solid Fuels Administration, and the Defense Fisheries Administration, to carry out the functions vested in the Secretary of the Interior under the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.) with respect to metals and minerals, electric power, solid fuels and fishery commodities.

SEC. 2. Establishment of Administrations. There are established a Defense Minerals Administration, a Defense Electric Power Administration, a Defense Solid Fuels Administration, and a Defense Fisheries Administration. Each of the defense administrations shall be headed by an Administrator who shall be appointed by the Secretary of the Interior and who shall report and be responsible directly to the Secretary.

SEC. 3. Delegation of authority. Except as provided in section 4 of this order, and except as the Secretary of the Interior may otherwise provide, all of the functions and powers vested in the Secretary of the Interior by Executive Order 10161 as amended (15 F. R. 6105, 16 F. R. 61) and by redelegations made to him under that order by appropriate officers of the Government and by redelegations made by the Defense Production Administrator under Executive Order 10200 (16 F. R. 61) may be performed and exercised by:

(a) The Administrator of the Defense Minerals Administration in so far as these functions and powers relate to metals and minerals,

(b) The Administrator of the Defense Electric Power Administration in so far as these functions and powers relate to electric power,

(c) The Administrator of the Defense Solid Fuels Administration in so far as these functions and powers relate to solid fuels, and

(d) The Administrator of the Defense Fisheries Administration in so far as these functions and powers relate to fishery commodities.

SEC. 4. Limitations. (a) Section 3 of this order does not authorize any of the Administrators there mentioned to:

(1) Exercise any functions or powers which cannot be redelegated by the Secretary of the Interior under the provisions of Executive Order 10161 or under redelegations pursuant to that order or under redelegations made by the Defense Production Administrator pursuant to Executive Order 10200, or

(2) Redelegate any power or function to any person other than an officer of the agency which the Administrator heads.

(b) With respect to the defense administrations established by this order, the Secretary of the Interior reserves to himself the maintenance of interagency relationships respecting matters which are common to two or more defense administrations, including representation on the policy level with the Office of Defense Mobilization, the Defense Production Administration, the National Production Authority, the Executive Office of the President, other major agencies concerned with defense production, and the Congress.

SEC. 5. Policies and procedures. The powers and functions delegated by this order shall be exercised subject to the direction and control of the Secretary of the Interior. This order will be supplemented from time to time by policy and procedural instructions respecting the exercise of powers and performance of functions by the Administrators.

SEC. 6. Effect on other orders. This order does not affect section 4 of Order 2509, Order 2596, or Order 2609.

OSCAR L. CHAPMAN,
Secretary of the Interior.

CR 1—RESIDENTIAL CREDIT CONTROLS: POLICY AND PROCEDURE FOR PROCESSING AND APPROVAL OF EXCEPTIONS AND TERMS FOR AREAS AFFECTED BY SAVANNAH RIVER (S. C. AND GA.) AND PADUCAH (KY.) INSTALLATIONS OF THE ATOMIC ENERGY COMMISSION

The following policy and procedure statement is issued pursuant to Reorganization Plan No. 3 of 1947 (61 Stat. 954), sections 601 through 605 and section 704 of Public Law 774, 81st Cong. (64 Stat. 813, 814, 815, 816), sections 501, 502 and 902 of Executive Order 10161, September 9, 1950 (15 F. R. 6106), and the approval and authorization by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System immediately following this statement:

SECTION 1. Areas of Savannah River (S. C. and Ga.) and Paducah (Ky.) Installations of Atomic Energy Commission. In the areas of the Savannah River installation and the Paducah, Kentucky, installation of the Atomic Energy Commission the restrictions on residential real estate construction credit imposed by Regulation X of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System and by the related regulations of the Federal Housing Commissioner and the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs have been relaxed to meet the need for housing accommodations to support the development and operation of the installations. The relaxation of these restrictions has been based on housing market field surveys. Exceptions from credit restrictions will be issued in accordance with area program schedules adopted from time to time by the Housing and Home Finance Agency. Such program schedules relate to the location of the housing within the area, the number and types of rental and sales units required, the levels of rentals or sales prices which must be achieved if the housing is to meet the needs of the persons employed or stationed at the installations for whom it is to be made available, and similar factors.

With respect to proposed housing so programmed by the Housing and Home Finance Administrator, real estate credit restrictions of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, the Federal Housing Commissioner, and the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs have been relaxed to the extent prescribed by such Board and agencies, respectively, subject to such conditions and requirements as are found necessary by the Housing and Home Finance Administrator to assure that the proposed housing will serve the purpose for which the credit restrictions were relaxed.

With respect to housing programmed for rent in accordance with this procedure, the relaxed credit restrictions will be made available only upon the approval by the Housing and Home Finance Administrator of an application submitted to the local field office of the Housing and Home Finance Agency on a form prescribed by the Administrator. This application must be submitted by the person proposing to construct the housing, and will be approved only if the housing is found by the Administrator to be within reasonable commuting distance of the above Atomic Energy Commission installations. Such person and his successors in interest must agree to such conditions and requirements as are prescribed in the application form and in appropriate regulations or procedures of the Housing and Home Finance Administrator. These conditions and requirements are for the purpose of assuring that the housing will be so built, rented, and occupied as to meet most effectively the housing needs of persons engaged in national defense activities and to best support the development and the operations of the above Atomic Energy Commission installations.

With respect to housing programmed for sale in accordance with the proposed procedure, such housing may be sold for the purchaser's own occupancy or built for the owner-occupant only if the prospective purchaser or owner-occupant has been issued a certificate from the Atomic Energy Commission indicating his eligibility as a person engaged or to be engaged in national defense activities.

(Sec. 704, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong. Interprets or applies Title VI, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong., secs. 501, 502, 902, E. O. 10161, Sept. 9, 1950, 15 F. R. 6105, 3 CFR, 1950 Supp.)

Dated: March 6, 1951.

RAYMOND M. FOLEY,
Housing and Home Finance Administrator.

The Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System hereby approves, for application in the areas of the Savannah River installation and the Paducah, Kentucky, installation of the Atomic Energy Commission, the policy and procedure described above and, for the purpose of making the policy and procedure applicable to residential real estate construction credit subject to Regulation X (Chapter XV of this title), authorizes the Housing and Home Finance Administrator or his designee to take such administrative action as he determines to be appropriate in carrying out such policy and procedure, including the issuance of specific forms, applications, and regulations.

Dated: March 6, 1951.

BOARD OF GOVERNORS OF THE FEDERAL RESERVE SYSTEM, S. R. CARPENTER,
Secretary.

GENERAL

SECTION 1. Statement of purpose. In order to reduce serious inflationary pressures and to limit residential construction to a level which can be met with the materials and labor available in the light of national defense requirements, certain restrictions on residential real estate credit have been imposed, with the concurrence of the Housing and Home Finance Administrator, by Regulation X (Chapter XV of this title) issued by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System (hereinafter called the "Board") and by related regulations of the Federal Housing Commissioner and the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs. That action was taken under the authority of Title VI of the Defense Production Act of 1950, approved September 8, 1950, and of Executive Order 10161, issued September 9, 1950. The Housing and Home Finance Administrator has made surveys with respect to the housing needs within the areas affected by the Savannah River installation and the Paducah, Kentucky, installation of the Atomic Energy Commission and has designated such areas, with the concurrence of the Board and in accordance with section 6 (p) of said Regulation X (Chapter XV of this title), as areas for prescribing relaxed credit terms in order to help provide the housing needed to support the development and operation of the two installations. Residential credit controls in the two areas will continue to be administered by the Board with respect to real estate construction credit which is subject to said Regulation X and by the Federal Housing Administration and the Veterans' Administration, respectively, with respect to residential real estate credit assisted under the programs of those two agencies. Accordingly, relaxed or modified credit terms applicable in the Savannah River and Paducah areas are being announced by those agencies for their respective spheres of responsibility.

It is the purpose of this Regulation CR 2, issued by the Housing and Home Finance Agency, to prescribe uniform conditions and procedures under which such relaxed credit terms will be made available in order to assure that the housing financed under the relaxed credit terms authorized by the Board, the Federal Housing Administration and the Veterans' Administration will meet the needs of the persons employed or stationed at the two installations.

SEC. 2. What this regulation does. This regulation prescribes, among other things, who may apply for an exception from residential credit restrictions in the areas of the Savannah River and Paducah installations of the Atomic Energy Commission; the type of housing eligible; where and how to apply; the basis on which applications will be approved; the rules which applicants and their successors in interest must abide by with respect to holding and offering certain housing for rent to persons engaged in national defense activities and with respect to rents which may be charged; and the manner in which eligibility will be determined for the occupancy or purchase of housing for which credit restrictions have been relaxed.

SEC. 3. Geographical areas affected. The special exceptions from residential credit restrictions for areas affected by the Savannah River and Paducah installations of the Atomic Energy Commission are authorized only for housing which is within reasonable commuting distance from such installations. In the case of housing which is to be held for rent and for which application for exceptions from credit restrictions is made under sections 6 through 11 of this regulation, the Housing and Home Finance Administrator or his designee will determine whether the housing is within reasonable commuting distance. In the case of housing the construction or sale of which is financed in accordance with an exception under section 12 of this regulation, such determination will be made by the Atomic Energy Commission or its designee on the basis of standards concurred in by the Housing and Home Finance Administrator.

SEC. 4. Type of housing eligible. The special exceptions from residential credit restrictions for areas affected by the Savannah River and Paducah installations of the Atomic Energy Commission are authorized only for family dwellings which are suitable and intended for year-round occupancy. A family dwelling, for purposes of this regulation, means a house or apartment designed for residential occupancy by two or more persons and which contains kitchen facilities or space designed for kitchen facilities. It does not include hotels, motels, rooming houses, club houses, fraternity or sorority houses, dormitories, or any other structure designed or used either for transient accommodations or for occupancy by single persons or by non-family groups. Only real property containing a single-family or two-family structure may be financed pursuant to the exceptions governing sales housing referred to in section 12 of this regulation. Housing to be held for rent, and to be financed pursuant to the exceptions governing rental housing set out in sections 6 through 11 of this regulation, may consist of a single-family home or single-family homes (whether detached, semi-detached, or row houses), two- to four-family structures, or other multi-family structures.

SEC. 5. Programming by HHFA. As explained in Housing and Home Finance Agency CR 1, relaxations of residential real estate credit restrictions for areas affected by the Savannah River and Paducah installations of the Atomic Energy Commission were based on housing market field surveys by the HHFA and exceptions from credit restrictions will be approved in accordance with schedules of need determined by the HHFA. These program schedules relate to the location of the housing, the number and types of rental and sales units required, the levels of rentals or sales prices which must be achieved if the housing is to meet the needs of the persons employed or stationed at the Atomic Energy Commission installations, and similar factors. Accordingly, exceptions from credit restrictions will be approved on a selective basis pursuant to the procedures, standards, and conditions set out below.

HOUSING TO BE HELD FOR RENT

SEC. 6. Who may apply for exception from credit restrictions. With respect to housing programmed by the Housing and Home Finance Administrator for rental occupancy, application for a special defense exception from residential credit restrictions may be made only by a person (including a corporation, partnership, trust, or other legal entity) who is the owner of, or otherwise has effective control over, the land on which there is proposed to be erected a new family dwelling or dwellings which will be held for rental to eligible occupants as defined below. Effective control over the land, for the purposes of this section, includes holding ownership in fee simple, a firm contract to purchase, an option to purchase which may be exercised at the will of the applicant, or a long-term lease for a term of not less than 50 years.

SEC. 7. Where and how to apply. Application for an exception from credit restrictions with respect to housing to be held for rental should be made to the appropriate local office of the Housing and Home Finance Administrator at Aiken, South Carolina, or Paducah, Kentucky, on HHFA Form No. H-1051. A separate application should be made for each property or parcel which is intended to be financed separately when construction is completed. An original and three copies of the application form must be submitted for each application. Only the original need be signed. Each application must be accompanied by a letter from a lending institution or other lender stating that such lender intends, if the application is approved, to provide the financing for the residential property, including the proposed improvements, described in the application. Only the original letter or one certified copy need be submitted. If the application is approved, two copies of the application form will be returned to the applicant endorsed to indicate that an exception from the credit restrictions has been approved. One of these copies must be submitted to the lending institution or other lender making the loan. Such lender need not necessarily be the lending institution or proposed lender which furnished the letter which was required to accompany the application. The applicant will also be notified if the application is rejected.

SEC. 8. Standards for approving application. As among applications otherwise eligible for approval under the terms of this regulation, applications made under sections 6 through 11 will be approved for dwelling units within a total number consistent with program schedules adopted from time to time by the Housing and Home Finance Administrator pursuant to the surveys and procedures referred to in section 5 above on the basis of achieving a maximum contribution toward filling the needs for rental housing of persons employed or stationed at the Atomic Energy Commission installation which the proposed housing is intended to serve. For this purpose, the Housing and Home Finance Administrator or his designee may consider the size of units in terms of the number of rooms and bedrooms proposed to be provided, the rentals proposed to be charged, the distance between the proposed housing and the Atomic Energy Commission installation, the desirability of the site of the housing in terms of transportation, commercial and community facilities, street improvements and utilities, similar relevant factors, and the order in which applications are filed.

SEC. 9. Time within which construction must be begun. When an application for an exception from credit restrictions is approved under sections 6 through 11 of this regulation, construction of the housing described in the application should be begun not later than sixty calendar days after the date of the approval, and should be continued with reasonable diligence thereafter. Unless construction is begun within such sixty-day period and is so continued, the approval automatically expires and becomes null and void. For the purposes of said sections 6 through 11, construction shall be deemed to be begun when any essential materials which are to be an integral part of the structure have been affixed to or incorporated on the site in a permanent form.

SEC. 10. Rules and conditions applicable. (a) In the event that an application for an exception from credit restrictions is approved pursuant to sections 6 through 11, the applicant is hereby required, for a period of five years after the completion of the housing, to:

(1) Notify the Housing and Home Finance Agency in writing (i) when the construction of the dwelling unit or units described in the application is begun, and (ii) when any such dwelling unit is completed;

(2) Notify the Atomic Energy Commission installation which the housing is intended to serve, in writing, (i) when any such dwelling unit is completed and (ii) whenever any such dwelling unit is vacated by its occupant;

(3) Publicly offer any such dwelling unit for rent, for a period of at least thirty calendar days after the Atomic Energy Commission has been given any notification with respect to such unit required by subparagraph (2) of this paragraph, to such persons, and only to such persons, as are certified by the Atomic Energy Commission to be eligible to rent such unit, unless the unit has already been rented to such a person;

(4) Charge not more than the rent or rents specified in the application;

(5) Hold the dwelling unit or units for rent unless (i) the property is being sold to a purchaser for investment purposes rather than for his own occupancy, or (ii) prior permission to sell is granted in writing by the Housing and Home Finance Agency, or (iii) a period of at least sixty calendar days has elapsed after the Atomic Energy Commission has been given any notification required by paragraph (2) above and the Commission has failed to certify a person who is willing to rent and public offering has not produced a tenant; and

(6) Require that the purchaser, if the property is sold pursuant to subdivision (i) of subparagraph (5) of this paragraph, agree in writing to abide by all the provisions and conditions set forth in this regulation, including this paragraph, which shall be applicable to all successive sales pursuant to said subdivision (i) of subparagraph (5) of this paragraph made by the first and all successive purchasers for investment purposes.

For the purposes of this section, a dwelling shall be deemed to be completed when, in conformity with general practice in the community, it is ready for occupancy.

The written notifications required to be given by subparagraph (2) of this paragraph shall be deemed to be given as of the date when they are received by the Atomic Energy Commission or, if mailed, as of the date they are postmarked.

(b) No purchaser of property for investment purposes (pursuant to paragraph (a) (5) (i) of this section shall occupy a dwelling unit in such property unless it contains two or more family dwelling units and such purchaser has himself been certified by the Atomic Energy Commission as eligible for occupancy of a dwelling pursuant to section 11 below or unless such occupancy is pursuant to paragraph (c).

(c) Notwithstanding any provision of this section, if a parcel of real property contains five or more family dwelling units required to be held for rent under sections 6 through 11 of this regulation, the owner of said parcel, or a person actually employed as a resident manager or janitor of said dwelling units, may occupy one of such units. Two such units may be occupied by such owners, resident managers, or janitors if the property required to be held for rent pursuant to said sections contains not less than 20 family dwelling units, and an additional unit may be so occupied for every additional 30 family dwelling units above 20.

(d) Sales in the course of judicial or statutory proceedings in connection with foreclosures are not subject to the provisions of this section.

SEC. 11. Certification by Atomic Energy Commission of persons eligible for occupancy. The Atomic Energy Commission, or any officer or employee of said Commission designated by it, is hereby authorized to certify (by the issuance of appropriate certificates of tenancy eligibility) persons who shall be eligible to rent housing for which an exception from credit restrictions has been approved by the Housing and Home Finance Agency pursuant to sections 6 through 11 of this regulation. Such certifications of tenancy eligibility shall be granted only to persons (including, for purposes of said sections 6 through 11, Atomic Energy Commission contractors on behalf of such persons) whom the Atomic Energy Commission (or its designees) determines to be essential, immigrant personnel employed or to be employed by said Commission or its contractors (or stationed at an installation of said Commission) and who are in need of family dwellings. The Atomic Energy Commission (or its designees) is authorized to prescribe such further requirements or conditions of eligibility as it shall determine to be reasonable and in the interest of national defense.

HOUSING BUILT OR SOLD FOR OWNER-OCCUPANCY

SEC. 12. Certificates of eligibility for financing, pursuant to relaxed credit terms, of owner-occupied housing for Atomic Energy Commission employees. (a) The Atomic Energy Commission or any officer or employee of the Commission designated by it (hereinafter collectively referred to as the "Commission") is hereby authorized to certify (by the issuance of appropriate certificates of ownership eligibility) persons who shall be eligible to finance the construction or purchase of family dwellings, for their own occupancy, under relaxed residential credit terms prescribed for the Savannah River and Paducah areas by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, the Federal Housing Commissioner and the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs. Such certificates of ownership eligibility shall be issued only for one- and two-family dwelling properties (whether existing or to be built) determined by the Commission to be within reasonable commuting distance of its installations and shall be issued in accordance with program schedules for sales type houses prescribed by the Housing and Home Finance Administrator from time to time on the basis of the surveys and procedures referred to in section 5 of this regulation. Such certificates shall be granted by the Commission only to persons whom the Commission determines to be essential, in-migrant personnel employed (or to be employed) in permanent positions by the Commission or its contractors; to be in need of family dwellings; and to have declared their intention to occupy at least one family dwelling unit in the property, the construction or purchase of which is financed pursuant to such a certificate of ownership eligibility.

(b) The Commission is authorized to prescribe such further requirements for, or conditions to, the issuance of certificates of ownership eligibility (including conditions governing the expiration or cancellation of such certificates) as it shall determine to be reasonable and in the interest of national defense.

(c) A lending institution or other lender which makes a loan under relaxed residential credit terms pursuant to an exception granted under this section 12 shall obtain from the borrower the certificate of ownership eligibility issued to such borrower by the Atomic Energy Commission.

This regulation is effective March 10, 1951.

RAYMOND M. FOLEY,
Housing and Home Finance Administrator.

[Docket No. 3722]

EASTERN AIR LINES, INC.

NOTICE OF POSTPONEMENT OF ORAL ARGUMENT

In the matter of whether the mail rate petition of Eastern Air Lines, Inc., filed April 4, 1949, in this proceeding should be dismissed insofar as it requests the fixing of a mail rate for the Miami-San Juan route for the period between July 8, 1947, and April 7, 1948, for lack of jurisdiction, on the ground that the existing mail rate had not been placed in issue by the institution of a rate proceeding affecting it prior to April 7, 1948 (Order E-4090).

Notice is hereby given, pursuant to the provisions of the Civil Aeronautics Act of 1938, as amended, that oral argument in the above-entitled proceeding assigned to be held before the Board on March 12, 1951, is hereby postponed to a date to be later determined.

Dated at Washington, D. C., March 8, 1951.

TENNESSEE GAS TRANSMISSION CO. AND UNITED NATURAL GAS CO.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION

MARCH 6, 1951.

Take notice that Tennessee Gas Transmission Company, a Delaware corporation, with its principal office at Houston, Texas, and United Natural Gas Company, a Pennsylvania corporation, with its principal office at Oil City, Pennsylvania, filed on February 16, 1951, a joint application pursuant to section 7 (c) of the Natural Gas Act for a certificate of public convenience and necessity authorizing the construction and operation of facilities necessary to develop the Oriskany Horizon of the Hebron Field in Potter County, Pennsylvania, for underground storage of natural gas, all as more fully described in the application.

The total over-all capital cost of the proposed new facilities is approximately $7,757,200.

Protests or petitions to intervene should be filed with the Federal Power Commission, Washington 25, D. C., in accordance with the rules of practice and procedure (18 CFR 1.8 or 1.10) before the 26th day of March 1951. The application is on file with the Commission for public inspection.

[Docket No. G-1616]

CENTRAL WEST UTILITY CO.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION

MARCH 6, 1951.

Take notice that The Central West Utility Company (Applicant), a Kansas corporation with its principal place of business at Kansas City, Missouri, filed on February 19, 1951:

(1) An application for an order of the Commission under section 7 (a) of the Natural Gas Act directing Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Company (Panhandle), a natural-gas company subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission and with its principal place of business at Kansas City, Missouri, to establish a physical connection of its transportation facilities with the proposed connecting pipe line of, and to sell additional volumes of natural gas to, Applicant, as described in the petition filed on February 12, 1951, by Kansas City, Missouri, a municipal corporation, In the Matter of Kansas City, Missouri v. Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Company, Docket No. G-1609.

(2) An application pursuant to section 7 (c) of the act for a certificate of public convenience and necessity authorizing the construction and operation by Applicant of certain natural gas transmission pipe line facilities, or, in the alternative;

(3) A dismissal of the application for a certificate of public convenience and necessity for lack of jurisdiction.

Applicant proposes to construct an 8-inch diameter pipeline extending from the requested point of connection where Panhandle's 8-inch diameter pipeline is reduced to a 6-inch line south of Liberty, Missouri, northwesterly approximately 6½ miles to Applicant's distribution line at the city limits of Kansas City. It is estimated such line will have a capacity of approximately 22,000 Mcf per day.

By means of the proposed facilities, Applicant states it will be able to meet the present and future demands for natural gas of its distribution system in Clay County, Missouri, particularly in an area annexed to Kansas City on January 1, 1950, and certain areas not presently provided with gas service. Applicant alleges Panhandle has not been able to supply it with sufficient gas to meet present and anticipated normal increases in demand for natural gas service in the Missouri territory served by Applicant

The estimated over-all capital cost of the proposed project is approximately $105,000.

Protests or petitions to intervene may be filed with the Federal Power Commission, Washington 25, D. C., in accordance with the rules of practice and procedure (18 CFR 1.8 or 1.10) on or before the 26th day of March 1951. The application is on file with the Commission for public inspection.

ATLANTIC SEABOARD CORP.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION

MARCH 7, 1951.

Take notice that Atlantic Seaboard Corporation (Applicant), a Delaware corporation, address, Charleston, West Virginia, filed on February 26, 1951, an application for a certificate of public convenience and necessity pursuant to section 7 of the Natural Gas Act, authorizing the construction and operation on a permanent basis of two interconnections between the transmission pipelines of the Applicant and those of the Transcontinental Gas Pipe Line Corporation. The facilities were installed last December on a 60-day emergency basis pursuant to § 157.14 of the Commission's general rules and regulations. The facilities consist of the pipeline interconnections and the necessary meter runs for measuring the gas. One of the interconnections is located near Rockville, Maryland, and the other near Ellicott City, Maryland. Applicant estimates that the delivery capacity of the two interconnections totals approximately 300,000 Mcf of gas per day.

The Applicant proposes to continue use of the facilities for future emergencies, and the two companies are now negotiating an agreement therefor. Applicant represents that the granting of the certificate would insure more reliable service to the customers of each of the pipeline companies.

Protests or petitions to intervene may be filed with the Federal Power Commission, Washington 25, D. C., in accordance with the Rules of Practice and Procedure (18 CFR 1.8 or 1.10) on or before the 26th day of March 1951. The application is on file with the Commission for public inspection.

NEW YORK STATE NATURAL GAS CORP.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION

MARCH 6, 1951.

Take notice that New York State Natural Gas Corporation (Applicant), a New York corporation, address New York City, New York, filed on February 26, 1951, an application for a certificate of public convenience and necessity pursuant to section 7 of the Natural Gas Act, authorizing the construction and operation of approximately 39.1 miles of 20-inch loop pipeline paralleling the southern part of Applicant's existing Line No. 14 which extends from Applicant's State Line Compressing Station in Potter County, Pennsylvania, to the boundary line between Livingston and Monroe Counties, New York.

Applicant proposes to utilize said facilities to deliver larger quantities of natural gas to meet estimated requirements of its customers who are now supplied from Line No. 14. Applicant estimates the present capacity of its Line No. 14 to be approximately 75,000 Mcf per day of natural gas, and expects that the proposed facilities will enable it to meet a peak load on said line of 117,000 Mcf anticipated in January 1954.

The estimated cost of the proposed facilities is $2,093,700.00. The proposed financing will be with funds to be obtained by sale of Applicant's securities to its parent, Consolidated Natural Gas Company.

Protests or petitions to intervene may be filed with the Federal Power Commission, Washington 25, D. C., in accordance with the rules of practice and procedure (18 CFR 1.8 or 1.10) on or before the 26th day of March 1951. The application is on file with the Commission for public inspection.

BLACK HILLS POWER AND LIGHT CO. AND RUSHMORE G. & T. ELECTRIC COOPERATIVE, INC.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION

MARCH 6, 1951.

Take notice that on March 5, 1951, a joint application was filed with the Federal Power Commission, pursuant to section 203 of the Federal Power Act, by Black Hills Power and Light Company, a corporation organized under the laws of the State of South Dakota and doing business in the States of Wyoming and South Dakota, with its principal business office at Rapid City, South Dakota, and Rushmore G. & T. Electric Cooperative, Inc. of Rapid City, South Dakota, seeking an order disclaiming jurisdiction over the transaction hereinafter described, or, in the alternative, an order authorizing the lease of a 10,000 kw unit at Osage, Wyoming. Applicant, Black Hills, proposes to lease said electric facilities for a period of 35 years and will sell and transmit electric power and energy to the cooperative. Applicants assert that the application is filed as a matter of information and said transaction is not, in its opinion, a disposition of facilities by sale, lease, or otherwise, or a merger or consolidation of facilities, or a purchase or acquisition of facilities within the meaning of the Federal Power Act; all as more fully appears in the application on file with the Commission.

Any person desiring to be heard or to make any protest with reference to said application should, on or before the 21st day of March 1951, file with the Federal Power Commission, Washington 25, D. C., a petition or protest in accordance with the Commission's rules of practice and procedure. The application is on file with the Commission for public inspection.

ILLINOIS INTRASTATE MULTIPLE-RIDE AND COMMUTATION FARES

At a session of the Interstate Commerce Commission, Division 1, held at its office in Washington, D. C., on the 28th day of February A. D. 1951.

It appearing, that a petition was filed on January 8, 1951, by the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific Railroad Company, a common carrier by railroad operating to and from points in the State of Illinois in interstate and intrastate commerce, averring (a) that its intrastate multiple-ride and commutation passenger fares between Chicago and stations in Illinois are on a basis not exceeding 2 cents per mile; (b) that its interstate 10- and 25-ride multiple passenger fares are on a basis in excess of 2 cents per mile; (c) that because a statute of the State of Illinois prohibits the establishment of intrastate passenger fares exceeding 2 cents per mile the petitioner cannot secure permission from the Illinois Commerce Commission, the State authority regulating passenger fares in such State, to increase intrastate multiple-ride and commutation passenger fares on its railroad, as more fully stated in the petition; (d) that because of inability to increase such intrastate fares the petitioner is being deprived of needed revenue; (e) that no difference in operating, traffic, or other transportation conditions exists which would warrant a different basis of fares for interstate than for intrastate passengers in the Chicago Suburban Area; (f) that transportation of persons at multiple-ride and commutation fares between points in Illinois produces the greater part of petitioner's revenue from suburban passenger operations; (g) that such intrastate fares are unreasonably low; and (h) that the refusal of the Illinois Commerce Commission to permit the petitioner to increase them results, and will continue to result, in undue and unreasonable advantage, preference and undue prejudice as between persons and localities in intrastate commerce in Illinois on the one hand, and interstate commerce on the other, and in unjust and unreasonable discrimination against interstate commerce, in violation of the Interstate Commerce Act;

It further appearing, that the said petition brings in issue rates, fares and charges for transportation of passengers made or imposed by authority of the State of Illinois;

And it further appearing, that the Illinois Commerce Commission on January 22, 1951, filed a statement containing a motion to dismiss the petition herein upon the ground that the petitioning railroad has not exhausted its remedies under the laws of the State of Illinois to secure approval of its proposals to increase intrastate passenger fares, and has not alleged facts sufficient to give the Interstate Commerce Commission jurisdiction in the matter, and it appearing that investigation of the alleged violations of the Interstate Commerce Act should proceed in due course:

It is ordered, That the motion of the Illinois Commerce Commission be, and it is hereby, overruled, without prejudice, pending presentation of evidence;

It is further ordered, That in response to said petition an investigation be, and it is hereby, instituted and that a hearing be held therein to determine whether the multiple-ride and commutation fares of the petitioner for the intrastate transportation of passengers made or imposed by the State of Illinois cause, or will cause, any undue or unreasonable advantage, preference or prejudice as between persons or localities in intrastate commerce on the one hand, and interstate or foreign commerce on the other, or any undue, unreasonable, or unjust discrimination against interstate commerce; and to determine what rates, fares and charges, if any, or what maximum, minimum, or maximum and minimum rates, fares, and charges shall be prescribed to remove the unlawful advantage, preference, prejudice, or discrimination, if any, that may be found to exist;

It is further ordered, That the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific Railroad Company be, and it is hereby, made respondent to this proceeding; that a copy of this order be served upon said respondent; and that the State of Illinois be notified of this proceeding by sending copies of this order and of said petition by registered mail to the Governor of that State and to the Illinois Commerce Commission at Springfield, Illinois;

It is further ordered, That notice of this proceeding be given to the public by depositing a copy of this order in the office of the Secretary of the Commission at Washington, D. C., and by filing a copy with the Director, Division of the Federal Register, Washington, D. C.;

And it is further ordered, That this proceeding be set for hearing at such times and places as the Commission may hereinafter direct.

NIAGARA MOHAWK POWER CORP.

ORDER GRANTING APPLICATION

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission, held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C., on the 6th day of March A. D. 1951.

Niagara Mohawk Power Corporation ("Niagara Mohawk"), a subsidiary of The United Corporation, a registered holding company, having filed an application pursuant to the provisions of section 6 (b) of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 with respect to the following proposed transactions:

Pursuant to the terms of a loan agreement, Niagara Mohawk proposes to borrow an aggregate of $35,000,000 from time to time during the year 1951 on notes maturing December 31, 1951, but with an option of renewal for a period of an additional year to December 31, 1952. The notes will bear interest at the minimum rate generally being charged by banks in New York City for prime 90-day commercial loans on the day of the notice of the original borrowing under the loan agreement but in no event less than 2¼ percent per annum nor more than 2½ percent per annum. It is further proposed that Niagara Mohawk pay to each of the participating banks a commitment fee at the rate of one quarter of one percent per annum for the period from January 2, 1951, on the average daily difference between the amount of the bank's commitment and the amount borrowed from the bank under the loan agreement. The proceeds from the sale of such notes will be used for the construction of additional utility plant.

By order dated February 27, 1951, the Public Service Commission of the State of New York approved the proposed issue and sale of notes by Niagara Mohawk.

Said application having been filed on January 29, 1951, and the last amendment thereto having been filed on March 2, 1951, and notice of said filing having been duly given in the form and manner prescribed by Rule U-23 promulgated pursuant to said Act, and the Commission not having received a request for hearing with respect to said application within the period specified in said notice, or otherwise, and not having ordered a hearing thereon; and

The Commission finding with respect to said application that the requirements of the applicable provisions of the Act and Rules thereunder are satisfied, and deeming it appropriate in the public interest and in the interest of investors and consumers that the said application be granted:

It is ordered, Pursuant to Rule U-23 and the applicable provisions of said Act, that the said application be, and hereby is, granted forthwith subject to the terms and conditions prescribed in Rule U-24.

By the Commission.

SOUTHERN CO. ET AL.

NOTICE OF FILING

In the matter of The Southern Co., Alabama Power Co., Georgia Power Co., Gulf Power Co., Mississippi Power Co.; File No. 70-2574.

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C., on the 6th day of March A. D., 1951.

Notice is hereby given that The Southern Company ("Southern"), a registered holding company, and four of its subsidiaries, namely, Alabama Power Company ("Alabama"), Georgia Power Company ("Georgia"), Gulf Power Company ("Gulf"), and Mississippi Power Company ("Mississippi"), have filed with this Commission a joint application-declaration, and one amendment thereto, under the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 (the "act"). The filing has designated sections 6, 7, 9, 10 and 12 of the act, and Rules U-43 and U-50, promulgated thereunder, as being applicable to the transactions described therein.

Notice is further given that any interested person may, not later than March 19, 1951, at 5:30 p. m., e. s. t., request the Commission in writing that a hearing be held on such matter, stating the nature of his interest, the reasons for such request and the issues, if any, of fact or law proposed to be controverted, or he may request that he be notified if the Commission should order a hearing thereon. At any time after said date, said joint application-declaration, as filed or as amended, may be granted and permitted to become effective as provided in Rule U-23 of the rules and regulations promulgated under the act, or the Commission may exempt such transactions as provided in Rules U-20 and U-100 thereof. Any such request should be addressed: Secretary, Securities and Exchange Commission, 425 Second Street NW., Washington 25, D. C.

All interested persons are referred to said amended joint application-declaration which is on file in the office of this Commission for a statement of the transactions therein proposed, which are summarized as follows:

Southern proposes to issue and sell, at competitive bidding pursuant to Rule U-50, one million shares of its authorized but unissued common stock, par value $5 per share. The proceeds from the sale of this common stock, together with treasury funds of Southern to the extent required, are to be invested in the purchase of common stock of four of its subsidiary operating companies in order to assist them in financing their construction programs.

Southern proposes to acquire and the respective subsidiaries propose to issue and sell to Southern common stock as follows: 50,000 shares of additional common stock of Alabama for $5,000,000; 294,400 shares of additional common stock of Georgia for $5,000,000; 40,000 shares of additional common stock of Gulf for $2,000,000; and 75,000 shares of additional common stock of Mississippi for $2,000,000.

The filing indicates that the total construction expenditures of the subsidiary operating companies of Southern (including in addition to the companies hereinbefore named, Birmingham Electric Company) are estimated at approximately $218,100,000 for the years 1951 through 1953, of which approximately $78,200,000 will be expended during 1951, $81,600,000 during 1952 and $58,300,000 during 1953. Of this total construction program approximately $97,700,000 is for the construction of additional generating capacity and related substation equipment and outgoing lines; approximately $29,600,000 for electric transmission lines and substation additions; approximately $74,200,000 for electric distribution system additions; approximately $7,000,000 for construction of additions to rural electric lines; and approximately $9,600,000 for other miscellaneous additions, substantially all to electric properties. The filing states that, based upon the present level of earnings and current expectations with respect to the progress of the contemplated construction programs an aggregate of approximately $122,000,000 will have to be provided before the end of 1953 by the issuance and sale to the public of additional securities of types and in amounts not yet definitely determined.

The joint application-declaration requests that any order of this Commission authorizing the proposed transactions become effective forthwith upon issuance.

By the Commission.

[SEAL] ORVAL L. DUBOIS,
Secretary.

AMERICAN GAS AND ELECTRIC CO.

NOTICE OF FILING

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C., on the 6th day of March A. D. 1951.

Notice is hereby given that American Gas and Electric Company ("American Gas"), a registered holding company, has filed a declaration pursuant to the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935, and has designated sections 6 (a), 7 and 12 (c) thereof and Rules U-42 and U-50 of the Rules and Regulations promulgated thereunder as applicable to the proposed transactions which are summarized as follows:

American Gas proposes to issue and sell not in excess of 339,832 shares of its presently authorized but unissued $10 par value common stock, the precise number of shares to be issued to be determined on the record date. The stock will be offered to the common stockholders of American Gas of record as of the close of business March 30, 1951, or such later date as the registration statement shall become effective. Stockholders will be given the opportunity to subscribe for one share of common stock for each fifteen shares held and the further conditional privilege to subscribe for shares of additional common stock not required to satisfy subscriptions pursuant to rights. If there are insufficient shares to satisfy all subscriptions pursuant to the conditional privilege, the available shares will be allotted pro rata among those exercising the conditional privilege proportionately to the rights they have exercised.

Subscription rights and conditional purchase privileges will be evidenced by transferrable warrants. No fractional shares of additional common stock will be issued. American Gas will, through its subscription agent, provide facilities for the purchase of such additional rights as are necessary for subscription to one full share of stock or for the sale of subscription rights in excess of those necessary for full shares of stock.

American Gas proposes publicly to invite competitive bids pursuant to Rule U-50 for the purchase at the subscription price of such shares as are not subscribed for, such invitation to request the prospective underwriters to name the amount of compensation to be paid by American Gas for such services. The price per share at which American Gas proposes to offer the common stock to its common stockholders and to underwriters will be determined by American Gas. Prospective underwriters who have qualified will be notified of the subscription price per share as determined by American Gas at least 42 hours prior to the receipt of bids.

The declaration states that American Gas may effect transactions on the New York Stock Exchange, in the open market, or otherwise, for the purpose of stabilizing the price of its common stock during the period commencing with the first business day prior to the date when the price per share is determined up to the time of acceptance of a bid for the common stock.

The declaration states that the proceeds from the sale of common stock will be used to purchase from time to time additional amounts of the equity securities of the company's subsidiaries and for other corporate purposes. Investments in the subsidiaries will enable those companies, in part, to meet their construction programs.

It is further requested that the competitive bidding period be shortened to nine days so that the bids may be received on March 29, 1951.

Notice is further given that any interested person may, not later than March 19, 1951 at 11:30 a. m., e. s. t., request in writing that a hearing be held on such matter, stating the nature of his interest, the reasons for such request and the issues of fact or law, if any, raised by said declaration, which he desires to controvert, or may request that he be notified if the Commission should order a hearing thereon. Any such request should be addressed: Secretary, Securities and Exchange Commission, 425 Second Street NW., Washington 25, D. C. At any time after March 19, 1951, at 11:30 a. m., e. s. t., said declaration, as filed or as amended, may be permitted to become effective as provided in Rule U-23 of the rules and regulations promulgated under said act, or the Commission may exempt such transactions as provided in Rule U-20 (a) and Rule U-100 thereof. All interested persons are referred to said declaration which is on file with this Commission for a statement of the transactions therein proposed.

By the Commission.

NOTE: Arrangement and numbering. Each section of the regulations has been given a key number corresponding to the number of the section or subsection of the Internal Revenue Code which the regulations section interprets. Inasmuch as the regulations constitute Part 40 of Title 26 of the Code of Federal Regulations, each key number is preceded by the number 40 and a decimal point. The key number is followed by a dash (-) and the identifying number of the regulations section.

PART I—RATE AND COMPUTATION OF TAX

SEC. 101. IMPOSITION OF EXCESS PROFITS TAX [EXCESS PROFITS TAX ACT OF 1950, APPROVED JANUARY 3, 1951].

Effective with respect to taxable years ending after June 30, 1950, chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code is hereby amended by adding after section 424 the following new subchapter:

§ 40.0 Scope of regulations in this part. (a) The regulations in this part deal with the excess profits tax imposed by the Excess Profits Tax Act of 1950 (subchapter D of chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code), which act is referred to in the regulations in this part as the "act," and which tax is referred to in these regulations as the "excess profits tax." Such tax is to be distinguished from the excess profits tax imposed by subchapter E of chapter 2 of the Internal Revenue Code for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1939, and before January 1, 1946.

(b) The regulations in this part, authorized by section 62 of the Internal Revenue Code, are prescribed as a supplement to the income tax regulations applicable generally under the Internal Revenue Code. See Part 29 of this chapter (Regulations 111), applicable to income tax for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1941. The excess profits tax is imposed as a part of the income tax on corporations under chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code, similar to the normal tax and surtax. The normal tax, surtax, and excess profits tax on corporations are reported on the corporation income tax return, and are treated as one tax for all purposes, including assessment, collection, payment, period of limitations, and the consolidated return privilege. See Part 29 of this chapter (Regulations 111) as to the time for filing the return and the payment of tax.

(c) The terms used in the regulations in this part in respect of the excess profits tax have, unless otherwise provided, the same meaning as when used in respect of the income tax in Part 29 of this chapter (Regulations 111). Similarly, all provisions of law (including penalties) applicable in respect of the income tax under Part 29 of this chapter (Regulations 111), are, insofar as not inconsistent with the regulations in this part, applicable in respect of the excess profits tax. Every corporation (except a corporation exempt from excess profits tax under section 454) must file with, and as a part of, its income tax return the applicable schedule with respect to the excess profits tax.

(d) Each section, subsection, or paragraph of the Internal Revenue Code set forth in this part shall be considered as a part of the respective regulations section to which it corresponds.

(e) Except as otherwise indicated, the statutory references in the regulations in this part are to the Internal Revenue Code. As used in the regulations in this part, the word "Code" means the Internal Revenue Code.

SEC. 430. IMPOSITION OF TAX.

(a) General rule. In addition to other taxes imposed by this chapter, there shall be levied, collected, and paid for each taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, and beginning before July 1, 1953, upon the adjusted excess profits net income, as defined in section 431, of every corporation (except a corporation exempt under section 454) an excess profits tax equal to whichever of the following amounts is the lesser:

(1) 30 per centum of the adjusted excess profits net income, or

(2) An amount equal to the excess of 62 per centum of the excess profits net income for the taxable year over the tax which would be imposed for the taxable year under sections 13, 14, and 15, supplement G, and supplement Q, whichever are applicable to the taxpayer, computed (subject to section 108 and section 141, if applicable) as if the amount of the normal-tax net income and the amount of the corporation surtax net income (or the amount subject to the rate of tax in such supplement) were equal to the amount of the excess profits net income for such year.

(b) Taxable years beginning before July 1, 1950, and ending after June 30, 1950. In the case of a taxable year beginning before July 1, 1950, and ending after June 30, 1950, the tax imposed by subsection (a) shall be an amount equal to that portion of a tentative tax, determined under subsection (a), which the number of days in such taxable year after June 30, 1950, bears to the total number of days in such taxable year.

(c) Taxable years beginning before July 1, 1953, and ending after June 30, 1953. In the case of a taxable year beginning before July 1, 1953, and ending after June 30, 1953, the tax imposed by subsection (a) shall be an amount equal to that portion of a tentative tax, determined under subsection (a), which the number of days in such taxable year before July 1, 1953, bears to the total number of days in such taxable year.

(d) Mutual insurance companies. In the case of a mutual insurance company other than life or marine, if the gross amount received from interest, dividends, rents, and premiums (including deposits and assessments) is over $75,000 but less than $125,000, the tax imposed under this section shall be an amount which bears the same proportion to the amount ascertained under this section, computed without reference to this subsection, as the excess over $75,000 of such gross amount received bears to $50,000.

(e) Cross references. For special rules for computation of the tax imposed by subsection (a) in the case of—

(1) Short taxable years, see section 433 (a) (2);

(2) Corporations engaged in mining of strategic materials, see section 450 (a);

(3) Abnormalities in income in taxable period, see section 456;

(4) Corporations completing contracts under Merchant Marine Act, see section 457.

§ 40.430–1 Scope of tax. The excess profits tax is imposed by subchapter D of chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code and is in addition to all other taxes imposed by chapter 1. The excess profits tax is imposed upon the adjusted excess profits net income of every corporation, both domestic and foreign, for each taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, and beginning before July 1, 1953, except in the case of certain corporations which are exempt from the tax under the provisions of section 454. A personal service corporation, as defined in section 449, may, if it is not a member of an affiliated group of corporations filing consolidated returns under section 141, elect not to be subject to the excess profits tax, thereby making its income taxable to its shareholders as provided in Supplement S of the Internal Revenue Code. See section 449.

§ 40.430–2 Rate of tax.—(a) In general. (1) The excess profits tax shall be whichever of the following is the lesser:

(i) An amount equal to 30 percent of the adjusted excess profits net income, or

(ii) An amount equal to the excess of 62 percent of the excess profits net income for the taxable year over the tax which would be imposed for such year under sections 13, 14, and 15, Supplement G, and Supplement Q, whichever are applicable to the taxpayer, computed (subject to section 108, relating to fiscal year taxpayers, and section 141, relating to consolidated returns, if applicable) as if the amount of the normal-tax net income and the amount of the corporation surtax net income (or the amount subject to the rate of tax in such supplement) were equal to the amount of the excess profits net income for such year.

(2) For purposes of section 430 (a) (2) and of subdivision (ii) of subparagraph (1) of this paragraph, the tax which would be imposed under sections 13, 14, and 15, Supplement G, and Supplement Q shall be determined without regard to the credit under section 131 for taxes paid to a foreign country or a possession of the United States. In the case of the calendar year 1950, the tax which would be imposed under section 15 shall be determined without regard to any reduction by reference to the credit provided in section 26 (a), relating to credit for interest on obligations of the United States and its instrumentalities, and therefore shall be equal to the tentative surtax which would be imposed under section 15. Thus, in the case of a taxpayer other than an insurance company or a regulated investment company subject to Supplement G or Supplement Q, the normal tax referred to in section 430 (a) (2) for the calendar year 1950 is 23 percent of the excess profits net income, and the surtax referred to in section 430 (a) (2) for the calendar year 1950 is 19 percent of the amount by which the excess profits net income exceeds $25,000, plus, if a consolidated return is filed, 2 percent of the excess profits net income.

(b) Taxable years beginning before July 1, 1950, and ending after June 30, 1950. In the case of any taxable year which begins before July 1, 1950, and ends after June 30, 1950 (including the calendar year 1950), the excess profits tax will be an amount which is proportionate to the part of the year falling after June 30, 1950. The tax will be an amount which is equal to that portion of a tentative tax computed under section 430 (a) and under paragraph (a) of this section as the number of days in the taxable year after June 30, 1950, bears to the total number of days in such year. Thus, in the case of the calendar year 1950, the tax will be 184/365ths of the tentative tax determined under paragraph (a) of this section.

(c) Taxable years beginning before July 1, 1953, and ending after June 30, 1953. In the case of a taxable year which begins before July 1, 1953, and ends after June 30, 1953, the excess profits tax will be an amount equal to that portion of a tentative tax determined under section 430 (a) and under paragraph (a) of this section as the number of days in such year prior to July 1, 1953, bears to the total number of days in such year.

(d) Mutual insurance companies. If a mutual insurance company, other than life or marine, receives a gross amount from interest, dividends, rents, and premiums (including deposits and assessments) in excess of $75,000 but less than $125,000, the tax imposed under section 430 is an amount which bears the same proportion to the amount of tax otherwise determined under such section, computed without regard to section 430 (d) and the provisions of this paragraph, as the excess over $75,000 of such gross amount received bears to $50,000. For example, assume that a mutual insurance company (other than a life or marine insurance company) receives a gross amount from interest, dividends, rents, and premiums of $115,000, and that its excess profits tax computed under section 430 (a) is $18,000. Under section 430 (d), the excess profits tax imposed under section 430 is $14,400, that is, $\left(\frac{$115,000-$75,000}{$50,000}\right)\times$18,000$.

(e) Cross references. As to the exemption of income in the case of certain corporations engaged in mining strategic minerals, see section 450; as to the excess profits tax in the case of corporations completing contracts under the Merchant Marine Act, see section 457; and in the case of corporations deriving abnormal income in the taxable year, see section 456. For the computation of the excess profits tax for a taxable year of less than 12 months, see the provisions of section 433 (a) (2).

SEC. 431. DEFINITION OF ADJUSTED EXCESS PROFITS NET INCOME.

The term "adjusted excess profits net income" in the case of any taxable year means the excess profits net income (as defined in section 433 (a)) minus the sum of:

(1) Excess profits credit. The amount of the excess profits credit allowed under section 434; and

(2) Unused excess profits credits. The amount of the unused excess profits credit adjustment for the taxable year computed in accordance with section 432.

If such sum is less than $25,000, it shall be increased to $25,000.

§ 40.431–1 Definition of adjusted excess profits net income. Adjusted excess profits net income in the case of any taxable year is excess profits net income, as defined in section 433 (a), minus the sum of (a) the taxpayer's excess profits credit allowed under section 434 and (b) its unused excess profits credit adjustment computed in accordance with section 432. If the sum of the excess profits credit and the unused excess profits credit adjustment is less than $25,000, such sum shall be increased to $25,000.

SEC. 432. UNUSED EXCESS PROFITS CREDIT ADJUSTMENT.

(a) Computation of unused excess profits credit adjustment. The unused excess profits credit adjustment for any taxable year shall be the aggregate of the unused excess profits credit carry-overs and unused excess profits credit carry-back to such taxable year.

(b) Definition of unused excess profits credit. The term "unused excess profits credit" means the excess, if any, of the excess profits credit for any taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, and beginning before July 1, 1953, over the excess profits net income for such taxable year, computed on the basis of the excess profits credit applicable to such taxable year, and computed without the allowance of any deduction under section 23 (s) (relating to net operating losses). The unused excess profits credit for a taxable year of less than 12 months shall be an amount which is such part of the unused excess profits credit determined under the preceding sentence as the number of days in the taxable year is of the number of days in the 12 months ending with the close of the taxable year. The unused excess profits credit for a taxable year beginning before July 1, 1950, and ending after June 30, 1950, shall be an amount which is such part of the unused excess profits credit determined under the preceding provisions of this subsection as the number of days in such taxable year after June 30, 1950, is of the total number of days in such taxable year. The unused excess profits credit for a taxable year beginning before July 1, 1953, and ending after June 30, 1953, shall be an amount which is such part of the unused excess profits credit determined under the preceding provisions of this subsection as the number of days in such taxable year before July 1, 1953, is of the total number of days in such taxable year. There shall be no unused excess profits credit for any taxable year for which the taxpayer is exempt from taxation under this subchapter.

(c) Amount of carry-back and carry-over.—(1) Unused excess profits credit carry-back. If for any taxable year beginning after July 1, 1950, the taxpayer has an unused excess profits credit, such unused excess profits credit shall be an unused excess profits credit carry-back for the preceding taxable year.

(2) Unused excess profits credit carry-over. If for any taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, the taxpayer has an unused excess profits credit, such unused excess profits credit shall be an unused excess profits credit carry-over for each of the five succeeding taxable years, except that the carry-over in the case of each such succeeding taxable year (other than the first succeeding taxable year) shall be the excess, if any, of the amount of such unused excess profits credit over the sum of the adjusted excess profits net income for each of the intervening taxable years computed—

(A) By determining the unused excess profits credit adjustment for each intervening taxable year without regard to such unused excess profits credit or to any unused excess profits credit for any succeeding year, and

(B) Without regard to the last sentence of section 431.

For the purpose of the preceding sentence the unused excess profits credit for any taxable year beginning after July 1, 1950, shall first be reduced by the amount, if any, of the adjusted excess profits net income for the preceding taxable year computed—

(C) By determining the unused excess profits credit adjustment for such preceding taxable year without regard to such unused excess profits credit, and

(D) Without regard to the last sentence of section 431.

If such preceding taxable year began prior to July 1, 1950, the reduction referred to in the preceding sentence shall be an amount which is such part of the reduction determined under the preceding sentence, or such part of the unused excess profits carry-back for such preceding taxable year, whichever is the lesser, as the number of days in such taxable year after June 30, 1950, is of the total number of days in such preceding taxable year.

(d) No carry-back to taxable years ending prior to July 1, 1950. As used in this section the term "preceding taxable year" does not include any taxable year ending prior to July 1, 1950.

(e) Unused excess profits credit of year of liquidation. For any taxable year during which the taxpayer (1) completes the distribution of substantially all of its assets in liquidation, or (2) completes the conversion of substantially all of its assets into assets not held in good faith for the purposes of the business, then the unused excess profits credit for such year shall be an amount which is such part of the unused excess profits credit determined under the preceding provisions of this section as the number of days in the taxable year prior to the date of the completion (described in (1) or (2), whichever is earlier) is of the total number of days in the taxable year, and no part of the unused excess profits credit for such year shall be an unused excess profits credit carry-over for any succeeding taxable year.

§ 40.432–1 Unused excess profits credit adjustment.—(a) Unused excess profits credit. Section 432 provides that the unused excess profits credit for any taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, and beginning before July 1, 1953, is the excess of the corporation's excess profits credit for such taxable year over its excess profits net income for such year computed without regard to the net operating loss deduction and computed on the basis of the excess profits credit applicable to such year. If the taxable year is less than 12 months the unused excess profits credit will be that portion of the unused excess profits credit determined under the general rule as the number of days in the taxable year is of the number of days in the 12-month period ending with the close of the taxable year. If the taxable year began before July 1, 1950, and ends after June 30, 1950, the unused excess profits credit will be an amount which is such portion of the unused excess profits credit determined under the general rule as the number of days in the taxable year after June 30, 1950, is of the total number of days in such taxable year. If the taxable year begins before July 1, 1953, and ends after June 30, 1953, the unused excess profits credit will be an amount which is such portion of the unused excess profits credit determined under the general rule as the number of days in the taxable year before July 1, 1953, is of the total number of days in such taxable year. There shall be no unused excess profits credit for any taxable year for which the taxpayer is exempt under section 454.

(b) Unused excess profits credit carry-back and carry-over. (1) The unused excess profits credit determined under section 432 (b) and under paragraph (a) of this section for any taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, will first be carried back to the first preceding taxable year as an unused excess profits credit carry-back. The balance of the unused credit may then be carried over to the five succeeding taxable years as an unused excess profits credit carry-over. If the preceding taxable year ends after June 30, 1950, the unused excess profits credit carry-over to the first succeeding taxable year will be the excess of the unused credit over the adjusted excess profits net income of the preceding taxable year. The adjusted excess profits net income for such preceding taxable year will be determined by computing the unused excess profits credit adjustment for such preceding taxable year without regard to the unused credit carry-back and without regard to the last sentence of section 431 providing for a minimum excess profits credit plus unused excess profits credit adjustment of $25,000.

(2) If the preceding taxable year began prior to July 1, 1950, the amount by which the unused credit is reduced for the purpose of computing the carry-over is an amount which is such part of the reduction determined under subparagraph (1) of this paragraph, or such part of the unused excess profits credit carry-back for such preceding taxable year, whichever is the lesser, as the number of days in such preceding taxable year after June 30, 1950, is of the total number of days in such preceding taxable year.

(3) In determining the unused excess profits credit carry-over to the second, third, fourth, and fifth taxable years, the unused excess profits credit is further reduced by the adjusted excess profits net income for each of the intervening taxable years. For such purpose, the adjusted excess profits net income for any intervening taxable year is determined (i) by computing the unused excess profits credit adjustment for such intervening year without regard to such unused credit and without regard to any unused excess profits credit for any year subsequent to the year of such unused credit, and (ii) by disregarding the last sentence of section 431 providing for a minimum excess profits credit plus unused excess profits credit adjustment of $25,000.

(4) For the purpose of computing the unused excess profits credit carry-over, an unused excess profits credit will not be decreased by reference to any taxable year ending prior to July 1, 1950. No unused excess profits credit carry-back to, and no unused excess profits credit carry-over from, any taxable year ended prior to July 1, 1950, is allowed.

(c) Unused excess profits credit of year of liquidation. If the taxpayer has distributed substantially all its assets in liquidation, or has converted substantially all its assets into assets not held in good faith for purposes of the business, see section 432 (e).

(d) Two or more prorations of unused credit. In any case in which the general rule stated in the first sentence of paragraph (a) of this section is subject to more than one of the special rules in paragraphs (a) and (c) of this section relating to proration of the unused excess profits credit, the special rules shall be applied in the order in which set forth in this section.

SEC. 433. EXCESS PROFITS NET INCOME.

(a) Taxable years ending after June 30, 1950. The excess profits net income for any taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, shall be the normal-tax net income, as defined in section 13 (a) (2), for such year increased or decreased by the following adjustments:

(1) Adjustments—(A) Dividends received. The credit for dividends received shall apply, without limitation (except the limitation relating to dividends in kind), to all dividends on stock of all corporations, except that no credit for dividends received shall be allowed with respect to dividends (actual or constructive) on stock of foreign personal holding companies or dividends on stock which is not a capital asset;

(B) Disallowance of certain credits. In computing such normal-tax net income the credits provided in section 26 (b) and (l) shall not be allowed;

(C) Gains and losses from sales or exchanges of capital assets. There shall be excluded gains and losses from sales or exchanges of capital assets;

(D) Income from retirement or discharge of bonds, and so forth. There shall be excluded, in the case of any taxpayer, income derived from the retirement or discharge by the taxpayer of any bond, debenture, note, or certificate or other evidence of indebtedness, if the obligation of the taxpayer has been outstanding for more than 6 months, including, in case the issuance was at a premium, the amount includible in income for such year solely because of such retirement or discharge;

(E) Refunds and interest on Agricultural Adjustment Act taxes. There shall be excluded income attributable to refund of tax paid under the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1933, as amended, and interest upon any such refund;

(F) Deductions on account of retirement or discharge of bonds, and so forth. If during the taxable year the taxpayer retires or discharges any bond, debenture, note, or certificate or other evidence of indebtedness, if the obligation of the taxpayer has been outstanding for more than 6 months, the following deductions for such taxable year shall not be allowed:

(i) The deduction allowable under section 23 (a) for expenses paid or incurred in connection with such retirement or discharge;

(ii) The deduction for losses allowable by reason of such retirement or discharge; and

(iii) In case the issuance was at a discount, the amount deductible for such year solely because of such retirement or discharge;

(G) Recoveries of bad debts. There shall be excluded income attributable to the recovery of a bad debt if the deduction of such debt was allowable from gross income for any taxable year beginning before January 1, 1940, or beginning after December 31, 1945, and ending before July 1, 1950, or if such debt was properly charged to a reserve for bad debts during any such taxable year;

(H) Life insurance companies. In the case of a life insurance company, there shall be deducted from the normal tax net income the excess of (1) the product of (I) the figure determined and proclaimed under section 202 (b) and (II) the excess profits net income computed without regard to this subparagraph, over (2) the adjustment for certain reserves provided in section 202 (c). If the excess profits credit for the taxable year is computed under section 436, there shall be deducted from the normal tax net income only 50 per centum of the amount determined under the preceding sentence;

(I) Nontaxable income of certain industries with depletable resources. In the case of a producer of minerals, or a producer of logs or lumber from a timber block, or a lessor of mineral property, or a timber block, as defined in section 453, there shall be excluded nontaxable income from exempt excess output of mines and timber blocks provided in section 453; in the case of a natural gas company, as defined in section 453, there shall be excluded nontaxable income from exempt excess output provided in section 453; and in the case of a producer of minerals, or a producer of logs or lumber from a timber block, there shall be excluded nontaxable bonus income provided in section 453. In respect of nontaxable bonus income provided in section 453 (c), a corporation described in section 453 (c) (2) shall be deemed a producer of minerals for the purposes of this subparagraph;

(J) Net operating loss deduction adjustment. The net operating loss deduction shall be adjusted as follows:

(i) In computing the net operating loss for any taxable year under section 122 (a), and the net income for any taxable year under section 122 (b), the deduction for interest shall be reduced by the amount of any reduction under subparagraph (N) or (O), whichever is applicable upon the basis of the excess profits credit for such taxable year; and

(ii) In lieu of the reduction provided in section 122 (c), such reduction shall be in the amount by which the excess profits net income computed with the exceptions and limitations specified in section 122 (d) (1), (2), (3), and (4), and computed without regard to subparagraph (C), without regard to any credit for dividends received, and without regard to any credit for interest received provided in section 26 (a) exceeds the excess profits net income (computed without the net operating loss deduction); and

(iii) If the excess profits credit for the first taxable year under this subchapter is computed under section 435 or is computed under section 436 (a) by use of the historical invested capital determined under section 458, the taxpayer may elect in its return for such taxable year to compute its net operating loss deduction for the purposes of this subsection for all taxable years by treating an amount equal to the base period loss adjustment (as defined in clause (iv)) as a net operating loss carry-over from the last taxable year ending before July 1, 1950, but for such purposes the net income computed under section 122 (b) for any taxable year ending before July 1, 1950, shall be determined without regard to such carry-over;

(iv) For the purposes of clause (iii), the base period loss adjustment shall be the amount of the recent loss adjustment determined under section 437 (f), using the base period as the recent loss period, and computed by limiting the amount of the net operating loss for any taxable year beginning before January 1, 1948, to an amount equal to the net operating loss carry-over from such taxable year to the taxable year immediately succeeding such taxable year; and

(v) If the taxpayer makes the election provided in clause (iii) of this subparagraph, the net operating loss deduction for the purposes of this subsection for each taxable year ending after June 30, 1950 (whether or not the credit for such taxable year is computed under section 435) shall be computed without regard to the net operating loss for any taxable year ending before July 1, 1950, and the net operating loss carry-over specified in clause (iii) of this subparagraph shall not be allowed as a net operating loss carry-over to any taxable year for which the excess profits credit is not computed under section 435 and is not computed under section 436 (a) by use of the historical invested capital determined under section 458;

(K) Taxes paid by lessee. If under a lease for a term of more than 20 years entered into prior to December 1, 1950, the lessee is obligated to pay any portion of the tax imposed by this chapter upon the lessor with respect to the rentals derived by such lessor from such lessee, or is obligated to reimburse the lessor for any portion of the tax imposed by this chapter upon the lessor with respect to the rentals derived by such lessor from such lessee, such payment or reimbursement of the tax imposed by this chapter shall be excluded by the lessor and a deduction therefor shall not be allowed to the lessee. For the purposes of this subparagraph an agreement for lease of railroad properties entered into prior to December 1, 1950, shall be considered to be a lease including such term as the total number of years such agreement may, unless sooner terminated, be renewed or continued under the terms of the agreement, and any such renewal or continuance under such agreement shall be considered part of the lease entered into prior to December 1, 1950;

(L) Bad debts in case of banks. In the case of a bank (as defined in section 104) using the reserve method of accounting for bad debts, there shall be allowed, in lieu of the amount allowable under the reserve method for bad debts, a deduction for debts which became worthless within the taxable year, in whole or in part, within the meaning of section 23 (k);

(M) Blocked foreign income. There shall be excluded income derived from sources within any foreign country to the extent that such income would, but for monetary, exchange, or other restrictions imposed by such foreign country, have been includible in the gross income of the taxpayer for any taxable year which preceded its first taxable year under this subchapter. In determining the taxable year for which income derived from foreign sources would have been includible (but for such restrictions) in cases where specific identification cannot be made, such determinations shall be made in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Secretary. Where income derived from sources within any foreign country is includible (without regard to this sentence) in a taxable year succeeding the first taxable year under this subchapter, and but for monetary, exchange, or other restrictions imposed by such foreign country would have been includible in the gross income of the taxpayer for its first taxable year under this subchapter, such income, in case such first taxable year began before July 1, 1950, shall be considered (in the application of this subparagraph) as having been includible in gross income of a taxable year which preceded such first taxable year in an amount equal to that portion of such income as the number of days prior to July 1, 1950, in such first taxable year bears to the total number of days in such first taxable year. Deductions properly chargeable and allocable to income excluded under this subparagraph shall not be allowed:

(N) Interest—credit based upon invested capital. If the excess profits credit for the taxable year is computed under section 436 the deduction for interest shall be reduced by an amount equal to 75 per centum of so much of such interest as represents interest on the indebtedness included in the daily amounts of borrowed capital (determined under section 439 (b)).

(O) Interest—credit based upon income. If the excess profits credit for the taxable year is computed under section 435, the deduction for interest shall be reduced by an amount which bears the same ratio to the interest on the indebtedness included in the daily amounts of borrowed capital (determined under section 439 (b)) as the excess of the amount determined under section 435 (g) (3) (C) over the aggregate, divided by the number of days in the taxable year, of the amount determined under section 435 (g) (4) (E) for each day of the taxable year, bears to the average borrowed capital for the taxable year (as defined in section 439 (a)).

(P) Payments to encourage exploration, development, and mining for defense purposes. An amount paid to a taxpayer by the United States (or any agency or instrumentality thereof), whether by grant or loan, and whether or not repayable, for the encouragement of exploration, development or mining of critical and strategic minerals or metals pursuant to or in connection with any undertaking approved by the United States (or any of its agencies or instrumentalities) and for which an accounting is made or required to be made to an appropriate governmental agency, and the forgiveness or discharge of any such amount, shall be excluded in computing excess profits net income; and any expenditures (other than expenditures made after the repayment of such grant or loan) attributable to such grant or loan shall not be deductible by the taxpayer as an expense nor increase the basis of the taxpayer's property either for determining gain or loss on sale, exchange, or other disposition or for computing depletion or depreciation, but upon the repayment of any portion of any such grant or loan which has been expended in accordance with the terms thereof such deductions and such increase in basis shall to the extent of such repayment be allowed as if made at the time of such repayment;

(Q) Income from installment sales, long-term contracts etc. For adjustment, in the case of a taxpayer making an election provided in section 455, with respect to income derived from installment sales, installment sales obligations, or long-term contracts, see section 455.

(2) Taxable year less than twelve months—(A) General rule. If the taxable year is a period of less than twelve months the excess profits net income for such taxable year (referred to in this paragraph as the "short taxable year") shall be placed on an annual basis by multiplying the amount thereof by the number of days in the twelve months ending with the close of the short taxable year and dividing by the number of days in the short taxable year. The tax imposed by section 430 shall be such part of the tax computed on such annual basis as the number of days in the short taxable year is of the number of days in the twelve months ending with the close of the short taxable year.

(B) Exception. If the taxpayer establishes its adjusted excess profits net income for the period of twelve months beginning with the first day of the short taxable year, computed as if such twelve-month period were a taxable year, under the law applicable to the short taxable year, and using the credits applicable in determining the adjusted excess profits net income for such short taxable year, then the tax for the short taxable year shall be reduced to an amount which is such part of the tax computed on such adjusted excess profits net income so established as the excess profits net income for the short taxable year is of the excess profits net income for such twelve-month period. The taxpayer (other than a taxpayer to which the next sentence applies) shall compute the tax and file its return without the application of this subparagraph. If, prior to one year from the date of the beginning of the short taxable year, the taxpayer has disposed of substantially all its assets, in lieu of the twelve-month period provided in the preceding provisions of this subparagraph, the twelve-month period ending with the close of the short taxable year shall be used. For the purposes of this subparagraph, the excess profits net income for the short taxable year shall not be placed on an annual basis as provided in subparagraph (A), and the excess profits net income for the twelve-month period used shall in no case be considered less than the excess profits net income for the short taxable year. The benefits of this subparagraph shall not be allowed unless the taxpayer, at such time as regulations prescribed hereunder require, makes application therefor in accordance with such regulations, and such application, in case the return was filed without regard to this subparagraph, shall be considered a claim for credit or refund. The Secretary shall prescribe such regulations as he may deem necessary for the application of this subparagraph.

(C) Section 47 (c) not applicable. The provisions of section 47 (c) shall not apply to the tax imposed by this subchapter.

§ 40.433 (a)–1 Excess profits net income for the taxable year. The excess profits net income computed under section 433 (a) for any taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, is the normal-tax net income increased or decreased by the adjustments provided in section 433 (a) (1). The adjustment provided by section 433 (a) (1) (N) applies exclusively to the case of a taxpayer computing its excess profits credit for the taxable year upon the basis of invested capital under section 436, and the adjustment provided by section 433 (a) (1) (O) applies exclusively to the case of a taxpayer computing its excess profits credit upon the basis of income under section 435. There are also certain differences in the amount of the deduction allowed under section 433) (a) (1) (H) and certain differences in the determination of the net operating loss deduction adjustment under section 433 (a) (1) (J), dependent upon whether the excess profits credit for the taxable year is computed under the income method or under the invested capital method. In general, the other adjustments under section 433 (a) (1) are the same whether excess profits credit is computed under the income method or the invested capital method.

§ 40.433 (a)–2 Computation of excess profits net income for the taxable year. (a) Section 433 (a) (1) (A) provides for the allowance, in computing excess profits net income, of a credit for dividends received. The credit is allowed without limitation in the case of dividends received from both domestic and foreign corporations, except that (1) the limitation provided by section 26 (b) with respect to dividends in kind received after August 31, 1950, applies, (2) no credit is allowed with respect to dividends (actual or constructive) on stock of foreign personal holding companies, and (3) no credit is allowed with respect to dividends on stock which is not a capital asset. The credit for dividends received from certain domestic corporations provided for by section 26 (b), for normal-tax purposes, is limited generally to 85 percent of the amount received. Excess profits net income is computed by decreasing normal-tax net income by the excess of the credit computed under section 433 (a) (1) (A) over the credit allowed under section 26 (b) in computing such normal-tax net income. In the case of a dividend received in kind after August 31, 1950, the amount of the dividend for the purpose of section 433 (a) (1) (A) is deemed not to exceed the adjusted basis of the property so distributed in the hands of the distributing corporation at the time of the distribution, increased by the amount of the gain or decreased by the amount of loss recognized to the distributing corporation by reason of such distribution.

(b) Section 433 (a) (1) (B) provides for an adjustment in respect of any credit which may have been allowed under section 26 (h) (relating to the credit for dividends paid on certain preferred stock), or under section 26 (j) (relating to the credit granted Western Hemisphere Trade Corporations), in computing normal-tax net income. The effect of the adjustment is to increase normal-tax net income by the amount of any such credit or credits.

(c) Gains and losses from sales or exchanges of capital assets, whether long-term or short-term, are excluded under section 433 (a) (1) (C) in determining excess profits net income. Such gains and losses are determined under the definitions contained in, and in the manner prescribed by, section 117. Accordingly, excess profits net income is computed by decreasing normal-tax net income by the amount of the net capital gain of the corporation. Thus, if the gains of the corporation described in section 117 (j) exceed the losses described in that section, such gains and losses are considered capital gains and losses, and are included in determining net capital gain for the purpose of the adjustment required by section 433 (a) (1) (C). If the gains described in section 117 (j) do not exceed the losses described in that section, such gains and losses are not considered capital gains and losses, and are not taken into account in computing the adjustment required by section 433 (a) (1) (C). No adjustment under section 433 (a) (1) (C) is required for any net capital loss which is not allowed as a deduction in the computation of normal-tax net income.

(d) In the case of a taxpayer which retires or discharges any bond, debenture, note, or certificate or other evidence of indebtedness outstanding for more than six months, section 433 (a) (1) (D) requires, for the purpose of computing excess profits net income, that normal tax net income be decreased by the amount of any income derived from such retirement or discharge. Similarly, section 433 (a) (1) (F) requires, for the purpose of computing excess profits net income, that normal-tax net income be increased by the amount of any deductions allowed under section 23 (a) in connection with the retirement or discharge of any such bond, etc., and by the amount of any deduction allowed for losses resulting from such retirement or discharge. In the case of the discharge or retirement of bonds which were issued at a premium, the normal-tax net income is also decreased, under section 433 (a) (1) (D) by the amount of any premium includible in income for such taxable year solely because of the retirement or discharge, but no adjustment is made for any accrued amortization of bond premium for that part of the taxable year which precedes the date of the retirement or discharge. In the case of bonds which were issued at a discount, the normal-tax net income is increased by the amount of discount which was deductible solely because of the retirement or discharge, but no adjustment is made for any accrued amortization of bond discount for that part of the taxable year which precedes the date of the retirement or discharge.

(e) As used in section 433 (a) (1) (D) and (F), the term "indebtedness" includes indebtedness assumed by the taxpayer even though such indebtedness is evidenced, so far as the taxpayer is concerned, only by a contract (which has been outstanding for more than six months) with the person whose liabilities have been assumed. Also, a renewal obligation is to be considered to be outstanding for more than six months if the original obligation and the renewal obligation taken together have been outstanding for a total of more than six months. The term "other evidence of indebtedness" does not include open account book entries.

(f) Under the adjustment provided by section 433 (a) (1) (E), normal-tax net income is decreased by the amount of any income attributable to refund of tax paid under the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1933, as amended, and any interest upon any such refund. Such refunds include only those made under Title VII of the Revenue Act of 1936 and refunds made to processors under section 15 (a) of the Agricultural Adjustment Act as reenacted by section 601 of the Revenue Act of 1936.

(g) The provisions of section 433 (a) (1) (G) require the exclusion from excess profits net income of any income attributable to the recovery of a bad debt, if either (1) a deduction from gross income was allowable with reference to such debt for any taxable year for which an excess profits tax was not imposed (that is, a taxable year beginning before January 1, 1940, or a taxable year beginning after December 31, 1945, and ending before July 1, 1950), or (2) if such debt was properly charged to a bad debt reserve during any such taxable year. For example, if a deduction of $10,000 from gross income would have been allowable for an addition to the reserve account in the absence of bad debts recovered, which had been charged against the reserve account for the year 1948, and if no deduction is required for the taxable year by reason of such bad debts recovered in the amount of $13,000 and credited to the reserve account, the adjustment of the normal-tax net income for the taxable year under section 433 (a) (1) (G) would be limited to $10,000. In such case, the excess of the bad debt recoveries over the amount which would have been added to the reserve account had there been no such recoveries, i. e., the $3,000, will decrease the amount to be added to the reserve in the following year, and accordingly such amount may be excluded under section 433 (a) (1) (G) in such following year.

(h) In the case of a life insurance company which does not compute its excess profits credit under section 436, normal-tax net income is decreased for the purpose of computing excess profits net income by the adjustment provided in the first sentence of section 433 (a) (1) (H). The amount of such decrease is determined by multiplying the excess profits net income determined without regard to section 433 (a) (1) (H) by the figure determined and proclaimed by the Secretary of the Treasury pursuant to section 202 (b) for the taxable year, and subtracting from the product thus obtained the amount of the adjustment for certain reserves provided by section 202 (c). If the taxpayer computes its excess profits credit upon the basis of invested capital under section 436, only 50 percent of the amount determined in the manner described in the preceding sentence may be deducted from normal-tax net income in computing excess profits net income.

(i) See section 433 (a) (1) (I) for the exclusion of nontaxable income from exempt excess output of mines and timber blocks provided in section 453 in the case of a producer of minerals or a producer of logs or lumber from a timber block, or in the case of a lessor of a mineral property, a coal mining or metal mining property, or a timber block, as defined in section 453; for the exclusion of nontaxable income from exempt excess output provided in section 453 in the case of a natural gas company as defined in section 453; and for the exclusion of nontaxable bonus income provided in section 453 in the case of a producer of minerals or a producer of logs or lumber from a timber block as defined in section 453. A lessor of a mineral property, a coal or metal mining property, or a timber block is not entitled to the benefit of the exclusion for nontaxable bonus income. For the purposes of the exclusion pursuant to the provisions of section 433 (a) (1) (I) of nontaxable bonus income provided in section 453 (c), a corporation described in section 453 (c) (2) as one which extracts or recovers a mineral product from mine tailings and which owns no economic interest in the mineral property from which the ore containing such tailings was mined shall be deemed to be a producer of the minerals so extracted or recovered.

(j) (1) Section 433 (a) (1) (J) provides for recomputation of the net operating loss deduction in computing excess profits net income. The various steps in computing the deduction are to be taken in the same manner and for the same years as are provided in section 122 and in the regulations thereunder, except as otherwise prescribed in the rules set forth in section 433 (a) (1) (J). The exceptions prescribed by section 433 (a) (1) (J) require that, in the computation of the net operating loss for any taxable year under section 122 (a) and in the computation of the net income for any taxable year under section 122 (b), the deduction for interest shall be reduced by the amount of any reduction under section 433 (a) (1) (N) or (O) (relating to interest adjustment with respect to borrowed capital), depending on whether the excess profits credit for such taxable year is based upon invested capital or income, respectively. Furthermore, in lieu of the reduction prescribed in section 122 (c) for converting the aggregate of the net operating loss carry-overs and carry-backs to the taxable year into the net operating loss deduction, the reduction for such purpose shall be the amount by which the excess profits net income for the taxable year in which the deduction is allowable, computed with the exceptions and limitations specified in section 122 (d) (1), (2), (3), and (4) and computed without regard to section 433 (a) (1) (C) (relating to gains and losses from the sale or exchange of capital assets), without regard to any credit for dividends received, and without regard to any credit for interest received provided in section 26 (a) exceeds the excess profits net income for such taxable year (computed without any net operating loss deduction). The net operating loss deduction so computed with the adjustments prescribed by section 433 (a) (1) (J) is deducted to determine excess profits net income, in lieu of the net operating loss deduction otherwise prescribed in sections 23 (s) and 122.

(2) In addition to the foregoing, section 433 (a) (1) (J) provides that if the excess profits credit for the first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, is computed under section 435 (relating to the excess profits credit based on income), or is computed under section 436 (a) by use of the historical invested capital determined under section 458, the taxpayer may elect in its return (by a statement attached thereto) for such taxable year to compute its net operating loss deduction for all taxable years, for the purpose of computing excess profits net income, by treating an amount equal to the base period loss adjustment (as defined in section 433 (a) (1) (J) (iv)) as a net operating loss carry-over from the last taxable year ending before July 1, 1950, but in such case the net income computed under section 122 (b) for any taxable year ending before July 1, 1950, shall be determined without regard to such carry-over. For the purpose of such treatment, the base period loss adjustment shall be the amount of the recent loss adjustment determined under section 437 (f) by using the base period as the recent loss period, and computed by limiting the amount of the net operating loss for any taxable year beginning before January 1, 1948, to an amount equal to the net operating loss carry-over from such taxable year to the taxable year immediately succeeding such taxable year. If the taxpayer makes the above election, as provided for in section 433 (a) (1) (J) (iii), the net operating loss deduction for each taxable year ending after June 30, 1950 (whether or not the credit for such taxable year is computed under section 435) shall be computed without regard to the net operating loss for any taxable year ending before July 1, 1950. The net operating loss carry-over specified in this paragraph shall not be allowed as a net operating loss carry-over to any taxable year for which the excess profits credit is not computed under section 435 (relating to the excess profits credit based on income) and is not computed under section 436 (a) by use of the historical invested capital determined under section 458.

(3) The application of section 433 (a) (1) (J) (iii)–(v) may be illustrated as follows:

The X Corporation which makes its returns on the basis of the calendar year had net income (as defined in section 437 (f) (2) (B)) and net operating losses (as defined in section 437 (f) (2) (A)), for the calendar years 1944 to 1949, inclusive, as follows:

	Net income	Net operating loss
Years preceding base period:
1944	$100,000
1945	50,000
Base period years:
1946		($350,000)
1947	50,000
1948		(15,000)

For the purpose of section 433 (a) (1) (J), the net operating loss for 1946 is limited to the amount of the net operating loss carry-over from 1946 to 1947, or $200,000 ($350,000 minus the sum of $100,000 and $50,000). The sum of the $200,000 net operating loss so computed for 1946 and the $15,000 net operating loss for 1948, or $215,000, exceeds the sum of the net income for the base period years ($90,000 for 1947 and $40,000 for 1949, or a total of $130,000) by $85,000. If the excess profits credit for 1950 is determined under section 435 or under section 436 (a) by the use of section 458, the $85,000 so computed may, at the election of the taxpayer made on its return for 1950, be treated as a net operating loss carry-over from 1949, and the $85,000 carry-over will, subject to the provisions of section 122 (b) (2), be a carry-over to the years 1950 and 1951. The net operating loss deduction for 1950 is determined without regard to any other carry-over from a taxable year ending before June 30, 1950, for example the loss for 1948 if such loss exceeded the net income for 1949, and the net operating loss deduction for any subsequent taxable year for which the excess profits credit is computed under neither section 435 nor section 458 is determined without regard to the $85,000 carry-over from the base period. If the taxpayer had a net operating loss for 1950, the amount of the carry-over from 1950 to 1951 and subsequent taxable years would be the net operating loss for 1950 reduced by the net income for 1949, the computation of such net income being unaffected by the determination of a net operating loss carry-over from 1949 under section 433 (a) (1) (J) (iii).

(k) Section 433 (a) (1) (K) provides that if, under a lease for a term of more than 20 years entered into prior to December 1, 1950, the lessee is obligated to pay any portion of the tax imposed by chapter 1 upon the lessor with respect to the rentals derived by such lessor from such lessee, or is obligated to reimburse the lessor for any portion of the tax imposed by chapter 1 upon the lessor with respect to the rentals derived by such lessor from such lessee, such payment or reimbursement of the tax imposed by chapter 1 shall be excluded by the lessor, and a deduction therefor shall not be allowed to the lessee, in computing excess profits net income. For this purpose, an agreement for lease of railroad properties entered into prior to December 1, 1950, shall be considered to be a lease including such term as the total number of years such agreement may, unless sooner terminated, be renewed or continued under the terms of the agreement, and any such renewal or continuance under such agreement shall be considered part of the lease entered into prior to December 1, 1950.

(l) In the case of a bank (as defined in section 104) using the reserve method of accounting for bad debts, section 433 (a) (1) (L) requires an adjustment to normal-tax net income equal to the difference between (1) the amount of the deduction for additions to the reserve for bad debts allowed under section 23 (k) (including, in the case of the taxable year in which the reserve is established, the deduction for the initial credit to the reserve) and (2) the amount that would have been allowable as a deduction under section 23 (k) for bad debts for the taxable year if the bank did not use the reserve method of accounting for bad debts. The adjustment is effected by increasing normal-tax net income by the amount of the deduction allowed under section 23 (k) for the additions to the bad debt reserve for the taxable year and by decreasing normal-tax net income by the amount of the deduction which would be allowable under section 23 (k) for the debts which actually became worthless in the taxable year, in whole or in part.

(m) Section 433 (a) (1) (M) provides for the exclusion of income derived from sources within any foreign country to the extent that such income would, but for monetary, exchange, or other restrictions imposed by such foreign country, have been includible in the gross income of the taxpayer for any taxable year which preceded its first taxable year ended after June 30, 1950. If such foreign income is includible in the gross income of the taxpayer for a taxable year succeeding the first taxable year ended after June 30, 1950, and, but for such restrictions, would have been includible in the gross income of the taxpayer for its first taxable year ended after June 30, 1950, and if such first taxable year began prior to July 1, 1950, such income shall be excluded in an amount which is the same proportion of such income as the number of days prior to July 1, 1950, in such first taxable year is of the total number of days in such first taxable year. Deductions properly chargeable and allocable to the income excluded under section 433 (a) (1) (M) shall not be allowed.

(n) An adjustment for interest on borrowed capital is provided in section 433 (a) (1) (N) in the case of a taxpayer computing its excess profits credit under section 436 (the invested capital method). This adjustment may be illustrated by the case of a taxpayer which has interest of $10,000 for the taxable year on indebtedness which constitutes borrowed capital for such taxable year, such interest of $10,000 being deducted by the taxpayer in computing normal-tax net income. Section 433 (a) (1) (N) requires that 75 percent of this amount, or $7,500, be added to normal-tax net income in computing excess profits net income.

(o) An adjustment for interest on borrowed capital is provided in section 433 (a) (1) (O) in the case of a taxpayer computing its excess profits credit for the taxable year under section 435 (the income method). For example, if the taxpayer referred to in (n) of this section computes its excess profits credit for the taxable year under section 435, if its average borrowed capital for the taxable year was $300,000, and if this amount exceeds by $100,000 its borrowed capital at the beginning of its first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, then 75 percent of such excess, or $75,000, is the increase in borrowed capital under section 435 (g) (3) (C). If the average of its loans to members of a controlled group for the taxable year is $25,000, and if this amount exceeds by $20,000 the amount of such loans on the first day of its first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, then 75 percent of such excess, or $15,000, is the amount determined by reference to section 435 (g) (4) (E). The excess of the $75,000 determined under section 435 (g) (3) (C) over the $15,000 determined under section 435 (g) (4) (E), or $60,000, is 20 percent of its average borrowed capital of $300,000 for the taxable year. Accordingly, section 433 (a) (1) (O) requires that excess profits net income be computed by increasing normal-tax net income by 20 percent of the $10,000 deduction for interest on borrowed capital, or $2,000.

(p) Special adjustments to normal-tax net income are required in the case of a taxpayer which has received a grant or loan described in section 433 (a) (1) (P) from the United States (or from any agency or instrumentality of the United States) for the encouragement of exploration, development, or mining of critical and strategic minerals or metals.

(q) For adjustments under section 433 (a) (1) (Q), in the case of a taxpayer making the election provided in section 455 with respect to income derived from installment sales, installment sales obligations, or long-term contracts, see section 455.

§ 40.433 (a)-3 Tax for period of less than 12 months—(a) Methods of computing tax for short taxable year; allowance. Section 433 (a) (2) provides rules, under a general rule and under an exception to such rule, which are applicable to short taxable years for the purpose of determining 12 months' experience and computing the excess profits tax for such year. A short taxable year is any taxable period of less than 12 months. If the period from the date of incorporation of a corporation to the end of its first accounting period, or the period from the beginning of its last accounting period to the date it ceases operations and is dissolved, retaining no assets, is a period of less than 12 months, such period is a short taxable year. The tax imposed by section 430 (a) for the short taxable year shall be computed under paragraph (b) of this section, except as otherwise provided in paragraph (c) of this section. The provisions of section 47 (c) are not applicable to the excess profits tax.

(b) General rule. Section 433 (a) (2) (A) provides that the excess profits net income for a short taxable year shall be placed on an annual basis by multiplying the amount thereof by the number of days in the 12 months ending with the close of the short taxable year and dividing by the number of days in the short taxable year. A tentative tax shall then be computed under section 430 (a) as though the excess profits net income were the amount so ascertained under the preceding sentence. The tentative tax is the tax so computed under paragraph (1) or (2) of section 430 (a), whichever is the lesser amount. The actual tax for the short taxable year shall be an amount which bears the same ratio to such tentative tax as the number of days in the short taxable year bears to the total number of days in the 12 months ending with the close of the short taxable year.

(c) Exception; tax for short period determined by actual 12-month adjusted excess profits net income. (1) If the taxpayer applies to the Commissioner in the manner provided in paragraph (d) of this section to have its tax computed under the provisions of section 433 (a) (2) (B), and if the taxpayer establishes the amount of its adjusted excess profits net income, computed for the 12-month period hereinafter described and under the rules hereinafter prescribed, then section 433 (a) (2) (B) provides that the tax for the short taxable year shall be reduced to an amount which is such part of the tax computed on the basis of the adjusted excess profits net income which the taxpayer has established for such 12-month period as the excess profits net income for the short taxable year is of the excess profits net income for such 12-month period. If such amount, however, is greater than the tax computed under paragraph (b) of this section, the tax for the short taxable year is the tax computed under paragraph (b) of this section. The 12-month period referred to above is the 12-month period beginning with the first day of the short taxable year, except that if the taxpayer has disposed of substantially all its assets prior to the end of such 12-month period, then it is the 12-month period ending with the last day of the short taxable year. If a corporation ceases business and distributes so much of the assets used in its business that it cannot resume its customary operations with the remaining assets, it has disposed of substantially all of its assets.

(2) In computing the tax under section 433 (a) (2) (B), the excess profits net income for the short taxable year is not placed on an annual basis as provided in section 433 (a) (2) (A). The adjusted excess profits net income for the 12-month period is computed under the same provisions of law as are applicable to the short taxable year, with the use of the credits applicable in determining the adjusted excess profits net income for such short taxable year (as if this section were not applicable), and is computed as if the 12-month period were an actual accounting period of the taxpayer. All items which fall in such 12-month period must be included even if they are extraordinary in amount or of an unusual nature. The adjustments provided in section 433 (a) (1) under the law applicable to such short taxable year shall be made upon the basis of the normal-tax net income for such 12-month period. The apportionment of items to such 12-month period shall be made in accordance with the method and principles applicable under § 29.47-2 (b) of Regulations 111. The excess profits net income for the 12-month period used shall in no case be considered less than the actual excess profits net income for the short taxable year.

(d) Application to compute tax under section 433 (a) (2) (B). A taxpayer desiring the benefit of section 433 (a) (2) (B) must file an application therefor. If at the time the return for the short taxable year is filed the taxpayer is able to determine that the 12-month period ending with the close of the short taxable year will be used in the computations under section 433 (a) (2) (B), then the tax on the return for the short taxable year may be determined under the provisions of section 433 (a) (2) (B). In such a case, an excess profits tax schedule covering the 12-month period shall be attached to the return as a part thereof, and the return will then be considered the application for the benefits of section 433 (a) (2) (B) required by that section. In all other cases, the taxpayer shall file its return and compute its tax as provided in (b) of this section, and the application for the benefit of section 433 (a) (2) (B) shall be made in the form of a claim for credit or refund if the tax computed under section 433 (a) (2) (A) has been paid, or, if the tax computed under section 433 (a) (2) (A) has not been paid, the application shall consist of a notice to the Commissioner setting forth the facts involved together with an excess profits tax schedule covering the 12-month period used. The claim or other application for the benefit of section 433 (a) (2) (B) shall set forth the computation of the adjusted excess profits net income and the tax thereon for the 12-month period and, if credit or refund is sought for taxes paid before the application for the benefit of section 433 (a) (2) (B) is filed, the claim must be filed not later than June 15, 1951, or the time prescribed for filing the return for the first taxable year (or for the period which would be its taxable year if it continued in existence) ending with or after the twelfth month after the beginning of the short taxable year, whichever date is later. For example, the taxpayer changes its accounting period from the calendar year to the fiscal year ending September 30, and files a return for the period from January 1, 1950, to September 30, 1950. At the time it files its return, it pays the tax computed thereon under the provisions of section 433 (a) (2) (A). Its claim for credit or refund of the overpayment which would result from the application of section 433 (a) (2) (B) must be filed not later than the time prescribed for filing its return for the first taxable year which ends on or after the last day of December 1950, the twelfth month after the beginning of the short taxable year. In this case, the taxpayer must file its claim for credit or refund not later than December 15, 1951, the time prescribed for filing the return for its fiscal year ending September 30, 1951. However, if it obtains an extension of time for filing the return for such fiscal year, it may file its claim during the period of such extension. If the Commissioner determines that the taxpayer has established the amount of the adjusted excess profits net income for the 12-month period, any excess of the tax paid for the short taxable year over the tax computed under section 433 (a) (2) (B) will be credited or refunded to the taxpayer in the same manner as in the case of any other overpayment. An application for the benefit of section 433 (a) (2) (B), other than a claim for credit or refund, made in any case in which the tax liability computed under section 433 (a) (2) (A) has not been paid, may be filed at any time before the tax liability for the taxable year is finally determined. Such application does not constitute a claim for credit, refund, or abatement. If credit or refund is sought for taxes paid after such application is filed, a claim therefor on Form 843 should be filed after such payment and within the period prescribed in section 322.

SEC. 433. EXCESS PROFITS NET INCOME.

* * * * *

(b) Taxable years in base period. For the purposes of computing the average base period net income, the excess profits net income for any taxable year shall be the normal-tax net income, as defined in section 13 (a) (2) as in effect for such taxable year, increased or decreased by the following adjustments (for additional adjustments in case of certain reorganizations, see part II of this subchapter):

(1) Net operating loss deduction. The net operating loss deduction provided by section 23 (s) shall not be allowed;

(2) Gains and losses from sales or exchanges of capital assets, etc. There shall be excluded gains and losses from sales or exchanges of capital assets and gains and losses to which section 117 (j) is applicable;

(3) Income from retirement or discharge of bonds, etc. There shall be excluded, in the case of any taxpayer, income derived from the retirement or discharge by the taxpayer of any bond, debenture, note, or certificate or other evidence of indebtedness, if the obligation of the taxpayer has been outstanding for more than 6 months, including, in case the issuance was at a premium, the amount includible in income for such year solely because of such retirement or discharge;

(4) Deductions on account of retirement or discharge of bonds, etc. If during the taxable year the taxpayer retires or discharges any bond, debenture, note, or certificate or other evidence of indebtedness, if the obligation of the taxpayer has been outstanding for more than 6 months, the following deductions for such taxable year shall not be allowed:

(A) The deduction allowable under section 23 (a) for expenses paid or incurred in connection with such retirement or discharge;

(B) The deduction for losses allowable by reason of such retirement or discharge; and

(C) In case the issuance was at a discount, the amount deductible for such year solely because of such retirement or discharge;

(5) Repayment of processing tax to vendees. The deduction under section 23 (a), for any taxable year, for expenses shall be decreased by an amount which bears the same ratio to the amount deductible on account of any repayment or credit by the corporation to its vendee of any amount attributable to any tax under the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1933, as amended, as the excess of the aggregate of the amounts so deductible in the base period over the aggregate of the amounts attributable to taxes under such Act collected from its vendees which were includible in the corporation's gross income in the base period and which were not paid, bears to the aggregate of the amounts so deductible in the base period;

(6) Dividends received. The credit for dividends received shall apply, without limitation (except the limitation relating to dividends in kind), to all dividends on stock of all corporations, except that no credit for dividends received shall be allowed with respect to dividends (actual or constructive) on stock of foreign personal holding companies or dividends on stock which is not a capital asset;

(7) Installment sales. In the case of a taxpayer which has made the election provided in section 455 (a), income from installment sales and from installment sales obligations shall be computed (in lieu of in the manner provided in section 44) under the accrual method without treating any portion of such income as unrealized at the close of any period and as if the taxpayer had reported such income on such accrual method for all taxable periods.

(8) Long-term contracts. In the case of a taxpayer which has made the election provided in section 455 (b), income from long-term contracts shall be computed under the percentage of completion method and as if the taxpayer had reported such income on the percentage of completion method for all taxable periods.

(9) Judgments, intangible drilling and development costs, casualty losses, and other abnormal deductions. If, for any taxable year or years within, or beginning or ending within, the base period, any class of deductions for the taxable year exceeded 115 per centum of the average amount of deductions of such class for the four previous taxable years (not including deductions arising from the same extraordinary event which gave rise to the deduction for the taxable year), the deductions of such class shall, subject to the rules provided in paragraph (10), be disallowed in an amount equal to such excess. For the purposes of this paragraph, each of the following groups of deductions shall constitute a class of deductions:

(A) Deductions attributable to claims, awards, judgments, and decrees against the taxpayer, and interest on the foregoing;

(B) Deductions attributable to intangible drilling and development costs paid or incurred in or for the drilling of wells or the preparation of wells for the production of oil or gas, and for development costs in the case of mines; and

(C) Deductions under section 23 (f) for losses arising from fires, storms, shipwreck, or other casualty, or from theft, or arising from the demolition, abandonment, or loss of useful value of property, not compensated for by insurance or otherwise. The class of deductions under this subparagraph for any taxable year shall not include deductions which are excludible under paragraph (2) or which would be so excludible if such paragraph were applicable with respect to such taxable year.

The classification of deductions of any class not described in subparagraphs (A) to (C), inclusive, shall be subject to regulations prescribed by the Secretary.

(10) Rules for application of paragraph (9). For the purpose of paragraph (9)—

(A) If the taxpayer was not in existence for four previous taxable years, then the average amount specified in such paragraph shall be determined for the previous taxable years it was in existence and the succeeding taxable years which begin before the beginning of the taxpayer's second taxable year under this subchapter. If the number of such succeeding years is greater than the number necessary to obtain an aggregate of four taxable years, there shall be omitted so many of such succeeding years, beginning with the last, as are necessary to reduce the aggregate to four.

(B) Deductions of any class for any taxable year shall not be disallowed under such paragraph unless the amount of deductions of such class to be disallowed for such year exceeds 5 per centum of the average excess profits net income for the taxable years within, or beginning or ending within, the base period, computed without the disallowance of any class of deductions under such paragraph. Such average excess profits net income shall, for the purposes of this subparagraph, be computed by aggregating the excess profits net incomes of all such taxable years, dividing such aggregate by the total number of months in such years, and multiplying the quotient by 12. For the purposes of this subparagraph, the excess profits net income for any taxable year shall in no case be less than zero.

(C) Deductions of any class shall not be disallowed under such paragraph unless the taxpayer establishes that the increase in such deductions—

(i) Is not a cause or a consequence of an increase in the gross income of the taxpayer in its base period or a decrease in the amount of some other deduction in its base period, which increase or decrease is substantial in relation to the amount of the increase in the deductions of such class, and

(ii) Is not a consequence of a change at any time in the type, manner of operation, size, or condition of the business engaged in by the taxpayer.

(D) The amount of deductions of any class to be disallowed under such paragraph with respect to any taxable year shall not exceed the amount by which the deductions of such class for such taxable year exceed the deductions of such class for the taxable year for which the tax under this subchapter is being computed.

(11) Taxes paid by lessee. If under a lease for a term of more than 20 years entered into prior to December 1, 1950, the lessee is obligated to pay any portion of the tax imposed by this chapter upon the lessor with respect to the rentals derived by such lessor from such lessee, or is obligated to reimburse the lessor for any portion of the tax imposed by this chapter upon the lessor with respect to the rentals derived by such lessor from such lessee, such payment or reimbursement of the tax imposed by this chapter shall be excluded by the lessor and a deduction therefor shall not be allowed to the lessee. For the purposes of this paragraph an agreement for lease of railroad properties entered into prior to December 1, 1950, shall be considered to be a lease including such term as the total number of years such agreement may, unless sooner terminated, be renewed or continued under the terms of the agreement, and any such renewal or continuance under such agreement shall be considered part of the lease entered into prior to December 1, 1950.

(12) Bad debts in case of banks. In the case of a bank (as defined in section 104) using the reserve method of accounting for bad debts, there shall be allowed, in lieu of the amount allowable under the reserve method for bad debts, a deduction for debts which became worthless within the taxable year, in whole or in part, within the meaning of section 23 (k).

(13) Bank assessments by Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. In the case of a bank (as defined in section 104), the deduction for the assessment by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation shall be reduced to an amount which is such part thereof as the net assessment (after credits applicable thereto) for the taxable year for which the excess profits credit is being computed is of the gross assessment for such taxable year.

(14) Life insurance companies. In the case of a life insurance company, there shall be deducted from the normal-tax net income the excess of (A) the product of (i) the figure determined and proclaimed under section 202 (b) and (ii) the excess profits net income computed without regard to this paragraph, over (B) the adjustment for certain reserves provided in section 202 (c).

(15) Credit for income subject to prior excess profits tax. The credit provided in section 26 (c) shall not be allowed.

(c) Deficit in excess profits net income. For the purposes of this subchapter, the deficit in excess profits net income for any taxable year shall be the excess, if any, of—

(1) The sum of the deductions from gross income, the credit for dividends received, the credit provided in section 26 (a) (relating to interest on certain obligations of the United States and its instrumentalities) and the amount of the decrease resulting from the adjustments provided in subsection (b), over

(2) The sum of the gross income and the amount of the increase resulting from the adjustments provided in subsection (b).

§ 40.433 (b)-1 Excess profits net income used in computing average base period net income. (a) For the purpose of determining the excess profits credit for the taxable year under section 435, the excess profits net income for each taxable year within the base period, for each taxable year beginning before the base period and ending within the base period, and for each taxable year beginning within the base period and ending after the base period, must be computed under section 433 (b). Furthermore, the excess profits net income for certain taxable years beginning after the base period must also be computed under section 433 (b) for the purpose of applying section 435 (e). In general, wherever excess profits net income is a factor in computing average base period net income, such excess profits net income must be computed under section 433 (b). Excess profits net income is computed under section 433 (a) for the purpose of determining the amount referred to in section 431, relating to adjusted excess profits net income, from which amount the excess profits credit and unused excess profits credit adjustment are substracted in order to determine the adjusted excess profits net income. Thus, in the case of a taxable year beginning in the base period and ending after June 30, 1950, the excess profits net income for such taxable year referred to in section 431 is computed under section 433 (a) in order to determine the adjusted excess profits net income for such taxable year, and the excess profits net income for such taxable year is also computed under section 433 (b) for the purpose of determining the average base period net income used in determining the excess profits credit of the taxpayer for that year and for subsequent taxable years.

(b) The base period is the period beginning January 1, 1946, and ending December 31, 1949, except that in the case of a taxpayer whose first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, was preceded by a taxable year which began in 1949 and ended after December 31, 1949, and before April 1, 1950, the base period is the 48 consecutive months which ended with the close of such preceding taxable year. See section 435 (b).

(c) The starting point in the determination of the excess profits net income for any taxable year under section 433 (b) is the normal-tax net income for such taxable year computed under the provisions of section 13 (a) (2) applicable to such taxable year. Such normal-tax net income for the taxable year is then increased or decreased by the adjustments specified in section 433 (b). For additional adjustments in case of certain reorganizations, see sections 461–465. In the case of a taxpayer which has made the election provided in section 455 (a), relating to income from installment sales and from installment sales obligations, or has made the election provided in section 455 (b), relating to income from long-term contracts, the normal-tax net income referred to above is first recomputed as if the taxpayer had for all taxable periods reported such income under the method of accounting elected under section 455.

§ 40.433 (b)–2 Computation of excess profits net income. (a) Several of the adjustments required by section 433 (b) in determining excess profits net income correspond to adjustments required by section 433 (a), and such adjustments shall be made in a manner corresponding to that provided under section 433 (a). These are (1) the adjustment for income from retirement or discharge of bonds, etc., (2) the adjustment for deductions on account of retirement or discharge of bonds, etc., (3) the adjustment for dividends received, (4) the adjustment for income from installment sales and from installment sales obligations in the case of a taxpayer which has made the election provided in section 455 (a), (5) the adjustment for income from long-term contracts in the case of a taxpayer which has made the election provided in section 455 (b), (6) the adjustment for taxes paid by a lessee under certain types of leases, (7) the adjustment for bad debts in the case of a bank using the reserve method of accounting for bad debts, and (8) the adjustment to income in the case of life insurance companies.

(b) Section 433 (b) (1) provides that the net operating loss deduction provided by section 23 (s) shall not be allowed in the computation of excess profits net income. This necessitates the addition to normal-tax net income of the amount of the net operating loss deduction, if any, which was allowed in computing such normal-tax net income.

(c) Section 433 (b) (2) requires that normal-tax net income be adjusted by the exclusion therefrom of gains and losses from sales or exchanges of capital assets (whether long-term or short-term) and gains and losses to which section 117 (j) is applicable. This adjustment requires the decrease of normal-tax net income by the amount of the net capital gain of the corporation included in computing normal-tax net income. No adjustment is required in the case of a net capital loss of the corporation which is not deducted in computing normal-tax net income. If the gains described in section 117 (j) exceed the losses therein described, such gains and losses are capital gains and losses included in determining net capital gain or loss. However, if such losses exceed (or equal) such gains, such gains and losses are not capital gains and losses, and normal-tax net income must be increased by the amount of such excess, if any, since the inclusion of such gains and losses in computing normal-tax net income reduced it by the amount of such excess.

(d) Under section 433 (b) (15) the credit provided in section 26 (e) is not allowed in computing excess profits net income for a taxable year in the base period. Thus, if a credit for income subject to excess profits tax has been deducted in computing the normal-tax net income for a taxable year beginning in 1945, the normal-tax net income for such taxable year must be increased by the amount of such credit in computing excess profits net income.

(e) For the purpose of the adjustments under section 433 (b) (3) and under section 433 (b) (4), relating to income and deductions from the retirement or discharge of bonds, etc., the obligation of the taxpayer must have been outstanding for more than six months. In making the adjustments provided in section 433 (b) (4), the deduction allowable for any premium paid on bonds when called for redemption shall be disallowed, but the deduction allowable for any discount amortized up to the date of retirement or discharge shall not be disallowed. Expenses incurred in issuing bonds which are amortized shall be treated in the same manner as discounts.

(f) In the case of a bank (as defined in section 104), section 433 (b) (13) provides an adjustment with respect to the deduction allowed for assessments by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. Excess profits net income is computed in the case of a bank by increasing normal-tax net income by the excess of such deduction over an amount which is such part thereof as the net assessment (after credits applicable thereto) by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation for the taxable year for which excess profits tax is being computed is of the gross assessment for such taxable year. For example, if the gross assessment for the taxable year for which the tax is being computed is subject to a credit in an amount equal to 60 percent thereof, then excess profits net income for the base period taxable year is computed by increasing normal-tax net income for such base period taxable year by an amount equal to 60 percent of the deduction allowed for such base period taxable year for assessments by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

§ 40.433 (b)–3 Abnormal deductions in base period—(a) Nature of adjustments. Section 433 (b) (9) and (10) provides adjustments in computing excess profits net income for certain classes of deductions. The first step in determining such adjustments is the computation of the amount by which such a class of deductions for the taxable year exceeds 115 percent of the average amount of such class for the four immediately preceding taxable years. If the taxpayer was not in existence for four immediately preceding taxable years, then the average amount of deductions of any class shall be determined for the preceding taxable years during which it was in existence and the succeeding taxable years which begin before the beginning of the taxpayer's second excess profits tax taxable year. If the number of such succeeding taxable years is greater than the number necessary to obtain an aggregate of four taxable years, there shall be omitted as many of the succeeding years, beginning with the last, as are necessary to reduce the aggregate to four. For example, in the case of a corporation coming into existence on January 1, 1947, and making its return on the basis of the calendar year, the amount of deductions of any class which may be disallowed for the taxable year 1949 may be determined from the average of the deductions for 1947, 1948, and 1950. The taxable year 1951 is the taxpayer's second excess profits tax taxable year and therefore may not be used.

(b) Extraordinary event. If an extraordinary event gives rise to deductions of the same class for more than one taxable year, then in determining whether the deductions of such class exceed 115 percent of the average deductions of that class, such average shall be computed without reference to any deductions attributable to the extraordinary event. For example, if an extraordinary fire in 1948 caused by the negligence of a corporation results, both in 1948 and 1949, in judgments against the corporation in favor of persons injured by the fire, then in determining whether the amount of the class of deductions by the corporation for judgments, awards, etc., for the taxable year 1949 exceeds 115 percent of the amount of the average deductions of that class for the four preceding taxable years, the deductions for such judgments in 1948 are not taken into account in computing the average deductions for such four preceding years.

(c) Additional requirements. Even though a taxpayer has a class of deductions for a taxable year which meets the requirement that it exceed 115 percent of the average of such class of deductions for the taxable years used in determining average deductions, the taxpayer will not be entitled to compute excess profits net income by adding such excess to normal-tax net income unless the following additional requirements are also met:

(1) The amount of such excess must exceed 5 percent of the average excess profits net income for the taxable years which are within, which begin within, and which end within the base period (computed without the disallowance of any such class of deductions). Such average excess profits net income shall, for this purpose, be computed by aggregating the excess profits net incomes of all such taxable years, dividing such aggregate by the total number of months in such years, and multiplying the quotient by 12. For this purpose, the excess profits net income for any taxable year shall in no case be considered less than zero.

(2) The taxpayer must establish that the increase in the deductions of the class, which increase results in such excess, (i) is not the cause or consequence of (A) an increase in the gross income of the taxpayer in the base period which is substantial in relation to the amount of the increase in the deductions of that class, or (B) a decrease in the amount of some other deduction of the taxpayer in the base period which is substantial in relation to the increase in the deductions of the class, and (ii) is not a consequence of a change at any time in the type, manner of operation, size, or condition of the business engaged in by the taxpayer.

Furthermore, the amount of the excess disallowed may not exceed the amount by which the deductions of such class for such taxable year exceed the deductions of such class for the taxable year for which the excess profits tax is being computed.

(d) Classification of deductions. (1) In section 433 (b) (9) (A), (B), and (C), there are described three groups of deductions, each of which is specifically declared to be a class of deductions. These three classes are:

(i) Deductions attributable to claims, awards, judgments, and decrees against the taxpayer, and interest on the foregoing.

(ii) Deductions attributable to intangible drilling and development costs paid or incurred in or for the drilling of wells or the preparation of wells for the production of oil or gas, and for development costs in the case of mines. Deductions attributable to the operation of wells or mines are not included in this class.

(iii) Deductions under section 23 (f) for losses arising from fires, storms, shipwreck, or other casualty, or from theft, or arising from the demolition, abandonment, or loss of useful value of property, not compensated for by insurance or otherwise. This class of deductions for any taxable year shall not include deductions which are excludible under section 433 (b) (2) or which would be so excludible if section 433 (b) (2) were applicable with respect to such taxable year. Accordingly, this class of deductions for any taxable year does not include losses described in section 117 (j) and does not include capital losses.

(2) Deductions which do not fall within any of the classes specified in section 433 (b) (9) (A)–(C) may be grouped by the taxpayer, subject to approval by the Commissioner on the examination of the taxpayer's return, in such other classes as are reasonable in a business of the type which the taxpayer conducts and are applicable in the light of the taxpayer's business experience and accounting practice. Such a classification will be applicable to all other taxable years considered at any time in adjusting deductions under this section.

(3) For the purpose of determining whether a particular class of deductions exceeds 115 percent of average deductions of the same class, reference must be made to the deductions of the entire class rather than to any particular deductible items included therein.

(e) Statement required. If in computing its excess profits net income under section 433 (b), the taxpayer claims the disallowance under section 433 (b) (9) or (10) of any amount previously allowed as a deduction, there shall be submitted a full statement showing the computation of the amount to be disallowed, the prices and gross sales of the taxpayer's product, and the condition of the taxpayer's business which demonstrate that the disallowed amount is not a cause or a consequence of an increase in the gross income of the taxpayer in its base period or a decrease in the amount of some other deduction in its base period, and is not a consequence of a change at any time in the type, manner of operation, size, or condition of the business engaged in by the taxpayer. This statement shall be in duplicate and shall include the following: (1) The computation of the amount disallowed, showing the amount of the class of deductions in the base period taxable year for which any part of such amount is disallowed, the average amount of such class for the four preceding taxable years or for such taxable years as the taxpayer is required to use in determining this average amount, and the excess amount of deductions disallowed; (2) a computation showing (i) the excess profits net income for each taxable year which is within, which begins within, and which ends within, the base period, computed without the disallowance of any class thereof, (ii) the average of such excess profits net income computed in accordance with section 433 (b) (10) (B), and (iii) the amount of 5 percent of such average excess profits net income so computed; (3) a description and the amount of each item included in such class of deductions for the taxable year for which such deductions are disallowed and for the taxable years in the test period, with the amount of each and a description thereof; (4) the amount of such class and the amount and description of each item in that class for the taxable year for which the excess profits tax is being computed; and (5) all other facts upon which the taxpayer relies.

SEC. 434. EXCESS PROFITS CREDIT—ALLOWANCE.

(a) Domestic corporations. In the case of a domestic corporation, the excess profits credit for any taxable year shall be an amount computed under section 435 or section 436, whichever amount results in the lesser tax under this subchapter for the taxable year for which the tax under this subchapter is being computed.

(b) Foreign corporations. In the case of a foreign corporation engaged in trade or business within the United States, the first taxable year of which under this subchapter begins on or before July 1, 1950, which was in existence on January 1, 1946, and which at any time during each of the taxable years which began or ended during the base period was engaged in trade or business within the United States, the excess profits credit for any taxable year shall be an amount computed under section 435 or section 436, whichever amount results in the lesser tax under this subchapter for the taxable year for which the tax under this subchapter is being computed. In the case of all other foreign corporations the excess profits credit for any taxable year shall be an amount computed under section 436 (b).

(c) Special rule in connection with regulated public utilities. Notwithstanding subsection (a), in the case of a regulated public utility (as defined in section 448) the excess profits credit for any taxable year shall be an amount computed under section 435, section 436, or section 448, whichever results in the lesser tax under this subchapter for the taxable year for which the tax under this subchapter is being computed. In the case of a regulated public utility which has made and filed a consent described in section 141 (e) (8) or (j) applicable to the taxable year, the excess profits shall, for purposes of filing a consolidated return, be determined in accordance with such consent.

(d) Special rule for railroad lessor-lessee corporations. Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection (a) or (c), in the case of a railroad corporation subject to Part I of the Interstate Commerce Act, substantially all of the railroad properties of which have been leased to another such railroad corporation or corporations by an agreement or agreements entered into prior to December 1, 1950, where each lease is for a term of more than 20 years and where under one or more of the leases or agreements relating to the leased properties the lessee is, or the lessees are, required to pay the taxes of the lessor under this chapter, the aggregate of the excess profits credit and the unused excess profits credit adjustment of each of such corporations, computed without regard to this subsection, may be equitably apportioned among the lessor and each of the lessee corporations so required to pay the taxes of the lessor under this subchapter by agreement among such corporations approved by the Secretary. For the purposes of this subsection an agreement for lease of railroad properties entered into prior to December 1, 1950, shall be considered to be a lease including such term as the total number of years such agreement may, unless sooner terminated, be renewed or continued under the terms of the agreement, and any such renewal or continuance under such agreement shall be considered part of the lease entered into prior to December 1, 1950.

§ 40.434–1 Excess profits credit; allowance—(a) In general. (1) For domestic corporations, two general methods are provided for computing the excess profits credit: (i) The income method (including the provisions of section 442 through 446) under section 435; and (ii) the invested capital method (including the historical invested capital method provided in section 458) under section 436. An alternative credit is provided in section 448 in the case of certain regulated public utilities. See paragraph (b) of this section. A domestic corporation shall use whichever of these credits produces the lowest excess profits tax.

(2) For computation of the excess profits credit based on income in the case of a corporation which has been a party to a transaction described in section 461 (a), see sections 461 through 465. For computation of the excess profits credit based on invested capital in the case of a corporation which has been a party to certain reorganizations, exchanges, and intercorporate liquidations, see sections 470 through 472. A corporation entitled to the benefits of section 251 may compute its credit by using either the income method under section 435 or the invested capital method under section 436 (b).

(b) Regulated public utilities. An additional alternative method of computing its credit is provided for a regulated public utility, as defined in section 448. In such a case the excess profits credit for any taxable year shall be an amount computed under section 435, 436, or 448, whichever results in the lowest tax for the taxable year for which the tax is being computed. In the case of a regulated public utility which has made and filed a consent described in section 141 (e) (8) or (j) applicable to the taxable year, the excess profits credit shall, for purposes of filing a consolidated return, be determined in accordance with such consent.

(c) Foreign corporations. A foreign corporation is required to compute its credit under the invested capital method as provided in section 436 (b) except that a foreign corporation (1) which is engaged in trade or business within the United States at any time during the taxable year, (2) the first taxable year of which for the purposes of the excess profits tax began on or before July 1, 1950, (3) which was in existence on January 1, 1946, and (4) which, at any time during each of the taxable years which began or ended during the base period defined in section 435 (b) was engaged in trade or business within the United States, may also compute its credit under the income method and shall use whichever credit produces the lower excess profits tax. As to what constitutes being engaged in a trade or business within the United States, see § 29.231–1 of Regulations 111.

(d) Railroad lessor-lessee corporations. (1) If substantially all the railroad properties of a railroad corporation subject to Part I of the Interstate Commerce Act have been leased for a term of more than 20 years to another such railroad corporation or corporations pursuant to an agreement or agreements entered into prior to December 1, 1950, which agreement or agreements require the lessee or lessees to pay the taxes of the lessor, the aggregate of the excess profits credit and the unused excess profits credit adjustment of each such corporation may be equitably apportioned by agreement, if approved by the Commissioner, among the lessor and each of the lessee corporations so required to pay the taxes of the lessor. The term of a lease of railroad properties entered into prior to December 1, 1950, shall, for the purpose of the preceding sentence, be deemed to include the years for which such lease may be renewed or continued.

(2) The original agreement for such equitable apportionment shall be filed with the collector by the lessor railroad corporation, and a duplicate original shall be filed with the collector by the lessee (or by each lessee, if more than one) railroad corporation. Subject to subsequent approval by the Commissioner, a taxpayer which has made such an agreement may compute its tax on its return pursuant to such agreement, provided that the original agreement, or a duplicate original, as the case may be, is attached to the return together with a statement clearly showing the proper computation of the tax without regard to the agreement. If the return is filed without regard to the agreement, the original agreement (or a duplicate original in the case of a lessee) shall be attached to a claim for refund if the application of section 434 (d) results in an overpayment, or to an amended return if the application of section 434 (d) does not result in an overpayment.

SEC. 435. EXCESS PROFITS CREDIT—BASED ON INCOME.

(a) Amount of excess profits credit. The excess profits credit for any taxable year, computed under this section, shall be—

(1) Domestic corporations. In the case of a domestic corporation the sum of—

(A) 85 per centum of the average base period net income,

(B) If the average base period net income of the taxpayer is the amount determined under subsection (d) of this section or under section 442, 12 per centum of the amount of the base period capital addition, computed under subsection (f), and

(C) 12 per centum of the net capital addition (as defined in subsection (g) (1)) for the taxable year, minus 12 per centum of the net capital reduction (as defined in subsection (g) (2)) for the taxable year.

(2) Foreign corporations. In the case of a foreign corporation, 85 per centum of the average base period net income.

(3) Cross reference. For the computation of the excess profits credit based on income in the case of certain reorganizations, see part II of this subchapter.

(b) Base period. As used in this subchapter the term "base period" means the period beginning January 1, 1946, and ending December 31, 1949, except that in the case of a taxpayer whose first taxable year under this subchapter was preceded by a taxable year which ended after December 31, 1949, and before April 1, 1950, and which began before January 1, 1950, the term "base period" means the period of 48 consecutive months ending with the close of such preceding taxable year.

(c) Average base period net income—determination. For the purposes of this section the average base period net income of the taxpayer shall be the amount determined under subsection (d), subject to the exception that if the taxpayer is entitled to the benefits of subsection (e) of this section, or section 442, 443, 444, 445, or 446, then the average base period net income shall be the amount determined under subsection (d) or (e) or under such section, whichever results in the lesser tax under this subchapter for the taxable year for which the tax under this subchapter is being computed.

(d) Average base period net income—General average. The average base period net income determined under this subsection shall be determined as follows:

(1) By computing the excess profits net income for each month in the base period. The excess profits net income for any month during any part of which the taxpayer was in existence shall be the excess profits net income for the taxable year in which such month falls divided by the number of full calendar months in such year, but in no case shall the excess profits net income for any month be less than zero. The excess profits net income for any month during no part of which the taxpayer was in existence shall be zero.

(2) By eliminating from the base period whichever of the following twelve months results in the higher average base period net income—

(A) The twelve consecutive months the elimination of which produces the highest average base period net income, or

(B) The twelve months which remain after retaining in the base period the thirty-six consecutive months which produce the highest average base period net income.

(3) By computing the aggregate of the excess profits net income for each of the thirty-six months remaining in the base period.

(4) By dividing by 3 the amount ascertained under paragraph (3).

(e) Average base period net income—alternative based on growth—(1) Taxpayers to which subsection applies. A taxpayer shall be entitled to the benefits of this subsection if the taxpayer commenced business before the beginning of its base period, and if either—

(A) (i) The total assets of the taxpayer as of the first day of its base period (when added to the total assets for such day of all corporations with which the taxpayer has the privilege under section 141 of filing a consolidated return for its first taxable year under this subchapter, determined under paragraph (3), did not exceed $20,000,000, and

(ii) The total payroll of the taxpayer (as determined under paragraph (4)) for the last half of its base period is 130 per centum or more of its total payroll for the first half of its base period, or the gross receipts of the taxpayer (as determined under paragraph (5) for the last half of its base period is 150 percentum or more of its gross receipts for the first half of its base period, or

(B) (i) The taxpayer's net sales for the period beginning January 1, 1950, and ending June 30, 1950, when multiplied by 2, equals or exceeds 150 per centum of its average net sales for the calendar years 1946-1947; and

(ii) 40 per centum or more of the taxpayer's net sales for the calendar year 1950 is attributable to a product, or class of products (including any article in which such product or class of products is the principal component and including any article which is a component of such product or class of products), of a kind not generally available to the public at any time prior to January 1, 1946, and

(iii) The amount of the taxpayer's net sales which is attributable to such product or class of similar products, for the calendar year 1946 is 5 per centum or less of the amount of its net sales so attributable for the calendar year 1949. For the purposes of this subparagraph, the term "net sales" with respect to any period means the total amount received or accrued during such period from the sale, exchange, or other disposition of stock in trade of the taxpayer or other property of a kind which would properly be included in the inventory of the taxpayer if on hand at the close of the taxable year, or property held by the taxpayer primarily for sale to customers in the ordinary course of its trade or business; reduced by the amount of discounts, returns, and allowances paid or incurred for such period.

(2) Computation. The average base period net income determined under this subsection shall be determined as follows:

(A) By computing (in the manner provided by the second sentence of subsection (d) (1) the excess profits net income for each of the last 24 months in the base period.

(B) By computing the aggregate of the excess profits net income for each such month.

(C) By dividing by 2 the amount ascertained under subparagraph (B).

(D) By computing the aggregate of the excess profits net income for each of the last twelve months in the base period.

(E) By computing (in the manner provided by the second sentence of subsection (d) (1) the excess profits net income for each of the twelve months in the period beginning July 1, 1949, and ending June 30, 1950. For the purposes of this subparagraph and subparagraph (G) the excess profits net income for any month after December 1949 shall be the "weighted excess profits net income" for the taxable year in which such month falls divided by the number of full calendar months in such year, but in no case shall such excess profits net income for any month be less than zero. The "weighted excess profits net income" for any taxable year beginning before July 1, 1950, shall be—

(i) 100 per centum of the excess profits net income for the taxable year if such year ends before July 1, 1950;

(ii) 90 per centum of the excess profits net income for the taxable year if such year ends after June 30, 1950, and before October 1, 1950;

(iii) 80 per centum of the excess profits net income for the taxable year if such year ends after September 30, 1950, and before April 1, 1951; and

(iv) 70 per centum of the excess profits net income for the taxable year if such year ends after March 31, 1951.

(F) By computing the aggregate of the excess profits net income for each of the twelve months referred to in subparagraph (E).

(G) In the case of a taxpayer who is entitled to the benefits of this subsection only under paragraph (1) (B) and whose excess profits net income for the calendar year 1949 is not more than 25 per centum of its excess profits net income for the calendar year 1948, by computing—

(i) In the manner provided by subparagraph (E), the excess profits net income for each of the six months in the period beginning July 1, 1948, and ending December 31, 1948, and for each of the six months in the period beginning January 1, 1950, and June 30, 1950, and

(ii) The aggregate of the excess profits net income for each of the twelve months referred to in clause (i).

The average base period net income determined under this subsection shall be the amount ascertained under subparagraph (C), (D), or (F), whichever is the highest, except that in the case of a taxpayer described in subparagraph (G), its average base period net income determined under this subsection shall be the amount ascertained under subparagraph (C), (D), (F), or (G) (ii), whichever is the highest.

(3) Total assets. For the purposes of this subsection the taxpayer's total assets as of any day shall be determined as of the beginning of such day and shall be an amount equal to the sum of the cash and the property other than cash, held by such taxpayer for the purposes of the business. Such property shall be included in an amount equal to its adjusted basis for determining gain upon sale or exchange. In case the taxpayer has the privilege under section 141 of filing a consolidated return for its first taxable year under this subchapter, the total assets of the affiliated group as of any day shall be determined under regulations prescribed by the Secretary.

(4) Total payroll. As used in this subsection the term "total payroll" with respect to any period means the sum of the salaries, wages, commissions, and other compensation paid or incurred by the taxpayer during such period for personal services actually rendered by employees, excluding the amount thereof which is allowable as a deduction under section 23 (p) and excluding any compensation paid in any medium other than cash. In the event that a taxable year falls partly within such period, there shall be allocated, for the purposes of this paragraph, to the portion of the year within such period an amount of the salaries, wages, commissions, and other compensation for such year in the same proportion as the number of months in such year within the period bears to the total number of months in such year.

(5) Gross receipts. As used in this subsection the term "gross receipts" with respect to any period means the sum of:

(A) The total amount received or accrued during such period from the sale, exchange, or other disposition of stock in trade of the taxpayer or other property of a kind which would properly be included in the inventory of the taxpayer if on hand at the close of the taxable year, or property held by the taxpayer primarily for sale to customers in the ordinary course of its trade or business, and

(B) The gross income, attributable to a trade or business regularly carried on by the taxpayer, received or accrued during such period excluding therefrom—

(i) Gross income derived from the sale, exchange, or other disposition of property;

(ii) Gross income derived from discharge or indebtedness of the taxpayer;

(iii) Dividends on stocks of corporations; and

(iv) Income attributable to recovery of bad debts.

In the event that a taxable year falls partly within such period, there shall be allocated, for the purposes of subparagraphs (A) and (B), to the portion of the year within such period an amount of the total gross receipts (as defined in such subparagraphs) for such year in the same proportion as the number of months in such year within the period bears to the total number of months in such year.

(f) Capital additions in base period—(1) Definition of yearly base period capital. For the purposes of this subsection, the yearly base period capital for any taxable year shall be the sum of the equity capital (as defined in section 437 (c)) at the beginning of such taxable year and an amount equal to 75 per centum of the daily borrowed capital (as defined in section 439 (b)) for the first day of such taxable year, reduced by the sum of—

(A) The amount of inadmissible assets at the beginning of such taxable year, determined under section 440, minus 25 per centum of the excess, if any, of such amount over the amount of the equity capital (as defined in section 437 (c)) at the beginning of such taxable year.

(B) 75 per centum of the amount of loans to members of a controlled group, determined under paragraph (4), and

(C) 75 per centum of the amount of the adjustment for interest on borrowed capital, determined under paragraph (5).

(2) Computation of base period capital addition—General Rule. The amount of the base period capital addition referred to in subsection (a) (1) (B) shall, except in cases otherwise provided for in paragraph (3), be determined as follows:

(A) By computing the yearly base period capital for each of the following years:

(i) The first taxable year of the taxpayer under this subchapter;

(ii) The immediately preceding taxable year; and

(iii) The second preceding taxable year.

(B) By computing the amount of the excess, if any, of the amount ascertained under subparagraph (A) (i) over the higher of the amounts ascertained under subparagraphs (A) (ii) and (A) (iii).

(C) By computing the amount of the excess, if any, of the lower of the amounts ascertained under subparagraphs (A) (i) and (A) (ii) over the amount ascertained under subparagraph (A) (iii).

(D) By adding to the amount ascertained under subparagraph (B) one-half of the amount ascertained under subparagraph (C).

(3) Special rules in case of abnormality during base period. In the event that the average base period net income of the taxpayer is determined under section 442, then—

(A) If its average base period net income is determined under section 442 (d), the base period capital addition shall be zero.

(B) If its average base period net income is determined under section 442 (c) (1) by including a substitute excess profits net income for any part of its first taxable year under this subchapter or for the immediately preceding year, the base period capital addition shall be zero.

(C) If its average base period net income is computed under section 442 (c) (1) by including a substitute excess profits net income for any part of the earlier of the taxpayer's two taxable years immediately preceding its first taxable year under this subchapter, the base period capital addition shall be the excess, if any, of the amount ascertained under paragraph (2) (A) (i) over the amount ascertained under paragraph (2) (A) (ii).

(4) Loan to members of a controlled group. If, on the first day of any taxable year, the taxpayer and any one or more other corporations are members of the same controlled group, as defined in subsection (g) (6), the amount referred to in paragraph (1) (B) with respect to such taxable year shall be the amount of the indebtedness of such other corporation (or if more than one, such other corporations) to the taxpayer at the beginning of such day. For the purposes of this paragraph, the term "indebtedness" means indebtedness which constitutes daily borrowed capital, as defined in section 439 (b) (1), of such other corporation for such day.

(5) Adjustment for interest on borrowed capital. The adjustment for interest on borrowed capital referred to in paragraph (1) (C) with respect to any taxable year shall be determined as follows:

(A) By multiplying any indebtedness of the taxpayer which constitutes daily borrowed capital (as defined in section 439 (b)) for the first day of such taxable year by the annual rate of interest payable upon such indebtedness during such taxable year.

(B) By aggregating the amounts ascertained under subparagraph (A) with respect to all borrowed capital for such day.

(C) By multiplying the aggregate amount ascertained under subparagraph (B) by 100, and dividing the product by 12.

(6) Cross reference. For special rules applicable to this subsection see section 441.

(g) Net capital addition or reduction—(1) Net capital addition. The net capital addition for the taxable year shall, for the purposes of this section, be the excess, divided by the number of days in the taxable year, of the aggregate of the daily capital addition for each day of the taxable year over the aggregate of the daily capital reduction for each day of the taxable year. If there is an increase in inadmissible assets for the taxable year, determined under paragraph (5), the net capital addition shall be the excess of the amount determined under the preceding sentence over—

(A) Unless subparagraph (B) is applicable, the amount of such increase in inadmissible assets;

(B) If the amount of such increase in inadmissible assets is in excess of the net capital addition determined without regard to this sentence and without regard to paragraph (3) (C), the amount of such increase in inadmissible assets minus 25 per centum of such excess.

(2) Net capital reduction. The net capital reduction for the taxable year shall, for the purposes of this section, be the excess, divided by the number of days in the taxable year, of the aggregate of the daily capital reduction for each day of the taxable year over the aggregate of the daily capital addition for each day of the taxable year. If there is a decrease in inadmissible assets for the taxable year, determined under paragraph (5), the net capital reduction shall be the excess of the amount determined under the preceding sentence over—

(A) Unless subparagraph (B) is applicable, the amount of such decrease in inadmissible assets;

(B) If the amount of such decrease in inadmissible assets is in excess of the net capital reduction determined without regard to this sentence and without regard to paragraph (4) (C) and (E), the amount of such decrease in inadmissible assets minus 25 percentum of such excess.

(3) Daily capital addition. The daily capital addition for any day of the taxable year shall, for the purposes of this section, be the sum of the following:

(A) The aggregate of the amounts of money and property paid in for stock, or as paid-in surplus, or as a contribution to capital, after the beginning of the taxable year and prior to such day.

(B) The amount, if any, by which the equity capital (as defined in section 437 (c)) at the beginning of the taxable year exceeds the equity capital at the beginning of the taxpayer's first taxable year under this subchapter.

(C) 75 per centum of the amount, if any, by which the average borrowed capital for the taxable year (as defined in section 439 (a)) exceeds the daily borrowed capital for the first day of the taxpayer's first taxable year under this subchapter.

(4) Daily capital reduction. The daily capital reduction for any day of the taxable year shall, for the purposes of this section, be the sum of the following:

(A) Distributions to shareholders previously made during such taxable year which are not out of the earnings and profits of such taxable year; and

(B) The amount, if any, by which the amount of the equity capital (as defined in section 437 (c)) at the beginning of the taxpayer's first taxable year under this subchapter exceeds the amount of the equity capital at the beginning of the taxable year; and

(C) 75 per centum of the amount, if any, by which the daily borrowed capital (as determined under section 439 (b)) for the first day of the taxpayer's first taxable year under this subchapter exceeds the average borrowed capital for the taxable year; and

(D) The amount determined under paragraph (6), relating to increase in certain inadmissible assets by a member of a controlled group; and

(E) 75 per centum of the amount determined under paragraph (7), relating to increase in loans to a member of a controlled group.

(5) Definitions with respect to inadmissible assets. For the purposes of this subsection—

(A) Average inadmissible assets for the taxable year. The average inadmissible assets for any taxable year shall be the total of the daily amounts attributable to the inadmissible assets for such taxable year, determined under section 440 (b), divided by the number of days in such taxable year.

(B) Original inadmissible assets. The term "original inadmissible assets" means the total of the inadmissible assets for the first day of the taxpayer's first taxable year under this subchapter, determined under section 440 (b).

(C) Increase in inadmissible assets. The term "increase in inadmissible assets" for any taxable year means the excess of the average inadmissible assets for such taxable year over the original inadmissible assets.

(D) Decrease in inadmissible assets. The term "decrease in inadmissible assets" for any taxable year means the excess of the original inadmissible assets over the average inadmissible assets for such year.

(6) Controlled group. If, on any day of the taxable year, the taxpayer and any one or more other corporations are members of the same controlled group, the amount added to the daily capital reduction under paragraph (4) (D) shall be whichever of the following amounts is the lesser:

(A) The excess of the aggregate of the adjusted basis (for determining gain upon sale or exchange) of stock in such other corporation (or if more than one, in such other corporations) held by the taxpayer at the beginning of such day over the aggregate of the adjusted basis (for determining gain upon sale or exchange) of stock in such other corporation (or if more than one, in such other corporations) held by the taxpayer at the beginning of its first taxable year under this subchapter; or

(B) The excess of the aggregate of the adjusted basis (for determining gain upon sale or exchange) of inadmissible assets held by the taxpayer at the beginning of such day, over the aggregate of the adjusted basis (for determining gain upon sale or exchange) of inadmissible assets held by the taxpayer at the beginning of its first taxable year under this subchapter.

The increase in inadmissible assets for the taxable year shall, for the purposes of paragraph (1), be determined by reducing the inadmissible assets for such day by the amount by which the daily capital reduction for such day is increased under this paragraph. As used in this paragraph, a controlled group means one or more chains of corporations connected through stock ownership with a common parent corporation if (i) more than 50 per centum of the total combined voting power of all classes of stock entitled to vote, or more than 50 per centum of the total value of shares of all classes of stock of each of the corporations (except the common parent corporation) is owned directly by one or more of the other corporations and (ii) the common parent corporation owns directly more than 50 per centum of the total combined voting power of all classes of stock entitled to vote, or more than 50 per centum of the total value of shares of all classes of stock, of at least one of the other corporations.

(7) Loans to members of a controlled group. If, on any day of the taxable year, the taxpayer and any one or more other corporations are members of the same controlled group, as defined in paragraph (6), the amount referred to in paragraph (4) (E) shall be the excess of the amount of the indebtedness of such other corporation (or if more than one, such other corporations) to the taxpayer at the beginning of such day over the amount of the indebtedness by such other corporation (or if more than one, such other corporations) to the taxpayer at the beginning of its first taxable year under this subchapter. For the purposes of this paragraph, the term "indebtedness" means indebtedness which constitutes daily borrowed capital, as defined in section 439 (b) (1), of such other corporation for such day.

(8) Cross reference. For special rules applicable to this subsection see section 441.

§ 40.435–1 Excess profits credit based on income; determination of average base period net income—(a) Introductory. In order for a corporation to determine for any particular taxable year the amount of its excess profits credit based on income, it is necessary first to compute the amount of the average base period net income, 85 percent of which is the starting point for computing the excess profits credit based on income. Two methods are provided in section 435 for determining the average base period net income: (1) The general average method, set forth in section 435 (d) and in paragraph (d) of this section, and (2) the alternative method set forth in section 435 (e) applicable to certain taxpayers whose growth entitles them to the benefits of a method provided in such section, if such method results in a lesser excess profits tax.

(b) Base period. The term "base period" means the period beginning January 1, 1946, and ending December 31, 1949, except in the case of a taxpayer whose first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, was preceded by a taxable year which began before January 1, 1950, and ended January 31, February 28, or March 31, 1950. In the latter case the term "base period" means the 48 consecutive months ending with the close of January, February, or March, 1950, as the case may be. A fiscal year taxpayer whose first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, was preceded by a taxable year which began before January 1, 1950, and ended after March 31, 1950, will use as its base period the period beginning January 1, 1946, and ending December 31, 1949.

(c) Average base period net income; determination. The average base period net income is the amount determined under section 435 (d) (for computation, see paragraph (d) of this section), unless the taxpayer is entitled to the benefits of section 435 (e), 442, 443, 444, 445, or 446, in which case the average base period net income shall be the amount determined under whichever section, applicable to the taxpayer, results in the lowest excess profits tax for the taxable year.

(d) Computation under general average method. The following steps are required for the computation of the average base period net income under the general average method:

(1) The excess profits net income is determined for each month during which the taxpayer was in existence during the base period. This amount is determined for any month during any part of which the taxpayer was in existence by dividing the excess profits net income (computed in accordance with the provisions of section 433 (b) for the taxable year in which such month falls by the number of full calendar months in such taxable year. In no case shall the excess profits net income for any month be less than zero. The excess profits net income for any month during no part of which the taxpayer was in existence shall be zero.

(2) The 36 months which produce the highest aggregate excess profits net income are selected under either of two methods: (i) The 12 consecutive months having the lowest aggregate excess profits net income may be eliminated; or (ii) the 36 consecutive months having the highest aggregate excess profits net income may be retained.

(3) The excess profits net income for each of the 36 months selected under subparagraph (2) of this paragraph is aggregated.

(4) The aggregate amount computed under subparagraph (3) of this paragraph is divided by 3.

§ 40.435–3 Definitions. For the purpose of section 435 (e)—

(a) Total assets. The term "total assets" means an amount equal to the sum of cash and property other than cash, held by the taxpayer for purposes of the business. The total assets as of any day shall be determined as of the beginning of such day. The property is to be included in an amount equal to its adjusted basis for determining gain upon sale or exchange. See, in general, section 113 and the regulations prescribed thereunder. For special rule in the case of certain intangible property, see section 441 (i). If the taxpayer is a member of an affiliated group of corporations which has the privilege under section 141 of filing a consolidated return for its first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, there shall also be included the total assets of each member of such affiliated group whether or not a consolidated return is filed, and whether or not such corporation was a member of an affiliated group including the taxpayer on the day as of which total assets are computed. Such total assets shall be determined in a manner consistent with the principles applicable with respect to consolidated returns.

(b) Total payroll. The term "total payroll" with respect to any period includes all salaries, wages, commissions, and other compensation paid or incurred during such period by the taxpayer for personal services actually rendered by employees. However, there is excluded from the total payroll, the amount thereof which is allowable as a deduction under section 23 (p). There is also excluded any compensation paid in any medium other than cash.

(c) Gross receipts. The term "gross receipts" with respect to any period means the sum of: (1) The total amount received or accrued during such period from the sale, exchange, or other disposition of stock in trade of the taxpayer, or other property of a kind which would properly be included in the inventory of the taxpayer if on hand at the close of the taxable year, or property held by the taxpayer primarily for sale to customers in the ordinary course of its trade or business, and (2) the gross income attributable to a trade or business regularly carried on by the taxpayer, received or accrued during such period, but excluding therefrom—

(i) Gross income derived from the sale, exchange, or other disposition of property;

(ii) Gross income derived from discharge of the taxpayer's indebtedness;

(iii) Dividends on stocks of corporations; and

(iv) Income attributable to recovery of bad debts.

(d) Net sales. The term "net sales" with respect to any period means the total amount received or accrued during such period from the sale, exchange, or other disposition of stock in trade of the taxpayer, or other property of a kind which would properly be included in the inventory of the taxpayer if on hand at the close of the taxable year, or property held by the taxpayer primarily for sale to customers in the ordinary course of its trade or business; reduced by the amount of discounts, returns, and allowances paid or incurred for such period.

(e) Products not generally available prior to 1946. For the purpose of section 435 (e) (1) (B), "products not generally available prior to 1946" means a product, or class of products (including any article in which such product or class of products is the principal component and including any article which is a component of such product or class of products) of a kind not generally available to the public at any time prior to January 1, 1946. A product which is a modification of an old product, such as an improvement or change in style, is not a product of the type referred to. A product which was generally available prior to 1946, although not available at all times prior thereto, is also not covered.

§ 40.435–4 Qualifications for computation of alternative average base period net income based on growth—(a) In general. Section 435 (e) is applicable only to a taxpayer which commenced business before the beginning of its base period and which establishes that it qualifies under either paragraphs (b) or (c) of this section. A taxpayer computing its average base period net income by using an alternative based on growth shall submit with its return a full and complete statement showing the basis upon which each requirement of section 435 (e) is satisfied and all the facts upon which the taxpayer relies.

(b) Eligibility requirements; general rule. A taxpayer which commenced business before the beginning of its base period shall be entitled to the benefits of section 435 (e) if its total assets as of the beginning of the first day of its base period did not exceed $20,000,000 and either—

(1) The taxpayer's total payroll for the last half (the last 24 months) of its base period is at least 30 percent greater than the taxpayer's total payroll for the first half (the first 24 months) of its base period, or

(2) The taxpayer's gross receipts for the last half (the last 24 months) of its base period are at least 50 percent greater than the taxpayer's gross receipts for the first half (the first 24 months) of its base period.

Where a taxable year falls partly within the first or second half of the base period, the amounts of the gross receipts or total payroll shall be allocated on a monthly basis to the appropriate period.

(c) Eligibility requirements; products not generally available prior to 1946. Regardless of the amount of its total assets as of the beginning of the first day of its base period, a taxpayer which commenced business before the beginning of its base period may compute its average base period net income under section 435 (e) if—

(1) The taxpayer's net sales for the period beginning January 1, 1950, and ending June 30, 1950, when multiplied by 2 is at least 50 percent greater than its average net sales for the calendar years 1946 and 1947, and

(2) At least 40 percent of the taxpayer's net sales for the calendar year 1950 is attributable to products not generally available prior to 1946, and

(3) The amount of the taxpayer's net sales attributable to such products for the calendar year 1946 does not constitute more than 5 percent of the amount of its net sales so attributable for the calendar year 1949.

In order to determine qualification under this subsection, a taxpayer must compute its net sales for each particular period specified. It may not, for example, determine its net sales for a particular specified period by allocating to such period a pro rata portion of net sales for its taxable year which includes such period.

§ 40.435–5 Computation of average base period net income based on growth—(a) Computation. The following steps are required for the computation of average base period net income under the methods set forth in section 435 (e):

(1) The excess profits net income for each of the last 24 months in the base period is determined as provided in the second sentence of section 435 (d) (1).

(2) The amounts determined under subparagraph (1) of this paragraph are aggregated.

(3) The aggregate amount ascertained under subparagraph (2) of this paragraph is divided by 2.

(4) The excess profits net income for each of the last 12 months in the base period is aggregated.

(5) The excess profits net income (determined as provided in the second sentence of section 435 (d) (1)) or the weighted excess profits net income (as defined in paragraph (b) of this section), as the case may be, for each of the 12 months in the period beginning July 1, 1949, and ending June 30, 1950, is computed.

(6) The amounts determined under subparagraph (5) of this paragraph are aggregated.

(7) If a taxpayer meets the eligibility requirements with respect to products not generally available prior to 1946 (see § 40.435–4 (c)) and does not qualify under the general requirements for the alternative based on growth (see § 40.435–4 (b)), and if its excess profits net income for the calendar year 1949 is not more than 25 percent of its excess profits

net income for the calendar year 1948, then—

(i) The excess profits net income for each of the six months in the period beginning July 1, 1948, and ending December 31, 1948, and the weighted excess profits net income for each of the six months in the period beginning January 1, 1950, and ending June 30, 1950, are computed.

(ii) The amounts determined under subdivision (i) of this subparagraph are aggregated.

(8) The average base period net income under section 435 (e) is the amount ascertained under subparagraphs (3), (4), or (6) of this paragraph, whichever is the highest. In the case of a taxpayer described in subparagraph (7) of this paragraph, the average base period net income is the amount ascertained under subparagraphs (3), (4), (6), or (7) of this paragraph, whichever is the highest.

(b) Weighted excess profits net income. For the purpose of paragraph (a) (5) and (7) of this section, the term "weighted excess profits net income" applies to any month after December 1949, and means the weighted excess profits net income for the taxable year in which such month falls, divided by the number of full calendar months in such year. The term "weighted excess profits net income for the taxable year" applies only to taxable years beginning before July 1, 1950 (and ending after December 31, 1949), and is an amount equal to the following percentages of the excess profits net income for such taxable years:

(1) 100 percent of the excess profits net income for the taxable year if such year ends before July 1, 1950;

(2) 90 percent of the excess profits net income for the taxable year if such year ends after June 30, 1950, and before October 1, 1950;

(3) 80 percent of the excess profits net income for the taxable year if such year ends after September 30, 1950, and before April 1, 1951; and

(4) 70 percent of the excess profits net income for the taxable year if such year ends after March 31, 1951.

§ 40.435–6 Capital additions in base period—(a) In general. (1) If the average base period net income of the taxpayer is determined under the general average method (see § 435 (d) and § 40.435–1 (d)), the excess profits credit of the taxpayer computed under section 435 (a) shall include 12 percent of the amount of the base period capital addition. See section 435 (a) (1) (B). The base period capital addition shall also be available, subject to certain limitations to a corporation computing its average base period net income under section 442, relating to abnormalities during the base period. See section 435 (f) (3) and (d) of this section. No base period capital addition shall be allowed if the average base period net income is computed under the method provided in sections 435 (e), 443, 444, 445, or 446. In the case of installment basis taxpayers and taxpayers with income from long-term contracts, electing under section 455, see section 441 (h).

(2) The base period capital addition is based upon the net addition to capital for the taxpayer's last two taxable years ending before July 1, 1950. Only one-half the net addition to capital for the earlier taxable year is in general taken into account. In determining the net addition to capital, the full increase in equity capital and 75 percent of the increase in borrowed capital are taken into account, subject to adjustments for interest on borrowed capital, for inadmissible assets, and for loans to members of a controlled group of which the taxpayer is a member. The base period capital addition shall in no case be less than zero and there is no corresponding downward adjustment to reflect a decrease in capital prior to the first excess profits tax taxable year.

(3) No base period capital addition is permitted or required in the case of a foreign corporation.

(4) For special rules applicable in the case of a corporation a party to a transaction described in section 461 (a), see section 464, and for rules applicable in general to this section, see section 441.

(b) Yearly base period capital—(1) Definition. The first step in the computation of the base period capital addition under section 435 (f) is the determination of the yearly base period capital for the taxpayer's first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, and for each of the two preceding taxable years. For the purposes of section 435 (f), the yearly base period capital for any taxable year shall be the sum of the equity capital, as defined in section 437 (c), at the beginning of the first day of such taxable year, plus an amount equal to 75 percent of the daily borrowed capital, as defined in section 439 (b), for the first day of such taxable year. Such sum shall be reduced by the sum of:

(i) The amount of the inadmissible assets held by the taxpayer at the beginning of such taxable year, determined under section 440, minus 25 percent of the excess, if any, of such amount over the amount of the equity capital (as defined in section 437 (c)) at the beginning of the first day of such taxable year;

(ii) 75 percent of the amount of loans to members of a controlled group; and

(iii) 75 percent of the amount of the adjustment for interest on borrowed capital.

(2) Equity capital. The equity capital at the beginning of the first day of any taxable year shall be determined under section 437 (c) and under the provisions of law, such as section 441 and section 470, applicable to determinations under section 437 (c). See § 40.437–5.

(3) Borrowed capital. The amount of the daily borrowed capital, 75 percent of which is added to the equity capital, shall be determined under section 439 (b) as of the beginning of the first day of each taxable year. See § 40.439–1.

(4) Inadmissible assets. The amount of the inadmissible assets held by the taxpayer as of the beginning of the first day of each taxable year constitutes a reduction, under section 435 (f) (1) (A), in the computation of the yearly base period capital for such taxable year. The amount of the inadmissible assets shall be determined under section 440. See § 40.440–1. Where the amount of the inadmissible assets at the beginning of any taxable year is in excess of the equity capital at such time, the amount of inadmissible assets, for the purposes of determining the reduction under section 435 (f) (1) (A), is reduced by 25 percent of such excess.

(5) Loans to members of a controlled group. If on the first day of any taxable year the taxpayer was a member of a controlled group, 75 percent of the amount of the indebtedness to the taxpayer, as of the beginning of such day, of any other members of the controlled group constitutes a reduction, under section 435 (f) (1) (B), in computing the yearly base period capital for such taxable year. For this purpose, the term "indebtedness" means indebtedness which constitutes daily borrowed capital, as defined in section 439 (b) (1), of such other member of the controlled group for such day. For definition of controlled group, see section 435 (g) (6).

(6) Adjustment for interest on borrowed capital. In computing the yearly base period capital for any taxable year, section 435 (f) (1) (C) requires that such amount shall be reduced by 75 percent of the amount of the adjustment computed under section 435 (f) (5) for interest on indebtedness of the taxpayer which constitutes daily borrowed capital. The computation of the adjustment for interest on borrowed capital under section 435 (f) (5) and of the reduction under section 435 (f) (1) (C) is illustrated by the following example:

Example. The Y corporation, which makes its return on the calendar year basis, has daily borrowed capital on January 1, 1948, in the following amounts: $100,000 of 4 percent bonds, maturing January 31, 1948, $50,000 of 6 percent notes maturing August 31, 1949, and $40,000 of 5 percent bonds maturing December 31, 1955, which indebtedness constitutes the total amount of its daily borrowed capital, as defined in section 439 (b), as of the beginning of such day. The adjustment for interest on borrowed capital is $75,000 and the reduction for such adjustment is $56,250, computed as follows:

(1) $100,000 multiplied by 4 percent	$4,000
(2) $50,000 multiplied by 6 percent	3,000
(3) $40,000 multiplied by 5 percent	2,000
(4) Aggregate of items (1), (2), and (3)	9,000
(5) Item (4) multiplied by 100	900,000
(6) Adjustment for interest on borrowed capital (item (5) divided by 12)	75,000
(7) Reduction required by section 435 (f) (1) (C) (75 percent of item 6)	56,250

(c) Computation of base period capital addition; general rule. (1) The computation of the base period capital addition is based on a comparison of the yearly base period capital, as determined under section 435 (f) (1) and under paragraph (b) of this section, for each of three taxable years: (i) The taxpayer's first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, (ii) the taxpayer's immediately preceding taxable year, and (iii) the taxpayer's second preceding taxable year.

(2) The amount of the base period capital addition shall be determined as follows:

(i) By computing the amount of the excess, if any, of the amount of the yearly base period capital for the taxpayer's first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, over the higher of (a) the amount of the yearly base period capital for the first preceding taxable year, or (b) the amount of the yearly base period capital for the second preceding taxable year.

(ii) By computing the amount of the excess, if any, of the lower of (a) the amount of the yearly base period capital for the taxpayer's first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, or (b) the amount of the yearly base period capital for the first preceding taxable year, over the amount of the yearly base period capital for the second preceding taxable year.

(iii) By adding the amount ascertained under subparagraph (1) of this paragraph and one-half of the amount ascertained under this subparagraph. The sum so determined is the base period capital addition of the taxpayer.

(3) Example. Corporations X, Y, and Z, which make their returns on the calendar year basis, have yearly base period capital, as determined under section 435 (f) (1), as follows:

	X	Y	Z
Jan. 1, 1948	$100,000	$100,000	$100,000
Jan. 1, 1949	120,000	140,000	70,000
Jan. 1, 1950	140,000	110,000	130,000

The base period capital additions of corporations X, Y, and Z are $30,000, $5,000, and $30,000, respectively, computed as follows:

	X	Y	Z
(i) Excess of yearly base period capital for 1950 over higher of such amount for 1949 and 1948:
(A) Yearly base period capital Jan. 1, 1950	$140,000	$110,000	$130,000
(B) Higher of such amount for 1949 and for 1948	120,000	140,000	100,000
(C) Excess of (A) over (B)	20,000	0	30,000
(ii) One-half excess of lower of yearly base period capital for 1950 and 1949 over such amount for 1948:
(A) Lower of such amount for 1950 and 1949	120,000	110,000	70,000
(B) Amount for 1948	100,000	100,000	100,000
(C) Excess of (A) over (B)	20,000	10,000	0
(D) One-half of (C)	10,000	5,000	0
(iii) Base period capital addition (sum of (i) and (ii))	30,000	5,000	30,000

(d) Special rules in case of abnormality during base period. The base period capital addition, in the case of a taxpayer computing its average base period net income under section 442, is subject to the following rules:

(1) If more than 12 of the 36 months in the period subject to adjustment fall within taxable years the excess profits net income of which was adversely affected by an abnormality, the base period capital addition is zero.

(2) If 12 or fewer of the 36 months in the period subject to adjustment fall within a taxable year or years the excess profits net income of which was adversely affected by an abnormality, and

(i) If a substitute excess profits net income (in excess of 110 percent of excess profits net income) is computed for any part of the taxpayer's first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, or for any part of the immediately preceding taxable year, the base period capital addition is zero.

(ii) If a substitute excess profits net income (in excess of 110 percent of excess profits net income) is computed for any part of the earlier of the taxpayer's two taxable years immediately preceding its first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, the base period capital addition shall be the excess, if any, of the amount of the yearly base period capital determined under the rules provided in section 435 (f) (1) and in paragraph (b) of this section for the first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, over the amount of such yearly base period capital for the immediately preceding taxable year.

(iii) If neither subdivision (i) nor subdivision (ii) of this subparagraph applies, the base period capital addition is determined in accordance with the general rule provided in paragraph (c) of this section.

§ 40.435–7 Net capital addition or reduction—(a) In general. (1) In addition to adjustments in certain cases for capital changes during the base period (see section 435 (f)), it is also necessary in computing the excess profits credit under section 435 to make adjustments for capital changes occurring after the beginning of the taxpayer's first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950. Section 435 (a) provides that the excess profits credit computed under that section shall be increased or decreased, as the case may be, by 12 percent of the net capital addition or reduction computed under section 435 (g). The net capital addition (or reduction), in general, consists of the net increase (or decrease) in equity and borrowed capital, determined by comparing the equity and borrowed capital for the taxable year with the equity and borrowed capital at the beginning of the first day of the taxpayer's first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950. For this purpose borrowed capital is taken into account at 75 percent. Under certain circumstances an adjustment is made with respect to inadmissible assets and loans to members of a controlled group of corporations of which the taxpayer is a member.

(2) For rules applicable if the average base period net income is computed under the provisions of section 443, relating to change in products or services, see § 40.443–3 (b). For rules applicable if the average base period net income is computed under the provisions of section 445, relating to new corporations, see § 40.445–2 (c). For rules applicable in the case of installment basis taxpayers and taxpayers with income from long-term contracts, electing under section 455, see section 441 (h).

(3) No net capital addition or reduction is permitted or required in the case of a foreign corporation.

(4) For special rules applicable in the case of a corporation a party to a transaction described in section 461 (a), see section 463. See also section 441 for additional rules generally applicable to this section.

(5) In order to determine the net capital addition or reduction, it is necessary to determine the daily capital addition and reduction for each day of the taxable year. The items which shall be taken into account in computing the daily capital addition and the daily capital reduction for each day are described in paragraphs (b) and (c) of this section.

(b) Daily capital addition. The daily capital addition for any day of the taxable year is the sum of the following amounts:

(1) The aggregate of the amounts of money and property paid-in in good faith for purposes of the business for stock, or as paid-in surplus, or as a contribution to capital, after the beginning of the taxable year and prior to such day. For rules for determination of the amount so paid in, see section 441.

(2) The amount, if any, by which the equity capital (as defined in section 437 (c)) at the beginning of the taxable year exceeds the equity capital at the beginning of the taxpayer's first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950. The amount of the equity capital shall be determined as of the beginning of the first day of each such taxable year. For rules governing the computation of the amount of equity capital, see sections 437 (c), 441, and 470, and the regulations under such sections.

(3) 75 percent of the excess, if any, of the average borrowed capital for the taxable year (as determined under section 439 (a)) over the daily borrowed capital (as defined in section 439 (b)) for the first day of the taxpayer's first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950. See § 40.439–1.

(c) Daily capital reduction. The daily capital reduction for any day of the taxable year is the sum of the following amounts:

(1) The aggregate of the amounts of distributions to shareholders previously made during the taxable year which are not out of the earnings and profits of such taxable year. For each day of the taxable year, the daily amount of distributions not out of earnings and profits of such year is the total amount of such distributions made during the year and prior to such day. For rules for determination of distributions, see section 441.

(2) The amount, if any, by which the amount of the equity capital (as defined in section 437 (c)) at the beginning of the taxpayer's first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, exceeds the amount of the equity capital at the beginning of the taxable year. The amount of the equity capital shall be determined as of the beginning of the first day of each taxable year. See sections 437 (c), 441, and 470, and the regulations under such sections for rules relating to the computation of equity capital.

(3) 75 percent of the amount, if any, by which the daily borrowed capital (as determined under section 439 (b)) for the first day of the taxpayer's first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, exceeds the average borrowed capital for the taxable year (as defined in section 439 (a)).

(4) The amount determined under section 435 (g) (6), relating to an increase in certain inadmissible assets held by the taxpayer, if the taxpayer and one or more other corporations are members of a controlled group of corporations. Section 435 (g) (6) defines controlled group. The amount to be included in the daily capital reduction for any day, with respect to such increase, shall be the amount determined under subdivisions (i) or (ii) of this subparagraph, whichever is the lesser:

(i) The excess of the aggregate of the adjusted basis (for determining gain upon sale or exchange) of stock in such other corporation (or if more than one, in such other corporations) held by the taxpayer at the beginning of such day over the aggregate of the adjusted basis (for determining gain upon sale or exchange) of stock in such other corporation (or if more than one, in such other corporations) held by the taxpayer at the beginning of its first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950.

(ii) The excess of the aggregate of the adjusted basis (for determining gain upon sale or exchange) of inadmissible assets held by the taxpayer at the beginning of such day over the aggregate of the adjusted basis (for determining gain upon sale or exchange) of inadmissible assets held by the taxpayer at the beginning of its first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950.

(5) 75 percent of the amount determined under section 435 (g) (7), relating to any increase in loans to a member of a controlled group of corporations of which the taxpayer is a member. The daily amount of any increase in loans to a member of a controlled group for any day of the taxable year shall be the excess of the amount of the indebtedness (as defined in section 439 (b) (1)) of such other corporation (or if more than one, such other corporations) to the taxpayer at the beginning of such day over the amount of the indebtedness of such other corporation (or if more than one, such other corporations) to the taxpayer at the beginning of the taxpayer's first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950.

(d) Computation of net capital addition. (1) The net capital addition for the taxable year is the excess, divided by the number of days in the taxable year, of the aggregate of the daily capital addition for each day of the taxable year over the aggregate of the daily capital reduction for each day of the taxable year. This amount is to be reduced where there is an increase in inadmissible assets (as defined in section 440 (a)) for the taxable year. For the determination of the amount attributable to inadmissible assets for any day, see section 440 (b). Where the total of the daily amounts attributable to inadmissible assets for the taxable year, divided by the number of days in the taxable year, exceeds the total of the inadmissible assets for the first day of the taxpayer's first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, there is an increase in inadmissible assets for the taxable year. The net capital addition shall be reduced by the amount of such increase. However, certain adjustments to such increase in inadmissible assets must be made in the following cases:

(i) Where there is a daily capital reduction for any day of the taxable year under section 435 (g) (4) (D), the increase in inadmissible assets shall be determined by reducing the inadmissible assets for such day by the amount by which the daily capital reduction for such day is increased under section 435 (g) (4) (D).

(ii) If the amount of the increase in inadmissible assets, as adjusted under subdivision (i) of this subparagraph, is in excess of the net capital addition computed without regard to section 435 (g) (3) (C), relating to increase in borrowed capital, then such increase in inadmissible assets shall be further reduced. The amount of such reduction shall be an amount equal to 25 percent of the excess described in the preceding sentence.

The net capital addition for the taxable year shall in no case be reduced below zero by an increase in inadmissible assets.

(2) For the purpose of section 435 (g) (1), the amount of inadmissible assets for any day shall be determined as provided in section 440 (b). The ratio of such assets to total assets provided in section 440 (b) is not applicable in computing the excess profits credit under section 435.

(e) Computation of net capital reduction. (1) The net capital reduction for the taxable year is the excess, divided by the number of days in the taxable year, of the aggregate of the daily capital reduction for each day of the taxable year over the aggregate of the daily capital addition for each day of the taxable year. This amount shall be reduced where there is a decrease in inadmissible assets (as defined in section 440 (a)) for the taxable year. For the determination of the amount attributable to inadmissible assets for any day, see section 440 (b). Where the total of the inadmissible assets for the first day of the taxpayer's first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, exceeds the total of the daily amounts attributable to the inadmissible assets for the taxable year, divided by the number of days in such year, there is a decrease in inadmissible assets for the taxable year. The amount of the net capital reduction is to be reduced by the amount of such decrease. However, if the amount of such decrease in admissible assets is in excess of the net capital reduction computed without regard to section 435 (g) (4) (C) and (E), relating to a decrease in borrowed capital and an increase in loans to members of a controlled group of corporations of which the taxpayer is a member, then such decrease in inadmissible assets shall be reduced. The amount of such reduction shall be an amount equal to 25 percent of the excess described in the preceding sentence. The net capital reduction for the taxable year shall in no case be reduced below zero as a result of a decrease in inadmissible assets.

(2) For the purpose of section 435 (g) (2), the amount of inadmissible assets for any day shall be determined as provided in section 440 (b). The ratio of such assets to total assets provided in section 440 (b) is not applicable in computing the excess profits credit under section 435.

SEC. 436. EXCESS PROFITS CREDIT—BASED ON INVESTED CAPITAL.

(a) General rule. In the case of a domestic corporation (except a corporation described in subsection (b)) the excess profits credit for any taxable year computed under this section shall be the sum of the following:

(1) The invested capital credit computed under section 437, reduced by the amount computed under section 440 (b) (relating to inadmissible assets), and

(2) The new capital credit, if any, computed under section 438 (a).

(b) Foreign corporations and corporations entitled to benefits of section 251—(1) Computation of credit. In the case of a foreign corporation engaged in a trade or business within the United States, and in the case of a corporation entitled to the benefits of section 251, the excess profits credit for any taxable year computed under this section shall be determined in accordance with rules and regulations prescribed by the Secretary, under which—

(A) General rule. The excess profits credit shall be the invested capital credit computed under section 437, reduced by the amount computed under section 440 (b) (relating to inadmissible assets). In computing the invested capital credit for the purposes of this subsection, (i) the invested capital for any taxable year shall (in lieu of the amount provided in section 437 (b) (1)) be the aggregate, divided by the number of days in such year, of the sum of the equity capital (determined under section 437 (c)) as of the beginning of each day of such taxable year and 75 per centum of the daily borrowed capital (determined under section 439 (b)) for each such day, (ii) the term "assets" as used in section 437 (c) shall be considered as referring to United States assets, (iii) the term "liabilities" as used in such section shall be considered as referring to United States liabilities, and (iv) the daily borrowed capital shall be determined under section 439 (b) by reference only to United States liabilities. In the application of section 440, the terms "admissible assets" and "inadmissible assets" shall include only United States assets.

(B) Exception. If the Secretary determines that the United States assets of the taxpayer cannot satisfactorily be segregated from its other assets or that the United States liabilities of the taxpayer cannot satisfactorily be segregated from its other liabilities, the invested capital of the taxpayer shall be an amount (in lieu of the amount ascertained under subparagraph (A)) which is the same percentage of the sum of the equity capital of the taxpayer, determined under section 437 (c) as of the end of the last day of the taxable year without the application of this subparagraph, and 75 per centum of the daily borrowed capital determined under section 439 (b) for the day following such last day without the application of this subparagraph, which the net income for the taxable year from sources within the United States is of the total net income of the taxpayer for such year.

(2) Definitions. As used in this subsection—

(A) The term "United States assets" means assets held by the taxpayer (in good faith for the purposes of the business) in the United States, determined in accordance with rules and regulations prescribed by the Secretary.

(B) The term "United States liabilities" means the liabilities of the taxpayer which are directly related to its United States assets, determined in accordance with rules and regulations prescribed by the Secretary.

§ 40.436–1 Excess profits credit based on invested capital; domestic corporations. Any domestic corporation may compute its excess profits credit under the invested capital method. Such credit, except in the case of a corporation entitled to the benefits of section 251, is an amount equal to the sum of:

(a) The invested capital credit computed under section 437, reduced by the amount computed under section 440 (b), relating to inadmissible assets, and

(b) The new capital credit, if any, computed under section 438 (a).

§ 40.436–2 Foreign corporations and corporations entitled to benefits of section 251. In the case of a foreign corporation engaged in trade or business within the United States, and in the case of a corporation entitled to the benefits of section 251 (on account of deriving a large portion of its gross income from sources within possessions of the United States), the excess profits credit for any taxable year computed under this section shall be the invested capital credit provided in section 437, reduced by the amount computed under section 440 (b), relating to inadmissible assets, with the following exceptions:

(a) In lieu of the amount provided in section 437 (b) (1), the invested capital for any taxable year shall be the aggregate, divided by the number of days in such year, of the sum of (1) the equity capital (determined under section 437 (c)) as of the beginning of each day of such taxable year, and (2) 75 percent of the daily borrowed capital (determined under section 439 (b)) for each such day.

(b) For the purpose of determining equity capital for any day under paragraph (a) of this section, the terms "assets" and "liabilities" as used in section 437 (c) shall include only United States assets and liabilities. For the purpose of paragraph (a) of this section the "daily borrowed capital" shall be determined under section 439 (b) by reference only to United States liabilities. In the application of the provisions of section 440 in reduction of the invested capital credit (determined under section 437 as provided in paragraph (a) of this section), the terms "admissible assets" and "inadmissible assets" shall include only United States assets. A corporation described in section 436 (b) may not elect to compute its invested capital under section 458, relating to historical invested capital.

(c) In cases in which the Commissioner determines that the United States assets or liabilities cannot satisfactorily be segregated from the corporation's other assets or liabilities, the invested capital of the corporation shall be (in lieu of the amount determined under paragraph (a) of this section) an amount which is the same percentage of:

(1) The sum of (i) the equity capital determined under section 437 (c) as of the end of the last day of the taxable year and determined without regard to paragraph (b) of this section, and (ii) 75 percent of the daily borrowed capital determined under section 439 (b) as of the beginning of the day following the last day of the taxable year and determined without regard to paragraph (b) of this section, as

(2) The net income for the taxable year from sources within the United States is of the net income of the taxpayer from all sources for such year.

(d) For the purpose of section 436 (b) and of paragraph (b) of this section, the term "United States assets" means assets either (1) employed by the taxpayer in the United States in carrying on its trade or business therein, or (2) of a kind the income from which is income from sources within the United States under section 119 and the regulations prescribed thereunder regardless of where the evidence of the property rights in such assets are held. The term "United States liabilities" means liabilities directly related to the United States assets, such as mortgages or other liens on United States assets and any liabilities attributable to the business conducted in the United States or to the income from sources within the United States.

SEC. 437. INVESTED CAPITAL CREDIT.

(a) Definition. The invested capital credit for any taxable year shall be the amount shown in the following table:

If the invested capital for such year (as defined in subsection (b) (1)) is:	The credit shall be:
Not over $5,000,000	12% of the invested capital.
Over $5,000,000 but not over $10,000,000	$600,000, plus 10% of the excess over $5,000,000.
Over $10,000,000	$1,100,000, plus 8% of the excess over $10,000,000.

(b) Invested capital—(1) Election of taxpayer. The invested capital for any taxable year shall be the adjusted invested capital determined under paragraph (2), except that if the taxpayer elects in its return for such taxable year to compute its invested capital under the provisions of section 458, the invested capital for such year shall be the historical invested capital determined under section 458. For the invested capital of certain insurance companies, see paragraph (3).

(2) Adjusted invested capital. The adjusted invested capital for any taxable year (hereinafter in this paragraph referred to as "the taxable year") shall be the sum of—

(A) The equity capital (as defined in subsection (c)) as of the beginning of the taxable year;

(B) The capital addition for the taxable year computed under subsection (d);

(C) 75 per centum of the average borrowed capital for the taxable year computed under section 439 (a); and

(D) The recent loss adjustment computed under subsection (f), minus the capital reduction for the taxable year computed under subsection (e). If the amount of the adjusted invested capital so computed is over $5,000,000, such amount shall be reduced by the net new capital addition computed under section 438 (b).

(3) Mutual insurance company (other than life or marine). The invested capital of a mutual insurance company (other than life or marine) shall be the mean of its surplus, plus 50 per centum of the mean of all reserves required by law, both surplus and reserves being determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, and it may include as equity capital its organization expenses. The surplus shall include all of the assets of the company other than the reserves required by law.

(c) Definition of equity capital. The equity capital of the taxpayer as of any time shall be the total of its assets held at such time in good faith for the purposes of the business, reduced by the total of its liabilities at such time. For such purposes, the amount attributable to each asset shall be determined by ascertaining the adjusted basis thereof (or, in the case of money, the amount thereof) and the adjusted basis shall be the adjusted basis for determining gain upon sale or exchange. In the case of an insurance company (other than mutual and other than life or marine), 50 per centum of its reserves required by law (other than reserves used in computing borrowed capital under section 439 (b) (2)) shall be considered as equity capital and, it may include as equity capital its organization expenses. In the case of a bank (as defined in section 104) its reserves for bad debts shall not be treated as liabilities. In the case of assets subject to a mortgage or other lien, the amount of the indebtedness secured by such mortgage or lien shall be considered as a liability of the taxpayer whether or not the taxpayer assumed or agreed to pay such indebtedness.

(d) Capital addition for the taxable year. The capital addition for the taxable year shall be the aggregate of the daily capital addition for each day of the taxable year, divided by the number of days in such year. The daily capital addition for each day of the taxable year shall be the aggregate of the amount of money and property paid in after the beginning of such taxable year and prior to such day for stock, or as paid-in surplus, or as a contribution to capital.

(e) Capital reduction for the taxable year. The capital reduction for the taxable year shall be the aggregate of the daily capital reduction for each day of the taxable year, divided by the number of days in such year. The daily capital reduction for each day of the taxable year shall be the amount of the distributions previously made during the taxable year which are not out of the earnings and profits of such taxable year.

(f) Recent loss adjustment—(1) Determination. The recent loss adjustment for any taxable year shall be the excess of the aggregate of the net operating loss for each taxable year in the recent loss period over the aggregate of the net income for each taxable year in such period. For purposes of this subsection, the term "recent loss period" means whichever of the following periods results in a higher recent loss adjustment—

(A) The base period, or

(B) The period beginning January 1, 1940, and ending December 31, 1949.

(2) Definitions. For purposes of this subsection—

(A) Net operating loss. The net operating loss for any taxable year means the net operating loss as defined in section 122 (d), determined under the law applicable to such taxable year.

(B) Net income. The net income for any taxable year means the net income computed with the exceptions, additions, and limitations provided in section 122 (d) (other than paragraph (6) of section 122 (d)), under the law applicable to such taxable year.

(3) Special rules—(A) Only part of taxable year included in recent loss period. For purposes of this subsection, the net operating loss or net income for a taxable year only part of which is within the recent loss period shall be such part of the net operating loss or net income for such taxable year, computed without regard to this subparagraph, as the number of months in such taxable year falling within the recent loss period is of the total number of months in such taxable year. For purposes of this subsection, a fractional part of a month shall be disregarded unless it amounts to more than half a month in which case it shall be considered as a month.

(B) Recent losses of component corporations. The recent loss adjustment shall be separately computed for each corporation which is a component corporation of the taxpayer within the meaning of part II of this subchapter, and the amount so computed shall be added to the recent loss adjustment of the taxpayer. For purposes of such computation, the recent loss period of the component corporation shall not include any period after the date of the transaction in which such corporation became a component corporation of the taxpayer. The recent loss adjustment of the component corporation, for the purpose of computing the adjusted equity capital of any corporation (including the component corporation) other than the taxpayer for a taxable year ending after such date shall be reduced by the amount with respect to such component corporation which, under this subsection, is added to the recent loss adjustment of the taxpayer.

§ 40.437–1 Invested capital credit. The invested capital credit is an amount equal to 12 percent of the taxpayer's invested capital for the taxable year, except that if such invested capital for any taxable year exceeds $5,000,000, the credit for such taxable year is an amount determined in accordance with the table set forth in section 437 (a).

§ 40.437–2 Invested capital—(a) Definition. The "invested capital" of the taxpayer means whichever one of the following amounts the taxpayer is required to use for the purpose of determining its credit based on invested capital:

(1) Adjusted invested capital computed under section 437 (b) (2).

(2) Historical invested capital computed under section 458.

(3) In the case of a mutual insurance company other than life or marine, the invested capital computed under section 437 (b) (3).

(4) In the case of a foreign corporation and in the case of a corporation entitled to the benefits of section 251, the invested capital computed under the rules provided in section 436 (b).

(b) General rule. The invested capital of every taxpayer is the adjusted invested capital for the taxable year computed under section 437 (b) (2), unless paragraph (c) or (d) of this section applies to the taxpayer for the taxable year.

(c) Election to use historical invested capital. If the taxpayer (other than a taxpayer described in paragraph (d) of this section) elects on its return for the taxable year to compute its invested capital under the provisions of section 458, the invested capital of the taxpayer for such year shall be the historical invested capital determined under section 458. A separate election must be made for each taxable year, and an election once made is irrevocable with respect to the taxable year. A taxpayer making such election may not thereafter compute invested capital for the taxable year under section 437 (b) (2). If the historical method is used on the return in determining the excess profits tax liability, the taxpayer will be deemed to have elected the historical method. A taxpayer which computes its excess profits tax on its return on the basis of a credit other than the invested capital credit may nevertheless elect the historical method for such year, in the event that the invested capital credit should subsequently become significant in the determination of its excess profits tax liability for such year, by attaching to its return for the taxable year a statement electing the historical method.

(d) Special rules. For the determination of the invested capital of a mutual insurance company other than life or marine, see § 40.437–4. For the determination of the invested capital of a foreign corporation or of a corporation entitled to the benefits of section 251, see § 40.436–2.

§ 40.437–3 Adjusted invested capital. (a) The adjusted invested capital is (1) the sum of—

(i) The equity capital (as defined in section 437 (c) and § 40.437–5) as of the beginning of the first day of the taxable year,

(ii) The capital addition for the taxable year computed under section 437 (d) and § 40.437–6.

(iii) 75 percent of the average amount of borrowed capital for the taxable year computed under section 439 (a) and § 40.439–1, and

(iv) The recent loss adjustment computed under section 437 (f) and § 40.437–8; minus (2) the capital reduction for the taxable year computed under section 437 (e) and § 40.437–7.

(b) Where the amount of the adjusted invested capital so computed is over $5,000,000, such amount shall be reduced by the net new capital addition, computed under section 438 (b). In such case, a separate credit at the rate of 12 percent is allowed under section 436 (a) (2) and section 438 with respect to such net new capital addition. No computation under section 438 is necessary if the adjusted invested capital does not exceed $5,000,000, since the 12 percent rate is applied to the entire invested capital in such a case.

§ 40.437–4 Invested capital of mutual insurance companies other than life or marine. The invested capital of a mutual insurance company other than life or marine shall be determined as provided in section 437 (b) (3). The invested capital of such an insurance company for any taxable year shall be the mean of the surplus, plus 50 percent of the mean of all reserves required by law, both surplus and reserves being determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year. For this purpose surplus means the excess of all the assets of the company over the sum of the liabilities of the company, including in such liabilities the reserves required by law. In determining such excess, all the assets of the company, whether admitted or not admitted, shall be included. "Reserves required by law" include not only reserves required by express statutory provisions but also reserves required by the rules and regulations of State insurance departments when promulgated in the exercise of an appropriate power conferred by statute, but do not include assets required to be held for the ordinary running expenses of the business, such as taxes, salaries, and unpaid brokerage. Only reserves commonly recognized as such in insurance accounting are to be taken into consideration in computing the "reserves required by law." In the case of a fire insurance company the only reserves commonly recognized are the "unearned premiums." In addition, the organization expenses of such mutual insurance companies may be included in equity capital.

§ 40.437–5 Definition of equity capital. (a) The equity capital of a taxpayer for any day shall be the total of the assets (determined under paragraph (b) of this section) held by it at the beginning of such day in good faith for the purposes of the business, reduced by the total of its liabilities (determined under paragraph (c) of this section) outstanding at the beginning of such day. The determination of the equity capital under section 437 (c) shall be made generally in accordance with sound accounting principles, and shall be consistent with the proper method of accounting used in determining the taxpayer's net income and with the rules applicable in determining the earnings and profits of the taxpayer. For example, in the case of a taxpayer which makes its return on the basis of cash receipts and disbursements, assets and liabilities do not include accounts receivable which are to be included in income when collected and accounts payable which are to be deducted from income when paid. Ordinarily, the starting point in determining the equity capital of a corporation as of the beginning of the first day of its taxable year is its balance sheet as of the close of the preceding taxable year.

(b) (1) The term "total assets" for any day means the sum of the money, plus the aggregate of the adjusted basis (determined as of the beginning of such day) of the property other than money held by the taxpayer at the beginning of such day in good faith for the purposes of the business. Such adjusted basis for any asset is its adjusted basis for determining gain upon sale or exchange for Federal income tax purposes (see, in general, section 113 and the regulations prescribed thereunder), except that in the case of secret processes and formulas, good will, trade-marks, trade brands, franchises, and other like property, such adjusted basis shall be determined without regard to the value of the property as of March 1, 1913. See section 441 (i). The determination of the total assets of any taxpayer shall conform to the method of accounting employed by such taxpayer in determining net income and to the rules applicable in determining its earnings and profits. Thus, a corporation reporting income from installment sales and using the installment method of accounting shall, unless subject to the provisions of section 441 (h), treat its installment accounts receivable as having an adjusted basis determined under section 44 (d). Similarly, a corporation using the completed contract method of accounting for income from long-term contracts shall, unless subject to the provisions of section 441 (h), treat only its net investment in uncompleted contracts as the adjusted basis thereof. See sections 441 (h) and 455. Treasury stock purchased for investment and held in good faith for the purposes of the business is included in total assets.

(2) For special rule in the case of improvements by a lessee to properties of a lessor railroad corporation, see section 441 (j).

(3) Under section 441 (e), certain distributions to shareholders made during the first 60 days of the taxable year (other than the first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950) are deemed to have been made on the last day of the preceding taxable year. Accordingly, in any case in which section 441 (e) is applicable, the total assets at the beginning of the first day of the taxable year shall be reduced by the amount of the distributions deemed to have been made on the last day of the preceding taxable year, and the taxpayer's liability for such distributions, if any, outstanding at the beginning of such day shall be appropriately adjusted.

(4) For rules applicable in determining the adjusted basis of assets acquired in an intercorporate liquidation, see section 470.

(5) In the case of an insurance company (other than mutual and other than life or marine), the equity capital shall include 50 percent of its reserves required by law, except the reserve for unearned premiums used in computing borrowed capital under section 439 (b) (2). Such an insurance company shall also include its organization expenses in equity capital.

(c) The term "total liabilities" means all liabilities of the taxpayer, absolute and not contingent, and includes those items which constitute liabilities in the sense of debts or obligations. Also included are liabilities assumed by the taxpayer whether or not in connection with assets held by the taxpayer. In the case of assets held by the taxpayer subject to a mortgage or other lien, the amount of the indebtedness secured by such mortgage or lien shall be considered as a liability of the taxpayer whether or not the taxpayer assumed or agreed to pay such indebtedness. If, in a bona fide business transaction, indebtedness of the taxpayer is assumed by another person or property subject to such a mortgage or other lien is disposed of to another person, such indebtedness ceases to be a liability of the taxpayer. The obligation of the taxpayer on its capital stock is not a liability. The determination of the date upon which a liability is incurred is to be made generally in accordance with sound accounting principles and is subject to the rules applicable in determining the taxpayer's earnings and profits. Thus, in the case of a distribution by a corporation, the liability for such distribution is considered incurred at the beginning of the date set for its payment, except that where no date is set for its payment, it is considered incurred on the date when it is declared. See § 40.441–1. Whether a reserve is treated as a liability is dependent upon the nature of the reserve. The reserve for bad debts under section 23 (k) is included as a liability unless under the taxpayer's method of accounting it is treated as a reduction of total assets. In the case of a bank, as defined in section 104, its reserves for bad debts shall neither reduce assets nor be treated as liabilities. A reserve for depletion or depreciation is properly accounted for in determining the adjusted basis of property. Reserves for contingencies and other reserves which are mere appropriations of surplus are not liabilities.

§ 40.437–6 Capital addition for the taxable year. (a) The capital addition for the taxable year shall be the aggregate of the daily capital addition for each day of the taxable year, divided by the number of days in such year. The daily capital addition for each day of the taxable year is the aggregate of the money and property paid in after the beginning of such taxable year and prior to such day for stock, or as paid-in surplus, or as a contribution to capital. Only money and property paid-in in good faith for the purposes of the business shall be included.

(b) Under rules provided in section 441, such property is included in determining the daily capital addition in a manner consistent with its inclusion in equity capital under section 437 (c). The rules provided in section 441 with respect to money and property paid in for stock, or as paid-in surplus, or as a contribution to capital, include the following:

(1) Such property shall be included in determining the daily capital addition in an amount equal to its basis (unadjusted) for determining gain upon sale or exchange. If the basis (unadjusted) of the property is a substituted basis, such basis shall be adjusted, with respect to the period before the property was paid in, by an amount equal to the adjustments proper under section 113 (b) (2). See section 441 (b). For rules regarding value as of March 1, 1913, in the case of certain intangible property, see section 441 (i).

(2) If the basis (unadjusted) of property so paid in is a substituted basis, section 441 (g) (1) provides rules with respect to liabilities involved in the exchange, indebtedness of the taxpayer canceled or released in the exchange, and money and property transferred to the transferor.

(3) If an indebtedness of the taxpayer is canceled or released in exchange for stock, or as paid-in surplus, or as a contribution to capital, the amount paid in shall be considered equal to the amount of the indebtedness. See section 441 (g) (2).

(4) Distributions of the corporation's own stock, or rights to acquire its stock, shall not be regarded as money or property paid in for stock, or as paid-in surplus, or as a contribution to capital, and, therefore, do not constitute a capital addition for the taxable year. See section 441 (d).

§ 40.437–7 Capital reduction for the taxable year. (a) The capital reduction for the taxable year is the aggregate of the daily capital reduction for each day of the taxable year, divided by the number of days in such year. The daily capital reduction for each day of the taxable year is the amount of the distributions previously made during the current taxable year which are not out of earnings and profits of such taxable year.

(b) As in the case of the capital addition for the taxable year (see § 40.437–6), rules provided in section 441 are applicable in determining the daily capital reduction. Such rules include the following:

(1) A distribution by a corporation of its stock or rights to acquire its stock shall not be considered as a distribution. See section 441 (d).

(2) In determining whether a distribution is out of the earnings and profits of any taxable year, such earnings and profits shall be computed as of the close of such taxable year without diminution by reason of any distribution made during such taxable year or by reason of any income or excess profits tax imposed for such year, and the determination shall be without regard to the amount of earnings and profits at the time the distribution was made. So much of the distributions to shareholders made during the first 60 days of any taxable year (other than the first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950) as does not exceed the accumulated earnings and profits at the beginning thereof shall be considered to have been made on the last day of the preceding taxable year. See section 441 (e) and (f).

§ 40.437–8 Recent loss adjustment—(a) In general. The amount of the recent loss adjustment computed under section 437 (f) constitutes an item to be included in computing the adjusted invested capital under section 437 (b) (2). The effect of section 437 (f) is, in general, to offset any reduction, reflected in the amount of equity capital at the beginning of the taxable year, which arose from an excess of net operating losses over net income for the recent loss period.

(b) Computation. The recent loss adjustment for any taxable year shall be the excess of the aggregate of the net operating loss for each taxable year in the recent loss period over the aggregate of the net income for each taxable year in such period. For the purpose of the preceding sentence, if only part of a taxable year is included in the recent loss period, the net income or net operating loss for such taxable year shall be the portion of such net income or such net operating loss, as the case may be, which is allocable to the recent loss period. Such allocation shall be made on the basis of the number of months in the taxable year which fall within the recent loss period; for the purpose of such allocation, a fractional part of a month shall be disregarded unless it amounts to more than half a month in which case it shall be considered as a month.

(c) Definitions. (1) The term "recent loss period" means either the taxpayer's base period or the period beginning January 1, 1940, and ending December 31, 1949, whichever results in the higher recent loss adjustment.

(2) The net operating loss for any taxable year in the recent loss period shall be determined under section 122 (a) under the law applicable to the year for which the loss was sustained. The net income for any taxable year in the recent loss period shall be recomputed with the exceptions, additions, and limitations provided in section 122 (d), under the law applicable to such taxable year. However, no adjustment shall be made under section 122 (d) (6) for excess profits taxes under the World War II law.

(d) Recent losses of component corporations. If the taxpayer is an acquiring corporation as defined in section 461 (a), the recent loss adjustment of each of its component corporations, as defined in section 461 (b), shall be separately determined without regard to any period after the date of the transaction in which such corporation became a component corporation of the taxpayer. The recent loss adjustment so determined for each such component corporation is included in the recent loss adjustment of the taxpayer. However, the amount so made available to the taxpayer is not allowed to the component corporation, or to any other corporation with respect to the component corporation, for any taxable year ending after the date such corporation became a component corporation of the taxpayer; for each such taxable year, an amount equal to the amount included in the taxpayer's recent loss adjustment is excluded from the recent loss adjustment of such component or other corporation. The recent loss period used by the taxpayer must be the same for both the computations relating to its own recent losses and the computations relating to those of its component corporations; it is the period (defined in paragraph (c) (1) of this section) for which the sum of the recent loss adjustments is higher.

SEC. 438. NEW CAPITAL CREDIT CHANGES.

(a) New capital credit. The new capital credit for any taxable year shall be 12 per ce tum of the amount of the net new capital addition for the taxable year, except that the credit provided by this subsection shall not be allowed—

(1) If the invested capital for the taxable year (computed without reduction by the amount of the net new capital addition) is $5 000,000 or less;

(2) If the invested capital for the taxable year is the historical invested capital determined under section 458;

(3) If the taxpayer is a mutual insurance company (other than life or marine).

(b) Net new capital addition. The net new capital addition for the taxable year shall be the excess, divided by the number of days in the taxable year, of the aggregate of the daily new capital addition (determined under subsection (c)) for each day of the taxable year over the aggregate of the daily new capital reduction (determined under subsection (d)) for each day of the taxable year. If there is an increase in inadmissible assets for the taxable year, determined under section 435 (g) (5), the net new capital addition shall be the excess of the amount determined under the preceding sentence over—

(1) Unless paragraph (2) is applicable, the amount of such increase in inadmissible assets;

(2) If the amount of such increase in inadmissible assets is in excess of the net new capital addition determined without regard to this sentence and without regard to subsection (c) (3) and subsection (d) (3), the amount of such increase in inadmissible assets minus 25 per centum of such excess.

(c) Daily new capital addition. The daily new capital addition for any day of the taxable year shall, for the purposes of this section, be the sum of the following:

(1) The aggregate of the amounts of money and property (other than excluded equity capital as defined in subsection (e)) paid in for stock, or as paid-in surplus, or as a contribution to capital, after the beginning of such taxable year and prior to such day.

(2) The amount, if any, by which the equity capital at the beginning of the taxable year minus the amount of excluded equity capital (as defined in subsection (e)) paid in before the beginning of the taxable year and after the beginning of the taxpayer's first taxable year under this subchapter exceeds the equity capital at the beginning of such first taxable year.

(3) 75 per centum of the amount, if any, by which the increase in the daily borrowed capital for such day exceeds the increase in the excluded borrowed capital for such day. For the purposes of this paragraph the term "increase in the daily borrowed capital" for such day means the amount by which the daily borrowed capital for such day (as defined in section 439 (b)) exceeds the daily borrowed capital for the first day of the taxpayer's first taxable year under this subchapter, and the term "increase in the excluded borrowed capital" for such day means the amount by which the excluded borrowed capital for such day (as defined in subsection (f)) exceeds the excluded borrowed capital for the first day of the taxpayer's first taxable year under this subchapter.

(d) Daily new capital reduction. The daily new capital reduction for any day of the taxable year shall be the sum of the following:

(1) Distributions to shareholders previously made during such taxable year which are not out of the earnings and profits of such taxable year; and

(2) The amount, if any, by which the equity capital at the beginning of the taxpayer's first taxable year under this subchapter plus the total amount of excluded equity capital paid in after the beginning of such first taxable year and before the beginning of the taxable year exceeds the amount of the equity capital at the beginning of the taxable year; and

(3) 75 per centum of the amount, if any, by which the daily borrowed capital (as defined in section 439 (b)) for the first day of the taxpayer's first taxable year under this subchapter exceeds the daily borrowed capital for such day.

(e) Definition of excluded capital. The term "excluded equity capital" means the amount of money or property paid in for stock, or as paid-in surplus, or as a contribution to capital, to the taxpayer—

(1) By a corporation in an exchange to which section 112 (b) (3), (4), (5), or (10), or so much of section 112 (c), (d), or (e) as refers to section 112 (b) (3), (4), (5), or (10), is applicable (or would be applicable except for section 371 (g)), or would have been applicable if the term "control" had been defined in section 112 (h) to mean the ownership of stock possessing more than 50 per centum of the total combined voting power of all classes of stock entitled to vote or more than 50 per centum of the total value of shares of all classes of stock.

(2) By a transferor corporation if immediately after such transaction the transferor and the taxpayer are members of the same controlled group. As used in this paragraph, a controlled group means one or more chains of corporations connected through stock ownership with a common parent corporation if (A) more than 50 per centum of the total combined voting power of all classes of stock entitled to vote, or more than 50 per centum of the total value of shares of all classes of stock, of each of the corporations (except the common parent corporation) is owned directly by one or more of the other corporations, and (B) the common parent corporation owns directly more than 50 per centum of the total combined voting power of all classes of stock entitled to vote, or more than 50 per centum of the total value of shares of all classes of stock, of at least one of the other corporations.

(f) Definition of excluded borrowed capital. The term "excluded borrowed capital" for any day of any taxable year means so much of the daily borrowed capital for such day as consists of outstanding indebtedness to a member of a controlled group, as defined in subsection (e) (2), which includes the taxpayer.

§ 40.438–1 New capital credit—(a) In general. (1) Section 438 provides that the new capital credit for any taxable year shall be 12 percent of the amount of the net new capital addition for the taxable year. Section 436 (a) provides that the new capital credit as computed under section 438 is to be added to the invested capital credit computed under section 437 in computing the excess profits credit for the taxable year. The new capital credit provided by section 438 shall not be allowed—

(i) If the invested capital for the taxable year (computed without reduction by the amount of the net new capital addition) is $5,000,000 or less, or

(ii) If the invested capital for the taxable year is the historical invested capital determined under section 458, or

(iii) If the taxpayer is a mutual insurance company (other than life or marine).

(2) The net new capital addition, in general, consists of the net increase in equity and borrowed capital, determined by comparing the equity and borrowed capital for the taxable year with the equity and borrowed capital as of the beginning of the taxpayer's first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950. For this purpose borrowed capital is taken into account at 75 percent. Under certain circumstances an adjustment is made with respect to inadmissible assets and for excluded equity capital and excluded borrowed capital. In no event is the net new capital addition less than zero.

(3) In the case of installment basis taxpayers and taxpayers with income from long-term contracts, electing under section 455, see section 441 (h). Section 441 also provides additional rules of general application to the determinations under section 438.

§ 40.438–2 Determination of daily new capital addition. (a) In order to determine the net new capital addition, it is necessary to ascertain the amount of the daily new capital addition and reduction for each day of the taxable year. This section describes the items which shall constitute a daily new capital addition. Items which constitute a daily new capital reduction are described in § 40.438–3. The daily new capital addition for any day of the taxable year is the sum of the amounts described in the following paragraphs of this section.

(b) The daily new capital addition for any day includes the aggregate of the amounts of money and property paid-in in good faith for purposes of the business for stock, or as paid-in surplus, or as a contribution to capital after the beginning of the taxable year and prior to such day, subject, however, to an exception for excluded equity capital as defined in section 438 (e). See paragraphs (c) and (d) of this section. For rules applicable in determining the amount of the money and property so paid-in, see section 441 and section 470.

(c) (1) The exception for excluded equity capital referred to in section 438 (c) (1) and in paragraph (b) of this section excludes from the daily new capital addition the amount of any money or property paid in during a taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, for stock, or as paid-in surplus, or as a contribution to capital, in an exchange to which section 112 (b) (3), (4), (5), or (10), or so much of section 112 (c), (d), or (e) as refers to section 112 (b) (3), (4), (5), or (10), is applicable, or in an exchange to which such provisions of section 112 would be applicable if the control requirement for the purpose of applying those provisions had been defined to mean the ownership of stock possessing more than 50 percent of the total combined voting power of all classes of stock entitled to vote or more than 50 percent of the total value of shares of all classes of stock. The exception described in the preceding sentence is determined without regard to section 371 (g), relating to certain exchanges under Supplement R of chapter 1 to which the specified provisions of section 112 would also be applicable.

(2) Example: The A Corporation issues stock during its taxable year beginning January 1, 1952, to the B Corporation in exchange for the transfer of certain property by the B Corporation. Immediately after the transfer the stock acquired by the B Corporation has a value of $10,000, the total value of all classes of stock of the A Corporation then outstanding amounting to $18,000. The A Corporation obtains no daily new capital addition, since the property for which the new stock was issued was obtained in an exchange to which section 112 (b) (5) would be applicable if the term "control" had been defined in section 112 (h) so as to include either the ownership of stock possessing more than 50 percent of the total combined voting power of all classes of stock entitled to vote or more than 50 percent of the total value of all classes of stock outstanding.

(d) (1) The exception for excluded equity capital referred to in section 438 (c) (1) and in paragraph (b) of this section also excludes from the daily new capital addition any money or property paid in to the taxpayer by a transferor corporation if immediately after such transaction the transferor and the taxpayer are members of the same controlled group as that term is defined in section 438 (e) (2).

(2) Example: The A Corporation owns stock in the B Corporation and the B Corporation owns stock in the C Corporation. The A Corporation transfers property to the C Corporation in exchange for stock of the C Corporation. Immediately after the transfer the stock owned by the A Corporation in the B Corporation possesses more than 50 percent of the total combined voting power of all classes of stock entitled to vote. Also immediately after such transfer the stock owned by the B Corporation in the C Corporation has a value equal to more than 50 percent of the total value of all classes of stock of the C Corporation. The C Corporation obtains no daily new capital addition through the acquisition of the property from the A Corporation in exchange for its stock, since immediately after the transfer the A Corporation, the transferor, and the C Corporation, the transferee, are members of the same controlled group.

(e) The daily new capital addition for any day includes the amount, if any, by which (1) (i) the equity capital at the beginning of the taxable year minus (ii) the amount of excluded equity capital (as defined in section 438 (e) and in paragraphs (c) and (d) of this section) paid in before the beginning of the taxable year and after the beginning of the taxpayer's first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, exceeds (2) the equity capital at the beginning of such first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950. The amount of the equity capital at the beginning of any taxable year shall be determined as of the beginning of the first day of such taxable year, and shall be determined under section 437 (c) and under the rules applicable to section 437 (c). See section 441 and section 470.

(f) The daily new capital addition for any day includes 75 percent of the amount, if any, by which the increase in the daily borrowed capital for such day exceeds the increase in the excluded borrowed capital for such day. This amount for any day shall be determined by computing:

(1) The amount, if any, by which the daily borrowed capital for such day (as defined in section 439 (b)) exceeds the daily borrowed capital for the first day of the taxpayer's first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950.

(2) The amount by which the excluded borrowed capital for such day exceeds the excluded borrowed capital for the first day of the taxpayer's first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950.

(3) The amount by which subparagraph (1) of this paragraph exceeds subparagraph (2) of this paragraph. Seventy-five percent of the amount so computed is included in the daily new capital addition.

For the purpose of the above computation, the term "excluded borrowed capital" for any day of any taxable year means so much of the daily borrowed capital for such day as consists of outstanding indebtedness to a member of a controlled group, as defined in section 438 (e) (2), which includes the taxpayer.

§ 40.438–3 Determination of daily new capital reduction. (a) The daily new capital reduction for any day of the taxable year is the sum of the amounts described in the paragraphs (b) to (d) of this section.

(b) The daily new capital reduction for any day includes distributions to shareholders previously made during such taxable year which are not out of the earnings and profits of such taxable year. For each day of the taxable year, the daily amount of distributions not out of earnings and profits of such year is the total amount of such distributions made during the year and prior to such day. See section 441 for rules applicable in determining the amount of such distributions.

(c) The daily new capital reduction for any day includes the amount, if any, by which (1) the sum of (i) the amount of the equity capital at the beginning of the taxpayer's first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, and (ii) the total amount of excluded equity capital paid in after the beginning of such first taxable year and before the beginning of the taxable year exceeds (2) the amount of the equity capital at the beginning of the taxable year. Equity capital and excluded equity capital shall be determined in the manner provided in § 40.438–2.

(d) The daily new capital reduction for any day includes 75 percent of the amount, if any, by which the daily borrowed capital (as defined in section 439 (b)) for the first day of the taxpayer's first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, exceeds the daily borrowed capital (as defined in section 439 (b)) for such day of the taxable year.

§ 40.438–4 Computation of net new capital addition—(a) In general. The net new capital addition to which the 12 percent credit provided in section 438 (a) shall be applied is the excess, divided by the number of days in the taxable year, of the aggregate of the daily new capital additions for each day of the taxable year over the aggregate of the daily new capital reductions for each day of the taxable year, reduced, however, by the amount determined under paragraphs (1) and (2) of section 438 (b) and under paragraph (b) of this section, relating to an increase in inadmissible assets for the taxable year.

(b) Limitations under paragraphs (1) and (2) of section 438 (b). (1) The amount of the reduction applicable in computing the net new capital addition for the taxable year is computed as follows:

(i) The average inadmissible assets for the taxable year is determined by ascertaining the total of the daily amounts attributable to the inadmissible assets for such taxable year, determined under subparagraph (2) of this paragraph, and by dividing such total by the number of days in such taxable year.

(ii) The total of the inadmissible assets for the first day of the taxpayer's first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, is determined.

(iii) The excess of the average determined in subdivision (i) over the total determined in subdivision (ii) of this subparagraph is ascertained.

(iv) The net new capital addition is computed without including in the daily new capital addition for any day any amount determined under section 438 (c) (3), relating to increases in borrowed capital, and without including in the daily new capital reduction for any day any amount determined under section 438 (d) (3) relating to decreases in borrowed capital.

(v) If the amount ascertained under subdivision (iii) exceeds the amount computed under subdivision (iv) of this subparagraph, then 25 percent of such excess is computed.

(vi) The amount ascertained under subdivision (iii), minus the amount, if any, computed under subdivision (v) of this subparagraph, is the amount of the reduction applicable in computing the net new capital addition.

(2) The amount attributable to inadmissible assets for any day shall be determined under section 440 (b). The ratio of such assets to total assets provided in section 440 (b) is not applicable for the purpose of section 438.

SEC. 439. BORROWED CAPITAL.

(a) Average borrowed capital. For the purposes of this subchapter, the average borrowed capital for any taxable year shall be the aggregate of the daily borrowed capital for each day of such taxable year, divided by the number of days in such taxable year.

(b) Daily borrowed capital. For the purposes of this subchapter, the daily borrowed capital for any day of any taxable year shall be determined as of the beginning of such day and shall be the sum of the following:

(1) The amount of the outstanding indebtedness (not including interest) of the taxpayer, incurred in good faith for the purposes of the business, which is evidenced by a bond, note, bill of exchange, debenture, certificate of indebtedness, mortgage, deed of trust, bank loan agreement, or conditional sales contract. In the case of property of the taxpayer subject to a mortgage or other lien, the amount of indebtedness secured by such mortgage or lien shall be considered as an indebtedness of the taxpayer whether or not the taxpayer assumed or agreed to pay such indebtedness, plus

(2) In the case of an insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ per centum of the mean of the amount of the pro rata unearned premiums determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus,

(3) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ per centum of the mean of the amount of the adjusted reserves, and an amount equal to 66⅔ per centum of the mean of the amount of the reserves on insurance or annuity contracts (or contracts arising out of insurance or annuity contracts) which do not involve, at the time with reference to which the computation was made, life, health, or accident contingencies, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year; plus

(4) In the case of a face-amount certificate company as defined in section 4 (1) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U. S. C., section 80a–4), an amount equal to 66⅔ per centum of the mean of the amount of reserves on its outstanding investment certificates, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year.

§ 40.439–1 Borrowed capital. (a) The amount of the average borrowed capital of a corporation shall be computed in the manner provided in section 439 (a) and the daily borrowed capital, as defined in sections 439 (b) (1), (2), (3), and (4), shall be computed in the manner provided in section 439 (b). The average borrowed capital for any taxable year is the aggregate of the daily borrowed capital for each day of the taxable year, divided by the number of days in such taxable year. Daily borrowed capital for any day of the taxable year shall be determined as of the beginning of such day and shall be the sum of the following amounts:

(1) The amount of the outstanding indebtedness (other than interest) of the taxpayer, incurred in good faith for the purpose of the business, which is evidenced by a bond, promissory note, bill of exchange, debenture, certificate of indebtedness, mortgage, deed of trust, bank loan agreement, or conditional sales contract, plus

(2) In the case of an insurance company (except a mutual insurance company other than life or marine) an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of its pro rata unearned premiums (see section 204 (b) (5) and § 29.204–2 of Regulations 111) determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(3) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the adjusted reserves (see section 201 (c) (3) and § 29.201–6 of Regulations 111), and an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the reserves on insurance or annuity contracts (or contracts arising out of insurance or annuity contracts) which do not involve, at the time with reference to which the computation was made, life, health, or accident contingencies, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(4) In the case of a face-amount certificate company as defined in section 4 (1) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U. S. C., section 80a–4), an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of reserves on its outstanding investment certificates, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(5) The amount of the outstanding indebtedness (other than interest) of the taxpayer, incurred in good faith for the purpose of the business, which is evidenced by a bond, promissory note, bill of exchange, debenture, certificate of indebtedness, mortgage, deed of trust, bank loan agreement, or conditional sales contract, plus

(6) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of its pro rata unearned premiums (see section 204 (b) (5) and § 29.204–2 of Regulations 111) determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(7) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the adjusted reserves (see section 201 (c) (3) and § 29.201–6 of Regulations 111), and an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the reserves on insurance or annuity contracts (or contracts arising out of insurance or annuity contracts) which do not involve, at the time with reference to which the computation was made, life, health, or accident contingencies, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(8) In the case of a face-amount certificate company as defined in section 4 (1) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U. S. C., section 80a–4), an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of reserves on its outstanding investment certificates, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(9) The amount of the outstanding indebtedness (other than interest) of the taxpayer, incurred in good faith for the purpose of the business, which is evidenced by a bond, promissory note, bill of exchange, debenture, certificate of indebtedness, mortgage, deed of trust, bank loan agreement, or conditional sales contract, plus

(10) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of its pro rata unearned premiums (see section 204 (b) (5) and § 29.204–2 of Regulations 111) determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(11) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the adjusted reserves (see section 201 (c) (3) and § 29.201–6 of Regulations 111), and an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the reserves on insurance or annuity contracts (or contracts arising out of insurance or annuity contracts) which do not involve, at the time with reference to which the computation was made, life, health, or accident contingencies, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(12) In the case of a face-amount certificate company as defined in section 4 (1) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U. S. C., section 80a–4), an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of reserves on its outstanding investment certificates, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(13) The amount of the outstanding indebtedness (other than interest) of the taxpayer, incurred in good faith for the purpose of the business, which is evidenced by a bond, promissory note, bill of exchange, debenture, certificate of indebtedness, mortgage, deed of trust, bank loan agreement, or conditional sales contract, plus

(14) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of its pro rata unearned premiums (see section 204 (b) (5) and § 29.204–2 of Regulations 111) determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(15) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the adjusted reserves (see section 201 (c) (3) and § 29.201–6 of Regulations 111), and an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the reserves on insurance or annuity contracts (or contracts arising out of insurance or annuity contracts) which do not involve, at the time with reference to which the computation was made, life, health, or accident contingencies, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(16) In the case of a face-amount certificate company as defined in section 4 (1) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U. S. C., section 80a–4), an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of reserves on its outstanding investment certificates, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(17) The amount of the outstanding indebtedness (other than interest) of the taxpayer, incurred in good faith for the purpose of the business, which is evidenced by a bond, promissory note, bill of exchange, debenture, certificate of indebtedness, mortgage, deed of trust, bank loan agreement, or conditional sales contract, plus

(18) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of its pro rata unearned premiums (see section 204 (b) (5) and § 29.204–2 of Regulations 111) determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(19) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the adjusted reserves (see section 201 (c) (3) and § 29.201–6 of Regulations 111), and an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the reserves on insurance or annuity contracts (or contracts arising out of insurance or annuity contracts) which do not involve, at the time with reference to which the computation was made, life, health, or accident contingencies, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(20) In the case of a face-amount certificate company as defined in section 4 (1) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U. S. C., section 80a–4), an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of reserves on its outstanding investment certificates, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(21) The amount of the outstanding indebtedness (other than interest) of the taxpayer, incurred in good faith for the purpose of the business, which is evidenced by a bond, promissory note, bill of exchange, debenture, certificate of indebtedness, mortgage, deed of trust, bank loan agreement, or conditional sales contract, plus

(22) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of its pro rata unearned premiums (see section 204 (b) (5) and § 29.204–2 of Regulations 111) determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(23) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the adjusted reserves (see section 201 (c) (3) and § 29.201–6 of Regulations 111), and an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the reserves on insurance or annuity contracts (or contracts arising out of insurance or annuity contracts) which do not involve, at the time with reference to which the computation was made, life, health, or accident contingencies, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(24) In the case of a face-amount certificate company as defined in section 4 (1) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U. S. C., section 80a–4), an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of reserves on its outstanding investment certificates, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(25) The amount of the outstanding indebtedness (other than interest) of the taxpayer, incurred in good faith for the purpose of the business, which is evidenced by a bond, promissory note, bill of exchange, debenture, certificate of indebtedness, mortgage, deed of trust, bank loan agreement, or conditional sales contract, plus

(26) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of its pro rata unearned premiums (see section 204 (b) (5) and § 29.204–2 of Regulations 111) determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(27) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the adjusted reserves (see section 201 (c) (3) and § 29.201–6 of Regulations 111), and an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the reserves on insurance or annuity contracts (or contracts arising out of insurance or annuity contracts) which do not involve, at the time with reference to which the computation was made, life, health, or accident contingencies, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(28) In the case of a face-amount certificate company as defined in section 4 (1) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U. S. C., section 80a–4), an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of reserves on its outstanding investment certificates, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(29) The amount of the outstanding indebtedness (other than interest) of the taxpayer, incurred in good faith for the purpose of the business, which is evidenced by a bond, promissory note, bill of exchange, debenture, certificate of indebtedness, mortgage, deed of trust, bank loan agreement, or conditional sales contract, plus

(30) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of its pro rata unearned premiums (see section 204 (b) (5) and § 29.204–2 of Regulations 111) determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(31) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the adjusted reserves (see section 201 (c) (3) and § 29.201–6 of Regulations 111), and an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the reserves on insurance or annuity contracts (or contracts arising out of insurance or annuity contracts) which do not involve, at the time with reference to which the computation was made, life, health, or accident contingencies, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(32) In the case of a face-amount certificate company as defined in section 4 (1) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U. S. C., section 80a–4), an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of reserves on its outstanding investment certificates, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(33) The amount of the outstanding indebtedness (other than interest) of the taxpayer, incurred in good faith for the purpose of the business, which is evidenced by a bond, promissory note, bill of exchange, debenture, certificate of indebtedness, mortgage, deed of trust, bank loan agreement, or conditional sales contract, plus

(34) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of its pro rata unearned premiums (see section 204 (b) (5) and § 29.204–2 of Regulations 111) determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(35) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the adjusted reserves (see section 201 (c) (3) and § 29.201–6 of Regulations 111), and an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the reserves on insurance or annuity contracts (or contracts arising out of insurance or annuity contracts) which do not involve, at the time with reference to which the computation was made, life, health, or accident contingencies, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(36) In the case of a face-amount certificate company as defined in section 4 (1) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U. S. C., section 80a–4), an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of reserves on its outstanding investment certificates, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(37) The amount of the outstanding indebtedness (other than interest) of the taxpayer, incurred in good faith for the purpose of the business, which is evidenced by a bond, promissory note, bill of exchange, debenture, certificate of indebtedness, mortgage, deed of trust, bank loan agreement, or conditional sales contract, plus

(38) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of its pro rata unearned premiums (see section 204 (b) (5) and § 29.204–2 of Regulations 111) determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(39) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the adjusted reserves (see section 201 (c) (3) and § 29.201–6 of Regulations 111), and an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the reserves on insurance or annuity contracts (or contracts arising out of insurance or annuity contracts) which do not involve, at the time with reference to which the computation was made, life, health, or accident contingencies, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(40) In the case of a face-amount certificate company as defined in section 4 (1) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U. S. C., section 80a–4), an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of reserves on its outstanding investment certificates, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(41) The amount of the outstanding indebtedness (other than interest) of the taxpayer, incurred in good faith for the purpose of the business, which is evidenced by a bond, promissory note, bill of exchange, debenture, certificate of indebtedness, mortgage, deed of trust, bank loan agreement, or conditional sales contract, plus

(42) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of its pro rata unearned premiums (see section 204 (b) (5) and § 29.204–2 of Regulations 111) determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(43) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the adjusted reserves (see section 201 (c) (3) and § 29.201–6 of Regulations 111), and an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the reserves on insurance or annuity contracts (or contracts arising out of insurance or annuity contracts) which do not involve, at the time with reference to which the computation was made, life, health, or accident contingencies, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(44) In the case of a face-amount certificate company as defined in section 4 (1) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U. S. C., section 80a–4), an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of reserves on its outstanding investment certificates, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(45) The amount of the outstanding indebtedness (other than interest) of the taxpayer, incurred in good faith for the purpose of the business, which is evidenced by a bond, promissory note, bill of exchange, debenture, certificate of indebtedness, mortgage, deed of trust, bank loan agreement, or conditional sales contract, plus

(46) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of its pro rata unearned premiums (see section 204 (b) (5) and § 29.204–2 of Regulations 111) determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(47) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the adjusted reserves (see section 201 (c) (3) and § 29.201–6 of Regulations 111), and an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the reserves on insurance or annuity contracts (or contracts arising out of insurance or annuity contracts) which do not involve, at the time with reference to which the computation was made, life, health, or accident contingencies, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(48) In the case of a face-amount certificate company as defined in section 4 (1) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U. S. C., section 80a–4), an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of reserves on its outstanding investment certificates, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(49) The amount of the outstanding indebtedness (other than interest) of the taxpayer, incurred in good faith for the purpose of the business, which is evidenced by a bond, promissory note, bill of exchange, debenture, certificate of indebtedness, mortgage, deed of trust, bank loan agreement, or conditional sales contract, plus

(50) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of its pro rata unearned premiums (see section 204 (b) (5) and § 29.204–2 of Regulations 111) determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(51) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the adjusted reserves (see section 201 (c) (3) and § 29.201–6 of Regulations 111), and an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the reserves on insurance or annuity contracts (or contracts arising out of insurance or annuity contracts) which do not involve, at the time with reference to which the computation was made, life, health, or accident contingencies, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(52) In the case of a face-amount certificate company as defined in section 4 (1) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U. S. C., section 80a–4), an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of reserves on its outstanding investment certificates, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(53) The amount of the outstanding indebtedness (other than interest) of the taxpayer, incurred in good faith for the purpose of the business, which is evidenced by a bond, promissory note, bill of exchange, debenture, certificate of indebtedness, mortgage, deed of trust, bank loan agreement, or conditional sales contract, plus

(54) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of its pro rata unearned premiums (see section 204 (b) (5) and § 29.204–2 of Regulations 111) determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(55) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the adjusted reserves (see section 201 (c) (3) and § 29.201–6 of Regulations 111), and an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the reserves on insurance or annuity contracts (or contracts arising out of insurance or annuity contracts) which do not involve, at the time with reference to which the computation was made, life, health, or accident contingencies, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(56) In the case of a face-amount certificate company as defined in section 4 (1) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U. S. C., section 80a–4), an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of reserves on its outstanding investment certificates, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(57) The amount of the outstanding indebtedness (other than interest) of the taxpayer, incurred in good faith for the purpose of the business, which is evidenced by a bond, promissory note, bill of exchange, debenture, certificate of indebtedness, mortgage, deed of trust, bank loan agreement, or conditional sales contract, plus

(58) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of its pro rata unearned premiums (see section 204 (b) (5) and § 29.204–2 of Regulations 111) determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(59) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the adjusted reserves (see section 201 (c) (3) and § 29.201–6 of Regulations 111), and an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the reserves on insurance or annuity contracts (or contracts arising out of insurance or annuity contracts) which do not involve, at the time with reference to which the computation was made, life, health, or accident contingencies, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(60) In the case of a face-amount certificate company as defined in section 4 (1) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U. S. C., section 80a–4), an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of reserves on its outstanding investment certificates, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(61) The amount of the outstanding indebtedness (other than interest) of the taxpayer, incurred in good faith for the purpose of the business, which is evidenced by a bond, promissory note, bill of exchange, debenture, certificate of indebtedness, mortgage, deed of trust, bank loan agreement, or conditional sales contract, plus

(62) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of its pro rata unearned premiums (see section 204 (b) (5) and § 29.204–2 of Regulations 111) determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(63) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the adjusted reserves (see section 201 (c) (3) and § 29.201–6 of Regulations 111), and an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the reserves on insurance or annuity contracts (or contracts arising out of insurance or annuity contracts) which do not involve, at the time with reference to which the computation was made, life, health, or accident contingencies, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(98) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of its pro rata unearned premiums (see section 204 (b) (5) and § 29.204–2 of Regulations 111) determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(99) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the adjusted reserves (see section 201 (c) (3) and § 29.201–6 of Regulations 111), and an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the reserves on insurance or annuity contracts (or contracts arising out of insurance or annuity contracts) which do not involve, at the time with reference to which the computation was made, life, health, or accident contingencies, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(100) In the case of a face-amount certificate company as defined in section 4 (1) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U. S. C., section 80a–4), an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of reserves on its outstanding investment certificates, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(101) The amount of the outstanding indebtedness (other than interest) of the taxpayer, incurred in good faith for the purpose of the business, which is evidenced by a bond, promissory note, bill of exchange, debenture, certificate of indebtedness, mortgage, deed of trust, bank loan agreement, or conditional sales contract, plus

(102) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of its pro rata unearned premiums (see section 204 (b) (5) and § 29.204–2 of Regulations 111) determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(103) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the adjusted reserves (see section 201 (c) (3) and § 29.201–6 of Regulations 111), and an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the reserves on insurance or annuity contracts (or contracts arising out of insurance or annuity contracts) which do not involve, at the time with reference to which the computation was made, life, health, or accident contingencies, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(104) In the case of a face-amount certificate company as defined in section 4 (1) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U. S. C., section 80a–4), an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of reserves on its outstanding investment certificates, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(105) The amount of the outstanding indebtedness (other than interest) of the taxpayer, incurred in good faith for the purpose of the business, which is evidenced by a bond, promissory note, bill of exchange, debenture, certificate of indebtedness, mortgage, deed of trust, bank loan agreement, or conditional sales contract, plus

(106) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of its pro rata unearned premiums (see section 204 (b) (5) and § 29.204–2 of Regulations 111) determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(107) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the adjusted reserves (see section 201 (c) (3) and § 29.201–6 of Regulations 111), and an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the reserves on insurance or annuity contracts (or contracts arising out of insurance or annuity contracts) which do not involve, at the time with reference to which the computation was made, life, health, or accident contingencies, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(108) In the case of a face-amount certificate company as defined in section 4 (1) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U. S. C., section 80a–4), an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of reserves on its outstanding investment certificates, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(109) The amount of the outstanding indebtedness (other than interest) of the taxpayer, incurred in good faith for the purpose of the business, which is evidenced by a bond, promissory note, bill of exchange, debenture, certificate of indebtedness, mortgage, deed of trust, bank loan agreement, or conditional sales contract, plus

(110) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of its pro rata unearned premiums (see section 204 (b) (5) and § 29.204–2 of Regulations 111) determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(111) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the adjusted reserves (see section 201 (c) (3) and § 29.201–6 of Regulations 111), and an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the reserves on insurance or annuity contracts (or contracts arising out of insurance or annuity contracts) which do not involve, at the time with reference to which the computation was made, life, health, or accident contingencies, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(112) In the case of a face-amount certificate company as defined in section 4 (1) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U. S. C., section 80a–4), an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of reserves on its outstanding investment certificates, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(113) The amount of the outstanding indebtedness (other than interest) of the taxpayer, incurred in good faith for the purpose of the business, which is evidenced by a bond, promissory note, bill of exchange, debenture, certificate of indebtedness, mortgage, deed of trust, bank loan agreement, or conditional sales contract, plus

(114) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of its pro rata unearned premiums (see section 204 (b) (5) and § 29.204–2 of Regulations 111) determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus

(115) In the case of a life insurance company, an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the adjusted reserves (see section 201 (c) (3) and § 29.201–6 of Regulations 111), and an amount equal to 66⅔ percent of the mean of the amount of the reserves on insurance or annuity contracts (or contracts arising out of insurance or annuity contracts) which do not involve, at the time with reference to which the computation was made, life, health, or accident contingencies, determined at the beginning and end of the taxable year, plus property was paid in, by an amount equal to the adjustments proper under section 113 (b) (2).

(d) Distributions to shareholders. Subject to the rule provided in section 441 (e) and in paragraph (e) of this section, a distribution is considered to be made on the date it is payable, except that where no date is set for its payment, the distribution is considered to be made on the date when it is declared. A distribution by a corporation in its stock, or in rights to acquire its stock shall not be regarded as money or property paid in for stock, or as paid-in surplus, or as a contribution to capital, whether such a distribution is paid out of capital or out of earnings and profits, or is of such a character as to be subject to tax in the hands of a distributee because not exempt as a stock dividend either by statute or otherwise. Such a distribution is not deemed to constitute a distribution by a corporation to its shareholders and does not reduce the adjusted invested capital or the equity capital of the taxpayer at any time.

(e) Distributions in first 60 days of taxable year. In computing invested capital, equity capital, or accumulated earnings and profits as of the beginning of any taxable year and in determining what distributions during any taxable year were made out of the earnings and profits of such taxable year, distributions made during the first 60 days of the taxable year (except in the case of the taxpayer's first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950) are deemed, to the extent they do not exceed the accumulated earnings and profits as of the beginning of such taxable year, to have been made on the last day of the preceding taxable year. In applying such rule, such distributions shall be considered in the order of time. For example, if a corporation on the calendar year basis has accumulated earnings and profits of $100,000 on January 1, 1951, and makes distributions of $75,000 on January 15, 1951, and $60,000 on February 15, 1951, the distribution of January 15, 1951, and $25,000 of the distribution of February 15, 1951, are considered as having been made on December 31, 1950.

(f) Computation of earnings and profits of taxable year. In determining whether a distribution is out of the earnings and profits of any taxable year, such earnings and profits shall be computed as of the close of such taxable year without diminution by reason of any distribution made during such taxable year, or by reason of any income or excess profits tax imposed for such taxable year, and without regard to the amounts of earnings and profits at the time the distribution was made. For example, if a corporation making a return on the calendar year basis had accumulated earnings and profits as of the beginning of the taxable year of $50,000, and earnings and profits during the taxable year (without diminution by any distributions, or by the income or excess profits tax for the taxable year) of $150,000, all earned during the last six months of the taxable year, and distributed $175,000 as dividends during the taxable year, $56,000 on April 1, $70,000 on July 1, and $49,000 on October 1, six-sevenths of each distribution will be deemed to have been paid out of earnings of the taxable year and one-seventh from accumulated earnings and profits, so that accumulated earnings and profits will be reduced by $8,000 beginning April 2, by an additional $10,000 beginning July 2, and by an additional $7,000 beginning October 2.

(g) Exchanges. (1) For the purpose of determining the amount of property paid in for stock, or as paid-in surplus, or as a contribution to capital, if the unadjusted basis of the property for determining gain upon a sale or exchange is determined by reference to the basis of the property in the hands of the transferor, such amount shall be reduced by the sum of the following:

(i) The amount of any liability of the transferor assumed upon the exchange and of any liability subject to which such property was so received,

(ii) The amount of any liability of the transferee (not arising out of any liability described in subdivision (i) of this subparagraph) constituting consideration for the property so received, and

(iii) The aggregate of the amount of any money and the fair market value of any other property (other than such stock and other than property described in subdivisions (i) and (ii) of this subparagraph) transferred to the transferor, whether or not such money or property was permitted to be received by the transferor without the recognition of gain.

(2) Where indebtedness of a taxpayer is cancelled or released in exchange for stock, or as paid-in surplus, or as a contribution to capital, the amount paid in shall be considered equal to the amount of the indebtedness. For example, if a corporation exchanges stock for bonds outstanding in a transaction in which, if property other than bonds were paid in, such property would have the same basis in the hands of the taxpayer as in the hands of the transferor, the face amount of the bonds, rather than their basis in the hands of the bondholder, is treated as the amount paid in for such stock.

(h) Election under section 455. In the case of a taxpayer electing under section 455 (a) to compute its income from installment sales or installment sales obligations on the basis of the taxable period for which such income is accrued, and in the case of a taxpayer electing under section 455 (b) to compute income from long-term contracts on the percentage of completion method of accounting, section 441 (h) provides that the invested capital, the net new capital addition, the base period capital addition, and the net capital addition or reduction shall be computed in a manner consistent with the method of accounting so elected. However, for the purpose of such computations, installment sales made, or installment sales obligations acquired, prior to the beginning of the taxpayer's first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, shall be taken into account as if the taxpayer continued to report income on the installment basis, and long-term contracts begun prior to the beginning of the taxpayer's first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, shall be taken into account as if the taxpayer continued to report income on the completed contract basis. For example, if a taxpayer on the calendar year basis elects under section 455 (a) to use the accrual method of accounting for excess profits tax purposes, its equity capital as of the beginning of its 1950 taxable year is computed by treating its accounts receivable with respect to installment sales as having an adjusted basis determined under section 44 (d), and its equity capital as of the beginning of its taxable year 1951 would be computed by determining the adjusted basis of its accounts receivable with respect to installment sales made before 1950 in the same manner as the computation for 1950, and by determining the adjusted basis of its accounts receivable with respect to installment sales made after 1949 (which are reported on the accrual basis for excess profits tax purposes) in the same manner as in the case of a taxpayer reporting on the accrual basis for all purposes. Another example might be a taxpayer on the calendar year basis electing under section 455 (b) to compute income from long-term contracts by using the percentage of completion method of accounting. For the purpose of determining the base period capital addition of such taxpayer, the election would have no effect (since all contracts involved would have been begun prior to January 1, 1950) and the completed contract method of accounting would apply to all items entering into the computation. However, for purposes of determining the net capital addition or reduction of the taxpayer for 1950, contracts begun in 1950 would be accounted for on the percentage of completion method of accounting whereas contracts begun prior to 1950 and completed in 1950 or in a subsequent year would be accounted for on the completed contract method of accounting. The amount of normal tax and surtax for any taxable year is not recomputed under section 441 (h) for any purpose. If average base period net income is computed under section 442, 443, 444, 445, or 446, the computation of total assets for the purpose of such section shall be made subject to the rules provided in section 441 (h). The determination of the recent loss adjustment under section 437 (f) is made on the basis of the taxpayer's former method of accounting unless the recent loss period ends on a date later than the beginning of the taxpayer's first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, in which case the net income or net operating loss for such taxable year shall be computed on the basis of the method of accounting elected under section 455, subject to the rules provided in section 441 (h) and in this section.

(i) Effect of intangible property on determination of credit. In the case of intangible property, both the unadjusted and adjusted basis for determining gain upon sale or exchange shall be determined without regard to the value of the property as of March 1, 1913. However, this rule shall not have any application in determining the amount of gain realized upon the sale (exchange, or other disposition of such property. As used in section 441 (i), the term "intangible property" means secret processes and formulas, good will, trademarks, trade brands, franchises, and other like property.

(j) Improvements by lessee to properties of lessor railroad corporation. For the purpose of computing equity capital under section 437 (c), the fair value of additions and betterments made by the lessee to the physical properties of the lessor, having become the property of the lessor by rejection of its lease, is included in determining the unadjusted basis of such property. The specific rules for determination of such fair value are set forth in section 441 (j).

SEC. 442. AVERAGE BASE NET INCOME—ABNORMALITIES DURING BASE PERIOD.

(a) In general. If a taxpayer which commenced business on or before the first day of its base period establishes that, for any taxable year within, or beginning or ending within, its base period:

(1) Normal production, output, or operation was interrupted or diminished because of the occurrence, either immediately prior to, or during such taxable year, of events unusual and peculiar in the experience of such taxpayer, or

(2) The business of the taxpayer was depressed because of temporary economic circumstances unusual in the case of such taxpayer, the taxpayer's average base period net income determined under this section shall be the amount computed under subsection (c) or (d), whichever is applicable.

(b) Period subject to adjustment. The period subject to adjustment under this section shall be determined as follows:

(1) By computing the excess profits net income or deficit in excess profits net income for each month in the base period. The excess profits net income or the deficit in excess profits net income for any month shall be the excess profits net income or deficit in excess profits net income, as the case may be, for the taxable year in which such month falls divided by the number of calendar months in such year.

(2) By eliminating from the base period whichever of the following 12 months results in the higher remaining aggregate excess profits net income or the lower remaining aggregate deficit in excess profits net income—

(A) The 12 consecutive months the elimination of which produces the highest remaining aggregate excess profits net income, or the lowest remaining aggregate deficit in excess profits net income, or

(B) The 12 months which remain after retaining in the base period the 36 consecutive months which produce the highest remaining aggregate excess profits net income or the lowest remaining aggregate deficit in excess profits net income.

(c) Twelve or fewer months affected by abnormalities. If no more than 12 of the months remaining after the application of subsection (b) (2) fall within taxable years the excess profits net income of which was reduced (or the deficit in excess profits net income of which was increased) by reason of an abnormality determined to exist under subsection (a), the average base period net income determined under this section shall be computed as follows:

(1) By computing the excess profits net income, determined in accordance with section 435 (d) (1), for each of the 36 months remaining after the application of subsection (b) (2) of this section.

(2) By computing, for each such month which falls within any taxable year the excess profits net income of which was reduced (or the deficit in excess profits net income of which was increased) by reason of an abnormality determined to exist under subsection (a), the substitute excess profits net income provided under subsection (e).

(3) By identifying the months described in paragraph (2) for which the amount of the substitute excess profits net income ascertained under such paragraph exceeds 110 per centum of the amount of the excess profits net income ascertained under paragraph (1).

(4) By computing the sum of (A) the aggregate of the substitute excess profits net income for each of the months identified under paragraph (3) and (B) the aggregate of the excess profits net income (ascertained under paragraph (1)) for each of the other months remaining after the application of subsection (b) (2).

(5) By dividing by 3 the amount ascertained under paragraph (4).

(d) More than twelve months affected by abnormalities. If more than 12 of the months remaining after the application of subsection (b) (2) fall within taxable years the excess profits net income of which was reduced (or the deficit in excess profits net income of which was increased) by reason of an abnormality determined to exist under subsection (a), the average base period net income determined under this section shall be computed as follows:

(1) By determining the amount of the taxpayer's total assets for the last day of each of its taxable years ending after the first day of its base period and prior to the first day of its first taxable year under this subchapter.

(2) By computing the average of the amounts ascertained under paragraph (1).

(3) By multiplying the amount ascertained under paragraph (2) by the base period rate of return, proclaimed by the Secretary under section 447, for the taxpayer's industry classification.

(4) By determining the aggregate amount of interest paid or incurred by the taxpayer for all taxable years ending after the first day of its base period and prior to the first day of its first taxable year under this subchapter, dividing such aggregate by the total number of months in such years, and multiplying the quotient by 12.

(5) By subtracting the amount ascertained under paragraph (4) from the amount ascertained under paragraph (3).

This subsection shall have no application with respect to any taxpayer unless the amount of the taxpayer's average base period net income determined under this subsection exceeds 110 per centum of the taxpayer's average base period net income computed under section 435 (d).

(e) Substitute excess profits net income—(1) Computation. For the purposes of subsection (c) (2), the substitute excess profits net income for any month shall be computed as follows:

(A) By multiplying the amount of the taxpayer's total assets for the last day of the taxable year in which such month falls or for the last day of its taxable year immediately preceding its first taxable year under this subchapter, whichever day is earlier, by the rate of return provided under paragraph (2).

(B) By reducing the amount ascertained under subparagraph (A) by the total interest paid or incurred by the taxpayer for the 12 months beginning with the first day of the taxable year within which such month falls.

(C) By dividing by 12 the amount ascertained under subparagraph (B).

(2) Base period yearly rate of return. The rate of return to be used under paragraph (1) (A) shall be the base period yearly rate of return, proclaimed by the Secretary under section 447 for the taxpayer's industry classification, for the following year—

(A) In the case of a taxable year of the taxpayer beginning in 1945 and ending in 1946—for the year 1946;

(B) In the case of a taxable year of the taxpayer beginning in 1949 and ending in 1950—for the year 1949; and

(C) In the case of any other taxable year of the taxpayer—for the year in which falls the greater number of days in such taxable year.

(f) Total assets. For the purposes of this section, the taxpayer's total assets for any day shall be determined as of the end of such day and shall be an amount equal to the sum of the cash and the property (other than cash, inadmissible assets, and loans to members of a controlled group as defined in section 435 (f) (4) held by the taxpayer in good faith for the purposes of the business. Such property shall be included in an amount equal to its adjusted basis for determining gain upon sale or exchange, determined under the rules provided in section 441.

(g) Taxpayer's industry classification. The taxpayer's industry classification shall be determined, for the purposes of subsection (d), by reference to the last taxable year within or beginning within its base period, and, for the purposes of subsection (e), by reference to the taxable year within which falls the last month for which a substitute excess profits net income is determined; and, in either case, shall be the industry classification under section 447 to which is attributable the largest amount of the taxpayer's gross receipts for such taxable year.

(h) Rules for application of section. The benefits of this section shall not be allowed unless the taxpayer makes application therefor in accordance with section 447 (e).

(i) Cross references. (1) For definition of gross receipts, see section 435 (e) (5).

(2) For computation of capital additions in the base period, see section 435 (f) (3).

(3) For computation of excess profits credit based on income in the case of certain reorganizations, see Part II of this subchapter.

§ 40.442–1 General rule. If a taxpayer which commenced business on or before the first day of its base period establishes that it experienced certain abnormalities (described in § 40.442–2), then such taxpayer may be entitled to use the average base period net income computed under section 442. See § 40.442–3, for methods of computation. However, section 442 is applicable only if the taxpayer makes application therefor in accordance with section 447 (e). For rules governing the application of section 442 in the case of an acquiring corporation, see section 462 (d), and in the case of a component corporation, see section 461 (c).

§ 40.442–2 Abnormalities—(a) Interruption or diminution of normal production, output, or operation in the base period. (1) Section 442 applies if the taxpayer establishes that for any taxable year within, or beginning or ending within, its base period its normal production, output, or operation was interrupted or diminished because of the occurrence either immediately prior to or during such taxable year, of events unusual and peculiar in the experience of the taxpayer. Activities comprised within the meaning of production, output, or operation include the rendering of services in those cases in which corporations render services rather than manufacture or market tangible products, for example, advertising agencies, brokerage concerns, purchasing agents, etc. Normal production, output, or operation, means the level of production, output, or operation customary for the taxpayer, determined on the basis of the actual experience of the taxpayer up to the time the unusual and peculiar event occurred.

(2) Not every interruption or diminution of normal production, output, or operation in the base period may furnish the basis for the application of section 442 (a) (1). The interruption or diminution must be significant and not trivial.

(3) An event is unusual and peculiar in the experience of the taxpayer if its occurrence is not ordinarily encountered in the taxpayer's business operations. Such event may be unusual in the case of the taxpayer even though it is also unusual in the case of other taxpayers. For example, a flood in a particular locality may be unusual in the case of a number of taxpayers. If an event is unusual in the course of business experience in general but regular in the case of the taxpayer, such event is not unusual and peculiar in the experience of that taxpayer. Thus, if a corporation is engaged in felling and transporting logs and timber, and if its annual operations are interrupted by spring floods occasioned by thaws and rains, such events are not unusual and peculiar in the experience of that corporation. Unusual and peculiar events contemplated in section 442 (a) (1) consist primarily of physical rather than economic events or circumstances. Such physical events include floods, fires, explosions, strikes, and other exceptional and uncommon circumstances hindering production, output, or operation.

(b) Business depression in base period on account of temporary economic circumstances. (1) Section 442 applies if the taxpayer establishes that its business was depressed for any taxable year within, or beginning or ending within, its base period because of temporary economic circumstances unusual in the case of such taxpayer. Section 442 (a) (2) applies to only those economic circumstances which were temporary in the sense that they had little perceptible long-range effect upon the taxpayer's business, and which affected the taxpayer unusually as distinguished from those economic events which were of a chronic or continuing character.

(2) As in the case of unusual and peculiar events interrupting or diminishing production, output, or operation, a temporary economic circumstance is unusual in the case of a taxpayer if its occurrence is not ordinarily encountered in that taxpayer's business operations. A temporary economic circumstance may be unusual in the case of a taxpayer even though it is also unusual in the case of other taxpayers. If an economic circumstance is unusual in the course of business experience in general but regular in the case of the taxpayer, such circumstance is not unusual in the case of such taxpayer. An example illustrating section 442 (a) (2) might be a taxpayer compelled to develop a new market because it conducted business with only one customer for a long period of years and lost such customer during the base period when such customer decided to manufacture for itself the product it had formerly bought from the taxpayer.

§ 40.442–3 Computation of average base period net income—(a) Period subject to adjustment. If a taxpayer which commenced business on or before the first day of its base period qualifies as to abnormalities in its base period under § 40.442–2, the period subject to adjustment is determined under section 442 (b)—

(1) By computing the excess profits net income (or deficit in excess profits net income) for each month in the taxpayer's base period, such computation being made by dividing the excess profits net income (or deficit in excess profits net income) as determined under section 433 (b) (or (c)) for the taxable year in which the month falls, by the number of calendar months in such taxable year, and

(2) Either by eliminating 12 consecutive months, or by eliminating the 12 months remaining after retaining 36 consecutive months, whichever method produces the highest aggregate excess profits net income (or lowest deficit) for the 36 months retained after such elimination of 12 months.

After such determination of the 36 months which result in the highest aggregate excess profits net income (or lowest deficit), the average base period net income is determined by whichever of the methods set forth in paragraphs (b) and (c) of this section is applicable.

(b) 12 or fewer months affected adversely by abnormalities. If 12 or fewer of the 36 base period months determined under paragraph (a) of this section fall within taxable years which are affected adversely as to excess profits net income by abnormalities determined to exist under section 442 (a) and § 40.442–2, the taxpayer's average base period net income is computed under section 442 (c) as follows:

(1) An excess profits net income is computed under section 435 (c) (1) for each of the 36 base period months, by dividing the excess profits net income for the taxable year in which each such month falls by the number of full calendar months in such taxable year, and raising any deficits in excess profits net income to zero.

(2) The substitute excess profits net income is computed for each such month which falls within a taxable year affected adversely as to excess profits net income by such abnormalities. The substitute excess profits net income is computed under section 442 (e) for each such month as follows:

(i) The taxpayer's total assets (determined under section 442 (f) and under paragraph (d) of this section) for the last day of the taxable year in which such month falls, or for the last day of the taxpayer's last taxable year ending before July 1, 1950, whichever day is earlier, is multiplied by the appropriate industry base period yearly rate of return determined under section 447 for the base period year in which such month falls. See section 442 (e) (2) for special rules in case of fiscal years. Under section 442 (g) the appropriate industry classification under section 447 is the classification to which is attributable the largest amount of the taxpayer's gross receipts for the taxable year within which falls the last month for which a substitute excess profits net income is determined.

(ii) The amount determined under subdivision (i) of this subparagraph is reduced by the total interest paid or incurred by the taxpayer for the 12 months beginning with the first day of the taxable year within which such month falls.

(iii) The amount determined under subdivision (i) and reduced under subdivision (ii) of this subparagraph is divided by 12. The amount so computed is the substitute excess profits net income for the month.

(3) Each month for which the substitute excess profits net income determined under subparagraph (2) exceeds 110 percent of the excess profits net income determined under subparagraph (1) of this paragraph is identified.

(4) The aggregate of the substitute excess profits net income for the months identified in subparagraph (3) is added to the aggregate of the excess profits net income, ascertained under subparagraph (1), for those of the 36 base period months which were not identified under subparagraph (3) of this paragraph.

(5) The sum ascertained under subparagraph (4) of this paragraph is divided by 3. The result obtained is the average base period net income determined under section 442.

(c) More than 12 months affected adversely by abnormalities. If more than 12 of the 36 base period months fall within taxable years which are affected adversely as to excess profits net income by abnormalities determined to exist under section 442 (a) and § 40.442–2, the taxpayer's average base period net income is computed under section 442 (d) as follows:

(1) The amount of the total assets for the last day of each taxable year ending after the first day of the taxpayer's base period and prior to July 1, 1950, is determined under section 442 (f) and under paragraph (d) of this section.

(2) The sum of the amounts ascertained under subparagraph (1) of this paragraph is divided by the number of such amounts.

(3) The average ascertained under subparagraph (2) of this paragraph is multiplied by the base period rate of return determined under section 447 for the taxpayer's industry classification. Under section 442 (g) the taxpayer's industry classification is the classification to which is attributable the largest amount of the taxpayer's gross receipts for its last taxable year beginning within its base period.

(4) The average of the aggregate interest paid or incurred by the taxpayer for all taxable years ending after the first day of its base period and prior to July 1, 1950, is subtracted from the amount determined under subparagraph (3) of this paragraph. This average is computed by ascertaining the total of such interest for all such taxable years, by dividing the amount so ascertained by the number of months in such taxable years, and by multiplying the quotient by 12.

The amount determined under subparagraphs (1)–(4) of this paragraph, is the average base period net income computed under section 442 only if such amount exceeds 110 percent of the taxpayer's average base period net income computed under section 435 (d). If such amount does not exceed 110 percent of such average, section 442 is not applicable to the taxpayer.

(d) Definitions. For the purpose of section 442—

(1) The term "total assets" for any day means the sum of the cash and other property (other than inadmissible assets, as defined in section 440 (a) (1), and other than loans to members of a controlled group, as defined in section 435 (f) (4)) held by the taxpayer at the end of such day in good faith for purposes of the business. Property shall be included in an amount equal to its adjusted basis for determining gain upon sale or exchange, except that the adjusted basis of secret processes and formulas, good will, trade-marks, trade brands, franchises, and other like property shall be determined without regard to value as of March 1, 1913. In determining total assets, so much of the distributions to shareholders made during the first 60 days of any taxable year (other than the taxpayer's first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950) as does not exceed the accumulated earnings and profits at the beginning of the year shall be considered to have been made on the last day of the preceding taxable year. For special rule in the case of improvements by a lessee to properties of a lessor railroad corporation, see section 441 (j). In the case of a taxpayer electing to compute income from installment sales or installment sales obligations on the accrual method of accounting, or income from long-term contracts on the percentage of completion method of accounting, see section 441 (h). See section 470 for rules applicable in determining the adjusted basis of assets received in certain intercorporate liquidations.

(2) The term "gross receipts" means gross receipts as defined in section 435 (c) (5).

(3) For rules for determining when a taxpayer "commenced business," see § 40.445–1.

(4) The term "base period" means the base period as defined in section 435 (b).

(5) The term "interest" includes interest on all indebtedness, irrespective of whether the indebtedness constitutes borrowed capital within the meaning of section 439 (b).

(e) Cross reference. For special rules in determining the base period capital addition in case average base period net income is computed under section 442, see section 435 (f) (3) and § 40.435–6 (d).

SEC. 443. AVERAGE BASE PERIOD NET INCOME—CHANGE IN PRODUCTS OR SERVICES.

(a) In general. If a taxpayer which commenced business on or before the first day of its base period establishes with respect to any taxable year that—

(1) During so much of its three immediately preceding taxable years as falls within the 36-month period ending on the last day of its base period, there was a substantial change in the products or services furnished by the taxpayer.

(2) More than 40 per centum of its gross income or 33 per centum of its net income for such taxable year is attributable to one or more of the new products or services, and then, in computing its excess profits credit for taxable years under this subchapter which end on or after the last day of the earliest taxable year with respect to which the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (3) are satisfied, its average base period net income determined under this section shall be the amount computed under subsection (b).

(b) Average base period net income. The average base period net income determined under this section shall be computed as follows:

(1) By multiplying the amount of the taxpayer's total assets for (A) the last day of its taxable year immediately preceding its first taxable year under this subchapter, or (B) the last day of the taxable year in which the taxpayer first meets the requirements of subsection (a), whichever day is later, by the base period rate of return, proclaimed by the Secretary under section 447, for the taxpayer's industry classification.

(2) By subtracting from the amount ascertained under paragraph (1) the total interest paid or incurred by the taxpayer for the 12 months ending with whichever day is used under such paragraph.

(c) Taxpayer's industry classification. For the purposes of this section, the taxpayer's industry classification shall be the industry classification under section 447 to which is attributable the largest amount of the taxpayer's gross receipts for the taxable year which includes whichever day is used under subsection (b).

(d) Capital addition or reduction. If the average base period net income of the taxpayer is determined under this section—

(1) The excess profits credit for the taxable year in which the taxpayer first meets the requirements of subsection (a) shall not include any net capital addition or reduction determined under section 435 (g), and

(2) In determining the net capital addition or reduction under section 435 (g) for any subsequent taxable year, the expression "the first day of the taxpayer's first taxable year under this subchapter" shall be read as "the first day of the taxpayer's first taxable year under this subchapter or the day following the close of the taxable year in which the taxpayer first met the requirements of section 443 (a), whichever day is later".

(e) Average monthly excess profits net income. For the purposes of subsection (a) (3)—

(1) The excess profits net income for any year shall be computed by making the adjustments provided in section 433 (b) as though such section were applicable to all taxable years.

(2) The average monthly excess profits net income for any period of two or more taxable years shall be determined (A) by computing the aggregate of the excess profits net income for all taxable years within such period, (B) by subtracting from such aggregate the aggregate amount of the deficits in excess profits net income for all taxable years within such period, and (C) by dividing the amount ascertained under (B) by the total number of months in such taxable years.

(3) The average monthly excess profits net income determined for any period shall in no case be less than zero.

(f) Rules for application of section. The benefits of this section shall not be allowed unless the taxpayer makes application therefor in accordance with section 447 (e).

(g) Cross references. (1) For definition of gross receipts, see section 435 (e) (5).

(2) For definition of total assets, see section 442 (f).

(3) For computation of excess profits credit based on income in the case of certain reorganizations, see Part II of this subchapter.

§ 40.443–1 General rule. (a) A taxpayer which commenced business on or before the first day of its base period and which, during the last 36 months of its base period, changed substantially the products or services furnished by it may, in certain cases, compute its average base period net income under section 443. The taxpayer must establish, with respect to a single taxable year (hereinafter referred to as the "qualifying taxable year"), that—

(1) During so much of its three immediately preceding taxable years as falls within the 36-month period ending on the last day of its base period, there was a substantial change in the products or services furnished by the taxpayer, and

(2) Either more than 40 percent of its gross income or more than 33 percent of its net income for the qualifying taxable year is attributable to one or more of the new products or services, and

(3) Its average monthly excess profits net income for the qualifying taxable year exceeds 125 percent of its average monthly excess profits net income for the taxable year (or years) ending within its base period and ending prior to the taxable year in which occurred the first change in products or services to which gross income or net income is attributed for the purpose of the requirement of subparagraph (2) of this paragraph.

(b) The qualifying taxable year may be a base period taxable year or a taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, but in any case shall be the earliest taxable year with respect to which the taxpayer meets the requirements of subparagraphs (1), (2), and (3) of this paragraph. A taxpayer meeting the requirements of subparagraphs (1), (2), and (3) of this paragraph may compute its average base period net income under section 443 for the qualifying taxable year (if an excess profits tax taxable year) and for each subsequent excess profits tax taxable year. Under section 443, the average base period net income is computed on the basis of the base period rate of return for the taxpayer's industry classification. See § 40.443–3 (a) for method of computation. However, section 443 is applicable only if the taxpayer makes application therefor in accordance with section 447 (e). For rules governing the application of section 443 in the case of an acquiring corporation, see section 462 (e), and in the case of a component corporation, see section 461 (c).

§ 40.443–2 Requirements as to change in products or services—(a) Substantial change in products or services. (1) For the purpose of section 443, there is a change in products or services only if the new products or services are substantially different from the products or services previously furnished. Ordinarily, it is necessary that the trade custom or practice treat the new products or services as being of a different class from the products or services previously furnished by the taxpayer. A mere improvement or change in style of product or service does not constitute a change in the product or service. The change must represent more than a usual or customary event in the type of business in which the taxpayer is engaged. In certain types of business it is customary to eliminate unprofitable lines and add new lines as, for example, in a business the products of which are affected by style changes. Such variation in products would not qualify as a change in products furnished. The addition of a new product to a line of varied products, as where a novelty store selling hundreds of items adds several new lines, will not ordinarily be held to constitute the addition of new products for the purpose of section 443.

(2) The change in products or services furnished must take the form of the addition of a product or service which is new to the taxpayer. The discontinuance of a product or service previously furnished by the taxpayer is not a change in products or services for the purpose of section 443.

(b) Qualifying taxable year under section 443. The qualifying taxable year must be one of the three taxable years of the taxpayer immediately following the taxable year of the first change in products or services upon which the taxpayer relies, which change must have occurred during the last 36 months of the taxpayer's base period. The taxable year with respect to which the taxpayer claims qualification under section 443 (a) and § 40.443–1 must be the earliest year with respect to which the taxpayer meets the requirement of such sections. For the purpose of the requirement of section 443 (a). (2) and § 40.443–1 (a) (2) as to gross income or net income, if more than one substantial change in products or services occurred during the prescribed period, the gross income or net income attributable to such new products or services shall be aggregated in determining whether the amount attributable to new products or services exceeds the stated percentages of total gross income or total net income, as the case may be.

(c) Average monthly excess profits net income. For the purpose of the requirement of section 443 (a) (3) and § 40.443–1 (a) (3) the average monthly excess profits net income for the qualifying taxable year must exceed 125 percent of such average for the taxable years ending within the taxpayer's base period and ending prior to the taxable year in which occurred the first change in products or services upon which the taxpayer relies. For the purpose of this requirement, average monthly excess profits net income shall be computed for any taxable year by making the adjustments provided in section 433 (b) as though that section were applicable to all taxable years, and by dividing the excess profits net income so computed for the taxable year by the number of months in the taxable year. The average monthly excess profits net income for any period of two or more taxable years is determined by ascertaining the excess of the aggregate of the excess profits net income (computed by making the adjustments provided in section 433 (b) as though that section were applicable to all taxable years) for all taxable years within the period over the aggregate of any deficits in excess profits net income (similarly computed) for all taxable years within the period, and by dividing the excess so ascertained by the total number of months in the taxable years in the period. The average monthly excess profits net income determined for any period shall in no case be less than zero.

(1) The amount of the total assets determined under section 442 (f) and under § 40.442–3 (d) (1) for the last day of the taxpayer's last taxable year ending before July 1, 1950, or for the last day of the first taxable year in which the taxpayer first meets the requirements of section 443 (a) and § 40.443–1, whichever day is later, is multiplied by the base period rate of return determined under section 447 for the taxpayer's industry classification. Under section 443 (c) the taxpayer's industry classification is the classification to which is attributable the largest amount of the taxpayer's gross receipts for the taxable year which includes the day for which the amount of the taxpayer's total assets was determined for the computation in the preceding sentence.

(2) The amount determined in subparagraph (1) of this paragraph is reduced by the total interest paid or incurred by the taxpayer for the 12 months ending with the day for which the taxpayer's total assets were determined for the purpose of subparagraph (1) of this paragraph.

(b) Capital addition or reduction. The base period capital addition computed under section 435 (f) is not available to a taxpayer computing its average base period net income under section 443. The net capital addition or reduction computed under section 435 (g), however, is applicable to such a taxpayer in accordance with the following modifications:

(1) If the taxable year in which the taxpayer first meets the requirements of section 443 (a) and § 40.443–1 is a year ending after June 30, 1950, no net capital addition or reduction will be applicable in computing the excess profits credit based on income for that taxable year.

(2) In determining the net capital addition or reduction under section 435 (g) for a taxable year subsequent to the taxable year in which the taxpayer first met the requirements of section 443 (a) and § 40.443–1, the day immediately following the taxable year in which such requirements were first met, if such taxable year ends after June 30, 1950, shall be used in lieu of the first day of the taxpayer's first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, wherever the latter day is referred to in section 435 (g).

(c) Definitions. For the purpose of section 443—

(1) For definition of "total assets" see § 40.442–3 (d) (1).

(2) The term "gross receipts" means gross receipts as defined in section 435 (e) (5).

(3) For rules for determining when a taxpayer "commenced business," see § 40.445–1.

(4) The term "base period" means the base period as defined in section 435 (b).

(5) For definition of "interest," see § 40.442–3 (d) (5).

SEC. 444. AVERAGE BASE PERIOD NET INCOME—INCREASE IN CAPACITY FOR PRODUCTION OR OPERATION.

(a) In general. If a taxpayer which commenced business on or before the first day of its base period established that, during the 36-month period ending on the last day of its base period, there was an increase, as defined in subsection (b), in its capacity for production or operation, the taxpayer's average base period net income determined under this section shall be the amount computed under subsection (c).

(b) Increase in capacity. An increase in capacity for production or operation shall be deemed to have occurred, for the purposes of this section, if the taxpayer establishes that it made an addition or additions to its facilities (as defined in subsection (d)) or replaced all or a part of its existing facilities, and that:

(1) As a result of such additions or replacements, its capacity for production or operation on the last day of its base period was 200 per centum or more of its capacity for production or operation on the day prior to the beginning of such 36-month period, or

(2) (A) As a result of such additions or replacements, its capacity for production or operation on the last day of its base period was 150 per centum or more of its capacity for production or operation on the day prior to the beginning of such 36-month period, and (B) the adjusted basis for determining gain upon sale or exchange of its total facilities on the last day of its base period was 150 per centum or more of the adjusted basis for determining gain upon sale or exchange of its total facilities on the day prior to the beginning of such 36-month period, or

(3) The basis (unadjusted) for determining gain upon sale or exchange of its total facilities on the last day of its base period was 200 per centum or more of the basis (unadjusted) for determining gain upon sale or exchange of its total facilities on the day prior to the beginning of such 36-month period.

(c) Average base period net income. The average base period net income determined under this section shall be computed as follows:

(1) By multiplying the amount of the taxpayer's total assets for the last day of its taxable year immediately preceding its first taxable year under this subchapter by the base period rate of return, proclaimed by the Secretary under section 447, for the taxpayer's industry.

(2) By subtracting from the amount ascertained under paragraph (1) an amount equal to the total interest paid or incurred by the taxpayer for the 12 months ending with the end of such immediately preceding taxable year.

(d) Facilities. For the purposes of this section, the term "facilities" means real property and depreciable tangible property, held by the taxpayer in good faith for the purposes of the business.

(e) Taxpayer's industry classification. For the purposes of this section, the taxpayer's industry classification shall be the industry classification under section 447 to which is attributable the largest amount of the taxpayer's gross receipts for its taxable year immediately preceding its first taxable year under this subchapter.

(f) Rules for application of section. The benefits of this section shall not be allowed unless the taxpayer makes application therefor in accordance with section 447 (e).

(g) Cross references. (1) For definition of gross receipts, see section 435 (e) (5).

(2) For definition of total assets, see section 442 (f).

(3) For computation of excess profits credit based on income in the case of certain reorganizations, see Part II of this subchapter.

§ 40.444–1 Increase in capacity for production or operation. A taxpayer may compute its average base period net income under section 444 if it commenced business on or before the first day of its base period and if it establishes that during the 36-month period ending on the last day of its base period there was an increase in its capacity for production or operation, as defined in section 444 (b). However, the benefits of section 444 are allowed only if the taxpayer makes application therefor in accordance with section 447 (e). For rules governing the application of section 444 in the case of an acquiring corporation, see section 462 (f), and in the case of a component corporation, see section 461 (c).

§ 40.444–2 Requirements as to increase in capacity for production or operation—(a) Meaning of term "capacity for production or operation." (1) As used in section 444, the term "capacity for production or operation" means the capacity to produce or to operate rather than the level of production or operation actually achieved. For example, a change from one shift to two shifts per day does not constitute an increase in capacity, but merely represents the utilization of existing capacity.

(2) The words "capacity for production or operation" shall be construed as alternatives, that is, capacity for production or capacity for operation. Thus, in the case of a manufacturer, an increase in the capacity for production may result from the acquisition of additional manufacturing facilities. In the case of a corporation engaged primarily in selling operations or the rendering of services, an increase in the capacity for operation may result from an increase in capacity to make sales or render services.

(3) For the purpose of section 444, an increase in capacity for production or operation must result either from an addition to or from a replacement of all or a part of the taxpayer's facilities, and must occur during the 36-month period ending on the last day of the taxpayer's base period.

(b) Measurement of increase in capacity for production or operation. (1) For the purpose of section 444, an increase in capacity for production or operation is deemed to have occurred if the taxpayer establishes that it made an addition or additions to its facilities or replaced all or a part of its existing facilities, and that—

(i) As a result of such addition or replacement, its capacity for production or operation on the last day of its base period was 200 percent or more of its total capacity for production or operation on the last day of the twelfth month of its base period, or

(ii) (a) As a result of such addition or replacement, its capacity for production or operation on the last day of its base period was 150 percent or more of its total capacity for production or operation on the last day of the twelfth month of its base period, and (b) the adjusted basis for determining gain upon sale or exchange of its total facilities on the last day of its base period was 150 percent or more of the adjusted basis for determining gain upon sale or exchange of its total facilities on the last day of the twelfth month of its base period, or

(iii) The basis (unadjusted) for determining gain upon sale or exchange of its total facilities on the last day of its base period was 200 percent or more of the basis (unadjusted) for determining gain upon sale or exchange of its total facilities on the last day of the twelfth month of its base period.

(2) In determining capacity for production or operation, the unit of measurement customary for the output of the particular kind of business shall be used, such as tons, gallons, barrels, yards, or dozens. In those businesses having no customary unit of measurement, an acceptable alternative might be expressed in terms of the principal raw material utilized. Dollar amounts may be used only if there is no other practical measurement for such output and then only if the taxpayer can establish that no distortion in the comparison results. The same unit of measurement must be used in computing capacity for the last day of the base period as is used in computing capacity for the last day of the twelfth month of the base period, except that the capacity for the last day of the base period must not include any increase not due to replacements or additions to facilities.

(3) For the purpose of subdivisions (ii) and (iii) of subparagraph (1) of this paragraph, the adjusted basis or the basis (unadjusted), as the case may be, of all facilities of the taxpayer is to be included in the computation for the last day of the twelfth month of the base period and in the computation for the last day of the base period, irrespective of whether the facility is one directly involved in any determination of capacity for production or operation.

§ 40.444–3 Computations—(a) Average base period net income. Average base period net income is computed under section 444 (c) as follows:

(1) The amount of the total assets determined under section 442 (f) and under § 40.442–3 (d) (1) for the last day of the taxpayer's last taxable year ending before July 1, 1950, is multiplied by the base period rate of return determined under section 447 for the taxpayer's industry classification. Under section 444 (e) the taxpayer's industry classification is the industry classification to which is attributable the largest amount of the taxpayer's gross receipts for its last taxable year ending before July 1, 1950.

(2) The amount ascertained under subparagraph (1) of this paragraph is reduced by the total interest paid or incurred by the taxpayer for the 12 months ending with the last day of the taxpayer's last taxable year ending before July 1, 1950.

(b) Capital addition or reduction. The base period capital addition computed under section 435 (f) is not available to a taxpayer computing its average base period net income under section 444. The net capital addition or reduction computed under section 435 (g), however, is applicable to such a taxpayer.

(c) Definitions. For the purpose of this section—

(1) For definition of "total assets," see § 40.442–3 (d) (1).

(2) The term "gross receipts" means gross receipts as defined in section 435 (e) (5).

(3) For rules for determining when a taxpayer "commenced business," see § 40.445–1.

(4) The term "base period" means the base period as defined in section 435 (b).

(5) The term "facilities" means tangible property of a character which is subject to the allowance for depreciation provided in section 23 (l) and real property, held by the taxpayer in good faith for the purposes of the business.

(6) For definition of "interest," see § 40.442–3 (d) (5).

SEC. 445. AVERAGE BASE PERIOD NET INCOME—NEW CORPORATION.

(a) New corporation. A taxpayer which commenced business after the first day of its base period shall, except as provided in subsection (g), be considered a new corporation for the purposes of this section, and its average base period net income determined under this section shall be the amount computed under subsection (b).

(b) Average base period net income. The average base period net income of a new corporation determined under this section shall be computed as follows:

(1) For the purpose of determining the excess profits credit for any of the taxpayer's first three taxable years which is a taxable year under this subchapter—

(A) By multiplying the amount of the total assets for such taxable year (determined under subsection (c)), held by the taxpayer in good faith for the purposes of the business, by the base period rate of return, proclaimed by the Secretary under section 447, for the taxpayer's industry classification.

(B) By subtracting from the amount ascertained under subparagraph (A) the total interest paid or incurred by the taxpayer for the 12 months ending with the last day of such taxable year.

(2) For the purpose of determining the excess profits credit for any taxable year under this subchapter other than a taxable year described in paragraph (1)—

(A) By multiplying the amount of the taxpayer's total assets (as defined in section 442 (f)) for (i) the last day of its taxable year immediately preceding its first taxable year under this subchapter, or (ii) the last day of its third taxable year, whichever day is later, by the base period rate of return, proclaimed by the Secretary under section 447, for the taxpayer's industry classification.

(B) By subtracting from the amount ascertained under subparagraph (A) the total interest paid or incurred by the taxpayer for the 12 months ending with whichever day is used under such subparagraph.

For the purposes of this section, the taxable year of the taxpayer in which it commenced business and its two succeeding taxable years shall be considered to be its first three taxable years.

(c) Total assets for first three years. The amount of the total assets for any taxable year referred to in subsection (b) (1) shall, for the purposes of such subsection, be the sum of

(1) The total assets (as defined in section 442 (f)) for the last day of the taxpayer's taxable year immediately preceding its first taxable year under this subchapter, and

(2) The net capital addition (determined under section 435 (g)) for such taxable year referred to in subsection (b) (1), minus the net capital reduction (determined under section 435 (g) for such taxable year referred to in subsection (b) (1).

(d) Taxpayer's industry classification. The taxpayer's industry classification shall be determined, for the purposes of subsection (b) (1), by reference to the particular taxable year for which the excess profits credit is thereunder determined, and, for the purposes of subsection (b) (2), by reference to the taxpayer's third taxable year; and, in either case, shall be the industry classification under section 447 to which is attributable the largest amount of the taxpayer's gross receipts for such taxable year.

(e) Capital addition or reduction. If the average base period net income of the taxpayer is determined under this section—

(1) The excess profits credit for any taxable year for which such determination is made under subsection (b) (1) shall not include any net capital addition or reduction determined under section 435 (g), and

(2) In computing the net capital addition or reduction under section 435 (g) for any taxable year for which such determination is made under subsection (b) (2), the expression "the first day of the taxpayer's first taxable year under this subchapter" shall be read as "the first day of the taxpayer's first taxable year under this subchapter or the day following the close of the taxpayer's third taxable year, whichever day is later."

(f) Rules for application of section. The benefits of this section shall not be allowed unless the taxpayer makes application therefor in accordance with section 447 (e).

(g) Ineligible corporations. (1) If a taxpayer, on or after December 1, 1950, and prior to the end of its third taxable year, acquires any properties in any of the transactions described in paragraph (2), it shall not, for the taxable year in which such acquisition occurs or for succeeding taxable years, be entitled to the benefits of this section except under the circumstances and subject to the limitations provided in section 462 (g).

(2) The transactions to which paragraph (1) applies are as follows:

(A) The acquisition by the taxpayer from another corporation of properties the basis of which in its hands is determined by reference to the basis of such properties to the transferor;

(B) The acquisition by the taxpayer of a substantial part of its assets from another corporation, or of a substantial part of the properties of another corporation, if 50 per centum or more in value of the outstanding stock or outstanding voting stock of the taxpayer is directly or indirectly owned, at the time of such acquisition, by individuals owning directly or indirectly 50 per centum or more in value of the outstanding stock, or outstanding voting stock of the transferor;

(C) The acquisition by the taxpayer of a substantial part of the properties distributed on or after December 1, 1950, by another corporation, if such properties constituted a substantial part of the business assets of such other corporation, and if 50 per centum or more in value of the outstanding stock or outstanding voting stock of the taxpayer is owned directly or indirectly by individuals who at the time of such distribution owned directly or indirectly 50 per centum or more in value of the outstanding stock or outstanding voting stock of such other corporation;

(3) For the purposes of this subsection, the provisions of section 503 shall be applicable in the determination of ownership of stock.

(h) Cross references. (1) For definition of gross receipts, see section 435 (e) (5).

(2) For computation of excess profits credit based on income in the case of certain reorganizations, see Part II of this subchapter.

§ 40.445–1 New corporations—(a) In general. (1) Section 445 provides an alternative average base period net income for new corporations. For the purpose of section 445 and the regulations thereunder, a taxpayer which commenced business after the first day of its base period and which is not an ineligible corporation is considered to be a new corporation. However, section 445 is applicable only if the taxpayer makes application therefor in accordance with section 447 (e). For rules governing the application of section 445 in the case of an acquiring corporation, see section 462 (g), and in the case of a component corporation, see section 461 (c).

(2) The words "commenced business" do not have the same meaning as "in existence." Ordinarily, a corporation commences business when it starts the business operations for which it was organized; a corporation comes into existence on the date of its incorporation. Mere organizational activities, such as incorporation or the issuance of capital stock, are not alone sufficient to show commencement of business. If the activities of the corporation have advanced to the extent necessary to establish the nature of its business operations, it will be deemed to have commenced business. For example, the acquisition of operating assets which are necessary to the type of business contemplated may constitute the commencement of business.

(b) Ineligible corporations. If a taxpayer, on or after December 1, 1950, and prior to the end of its third taxable year (counting as the first taxable year, the taxable year in which the taxpayer commenced business), acquires any properties in any of the transactions described in subparagraphs (1), (2), or (3) of this paragraph, it shall be deemed an "ineligible corporation" and it shall not be entitled to the application of section 445 for the taxable year in which such acquisition occurs or for any succeeding taxable year, except under the circumstances and subject to the limitations provided in section 462 (g). The transactions referred to above are—

(1) The acquisition by the taxpayer from another corporation of properties the basis of which in the hands of the taxpayer is determined by reference to the basis of such properties to the transferor; or

(2) The acquisition by the taxpayer of a substantial part of its assets from another corporation, or of a substantial part of the properties of another corporation, if 50 percent or more in value of the outstanding stock or outstanding voting stock of the taxpayer is directly or indirectly owned, at the time of such acquisition, by individuals owning directly or indirectly 50 percent or more in value of the outstanding stock, or outstanding voting stock of the transferor; or

(3) The acquisition by the taxpayer of a substantial part of the properties distributed on or after December 1, 1950, by another corporation, if such properties constituted a substantial part of the business assets of such other corporation, and if 50 percent or more in value of the outstanding stock or outstanding voting stock of the taxpayer is owned directly or indirectly by individuals who at the time of such distribution owned directly or indirectly 50 percent or more in value of the outstanding stock, or outstanding voting stock of the transferor;

(c) For the purpose of paragraph (b) of this section, the provisions of section 503 are applicable in determining the ownership of stock.

§ 40.445–2 Computations—(a) Average base period net income for first three taxable years. The average base period net income for each of the taxpayer's first three taxable years (counting as the first taxable year, the taxable year in which the taxpayer commenced business) which is an excess profits tax taxable year is computed under section 445 as follows:

(1) The amount of the taxpayer's total assets determined under paragraph (d) (1) of this section for such taxable year is multiplied by the base period rate of return determined under section 447 for the taxpayer's industry classification. Under section 445 (d), the taxpayer's industry classification is the classification to which is attributable the largest amount of the taxpayer's gross receipts for the taxable year for which the excess profits credit is being determined.

(2) The amount ascertained under subparagraph (1) of this paragraph is reduced by the total interest paid or incurred by the taxpayer for the 12 months ending with the last day of the taxable year for which the excess profits credit is being determined.

(b) Average base period net income for fourth and subsequent taxable years. The average base period net income for each excess profits tax taxable year subsequent to the taxpayer's third taxable year (counting as the first taxable year, the taxable year in which the taxpayer commenced business) is computed under section 445 as follows:

(1) The amount of the taxpayer's total assets determined under paragraph (d) (2) of this section is multiplied by the base period rate of return determined under section 447 for the taxpayer's industry classification. Under section 445 (d), the taxpayer's industry classification is the classification to which is attributable the largest amount of the taxpayer's gross receipts for its third taxable year.

(2) The amount ascertained under subparagraph (1) of this paragraph is reduced by the total interest paid or incurred by the taxpayer for the 12 months ending with the day for which the taxpayer's total assets are computed under paragraph (d) (2) of this section.

(c) Capital addition or reduction. The base period capital addition computed under section 435 (f) is not available to a taxpayer computing its average base period net income under section 445. The net capital addition or reduction computed under section 435 (g) is, however, applicable to such a taxpayer in accordance with the following modifications:

(1) In the case of a taxpayer computing its average base period net income under section 445 (b) (1) and under paragraph (a) of this section for any of its first three taxable years, the net capital addition or reduction is not applicable. See, however, paragraph (d) (1) of this section for inclusion of net capital addition or reduction in determining total assets.

(2) In the case of a taxpayer computing its average base period net income under section 445 (b) (2) and under paragraph (b) of this section for its fourth taxable year, or for any taxable year subsequent thereto, the net capital addition or reduction is applicable. However, if the taxpayer's third taxable year ends after June 30, 1950, then the day following the close of such taxable year shall be used in lieu of the first day of the taxpayer's first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, wherever the latter day is referred to in section 435 (g).

(d) Definitions. For the purpose of this section—

(1) The amount of the taxpayer's "total assets" for any taxable year referred to in paragraph (a) of this section, is (i) the sum of (a) the total assets (as defined in section 442 (f) and § 40.442–3 (d) (1)) for the last day of the taxpayer's last taxable year ending before July 1, 1950, and (b) the net capital addition determined under section 435 (g) for the taxable year for which the excess profits credit is being computed, minus (ii) the net capital reduction determined under section 435 (g) for such taxable year. If the taxpayer's first taxable year ended after June 30, 1950, its total assets consist only of its net capital addition for the taxable year for which the excess profits credit is being computed.

(2) The amount of the taxpayer's "total assets" for any taxable year referred to in paragraph (b) of this section, means the total assets determined under section 442 (f) and § 40.442–3 (d) (1) for the last day of the taxpayer's last taxable year ending before July 1, 1950, or the last day of the taxpayer's third taxable year, whichever day is later.

(3) The term "gross receipts" means gross receipts as defined in section 435 (e) (5).

(4) The term "base period" means the base period as defined in section 435 (b).

(5) For the purpose of this section, the taxable year of the taxpayer in which it commenced business and its two immediately succeeding taxable years shall be considered to be its first three taxable years.

(6) For definition of "interest" see § 40.442–3 (d) (5).

SEC. 446. AVERAGE BASE PERIOD NET INCOME—DEPRESSED INDUSTRY SUBGROUPS.

(a) In general. If a taxpayer which commenced business on or before the first day of its base period is a member of a depressed industry subgroup, as defined in subsection (c), its average base period net income determined under this section shall be the amount computed under subsection (b).

(b) Average base period net income. The average base period net income determined under this section shall be computed as follows:

(1) By determining the amount of the taxpayer's total assets for the last day of each of its taxable years ending after the first day of its base period and prior to the first day of its first taxable year under this subchapter.

(2) By computing the average of the amounts ascertained under paragraph (1).

(3) By multiplying the amount ascertained under paragraph (2) by the adjusted rate of return, proclaimed by the Secretary under subsection (e), for the taxpayer's industry subgroup.

(4) By determining the aggregate amount of interest paid or incurred by the taxpayer for all taxable years ending after the first day of its base period and prior to the first day of its first taxable year under this subchapter, dividing such aggregate by the total number of months in such years, and multiplying the quotient by 12.

(5) By subtracting the amount ascertained under paragraph (4) from the amount ascertained under paragraph (3).

(c) Depressed industry subgroups: The Secretary shall determine and proclaim as a depressed industry subgroup any industry subgroup (defined in accordance with subsection (f) having a rate of return (determined under subsection (d) (1)) for the period 1946 through 1948 which is less than 63 per centum of its rate of return (determined under subsection (d) (2)) for the period 1938 through 1948.

(d) Rates of return for industry subgroups—(1) Period 1946–48. The rate of return for an industry subgroup for the 3-year period 1946 through 1948 shall be obtained by dividing the sum of the aggregate net income (computed without regard to the net operating loss deduction provided in section 23 (s)) for the 3 years 1946 through 1948 and the aggregate interest deduction for such years shown on the income tax returns filed by the corporations in such industry subgroup submitting balance sheets, by the aggregate assets for such years of such corporations as of the close of the taxable years for which such returns were filed. Such aggregate net income, interest deduction and total assets shall include the amounts reported on the income tax returns for the calendar years 1946, 1947, and 1948, and the amounts reported on returns for other taxable years the greater part of which falls in such calendar years.

(2) Period 1938–48. The rate of return for an industry subgroup for the 11-year period 1938 through 1948 shall be determined in the same manner as is provided in paragraph (1) with the substitution of the years 1938 through 1948 for the years 1946 through 1948.

(e) Adjusted rates of return for depressed industry subgroups. The adjusted rate of return for a depressed industry subgroup shall be a rate equal to four-fifths of the rate of return for such industry subgroup for the 11-year period 1938 through 1948 as determined under subsection (d) (2). The Secretary shall determine and proclaim the adjusted rate of return (computed to the nearest thousandth) for each industry subgroup determined and proclaimed to be depressed under subsection (c).

(f) Industry subgroups. For the purposes of this section, industry subgroups shall be generally in accord with the industry subgroups regularly used by the Treasury Department in compiling published statistics from income tax returns, but with such combinations of subgroups as the Secretary determines are necessary to provide reasonably comparable data over the period 1938 through 1948.

(g) Members of industry subgroup. For the purposes of this section, a taxpayer is a member of an industry subgroup if more than fifty per centum of the taxpayer's gross receipts (as defined in section 435 (e) (5)) for the taxable years beginning with or within its base period is attributable to such industry subgroup.

(h) Tentative determinations of depressed industry subgroups and adjusted rates of return. The Secretary, not later than March 1, 1951, shall proclaim the industry subgroups tentatively determined to be depressed in accordance with subsection (c) and the tentative adjusted rates of return (computed to the nearest thousandth), determined under subsection (d), for such industry subgroups. Such tentative determinations shall be effective until such time as final determinations are proclaimed by the Secretary. Such final determinations shall relate back as though such determinations had been in effect in place of the tentative determinations. If the application of this section is made in accordance with a tentative determination, such application shall be redetermined in accordance with the final determination when proclaimed. The period of limitation prescribed under sections 275, 276, and 322 shall not begin to run with respect to overpayments or deficiencies in tax caused by such redetermination prior to such time as the final determination is proclaimed by the Secretary.

(i) Rules for application of section. The benefits of this section shall not be allowed unless the taxpayer makes application therefor in accordance with section 447 (e). The determinations by the Secretary required under this section shall be made on the basis of returns regularly used by the Treasury Department in compiling published statistics from income tax returns. For the purposes of this section, rates of return shall be determined after giving effect to renegotiation of contracts in accordance with renegotiation statistics published in the statistics compiled with respect to industry subgroups.

§ 40.446–1 General rule. A taxpayer which commenced business on or before the first day of its base period and which is a member of a depressed industry subgroup may be entitled to use the average base period net income computed under section 446. See § 40.446–3, for method of computation. However, section 446 is applicable only if the taxpayer makes application therefor in accordance with section 447 (e). For rules governing application of section 446 in the case of an acquiring corporation, see section 462 (h), and in the case of a component corporation, see section 461 (c). For the purpose of section 446, a taxpayer is a member of a depressed industry subgroup if more than 50 percent of the aggregate of its gross receipts for all of the taxable years beginning with or within its base period is attributable to such depressed industry subgroup.

§ 40.446–2 Determination of depressed industry subgroups and adjusted rates of return therefor. (a) For the purpose of section 446, the depressed industry subgroups determined and proclaimed to be depressed by the Secretary are defined in accordance with specifications shown in the Standard Industrial Classification Manual prepared by the Division of Statistical Standards, Bureau of the Budget.

(b) For the purpose of section 446, depressed industry subgroups and adjusted rates of return for depressed industry subgroups are only those proclaimed by the Secretary. Under section

446 (h), tentative determinations of depressed industry subgroups and adjusted rates of return have been proclaimed by the Secretary, and are set forth below. The tentative adjusted rates of return and tentative determinations of depressed industry subgroups shall be effective until such time as the adjusted rates described in section 446 (e) and the determinations of depressed industry subgroups under section 446 (c) are determined and proclaimed by the Secretary. The adjusted rates of return, when proclaimed by the Secretary, shall relate back as though they had been in effect in place of the tentative adjusted rates. Any application of section 446 made in accordance with a tentative determination and tentative adjusted rate shall be redetermined in accordance with the final determination and adjusted rate when proclaimed. The period of limitations prescribed under section 322 and sections 275 and 276 with respect to overpayments or deficiencies in tax caused by such redetermination shall not begin to run prior to the time that the adjusted rates of return are determined and proclaimed.

(c) The tentative determinations of depressed industry subgroups and the tentative adjusted rates of return therefor are as follows:

Industry subgroup	Tentative-adjusted rate of return (percent)
1. The manufacture of aircraft and parts, including aircraft engines	11.3
This industry subgroup is Standard Industrial Classification No. 372,[1] consisting of the following: 3721 (Aircraft), 3722 (Aircraft engines and engine parts), 3723 (Aircraft propellers and propeller parts), and 3729 (Aircraft parts and auxiliary equipment, not elsewhere classified).
2. The manufacture of engines and turbines, except automotive, aircraft and railway	12.8
This industry subgroup is Standard Industrial Classification No. 351,[1] consisting of the following: 3511 (Steam engines, turbines, and water wheels), and 3519 (Diesel and semi-Diesel engines; and other internal-combustion engines, not elsewhere classified).
3. The manufacture of metalworking machinery, including machine tools	16.8
This industry subgroup is Standard Industrial Classification No. 354,[1] consisting of the following: 3541 (Machine tools), 3542 (metalworking machinery, except machine tools), and 3543 (Machine tool accessories and other metalworking machinery; small power-driven cutting and shaping tools and tool holders; and precision measuring tools).
4. Ship and boat building and repairing	10.4
This industry subgroup is Standard Industrial Classification No. 373,[1] consisting of the following: 3731 (Ship building and repairing), and 3732 (Boat building and repairing).
5. The manufacture of wines	7.8
This industry subgroup is Standard Industrial Classification No. 2084[1] (Wines).
6. Photographic studios, including commercial photography	8.6
This industry subgroup is Standard Industrial Classification No. 723,[1] consisting of the following: 7231 (Photographic studios, except commercial photography), and 7232 (Commercial photography).
7. Telegraphic communication, wire and radio	1.5
This industry subgroup is Standard Industrial Classification No. 4821[1] (Telegraphic communication, wire and radio).
8. Transportation by air	3.0
This industry subgroup is Standard Industrial Classification No. 45,[1] consisting of the following: 4512 (Certified carriers), 4513 (Uncertified carriers), 4521 (Air carriage, except common carriers), 4582 (Airports and flying fields), and 4583 (Airport terminal services).

§ 40.446–3 Computations—(a) Average base period net income. The computation of the average base period net income under section 446 (b) is as follows:

(1) The amount of the taxpayer's total assets for the last day of each taxable year ending after the first day of its base period and prior to July 1, 1950, is determined under section 442 (f) and under § 40.442–3 (d) (1).

(2) The sum of the amounts ascertained under subparagraph (1) of this paragraph is divided by the number of such amounts.

(3) The average ascertained under subparagraph (2) of this paragraph is multiplied by the adjusted rate of return for the taxpayer's industry subgroup. Under section 446 (g) and § 40.446–2, the taxpayer's industry subgroup is the industry subgroup to which is attributable more than 50 percent of the aggregate of the taxpayer's gross receipts for all of the taxable years beginning with or within its base period.

(4) The average of the aggregate interest paid or incurred by the taxpayer for all taxable years ending after the first day of its base period and prior to July 1, 1950, is subtracted from the amount determined under subparagraph (3) of this paragraph. This average is computed by ascertaining the total of such interest for all such taxable years, by dividing the amount so ascertained by the number of months in such taxable years, and by multiplying the quotient by 12.

(b) Capital addition or reduction. The base period capital addition determined under section 435 (f) is not available to a taxpayer computing its average base period net income under section 446. The net capital addition or reduction, computed under section 435 (g), however, is applicable to such a taxpayer.

(c) Definitions. For the purpose of this section:

(1) For definition of "total assets," see § 40.442–3 (d) (1).

(2) The term "gross receipts" means gross receipts as defined in section 435 (e) (5).

(3) For rules for determining when a taxpayer "commenced business," see § 40.445–1.

(4) The term "base period" means the base period as defined in section 435 (b).

(5) For definition of "interest," see § 40.442–3 (d) (5).

SEC. 447. INDUSTRY BASE PERIOD RATES OF RETURN.

(a) Base period yearly rate of return. The Secretary shall determine and proclaim for each industry classification in subsection (c) a rate of return (computed to the nearest thousandth) for each of the four years 1946 through 1949. The yearly rate of return for each industry classification shall be obtained by dividing the sum of the aggregate net income (computed without regard to the net operating loss deduction provided in section 23 (s)) and the aggregate interest deduction shown on the income tax returns filed by the corporations in such classification submitting balance sheets, by the aggregate total assets of such corporations as of the close of the taxable year for which such returns were filed. Such aggregate net income, interest deduction and total assets for each such year shall include the amounts reported on the income tax returns for the calendar year and the amounts reported on returns for other taxable years the greater part of which falls in such calendar year. The determinations by the Secretary required under this section shall be made on the basis of returns regularly used by the Treasury Department in compiling published statistics from income tax returns, computing all rates of return after giving effect to renegotiation of contracts in accordance with renegotiation statistics published in the statistics compiled with respect to industry classifications.

(b) Base period rate of return. The Secretary shall determine and proclaim for each industry classification in subsection (c) a rate of return (computed to the nearest thousandth) for the four-year period 1946 through 1949. Such base period rate of return for each industry classification shall be obtained by aggregating the net income and interest deduction (such amounts being determined as provided under subsection (a)) for such four years and dividing the aggregate by the sum of the total assets (determined as provided under subsection (a)) for such four years.

(c) Industry classification. For purposes of this subchapter the classification of taxpayers by industry shall be as provided in the table below. Each such industry classification is defined in accordance with the specifications shown in the Standard Industrial Classification Manual (prepared by the Division of Statistical Standards, Bureau of the Budget) for the major industry group or groups the numbers of which appear opposite such classification.

(d) Tentative rates of return. The Secretary, not later than March 1, 1951, shall determine and proclaim for each industry classification, tentative base period yearly rates of return and a tentative base period rate of return (each computed to the nearest thousandth). Such tentative rates of return shall be effective until such time as the base period yearly rates of return and base period rates of return are determined and proclaimed. The base period yearly rates of return and base period rates of return, upon proclamation thereof by the Secretary, shall relate back as though such rates had been in effect in place of the tentative rates of return. If the application of section 442, 443, 444, 445, or 446 is made in accordance with tentative rates of return, such application shall be redetermined in accordance with the base period yearly rate of return or the base period rate of return when determined and proclaimed. The period of limitation prescribed under section 322 and sections 275 and 276 shall not begin to run with respect to overpayments or deficiencies in tax caused by such redetermination prior to such time as the base period yearly rates of return and the base period rates of return are determined and proclaimed by the Secretary.

(e) Application for benefits of section 442, 443, 444, 445, or 446. The tax for any taxable year under this subchapter shall be determined without regard to section 442, 443, 444, 445, or 446 unless an application for the benefits of such section, setting forth the grounds for the application of such section in such detail and in such manner as the Secretary may prescribe, is filed by the taxpayer—

(A) With its return for the taxable year, or

(B) Within the period of time prescribed by section 322 (as extended under the last sentence of subsection (d) of this section or of section 446 (h)) for filing claim for credit or refund, and in such case the application of section 442, 443, 444, 445, or 446, shall be subject to the limitations as to amount of credit or refund prescribed in section 322, or

(C) After the period described in paragraph (B), if within the period of limitations for the assessment of a deficiency (as extended under the last sentence of subsection (d) of this section or of section 446 (h)) in the tax imposed by this chapter for the taxable year, and in such case the application of section 442, 443, 444, 445, or 446 shall not reduce the tax by an amount greater than the deficiency determined without regard to the application of such section, except that if a petition is filed with the Tax Court for the redetermination of the tax under this chapter for the taxable year, the application for the benefits of section 442, 443, 444, 445, or 446, shall be effective only if filed not later than the date on which such petition is filed. Section 442, 443, 444, 445, or 446, shall not be applied upon the basis of any grounds other than those set forth in an application filed within the period prescribed in this subsection.

§ 40.447–1 Industry base period rates of return—(a) In general. Sections 442 through 445 provide for the determination of an average base period net income computed, in general, on the basis of an industry rate of return determined under section 447 rather than on the basis of the taxpayer's own experience. Section 447 provides for two types of industry rates of return. The first, for use under section 442 (c) (relating to 12 or fewer months affected by abnormalities) is designated as the base period yearly rate of return. The second, for use under sections 442 (d), 443, 444, or 445, is designated as the base period rate of return.

(b) Industry classification. For the purpose of sections 442 through 445, and of section 447, the industry classification must be one set forth in section 447 (c). Each industry classification set forth in section 447 (c) is defined in accordance with the specifications shown in the Standard Industrial Classification Manual prepared by the Division of Statistical Standards of the Bureau of the Budget. The industry classification of the taxpayer is to be determined in accordance with the specifications shown in that manual.

(c) For the purpose of sections 442 through 445, and of section 447, the base period yearly rates of return and the base period rates of return are only those rates of return which are proclaimed by the Secretary. Under section 447 (d), tentative base period yearly rates of return and tentative base period rates of return have been proclaimed by the Secretary, and are set forth in § 40.447–2. These tentative rates shall be effective until such time as the rates described in section 447 (a) and (b) are determined and proclaimed by the Secretary. The rates described in section 447 (a) and (b), when proclaimed by the Secretary, shall relate back as though they had been in effect in place of the tentative rates.

(d) Any application of sections 442 through 445 made in accordance with the tentative rates shall be redetermined in accordance with the final rates when proclaimed. The period of limitation prescribed under section 322 and sections 275 and 276 with respect to overpayments of or deficiencies in tax caused by such redetermination shall not begin to run prior to the time that the final rates of return under section 447 (a) and (b) are determined and proclaimed.

§ 40.447–2 Tentative industry base period rates of return. The industry classifications set forth in section 447 (c), and the tentative base period yearly rates of return and the tentative base period rate of return for each such industry classification are as follows:

§ 40.447–3 Application required under section 447. (a) The excess profits tax for any taxable year shall be determined by reference to section 442, 443, 444, 445, or 446 only if an application for the benefits of such section is filed by the taxpayer within the period specified in section 447 (e).

(b) The application shall be made by filing with the collector schedule EP–5 (Form 1120) together with the statement described below. If the application is made with the original return, it shall be filed with, and as a part of, Form 1120 for the taxable year. If the application is not filed with the original return, it shall be filed with, and as a part of, an amended return, or, if made in connection with a claim for credit or refund, it shall be filed with, and as a part of, the claim for credit or refund. If a petition is filed with the Tax Court for the redetermination of the tax under chapter 1 for the taxable year, the application shall be effective only if filed with the collector not later than the date on which the original petition is filed. The application, however filed, must include a statement setting forth in detail each ground upon which the taxpayer relies, and facts sufficient to apprise the Commissioner of the exact basis for the application. Section 442, 443, 444, 445, or 446 shall not be applied upon the basis of any ground other than those set forth in an application filed within the period prescribed in section 447 (e).

SEC. 448. EXCESS PROFITS CREDIT—REGULATED PUBLIC UTILITIES.

(a) Amount of credit. In the case of a regulated public utility (as defined in subsection (d)), the excess profits credit for any taxable year computed under this section shall be the sum of the tax imposed by sections 13, 14, 15, and 141 (c), for such taxable year and the amount determined under subsection (b).

(b) Computation. The amount referred to in subsection (a) for any taxable year shall be determined as follows:

(1) By applying to the sum of the following the per centum prescribed in subsection (c):

(A) The adjusted invested capital for such taxable year, and

(B) The average borrowed capital for such taxable year as defined in section 439.

For the purposes of this paragraph the adjusted invested capital for any taxable year shall be the amount computed for such year under section 437 (b) (2) without reduction by the amount of the net new capital addition and without regard to section 437 (b) (2) (C); except that in the case of a corporation described in subsection (c) (1) (A), (c) (1) (B), (c) (2), or (c) (4), the corporate books of account of which are maintained in accordance with systems of accounts prescribed by an appropriate regulatory body (or, if not so prescribed, are maintained in accordance with the uniform systems of accounts prescribed by the Federal Power Commission or the National Association of Railway and Utility Commissioners), the adjusted invested capital for such year shall be the sum of the average outstanding common and preferred capital stock accounts and the capital surplus and earned surplus accounts for such taxable year as recorded on such corporate books of account.

(2) By reducing the amount ascertained under paragraph (1) by the deduction allowable for such year with respect to interest on indebtedness included in borrowed capital under section 439.

(3) By reducing the amount ascertained under paragraph (2) by the amount computed under section 440 (b) (relating to inadmissible assets): except that in the case of a corporation described in subsection (c) (1) (A), (c) (1) (B), (c) (2), or (c) (4), the corporate books of account of which are maintained in accordance with systems of accounts prescribed by an appropriate regulatory body (or, if not so prescribed, are maintained in accordance with the uniform systems of accounts prescribed by the Federal Power Commission or the National Association of Railway and Utility Commissioners), in determining the amount computed under section 440, the amount attributable to each asset held at any time during such taxable year shall be determined according to such corporate books of account.

(c) The per centum referred to in subsection (b) (1) shall be:

(1) 6 per centum in the case of a corporation engaged in the furnishing or sale of—

(A) Electric energy, gas, water, or sewerage disposal services, or

(B) Transportation (not included in paragraph (3)) on an intrastate, suburban, municipal, or interurban electric railroad, on an intrastate, municipal, or suburban trackless trolley system, or on a municipal or suburban bus system, or

(C) Transportation (not included in subparagraph (B)) by motor vehicle—

if the rates for such furnishing or sale, as the case may be, have been established or approved by a State or political subdivision thereof, by an agency or instrumentality of the United States, or by a public service or public utility commission or other similar body of the District of Columbia or of any State or political subdivision thereof.

(2) 6 per centum in the case of a corporation engaged as a common carrier in the furnishing or sale of transportation of gas by pipe line, if subject to the jurisdiction of the Federal Power Commission.

(3) 6 per centum in the case of a corporation engaged as a common carrier in the furnishing or sale of transportation by railroad, or in the furnishing or sale of transportation of oil or other petroleum products (including shale oil) by pipe line, subject to the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

(4) 7 per centum in the case of a corporation engaged in the furnishing or sale of telephone or telegraph service, if the rates for such furnishing or sale meet the requirements of paragraph (1).

(5) 7 per centum in the case of a corporation engaged in the furnishing or sale of transportation as a common carrier by air, subject to the jurisdiction of the Civil Aeronautics Board.

(6) 6 per centum in the case of a corporation engaged in the furnishing or sale of transportation by common carrier by water, subject to the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission under Part III of the Interstate Commerce Act, or subject to the jurisdiction of the Federal Maritime Board under the Intercoastal Shipping Act, 1933.

(d) For the purposes of this subchapter the term "regulated public utility" means (except as provided in subsection (e)) a corporation described in subsection (c), but only if 80 per centum or more of its gross income (computed without regard to dividends and capital gains and losses) for the taxable year is derived from sources described in subsection (c). If the taxpayer establishes to the satisfaction of the Secretary that—

(1) Its revenue from regulated rates described in subsection (c) (1) or (4) and its revenue derived from unregulated rates are derived from its operation of a single interconnected and coordinated system or from the operation of more than one such system, and

(2) The unregulated rates have been and are substantially as favorable to users and consumers as are the regulated rates, such revenue from such unregulated rates shall be considered, for the purposes of this subsection, as income derived from sources described in subsection (c) (1) or (4).

(e) Consolidated returns of regulated public utilities. For provisions applicable to consolidated returns of regulated public utilities computing their excess profits credit under this section, see subsections (e) and (j) of section 141. For purposes of filing a consolidated return, a common parent corporation shall be deemed a regulated public utility if at least 80 per centum of its gross income (computed without regard to capital gains or losses) is derived directly or indirectly from sources described in subsection (c). For the purposes of the preceding sentence dividends or interest received from a regulated public utility shall be considered as derived from sources described in subsection (c) if the regulated public utility is a member of an affiliated group (as defined in section 141 (d)) which includes the common parent corporation.

§ 40.448–1 Excess profits credit of regulated public utilities entitled to benefits of section 448. Section 448 provides for certain regulated public utilities an excess profits credit which is an alternative to the excess profits credit based on income (section 435) and to the excess profits credit based on invested capital (section 436). This alternative excess profits credit shall be computed under §40.448–3.

§ 40.448–2 Definitions—(a) Regulated public utility. For the purpose of subchapter D of chapter 1, the term "regulated public utility" means (except as provided in section 448 (e) relating to consolidated returns of regulated public utilities) a corporation described in section 448 (c) and subparagraphs (1) through (6) of this paragraph, but only if 80 percent or more of its gross income, computed without regard to dividends and capital gains and losses, for the taxable year is derived from sources described in section 448 (c) and in subparagraphs (1) through (6), of this paragraph.

(1) A corporation engaged in the furnishing or sale of—

(i) Electric energy, gas, water, or sewerage disposal services, or

(ii) Transportation (not included in subparagraph (3) of this paragraph) on an intrastate, suburban, municipal, or interurban electric railroad, on an intrastate, municipal, or suburban trackless trolley system, or on a municipal or suburban bus system, or

(iii) Transportation (not included in subdivision (ii) of this subparagraph) by motor vehicle—

if the rates for such furnishing or sale, as the case may be, have been established or approved by a State or political subdivision thereof, by an agency or instrumentality of the United States, or by a public service or public utility commission or other similar body of the District of Columbia or of any State or political subdivision thereof.

(2) A corporation engaged as a common carrier in the furnishing or sale of transportation of gas by pipeline, if subject to the jurisdiction of the Federal Power Commission.

(3) A corporation engaged as a common carrier in the furnishing or sale of transportation by railroad, or in the furnishing or sale of transportation of oil or other petroleum products (including shale oil) by pipeline, subject to the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

(4) A corporation engaged in the furnishing or sale of telephone or telegraph service, if the rates for such furnishing or sale meet the requirements of subparagraph (1) of this paragraph.

(5) A corporation engaged in the furnishing or sale of transportation as a common carrier by air, subject to the jurisdiction of the Civil Aeronautics Board.

(6) A corporation engaged in the furnishing or sale of transportation by common carrier by water, subject to the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission under Part III of the Interstate Commerce Act, or subject to the jurisdiction of the Federal Maritime Board under the Intercoastal Shipping Act, 1933.

If the taxpayer establishes to the satisfaction of the Commissioner that its revenue from regulated rates described in subparagraphs (1) or (4) of this paragraph, and from unregulated rates are derived from its operation of a single interconnected and coordinated system or from its operation of more than one such system, and that the unregulated rates have been and are substantially as favorable to users and consumers as the regulated rates, such revenue from such unregulated rates shall be considered, for the purpose of this paragraph, as income derived from sources described in subparagraphs (1) or (4) of this paragraph.

(b) Normal tax and surtax. The amount of the normal tax and surtax which is included in the excess profits credit computed under section 448 for any taxable year is the total amount of the tax imposed by sections 13, 14, 15, and 141 (c) for such taxable year. If an alternative tax is imposed by section 117 (c) for the taxable year, such alternative tax is included in lieu of the tax that otherwise would have been imposed for such year.

(c) Adjusted invested capital. For the purpose of computing the excess profits credit for any taxable year under section 448—

(1) In the case of a corporation which is a regulated public utility and is not described in subparagraph (2) of this paragraph, the adjusted invested capital for such year shall be the sum of (i) the equity capital (as defined in section 437 (c) and § 40.437–5) at the beginning of the taxable year, (ii) the average daily amount of money and property paid in for stock, or as paid-in surplus, or as a contribution to capital during the taxable year, and (iii) the recent loss adjustment (computed under section 437 (f) and § 40.437–8); reduced by the average daily amount of distributions made during the taxable year not out of the earnings and profits of such taxable year.

(2) In the case of a corporation described in paragraph (a) (1) (i) or (ii), (2) or (4) of this section, if the corporate books of account are maintained in accordance with systems of accounts prescribed by an appropriate regulatory body (or, if not so prescribed, are maintained in accordance with the uniform systems of accounts prescribed by the Federal Power Commission or the National Association of Railway and Utility Commissioners), the adjusted invested capital for such year shall be the sum of the average outstanding common and preferred capital stock accounts for the taxable year and the capital surplus and earned surplus accounts at the beginning of the taxable year as properly recorded on the corporate books of account. In order to establish its right to compute its adjusted invested capital by this method for any taxable year, the taxpayer must attach a statement to its return for such taxable year setting forth all the facts relied on as qualifying the taxpayer to use such method.

(d) Inadmissible assets. For the purpose of section 448, the term "inadmissible assets" means inadmissible assets as defined in section 440 (a). In computing the ratio of inadmissible assets to total assets the amount attributable to each asset shall be determined as provided in section 440 (b), except that in the case of a corporation described in paragraph (a) (1) (i) or (ii), (2), or (4), of this section, if the corporate books of account are maintained in accordance with systems of accounts prescribed by an appropriate regulatory body (or, if not so prescribed, are maintained in accordance with the uniform systems of accounts prescribed by the Federal Power Commission or National Association of Railway and Utility Commissioners), the amount attributable under section 440 (b) to each asset shall be determined according to the amounts properly recorded in the corporate books of account.

§ 40.448–3 Computation of excess profits credit. The excess profits credit of a regulated public utility is determined under section 448 as follows:

(a) The sum of the adjusted invested capital (§ 40.448–2 (c)) and the average daily amount of borrowed capital of the taxpayer for the taxable year is multiplied by 6 percent in the case of a corporation described in § 40.448–2 (a) (1), (2), (3), or (6), or by 7 percent in the case of a corporation described in § 40.448–2 (a) (4) or (5).

(b) The amount ascertained under paragraph (a) of this section is reduced by the amount of the deduction allowable for the taxable year with respect to interest on the indebtedness included in (a) as borrowed capital.

(c) The amount ascertained under paragraph (b) of this section is reduced by the amount computed under section 440 (b), relating to inadmissible assets. See § 40.448–2 (d).

(d) The amount ascertained under paragraph (c) of this section is added to the amount of the corporation's normal tax and surtax for the taxable year. See § 40.448–2 (b).

SEC. 449. PERSONAL SERVICE CORPORATIONS.

(a) Definition. As used in this subchapter, the term "personal service corporation" means a corporation whose income is to be ascribed primarily to the activities of shareholders who are regularly engaged in the active conduct of the affairs of the corporation and are the owners at all times during the taxable year of at least 70 per centum in value of each class of stock of the corporation, and in which capital is not a material income-producing factor; but does not include any foreign corporation, nor any corporation 50 per centum or more of whose gross income consists of gains, profits, or income derived from trading as a principal. For the purposes of this subsection, an individual shall be considered as owning, at any time, the stock owned at such time by his spouse or minor child or by any guardian or trustee representing them.

(b) Election as to taxability. If a personal service corporation signifies, in its return under this chapter for any taxable year, its desire not to be subject to the tax imposed under this subchapter for such taxable year, it shall be exempt from such tax for such year, and the provisions of Supplement S of this chapter shall apply to the shareholders in such corporation who were such shareholders on the last day of such taxable year of the corporation. Such corporation shall not be exempt for such year if it is a member of an affiliated group of corporations filing consolidated returns under section 141.

§ 40.449–1 Taxation of personal service corporations. A personal service corporation is subject to the excess profits tax imposed under subchapter D of chapter 1 the same as any other domestic corporation unless it elects as to any taxable year not to be subject to such tax. Such an election may not be exercised by a corporation filing a consolidated return under section 141. If a corporation is exempt by reason of the exercise of such an election, the provisions of Supplement S of chapter 1 (sections 391 to 396, inclusive) shall apply to the shareholders in such corporation who were such shareholders on the last day of the taxable year of the corporation. See § 29.394–1 of Regulations 111. In such case, the amount of the undistributed Supplement S net income shall be considered as paid in to the corporation as of the close of the taxable year as paid-in surplus or as a contribution to capital, and the amount of accumulated earnings and profits as of the close of such year shall be correspondingly reduced. See section 394 (d).

§ 40.449–2 Definition of personal service corporations.—(a) In general. The term "personal service corporation" means a domestic corporation in which capital is not a material income-producing factor and the income of which is to be ascribed primarily to the activities of shareholders who (1) are regularly engaged in the active conduct of the affairs of the corporation, and (2) are the owners, throughout the entire taxable year of at least 70 percent in value of each class of stock of the corporation. If 50 percent or more of the gross income of a corporation consists of gains, profits, or income derived from trading as a principal, such corporation cannot be considered to be a personal service corporation. As to corporations in which less than 50 percent of the gross income is derived from trading as a principal, see paragraph (c) of this section.

(b) Stock interest of shareholders. (1) Shareholders regularly engaged in the active conduct of the affairs of the corporation and to whom the income of the corporation is primarily to be ascribed must own at all times during the taxable year at least 70 percent in value of each class of stock of the corporation. If stock is owned by the spouse or minor child of an individual, or owned by the guardian or trustee of such spouse or child, such stock is treated as being owned by such individual.

(2) A corporation cannot be considered to be a personal service corporation for any taxable year if another corporation owns more than 30 percent in value of any class of its stock at any time during such year. A corporation is an artificial entity and cannot itself be regularly engaged in the active conduct of the affairs of another corporation within the meaning of section 449.

(3) The fact that the ownership of shares in the corporation may change during the course of the taxable year does not take the corporation which is otherwise a personal service corporation out of that class unless at some time during the taxable year the ownership of more than 30 percent in value of the shares of any class of stock passes into the hands of persons not regularly engaged in the active conduct of the affairs of the corporation.

(c) Income to be ascribed primarily to the activities of shareholders. (1) If employees other than shareholders contribute substantially to the services rendered by a corporation, such corporation is not a personal service corporation unless, in every case in which services are so rendered, the value of and the compensation charged for such services are to be attributed primarily to the experience or skill of the shareholders and such fact is evidenced in some definite manner in the normal course of the business or profession. The fact that the shareholders give personal attention or render valuable services to the corporation as a result of which its earnings are greater than those of a corporation engaged in a like or similar business or profession, the shareholders of which are not regularly engaged in the activities of the corporation, does not of itself constitute the corporation a personal service corporation.

(2) Income of a corporation from merchandising or trading as a principal, directly or indirectly, in commodities or in the services of others is not to be ascribed primarily to the activities of its shareholders. Income of a corporation from the conduct of an auction, agency, brokerage, or commission business strictly on the basis of a fee or commission may be so ascribed. If, however, either as a matter of business policy or by contract, the corporation assumes any such risks as those of market fluctuations, bad debts, or failure to accept shipments, or if it guarantees the accounts of the purchaser or is in any way accountable to the seller for the payment of the purchase price, the transaction is one of merchandising or trading, and this is true even though the goods are shipped directly from the producer to the consumer and are never actually in the possession of the corporation. The fact that earnings of the corporation are termed commissions or fees is not controlling. The fact that a commission or fee in a transaction is based on a difference in the prices at which the seller sells and the buyer buys raises a presumption that the transaction is one of merchandising or trading, and it will be so considered in the absence of satisfactory evidence to the contrary.

(3) It may happen that a corporation is engaged in two or more businesses or professions which are more or less related. Thus, an engineering concern may also engage in contracting, which amounts to trading in materials and labor, or a brokerage concern may guarantee some of its accounts, or a photographic concern may sell pictures, frames, art goods, and supplies. In such cases, the corporation is not a personal service corporation unless the activities of the corporation consisting of trading or guaranteeing of accounts or selling are negligible or merely incidental, and unless no appreciable part of the earnings is to be ascribed to such activities. See also paragraph (e) of this section, relating to the employment of capital.

(d) Shareholders regularly engaged in the active conduct of the affairs of the corporation. A corporation is not a personal service corporation unless shareholders who own at all times during the taxable year at least 70 percent in value of each class of stock are regularly engaged in the active conduct of the affairs of the corporation. That such shareholders devote some of their time to the affairs of the corporation is not sufficient; they must with regularity devote substantial time and energy to the conduct of its affairs.

(e) Capital as a material income-producing factor. (1) In a personal service corporation capital must not be a material income-producing factor. Whether capital is a material income-producing factor is to be determined by reference to (i) the extent to which capital is required to carry on the business or profession and (ii) the extent to which capital is actually used in the production of income though not required by the primary activities of the corporation. If the use of capital is necessary to the production of the income of the corporation and is more than incidental, capital is a material income-producing factor and the corporation is not a personal service corporation. If a substantial portion of the income is attributable to a use of capital, whether or not connected with the primary activities of the corporation, capital is a material income-producing factor even though such use of capital is not necessary to such primary activities. The term "capital" as used in section 449 and in this section means not only capital actually invested by the shareholders but also capital obtained in other ways. Thus, capital may be borrowed either directly as shown by bonds, debentures, certificates of indebtedness, notes, bills payable, or other paper, or indirectly as shown by accounts payable or other forms of credit, or the business of the corporation may be financed in some other manner by its shareholders. If a substantial amount of capital is used to finance or carry the accounts of clients or customers, it will be inferred that because of competition or for other reasons such use of capital is necessary and more than incidental in order to secure or hold business which would otherwise be lost. If a corporation engaged in an agency, brokerage, or commission business regularly employs a substantial amount of capital to lend to its principals, to buy and carry goods on its own account, or to buy and carry odd lots in order that it may render more satisfactory service to its principals or customers, such corporation is not a personal service corporation. In general, the larger the amount of capital actually used the stronger is the evidence that capital is necessary and more than incidental and is a material income-producing factor.

(2) The term "income" as used in section 449 and in this section means gross income. Capital is a material income-producing factor if its use results in a substantial amount of gross income, irrespective of the amount of net income, if any, such use produces.

(f) Application of regulations; returns. No definite and conclusive tests can be prescribed by which it can be finally determined in advance of an examination of the corporation's income tax return whether it is or is not a personal service corporation. In the preceding subsections are set forth the general principles under which such determination will be made. If a corporation claiming to be a personal service corporation signifies in its return for any taxable year its desire not to be subject to the excess profits tax, it shall attach and file Schedule PS (Form 1120) with, and as a part of, its return on Form 1120. In Schedule PS (Form 1120) there shall be stated (1) such facts as tend to show whether or not the corporation is a personal service corporation, including (i) the nature of its business, (ii) the character, preferences, dividend rates, and other essential features of the various classes of its stock outstanding for any time during the taxable year, (iii) the names and addresses of its several shareholders and their relationship to each other, (iv) the number and classes of shares owned at any time during the taxable year by each shareholder and the portion of the year during which such shares were so owned, (v) the nature of the activities of the several shareholders on behalf of the corporation, and (vi) the extent to which capital in any form is used in the business, and (2) the computation of the undistributed Supplement S net income for the taxable year, the names and addresses of all shareholders of the corporation at the close of the taxable year, the number and classes of shares held by each, and such other information as may be required by the form and the instructions printed on the form or issued therewith.

§ 40.449–3 Election as to taxability. The election as to taxability provided for in section 449 (b) and the exemption from tax, where such is allowable, have application only to the excess profits tax on domestic corporations imposed under subchapter D of chapter 1. The corporation may make such an election by signifying in its return its desire not to be subject to the excess profits tax. A new election is required for each taxable year. An amended return filed after the statutory period for filing the return (or after the last day of any extension period) is not a return within the meaning of section 449 (b).

SEC. 450. CORPORATIONS ENGAGED IN MINING OF STRATEGIC MINERALS.

(a) Exemption from tax. In the case of any domestic corporation engaged in the mining of a strategic mineral, the portion of the adjusted excess profits net income attributable to such mining in the United States shall be exempt from the tax imposed by this subchapter. The tax on the remaining portion of such adjusted excess profits net income shall be an amount which bears the same ratio to the tax computed without regard to this section as such remaining portion bears to the entire adjusted excess profits net income.

(b) Definitions. For the purposes of this section—

(1) The term "strategic mineral" means antimony, chromite, manganese, nickel, platinum (including the platinum group metals), quicksilver, sheet mica, tantalum, tin, tungsten, vanadium, fluorspar, flake graphite, vermiculite, perlite, long-fibre asbestos in the form of amosite, chrysotile or crocidolite, beryl, cobalt, columbite, corundum, diamonds, kyanite (if equivalent in grade to Indian kyanite), molybdenum, monazite, quartz crystals, and uranium, and any other mineral which the certifying agency has certified to the Secretary as being essential to the defense effort of the United States and as not having been normally produced in appreciable quantities within the United States.

(2) The term "certifying agency" means the department, official, corporation, or agency utilized or created to carry out the authority of the President under section 303 (a) of the Defense Production Act of 1950 to make provision for the encouragement of exploration, development, and mining of critical and strategic minerals and metals.

(c) Certification during taxable year of taxpayer. In determining under subsection (a) the portion of the adjusted excess profits net income which is attributable to the mining of a mineral which is a strategic mineral by reason of a certification made during the taxable year, such portion shall be an amount which bears the same ratio to the portion of the adjusted excess profits net income, determined without regard to this subsection, attributable to such mining during the entire taxable year as the number of days for which the taxpayer held the mineral property during the taxable year and after the date of the making of the certification bears to the number of days for which the taxpayer held the property during such taxable year.

(d) Application of section to lessor. In the case of a mining property operated under a lease, income attributable to such property derived by a lessor corporation shall, for the purposes of this section, be considered to be income of a corporation engaged in mining.

§ 40.450–1 Corporations which mine strategic minerals. (a) If a domestic corporation is engaged in mining a strategic mineral (as defined in section 450 (b)) within the United States, the portion of its adjusted excess profits net income attributable to such mining is exempt from excess profits tax. The excess profits tax on the remaining portion of such adjusted excess profits net income is an amount which bears the same ratio to the excess profits tax computed without regard to section 450 as such remaining portion bears to the entire adjusted excess profits net income.

(b) The portion of the adjusted excess profits net income attributable to mining of strategic minerals is an amount which bears the same ratio to the total adjusted excess profits net income as the portion of the excess profits net income attributable to such mining bears to the total excess profits net income. For any taxable year, the portion of the excess profits net income attributable to such mining is the gross income derived from strategic minerals and arising out of operations which give rise to "gross income from the property," as defined in § 29.23 (m)–1 (f) of Regulations 111, less the sum of (1) allowable deductions which are directly attributable to such mining for such year, (2) any adjustments made under the provisions of section 483 applicable to such year involving items directly attributable to such mining, and (3) an allocable portion of any deductions partly attributable to such mining and of any adjustments under the provisions of section 433 applicable to such year involving items partly attributable to such mining.

(c) If a mineral is certified to the Secretary during the taxable year to be a strategic mineral, the portion of the adjusted excess profits net income which is attributable to the mining of such mineral shall be an amount which bears the same ratio to the portion of the adjusted excess profits net income, determined under paragraph (b) of this section without regard to this sentence, attributable to such mining during the entire taxable year as the number of days which the taxpayer held the property during the taxable year and after the date of the making of the certification bears to the total number of days for which the taxpayer held the property during such taxable year.

(d) There shall be attached to and made a part of the return of any taxpayer claiming the benefits under section 450 a schedule containing the following information:

(1) The amount of gross income from the mining of strategic minerals and from each other activity of the corporation;

(2) The allowable deductions and the adjustments under section 433 directly attributable to such mining; and

(3) The portion of the allowable deductions and of the adjustments under section 433 allocated to such mining and the basis for such allocation.

(e) In the case of a mining property operated under a lease, income attributable to such property derived by a lessor corporation, which is a domestic corporation, shall for the purposes of section 450, be considered to be income of a corporation engaged in mining.

SEC. 451. CAPITALIZATION OF ADVERTISING, ETC., EXPENDITURES.

(a) Election to charge to capital account. For the purpose of computing the excess profits credit, a taxpayer may elect, within six months after the date prescribed by law for filing its return for its first taxable year under this subchapter, to charge to capital account so much of the deductions for taxable years in its applicable base period on account of expenditures for advertising or the promotion of good will, as, under rules and regulations prescribed by the Secretary, may be regarded as capital investments. Such election must be the same for all such taxable years, and must be for the total amount of such expenditures which may be so regarded as capital investments. In computing the excess profits credit, no amount on account of such expenditures shall be charged to capital account:

(1) For taxable years in the base period unless the election authorized in this subsection is exercised, or

(2) For any taxable year prior to the beginning of the base period.

The election provided by this subsection shall be available with respect to expenditures to establish, maintain or increase the circulation of a newspaper, magazine or other periodical notwithstanding the provisions of section 204 (b) of the Revenue Act of 1950.

(b) Effect of Election. If the taxpayer exercises the election authorized under subsection (a)—

(1) The net income for each taxable year in the base period shall be considered to be the net income computed with such deductions disallowed, and such deductions shall not be considered as having diminished earnings and profits. This paragraph shall be retroactively applied as if it were a part of the law applicable to each taxable year in the base period; and

(2) The treatment of such expenditures as deductions for a taxable year in the base period shall, for the purposes of section 452 (b) be considered treatment which was not correct under the law applicable to such year.

§ 40.451–1 Scope of election to charge to capital account expenditures for advertising or the promotion of good will. (a) Any taxpayer may, for the purpose of computing its excess profits credit under either the income or the invested capital method, elect to charge to capital account any deductions based upon expenditures for taxable years in its base period on account of advertising or the promotion of good will, to the extent that such expenditures may be regarded as capital investments under the regulations prescribed under section 451. Section 451 provides for an election with reference only to deductions for such expenditures for taxable years in the base period. In order to secure the benefits of that section an election must be made by the taxpayer within six months after the date prescribed by law for filing its return for its first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950.

(b) The election under section 451 is an election to capitalize all the expenditures in each taxable year in the taxpayer's base period which were for advertising or the promotion of good will and which may be regarded as capital investments under the regulations prescribed under section 451. A taxpayer may not capitalize such expenditures for one base period taxable year and treat as a deduction such expenditures with respect to another base period taxable year. No such expenditures for any taxable year prior to the beginning of taxpayer's base period may be charged to capital account. A taxpayer which has failed to make an election under section 451 is not permitted, in computing its excess profits credit, to charge to capital account base period expenditures for advertising or the promotion of good will which have been deducted for taxable years in such period. The election provided by section 451 (a) and by this section shall be available with respect to those expenditures to establish, maintain, or increase the circulation of a newspaper, magazine, or other periodical, which may be regarded as capital expenditures under the regulations prescribed under section 451, not withstanding the provisions of section 23 (bb).

§ 40.451–2 Expenditures which may be regarded as capital investments. (a) An expenditure for advertising or the promotion of good will, including an expenditure to establish, maintain, or increase the circulation of a newspaper, magazine, or other periodical, may be regarded as a capital investment if, upon consideration of all the facts and circumstances of the particular case, it may be regarded as made for the purpose of increasing the taxpayer's earning capacity over a substantial period subsequent to the taxable year in which such expenditure was made. The fact that a corporation failed, because of operating losses, to receive any benefits with respect to its income tax liability from deductions on account of expenditures is not evidence that such expenditures may be regarded as capital investments. In addition to those expenditures for capital items including good will which, under the provisions of section 24, may not be allowed as deductions, the following expenditures may in any case be regarded as capital investments within the contemplation of section 451:

(1) All advertising expenditures to promote a taxpayer's business in a territory new to such taxpayer, or to promote a new product, department, trade-mark, trade brand, or trade name of such taxpayer, for the first 12 months after the taxpayer has begun to develop such new territory or to promote such new product, department, trade-mark, trade brand, or trade name. A new product within the meaning of this section does not include any product which is merely an improvement of an earlier product.

(2) All advertising expenditures for the taxable year to the extent that such expenditures exceed the taxpayer's average annual expenditures on account of advertising for the 48 months preceding the taxable year, or, if the taxpayer was not in existence during the whole of such 48-month period, then for the period during which the taxpayer was in existence.

(3) In the case of expenditures to establish, maintain, or increase the circulation of a newspaper, magazine, or periodical, the portion of such expenditures which, pursuant to regulations prescribed under section 23 (bb), would be chargeable to capital account if the taxpayer made the election provided in section 23 (bb).

(b) Every item classifiable under this section as a capital investment constitutes a permanent asset of the taxpayer's business, and no deduction for depreciation will be allowed in respect of such an item.

(c) A taxpayer which has made the election under section 451 may not deduct for any excess profits tax taxable year expenditures made in such year similar to expenditures made during its base period for advertising or the promotion of good will which are treated under section 451 for the purposes of its excess profits credit as capital investments. Such a taxpayer has the burden of proving that expenditures for advertising or the promotion of good will which it seeks to deduct for such excess profits tax taxable year may not be regarded as capital investments under the provisions of this section. The taxpayer shall submit with its excess profits tax return a statement containing complete information with respect to all expenditures for advertising or the promotion of good will made during its excess profits tax taxable year, classified as to those which are deductible and those which may be regarded as capital investments under section 451. The statement filed with the return shall also set forth whether such expenditures were extraordinary in nature or amount and the purpose for which they were made.

§ 40.451–3 Effect of election. (a) Section 451 retroactively amends, for the purpose of determining the income tax liability and the excess profits credit of any taxpayer exercising an election under that section, the revenue laws applicable to each of such taxpayer's base period taxable years. Hence, the previous treatment as deductions of expenditures made during the base period which may be regarded as capital investments under the regulations prescribed under section 451 is an erroneous and inconsistent treatment. The normal-tax net income for each applicable base period taxable year must be recomputed with such expenditures disallowed as deductions, and both the excess profits net income for each such year and the earnings and profits account will be increased in the amount of such disallowed deductions.

(b) The disallowance of deductions in the base period made necessary by this section requires a redetermination of the income tax liability for such years and any deficiencies in tax resulting from the disallowance of such deductions shall be assessed and collected under the internal revenue laws applicable with respect to the assessment and collection of deficiencies for such years. If, however, correction of the effect of the prior inconsistent treatment of such items in the base period years is prevented, within the meaning of section 452 (b) (1) (C), correction shall be made by means of an adjustment under section 452. Since the amount of such an adjustment under section 452 is a part of the excess profits tax, which applies only to taxable years ending after June 30, 1950, it does not decrease earnings and profits or excess profits net income for any period before the beginning of the taxpayer's first excess profits tax taxable year.

(c) In the case of a taxpayer electing under section 451, the provisions of section 433 (b) (9), relating to abnormal deductions in the base period, do not affect deductions for expenditures for advertising or the promotion of good will which may be regarded as capital investments, since, in such a case, section 451 effects a disallowance of such deductions for income tax purposes before any of the adjustments under section 433 (b) are operative.

SEC. 452. ADJUSTMENT IN CASE OF POSITION INCONSISTENT WITH PRIOR INCOME TAX LIABILITY.

(a) Definitions. For the purposes of this section:

(1) Taxpayer. The term "taxpayer" means any person subject to a tax under the applicable revenue act.

(2) Income tax. The term "income tax" means an income tax imposed by this chapter or subchapter A of chapter 2 of this title; Title I and Title IA of the Revenue Acts of 1938, 1936, and 1934; Title I of the Revenue Acts of 1932 and 1928; Title II of the Revenue Acts of 1926 and 1924; Title II of the Revenue Acts of 1921 and 1918; Title I of the Revenue Act of 1917; Title I of the Revenue Act of 1916; or section II of the Act of October 3, 1913; a war profits or excess profits tax imposed by chapter 2E of this title; Title II of the Revenue Acts of 1921 and 1918; or Title II of the Revenue Act of 1917; or an income, war profits, or excess profits tax imposed by any of the foregoing provisions, as amended or supplemented.

(3) Prior taxable year. A taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, shall not be considered a prior taxable year.

(4) The term "predecessor of the taxpayer" means—

(A) A person which is a component corporation of the taxpayer within the meaning of Part II; and

(B) A person which on July 1, 1950, or at any time thereafter, controlled the taxpayer. The term "controlled" as herein used shall have the same meaning as "control" under section 112 (h); and

(C) Any person in an unbroken series ending with the taxpayer if subparagraph (A) or (B) would apply to the relationship between the parties.

(b) Circumstances of adjustment:

(1) If

(A) In determining at any time the tax of a taxpayer under this subchapter an item affecting the determination of the excess profits credit is treated in a manner inconsistent with the treatment accorded such item in the determination of the income tax liability of such taxpayer or a predecessor for a prior taxable year or years, and

(B) The treatment of such item in the prior taxable year or years consistently with the determination under this subchapter would effect an increase or decrease in the amount of the income taxes previously determined for such taxable year or years, and

(C) On the date of such determination of the tax under this subchapter correction of the effect of the inconsistent treatment in any one or more of the prior taxable years is prevented (except for the provisions of section 3801) by the operation of any law or rule of law (other than section 3761, relating to compromises), then the correction shall be made by an adjustment under this section. If in a subsequent determination of the tax under this subchapter for such taxable year such inconsistent treatment is not adopted, then the correction shall not be made in connection with such subsequent determination.

(2) Such adjustment shall be made only if there is adopted in the determination a position maintained by the Secretary (in case the net effect of the adjustment would be a decrease in the income taxes previously determined for such year or years) or by the taxpayer with respect to whom the determination is made (in case the net effect of the adjustment would be an increase in the income taxes previously determined for such year or years) which position is inconsistent with the treatment accorded such item in the prior taxable year or years which was not correct under the law applicable to such year.

(3) Burden of proof. In any proceeding before the Tax Court or any other court the burden of proof in establishing that an inconsistent position has been taken (A) shall be upon the Secretary, in case the net effect of the adjustment would be an increase in the income taxes previously determined for the prior taxable year or years, or (B) shall be upon the taxpayer, in case the net effect of the adjustment would be a decrease in the income taxes previously determined for the prior taxable year or years.

(c) Method and effect of adjustment. (1) The adjustment authorized by subsection (b), in the amount ascertained as provided in subsection (d), if a net increase, shall be added to, and, if a net decrease, shall be subtracted from, the tax otherwise computed under this subchapter for the taxable year with respect to which such inconsistent position is adopted.

(2) If more than one adjustment under this section is made because more than one inconsistent position is adopted with respect to one taxable year under this subchapter, the separate adjustments, each an amount ascertained as provided in subsection (d), shall be aggregated, and the aggregate net increase or decrease shall be added to or subtracted from the tax otherwise computed under this subchapter for the taxable year with respect to which such inconsistent positions are adopted.

(3) If all the adjustments under this section, made on account of the adoption of an inconsistent position or positions with respect to one taxable year under this subchapter, result in an aggregate net increase, the tax imposed by this subchapter shall in no case be less than the amount of such aggregate net increase.

(4) If all the adjustments under this section, made on account of the adoption of an inconsistent position or positions with respect to a taxable year under this subchapter (hereinafter in this paragraph called the current taxable year), result in an aggregate net decrease, and the amount of such decrease exceeds the tax imposed by this subchapter (without regard to the provisions of this section) for the current taxable year, such excess shall be subtracted from the tax imposed by this subchapter for each succeeding taxable year, but the amount of the excess to be so subtracted shall be reduced by the reduction in tax for intervening taxable years which has resulted from the subtraction of such excess from the tax imposed for each such year.

(d) Ascertainment of amount of adjustment. In computing the amount of an adjustment under this section there shall first be ascertained the amount of the income taxes previously determined for each of the prior taxable years for which correction is prevented. The amount of each such tax previously determined for each such taxable year shall be (1) the tax shown by the taxpayer, or by the predecessor, upon the return for such prior taxable year, increased by the amounts previously assessed (or collected without assessment) as deficiencies and decreased by the amounts previously abated, credited, refunded, or otherwise repaid in respect of such tax; or (2) if no amount was shown as the tax by such taxpayer or such predecessor upon the return, or if no return was made by such taxpayer or such predecessor, then the amounts previously assessed (or collected without assessment) as deficiencies, but such amounts previously assessed, or collected without assessment, shall be decreased by the amounts previously abated, credited, refunded, or otherwise repaid in respect of such tax. There shall then be ascertained the increase or decrease in each such tax previously determined for each such year which results solely from the treatment of the item consistently with the treatment accorded such item in the determination of the tax liability under this subchapter. To the increase or decrease so ascertained for each such tax for each such year there shall be added interest thereon computed as if the increase or decrease constituted a deficiency or an overpayment, as the case may be, for such prior taxable year. Such interest shall be computed to the fifteenth day of the third month following the close of the excess profits tax taxable year with respect to which the determination is made. There shall be ascertained the difference between the aggregate of such increases, plus the interest attributable to each, and the aggregate of such decreases, plus the interest attributable to each, and the net increase or decrease so ascertained shall be the amount of the adjustment under this section with respect to the inconsistent treatment of such item.

(e) Interest in case of net increase or decrease. (1) If an adjustment under this section results in a net decrease, or more than one adjustment results in an aggregate net decrease, the portion of such net decrease or aggregate net decrease, as the case may be, subtracted from the tax which represents interest shall be included in gross income of the taxable year in which falls the date prescribed for the payment of the tax under this subchapter.

(2) If an adjustment under this section results in a net increase, or more than one adjustment results in an aggregate net increase, the portion of such net increase or aggregate net increase, as the case may be, which represents interest shall be allowed as a deduction in computing net income for the taxable year in which falls the date prescribed for the payment of the tax under this subchapter.

§ 40.452–1 Purpose and scope of section 452.—(a) General. Section 452 provides for an adjustment if a determination of a taxpayer's excess profits tax liability treats an item or transaction affecting the excess profits credit inconsistently with the treatment of such item or transaction in the determination of the income tax liability of the taxpayer, or a predecessor, for a prior taxable year or years. The adjustment is not authorized unless (1) the treatment of the item or transaction for prior taxable years was incorrect under the law applicable to such years, (2) a correction of the effect of such erroneous treatment for one or more of the prior taxable years is prevented by the operation of a provision or rule of law, and (3) the inconsistent position adopted in the determination is asserted and maintained by the party (either the Commissioner or the taxpayer) who would be adversely affected by the adjustment.

(b) Definitions. When used in §§ 40.452–1 to 40.452–4, inclusive

(1) The terms "taxpayer," "income tax," and "prior taxable year," shall have the meaning assigned to such terms by section 452 (a). As to what constitutes a taxable year, see section 48 (a).

(2) (i) The term "predecessor of the taxpayer" shall have the meaning assigned to such term by section 452 (a) (4) It is specifically provided that the term "controlled" as used in such definition shall have the same meaning as "control" under the definition contained in section 112 (h). Accordingly, a person is a predecessor of the taxpayer if, on July 1, 1950, or at any time thereafter, such person owned stock possessing at least 80 percent of the total combined voting power of all classes of stock entitled to vote and at least 80 percent of the total number of shares of all other classes of stock of the taxpayer. For the purpose of section 452 it is immaterial that such control did not exist during the taxable year in respect of which the incorrect treatment of the item or transaction occurred, or during the taxable year in respect of which the inconsistent position is adopted in the determination of the excess profits credit of the taxpayer.

(ii) Any person which is a component corporation of the taxpayer under the definition contained in section 461 is a predecessor of the taxpayer within the meaning of section 452. Such person may be a corporation, partnership, or a sole proprietor. Any such component corporation is a predecessor of the taxpayer irrespective of the method employed in computing the excess profits credit of the taxpayer.

(iii) Under the terms of the definition, any person which is a predecessor of a predecessor in an unbroken series ending with the taxpayer is a predecessor of the taxpayer within the meaning of section 452.

(iv) The limitation of the term "predecessor of the taxpayer" to certain cases, and the resulting exclusion of other cases, should not be construed to affect the established judicial doctrines commonly known as estoppel, recoupment, set-off, etc., which may be applied by the courts in appropriate cases.

§ 40.452–2 Circumstances of adjustment.—(a) Determination. A final determination of the excess profits tax liability is not a prerequisite to an adjustment under section 452. Whenever there is a determination of the excess profits tax liability and the conditions prescribed in section 452 (b) are satisfied, the adjustment is authorized as an essential part of the determination of such tax liability. For example, the making of a return for excess profits tax purposes is a determination by the taxpayer; the assertion of a deficiency or the allowance or disallowance of a claim for refund is a determination by the Commissioner; and a decision by The Tax Court of the United States or a court is a determination by such Tax Court or court. If any such determination becomes final, the adjustment also becomes final. If, following a determination, there are further proceedings in the case and a subsequent determination which does not adopt the inconsistent treatment of the item or transaction, then no adjustment is authorized as a part of such subsequent determination.

(b) Correction under ordinary procedure prevented. (1) An adjustment is authorized only if, on the date of the determination of the excess profits tax liability, correction of the effect of the inconsistent treatment for one or more of the prior taxable years is prevented (except for the provisions of section 3801, relating to mitigation of effect of limitations and other provisions in income tax cases) by the operation, whether before, on, or after the date of enactment of section 452, of any provision of law (other than section 3761, relating to compromises) or rule of law. Such provisions or rules of law include, for example, statutes of limitations and res judicata.

(2) The ascertainment of whether correction of the effect of the inconsistent treatment is prevented within the meaning of section 452 (b) (1) (C) and this section must be made with respect to each income tax for each prior taxable year affected by the erroneous treatment of the item or transaction. Section 452 is not applicable in respect of any income tax for any prior taxable year if, on the date of the determination of the excess profits tax liability, correction of the effect of the erroneous treatment of the item is possible under the ordinary procedure applicable to the assessment and collection of deficiencies or the refund or credit of overpayments, as the case may be, in respect of such tax for such taxable year. See the example under § 40.452–4.

(3) If correction of the effect of the erroneous treatment of the item or transaction with respect to an income tax for a prior taxable year is otherwise prevented, the application of section 452 is not precluded by the fact that the tax for such year may, under appropriate circumstances, be open to an adjustment under section 3801.

(4) If any income tax liability for a prior taxable year has been compromised under section 3761, no adjustment may be made under section 452 with respect to the tax liability compromised.

(c) Operation dependent upon maintenance of inconsistent position. (1) An adjustment, with respect to an item or transaction, which would result in a net increase in the amount of the income taxes previously determined for prior taxable years is authorized only if (i) the taxpayer with respect to which the determination is made has, in connection with an item or transaction affecting the determination of its excess profits credit, maintained a position which is inconsistent with the erroneous treatment of such item or transaction for prior taxable years, and (ii) such inconsistent position is adopted in the determination.

(2) An adjustment, with respect to an item or transaction, which would result in a net decrease in the amount of the income taxes previously determined for prior taxable years is authorized only if (i) the Commissioner, in connection with an item or transaction affecting the determination of the taxpayer's excess profits credit, has maintained a position which is inconsistent with the erroneous treatment of such item or transaction for prior taxable years, and (ii) such inconsistent position is adopted in the determination.

(3) Neither the Commissioner nor the taxpayer is required to adopt an inconsistent position with respect to the treatment of an item or transaction in the determination of the excess profits credit because of the fact that such item or transaction was incorrectly treated in the determination of the income tax liability of the taxpayer, or a predecessor, for a prior taxable year or years, under the law applicable to such year or years. Such item or transaction may, in the determination of the excess profits credit, be treated in a manner consistent with the incorrect treatment accorded in the determination of the income tax liability if neither the Commissioner nor the taxpayer objects. Either the Commissioner or the taxpayer, however, may insist upon the correct treatment of such item or transaction in the determination of the excess profits credit under the law applicable to the excess profits tax taxable year, but such action constitutes the maintenance of an inconsistent position and will result in an adjustment under section 452, if the party insisting upon such treatment is the party who would be adversely affected by such adjustment.

(4) A taxpayer which has taken an inconsistent position with respect to an item or transaction affecting the determination of its excess profits credit may, upon notice to the Commissioner in writing, withdraw from such position.

(5) Inconsistent treatment within the meaning of section 452 may relate to the principle or rule of law applied in determining the taxable status of an item or transaction, or it may relate only to the amount of the item or transaction which is to be taken into account for tax purposes. The inconsistency is to be ascertained by reference to the actual treatment of the item or transaction for prior taxable years rather than to what the taxpayer or the Commissioner may have urged.

(6) If a determination of the excess profits tax liability for one taxable year adopts with respect to an item or transaction an inconsistent position which results in an adjustment under section 452, similar treatment of the same item or transaction for subsequent excess profits tax taxable years does not authorize a further adjustment under such section.

(d) Law applicable in determination of error. (1) Whether there was an erroneous treatment of the item or transaction for prior taxable years is to be determined under the provisions of the internal revenue laws applicable with respect to such years. If the inconsistent treatment adopted in the determination of the excess profits tax liability is based upon an authoritative judicial interpretation of the applicable revenue law which differs from the interpretation of such law accepted in the determination of the tax liability for such prior years, then the treatment accorded the item or transaction for such prior years is erroneous within the meaning of section 452.

(2) Section 452 does not authorize an adjustment if the difference between the treatment accorded an item or transaction in computing the excess profits credit and the treatment accorded such item or transaction in computing the tax liability for prior taxable years is occasioned solely by reason of an adjustment required by a specific provision of the Act, such as the adjustments required by section 433 (b) to normal-tax net income in computing excess profits net income. Since the disallowances under section 451 of deductions on account of expenditures for advertising or the promotion of good will are not required by the Act but are merely permissive at the election of the taxpayer, and since section 451 specifically provides that, if an election is made, the treatment of such expenditures as deductions for prior taxable years shall be considered incorrect, an adjustment under section 452 may be authorized in the case of such a disallowance.

(3) The rule relative to the burden of proof to establish, in any Tax Court or other court proceeding, that an inconsistent position has been taken, is prescribed in section 452 (b) (3). If the net effect of the adjustment by reason of the alleged inconsistency would be an increase in the income taxes previously determined for the prior taxable year or years, the burden of proof is upon the Commissioner. If the net effect of such adjustment would be a decrease in the income taxes previously determined for the prior taxable year or years, the burden of proof is upon the taxpayer. Inasmuch as the adjustment under section 452 is a factor in the determination of the excess profits tax liability, the provisions relative to the burden of proof in a Tax Court or court proceeding do not relieve the taxpayer from responsibility for a full disclosure of the facts necessary to the correct determination of the tax liability.

§ 40.452–3 Method and effect of adjustment. (a) The adjustment authorized by section 452, although measured by reference to the income taxes previously determined for prior taxable years, does not operate as an adjustment to the income tax liability for such years, but the amount of such adjustment is added to or subtracted from, as the case may be, the excess profits tax otherwise computed for the taxable year with respect to which the inconsistent position is adopted.

(b) No adjustment with respect to an item or transaction is authorized unless the inconsistent position adopted in the determination is maintained by the party who would be adversely affected by such adjustment. See § 40.452–2 (c). Accordingly, if a determination for one taxable year adopts inconsistent positions with respect to several items or transactions, it is necessary to make separate and distinct computations with respect to each such item or transaction in order to ascertain the amount of the potential adjustment with respect to each such item or transaction and whether an adjustment with respect to such item or transaction is authorized. If several adjustments are authorized with respect to one excess profits tax taxable year, the separate adjustments are aggregated and the aggregate net increase or net decrease is added to, or subtracted from, as the case may be, the excess profits tax otherwise computed for such taxable year. In ascertaining the amount of the adjustment with respect to a particular item or transaction, no effect shall be given to the computations made for the purpose of determining the amount of the adjustment with respect to any other item or transaction. If the several authorized adjustments result in an aggregate net increase, the excess profits tax liability for such taxable year shall not in any case be less than the amount of such aggregate net increase.

(c) If the authorized adjustments with respect to one excess profits tax taxable year result in an aggregate net decrease and the amount of such decrease exceeds the excess profits tax (computed without regard to the provisions of section 452) for such year, the excess may be carried over and subtracted from the excess profits tax in each succeeding taxable year until such excess is exhausted. If excesses result from adjustments with respect to two or more excess profits tax taxable years, such excesses shall be carried over in the order of their occurrence.

(d) The amount of the credit for foreign taxes allowable under the provisions of section 131 shall be determined before giving effect to any adjustment under this section.

§ 40.452–4 Ascertainment of amount of adjustment. (a) To ascertain the amount of the adjustment, it is necessary to determine the amount of the increase or decrease in each income tax previously determined for each of the prior taxable years which would have resulted if the item or transaction erroneously treated had received the correct treatment under the law applicable with respect to such tax for such year. To each such increase or decrease there shall be added interest thereon computed as if the increase or decrease constituted a deficiency or an overpayment, as the case may be, with respect to such tax for such year. In all such cases interest shall be computed to the 15th day of the third month following the close of the excess profits tax taxable year with respect to which the determination of the excess profits tax liability is made.

(b) If only one income tax for one prior taxable year is involved, the increase or decrease in such tax for such year plus the interest thereon is the amount of the adjustment with respect to the particular item or transaction.

(c) If two or more income taxes for one prior taxable year, or two or more prior taxable years are involved, it is necessary to determine the increase or decrease in each income tax previously determined for each such year, plus the interest on each such increase or decrease. The difference between the sum of the increases, including the interest thereon, and the sum of the decreases, including the interest thereon, shall be ascertained and the net increase or net decrease so determined is the amount of the adjustment with respect to the particular item or transaction.

(d) The computation to determine the increase or decrease in each income tax for each year shall be made as follows:

(1) The amount of the tax previously determined must first be ascertained. This may be the amount of tax shown on the taxpayer's return, but if any changes in that amount have been made they must be taken into account, including any adjustment previously made under the provisions of section 820 of the Revenue Act of 1938 or section 2801 of the Internal Revenue Code. In such cases, the tax previously determined will be the tax shown on the return, increased by the amounts previously assessed (or collected without assessment) as deficiencies, and decreased by amounts previously abated, credited, refunded, or otherwise repaid in respect of such tax. If no amount was shown as the tax on the return, or if no return was made, the tax previously determined will be the sum of the amounts previously assessed (or collected without assessment) as deficiencies, decreased by the amounts previously abated, credited, refunded, or otherwise repaid in respect of such tax.

(2) After the tax previously determined has been ascertained, a recomputation must be made to ascertain the increase or decrease in tax represented by the difference, if any, between the tax previously determined and the tax as recomputed upon the basis of the correct treatment of the item or transaction.

(e) With the exception of the items upon which the tax previously determined was based and the item or transaction with respect to which the erroneous treatment occurred, no item shall be considered in computing the amount of the increase or decrease in the tax previously determined. If the treatment of any item upon which the tax previously determined was based, or if the application of any provisions of the internal revenue laws with respect to such tax depends upon the amount of income (e. g., charitable contributions or foreign tax credit), readjustment of such items in conformity with the change in the amount of the income which results from the correct treatment of the item or transaction in respect of which the inconsistent position was adopted is necessary as part of the recomputation.

(f) Example: On January 1, 1946, the X Corporation in pursuance of a plan of reorganization transferred all of its assets except cash to the Y Corporation in exchange for all of the stock of the Y Corporation, such stock having a fair market value of $300,000. The assets transferred consisted of depreciable business property acquired by the X Corporation in 1936 which had an adjusted basis in the hands of the X Corporation of $325,000 and an estimated remaining life of 20 years. The fair market value of the property at the time of transfer was $300,000. Both corporations make their returns on the calendar year basis. The exchange was treated as taxable and the loss of $25,000 realized by the X Corporation was recognized. For each of the years 1946 to 1949, inclusive, the Y Corporation was allowed a deduction for depreciation in the amount of $15,000 computed on the cost basis of $300,000. In its income tax return for the calendar year 1950, the Y Corporation claimed that the assets acquired from the X Corporation should have a basis (unadjusted) of $325,000 in determining its invested capital for excess profits tax purposes and claimed a deduction of $16,250 for depreciation on the property for such year. This position was based upon the contention that the 1946 exchange was a nontaxable reorganization resulting from the acquisition by Y Corporation in exchange solely for its voting stock of substantially all of the properties of X Corporation; and that the basis (unadjusted) in the hands of the Y Corporation of the assets acquired upon the exchange was the same as the adjusted basis in the hands of the transferor. Timely claims for refund based upon the allowance of additional deductions for depreciation for the taxable years 1947, 1948, and 1949 were filed. The statute of limitations prevents any refund of overpayments or assessment of deficiencies for the taxable year 1946. The Commissioner's determination of the excess profits tax liability for the calendar year 1950 adopts the inconsistent position asserted by the Y Corporation and, accordingly, if the computation under section 452 (d) discloses a net increase in the taxes previously determined for the taxable year for which correction is prevented, an adjustment is authorized under the provisions of section 452.

The X Corporation's combined normal and surtax for 1946 is $28,500, computed upon normal-tax net income of $75,000 and corporation surtax net income in the same amount. The corporation omitted from the gross income reported on the return an item of rental income amounting to $3,000 and neglected to take a deduction for interest amounting to $1,500. During the taxable year 1946 it realized a gain of $10,000 from the sale of depreciable business property held for more than six months. There was no unused excess profits credit for 1946 which was allowable as a carry-back to a prior taxable year.

The increase in the tax of the X Corporation previously determined for 1946, plus the interest thereon, is computed as follows:

Tax previously determined for 1946	$28,500
Normal tax net income ($75,000) and surtax net income ($75,000) on which tax previously determined was based	75,000
Plus: Ordinary loss previously allowed under section 117 (j) (excess of $25,000 loss on exchange with Y Corporation over $10,000 gain on sale of other depreciable business property)	15,000
Ordinary normal-tax net income	90,000
Ordinary surtax net income	90,000
Tax as recomputed (38 percent of $80,000 ($90,000 less $10,000 treated as capital gain) plus 25 percent of $10,000 gain from sale of depreciable business property)	32,900
Tax previously determined	28,500
Increase in tax	4,400
Interest on increase in tax	1,056
Total increase for 1946	5,456

In accordance with the provisions of section 452 (d), the recomputation does not take into consideration the item of $3,000, representing rental income which was omitted from gross income, or the item of $1,500, representing interest paid, for which no deduction was allowed.

The Y Corporation had normal-tax net income and corporation surtax net income of $100,000 for the taxable year 1946. The decrease in the tax of the Y Corporation previously determined which results solely from the allowance of an additional deduction of $1,250 for depreciation in such year, plus the interest on such decrease, is assumed to be as follows:

Tax	$475
Interest	114
Total	589

The amount of the adjustment to be added to the excess profits tax of the Y Corporation otherwise determined for the taxable year 1950 is as follows:

Increase for 1946 (X Corporation)	$5,456
Less: Decrease for 1946 (Y Corporation)	589
Net increase (amount of adjustment authorized)	4,867

§ 40.452–5 Interest. (a) The portion of an adjustment under section 452 which represents interest is characterized as interest for certain tax purposes and is includible in gross income, or allowable as a deduction in computing net income, as the case may be, for the taxable year in which falls the date prescribed for the payment of the excess profits tax for the taxable year to which the adjustment or, in the case of an adjustment involving a carry-over, the portion of such adjustment is applied, regardless of the method of accounting employed by the taxpayer. The date prescribed for payment of the tax is, in the case of a domestic corporation, the 15th day of the third month following the close of the taxable year and, in the case of a foreign corporation not having an office or place of business in the United States, the 15th day of the sixth month following the close of the taxable year.

(b) Under the rule prescribed, if the adjustments in respect of an excess profits tax taxable year result in a net increase, or an aggregate net increase, the portion of such increase which represents interest shall be allowed as a deduction in computing net income for the succeeding taxable year. Thus, under the facts set forth in the example contained in § 40.452–4, the portion of the net increase which represents interest is $942 (interest on the increase, $1,056, minus interest on the decrease, $114), and such interest is allowable as a deduction in computing net income for the calendar year 1951.

(c) If the adjustments in respect of an excess profits tax taxable year result in a net decrease, or an aggregate net decrease, the interest contained in that portion of such decrease which is subtracted from the tax for any taxable year shall be included in the gross income for the succeeding taxable year. For such purpose, no portion of the amount subtracted in any taxable year shall be deemed to represent interest until the portion of the net decrease which represents tax has been exhausted.

(d) Example: For the calendar year 1950, Corporation X had an excess profits tax liability of $9,000 (computed without regard to section 452) and an authorized adjustment under section 452 resulting in a net decrease of $12,000, of which $8,000 represents tax and $4,000 represents interest. In giving effect to the adjustment, $9,000 will be subtracted from the tax for 1950 and the balance will be carried over to succeeding taxable years. Since $8,000 of the net decrease represents tax, only $1,000 of the amount subtracted in 1950 represents interest and hence $1,000 will be included as interest in the taxpayer's gross income for 1951. The entire amount of the $3,000 to be carried over and subtracted from the tax for a succeeding taxable year represents interest, since the portion of the net decrease which represents tax is exhausted in 1950.

SEC. 453. NONTAXABLE INCOME FROM CERTAIN MINING AND TIMBER OPERATIONS, AND FROM NATURAL GAS PROPERTIES.

(a) Definitions. For the purposes of this section and section 433 (a)

(1) Producer; lessor; natural gas company. The term "producer" means a corporation which extracts minerals from a mineral property, or which cuts logs from a timber block, in which an economic interest is owned by such corporation. The term "lessor" means a corporation which owns an economic interest in a mineral property or a timber block, and is paid in accordance with the number of mineral units or timber units recovered therefrom by the person to which such property or block is leased. The term "natural gas company" means a corporation engaged in the withdrawal, or transportation by pipe line, of natural gas.

(2) Mineral unit, natural gas unit, and timber unit. The term "mineral unit" means a unit of metal, coal, or nonmetallic substance in the minerals recovered from the operation of a mineral property. The term "natural gas unit" means a unit of natural gas sold by a natural gas company. The term "timber unit" means a unit of timber recovered from the operation of a timber block.

(3) Excess output. The term "excess output" means the excess of the mineral units, natural gas units, or timber units for the taxable year over the normal output.

(4) Normal output. The term "normal output" means the average annual mineral units, or the average annual timber units, as the case may be, recovered in the taxable years beginning after December 31, 1945, and not ending after June 30, 1950 (hereinafter in this section called "normal period"), of the person owning the mineral property or the timber block (whether or not the taxpayer). The term "normal output", in the case of a natural gas company, means the average annual natural gas units sold in the taxable years beginning after December 31, 1945, and not ending after June 30, 1950 (hereinafter in this section called "normal period"), of the person owning the natural gas property (whether or not the taxpayer). The average annual mineral units, natural gas units, or timber units shall be computed by dividing the aggregate of such mineral units, natural gas units, or timber units for the normal period by the number of months for which the mineral property, natural gas property, or timber block was in operation during the normal period and by multiplying the amount so ascertained by twelve. In any case in which the taxpayer establishes, under regulations prescribed by the Secretary, that the operation of any mineral property, natural gas property, or timber block is normally prevented for a specified period each year by physical events outside the control of the taxpayer, the number of months during which such mineral property, natural gas property, or timber block is regularly in operation during a taxable year shall be used in computing the average annual mineral units, natural gas units, or timber units, instead of twelve. Any mineral property, natural gas property, or timber block, which was in operation for less than six months during the normal period, shall, for the purposes of this section, be deemed not to have been in operation during the normal period.

(5) Natural gas property. The term "natural gas property" means the property of a natural gas company used for the withdrawal, storage, and transportation by pipe line, of natural gas, excluding any part of such property which is an emergency facility under section 124A.

(6) Mineral property. The term "mineral property" means a mineral deposit, the development and plant necessary for the extraction of the deposit, and so much of the surface of the land as is necessary for purposes of such extraction.

(7) Minerals. The term "minerals" means ores of the metals, coal, and such nonmetallic substances as abrasives, asbestos, asphaltum, barytes, borax, building stone, cement rock, clay, crushed stone, feldspar, fluorspar, fuller's earth, graphite, gravel, gypsum, limestone, magnesite, marl, mica, mineral pigments, peat, potash, precious stones, refractories, rock phosphate, salt, sand, shell, silica, slate, soapstone, soda, sulphur, and talc.

(8) Timber block. The term "timber block" means an operation unit which includes all the taxpayer's timber which would logically go to a single given point of manufacture.

(9) Normal unit profit. The term "normal unit profit" means the average profit for the normal period per mineral unit for such period, determined by dividing the net income with respect to minerals recovered from the mineral property (computed with the allowance for depletion computed in accordance with the basis for depletion applicable to the current taxable year) during the normal period by the number of mineral units recovered from the mineral property during the normal period.

(10) Alternative computation. In any case in which more than one mineral property is owned or operated by a lessor or producer as defined in (a) (1) of this section, such lessor or producer may treat the mineral properties as one property for purposes of computing exempt excess output under this section.

(11) Estimated recoverable units. The term "estimated recoverable units" means the estimated number of units of metal, coal, or nonmetallic substances in the estimated recoverable minerals from the mineral property at the end of the taxable year plus the excess output for such year. All estimates shall be subject to the approval of the Secretary, the determinations of whom for the purposes of this section, shall be final and conclusive.

(12) Exempt excess output. The term "exempt excess output" for any taxable year means a number of units equal to the following percentages of the excess output for such year:

100 per centum if the excess output exceeds 50 per centum of the estimated recoverable units;

95 per centum if the excess output exceeds 33⅓ but not 50 per centum of the estimated recoverable units;

90 per centum if the excess output exceeds 25 but not 33⅓ per centum of the estimated recoverable units;

85 per centum if the excess output exceeds 20 but not 25 per centum of the estimated recoverable units;

80 per centum if the excess output exceeds 16⅔ but not 20 per centum of the estimated recoverable units;

60 per centum if the excess output exceeds 14⅔ but not 16⅔ per centum of the estimated recoverable units;

40 per centum if the excess output exceeds 12½ but not 14⅔ per centum of the estimated recoverable units;

30 per centum if the excess output exceeds 10 but not 12½ per centum of the estimated recoverable units;

20 per centum if the excess output exceeds 5 but not 10 per centum of the estimated recoverable units.

(13) Unit net income. The term "unit net income" means the amount ascertained by dividing the net income (computed with the allowance for depletion) from the coal or ore or the timber recovered from the mining property, or timber block, as the case may be, during the taxable year by the number of units of coal or ore, or timber, recovered from such property in such year. In respect of a natural gas property, the term "unit net income" means the amount ascertained by dividing the net income, computed in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Secretary, from such property during the taxable year by the number of natural gas units sold in such year.

(b) Nontaxable income from exempt excess output—(1) General rule. For any taxable year for which the excess output of mineral property which was in operation during the normal period exceeds 5 per centum of the estimated recoverable units from such property, the nontaxable income from exempt excess output for such year shall be an amount equal to the exempt excess output for such year multiplied by the normal unit profit, but such amount shall not exceed the net income (computed with the allowance for depletion) attributable to the excess output for such year.

(2) Mines in operation during normal period. For any taxable year, the nontaxable income from exempt excess output of a metal or coal mining property which was in operation during the normal period shall be an amount equal to the excess output of such property for such year multiplied by one-half of the unit net income from such property for such year, or an amount determined under paragraph (1), whichever the taxpayer elects in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Secretary.

(3) Timber properties. For any taxable year, the nontaxable income from exempt excess output of a timber block which was in operation during the normal period shall be an amount equal to the excess output of such property for such year multiplied by one-half of the unit net income from such property for such year.

(4) Mines, timber properties, and natural gas properties not in operation during normal period. For any taxable year, the nontaxable income from exempt excess output of a metal or coal mining property or a timber block or natural gas property, which was not in operation during the normal period, shall be an amount equal to one-third of the net income for such taxable year (computed with the allowance for depletion) from the metal or coal mining property, the timber block, or the natural gas property, as the case may be. For the purposes of the preceding sentence, a metal mining property shall be deemed not to have been in operation during the normal period if, during the period it was in production during 1946, 1947, 1948, and 1949, the aggregate gross income derived therefrom was less than the aggregate of the deductions (allowed under section 23 without regard to any net operating loss deduction) attributable to such property during such period of production.

(5) Natural gas companies. In the case of a natural gas company any of the natural gas property of which was in operation during the normal period, the nontaxable income from exempt excess output for any taxable year shall be an amount equal to the excess output for such year multiplied by one-half of the unit net income for such year.

(c) Nontaxable bonus income. The term "nontaxable bonus income" means the amount of the income derived from bonus payments made by any agency of the United States Government on account of the production in excess of a specified quota of:

(1) A mineral product or timber, the exhaustion of which gives rise to an allowance for depletion under section 23 (m), but such amount shall not exceed the net income (computed with the allowance for depletion) attributable to the output in excess of such quota; or

(2) A mineral product extracted or recovered from mine tailings by a corporation which owns no economic interest in the mineral property from which the ore containing such tailings was mined, but such amount shall not exceed the net income attributable to the output in excess of such quota.

(d) Rule in case income from excess output includes bonus payment. In any case in which the income attributable to the excess output includes bonus payments (as provided in subsection (c)), the taxpayer may elect, under regulations prescribed by the Secretary, to receive either the benefits of subsection (b) or subsection (c) with respect to such income as is attributable to excess output above the specified quota.

§ 40.453–1 General rule. Section 453 provides specific rules for the computation of nontaxable income from exempt excess output which is included in the computation of excess profits net income of (a) a producer of minerals, (b) a producer of logs or lumber from a timber block, (c) a lessor of a mineral property, a coal or metal mining property, or a timber block, or (d) a natural gas company. It also provides specific rules for the computation of nontaxable bonus income of a producer of minerals, or a producer of logs or lumber from a timber block, as defined in such section.

§ 40.453–2 Definitions. For the purposes of section 453 and section 433 (a) (1) (I)—

(a) Producer; lessor; natural gas company—(1) Producer. (i) The term "producer" means a corporation which extracts minerals from a mineral property, or cuts logs from a timber block, in which an economic interest is owned by such corporation. Although section 433 (a) (1) (I) excludes certain nontaxable income in the computation of excess profits net income in the case of a producer of logs or lumber, a producer of lumber is not within the provisions of this subsection unless such corporation is also a producer of the logs from which such lumber is sawed. An economic interest is possessed in every case in which the taxpayer has acquired, by investment, any interest in minerals in place or standing timber and secures, by any form of legal relationship, income derived from the severance and sale of the mineral or timber, to which it must look for a return of its capital. A taxpayer which has no capital investment in the mineral deposit or standing timber does not possess an economic interest merely because, through a contractual relation to the owner, it possesses a mere economic advantage derived from production. Thus, an agreement between the owner of an economic interest and another entitling the latter to purchase the product upon production or to share in the net income derived from the interest of such owner does not convey an economic interest. The mere ownership of the development and plant necessary to the extraction of the minerals in place or the felling and logging of the timber is not an economic interest for the purposes of section 453. Thus, a corporation which owns the equipment necessary to the extraction of minerals or the logging of timber and which acts as an independent contractor or as an agent in extracting minerals or timber, receiving as consideration a portion of the net income from the property, but which does not own an economic interest in the mineral property or timber block is not a producer within the provisions of this paragraph. However, the owner of the economic interest in the mineral property or timber block and from which the mineral or timber is being extracted by the independent contractor or the agent is the producer within the provisions of this paragraph.

(ii) For the purpose of the exclusion from excess profits net income of nontaxable bonus income on account of the production in excess of a specified quota of a mineral product extracted or recovered from mine tailings (see section 453 (c) (2)), a corporation which so extracts or recovers such a mineral product and which owns no economic interest in the mineral property from which the ore containing such tailings was mined shall be deemed to be a producer of minerals.

(2) Lessor. The term "lessor" means a corporation which owns an economic interest, as described in subparagraph (1) of this paragraph, in a mineral property, in a metal or coal mining property, or in a timber block, and is paid in accordance with the number of mineral units or timber units recovered from the mineral property, metal or coal mining property, or timber block by the person to which such property is leased. A corporation which leases a mineral property, metal or coal mining property, or a timber block in consideration for the payment, annual or otherwise, of an amount which is not based upon the number of mineral units or timber units recovered from the property or block is not a lessor within the meaning of section 453 (a) (1). However, the fact that the leasehold agreement contains a provision for minimum royalties will not of itself prevent the corporation from being a lessor within the meaning of section 453 (a) (1). Nor does the fact that the corporation which leases a mineral property, metal or coal mining property, or timber block is paid by one who is not a "producer" within the meaning of this section, e. g., an individual to whom such property or block is leased or a lessee which in turn leases the property or block to a sublessee, preclude such corporation from being a lessor within the provisions of section 453 (a) (1), providing it otherwise satisfies the provisions of such section. Likewise, the fact that a corporation which is a lessor within the meaning of section 453 (a) (1) is also a lessee paying rents or royalties to a supervening holder of an economic interest does not prevent such lessor from satisfying the provisions of section 453 (a) (1).

(3) Natural gas company. The term "natural gas company" means a corporation which is engaged in the withdrawal of natural gas or the transportation of natural gas by pipeline. It does not include a corporation which is engaged solely in the storage of natural gas or solely in the distribution of natural gas. For the purpose of this paragraph, distribution means the piping of natural gas, which has been received by the distribution facilities either at the end of the pipeline or at some intermediate point along the line, to the ultimate consumers of such gas. A natural gas company need not own an economic interest in the property from which the natural gas is extracted.

(b) Mineral unit, natural gas unit, and timber unit—(1) Mineral unit. The term "mineral unit" means a unit of metal, coal, or nonmetallic substance in the minerals recovered from the operation of a mineral property. A mineral unit does not mean the number of units of minerals as defined in paragraph (h) of this section but refers to the units of metal, coal, or nonmetallic substances contained in such minerals. If a corporation extracts from the same mineral property two or more minerals containing different metals, coal, or nonmetallic substances, or if two or more metals, coal, or nonmetallic substances are contained in the same mineral extracted by a corporation from a mineral property, a determination of mineral units must be made with respect to each type of metal, coal, or nonmetallic substance contained in such minerals. A unit is any designation of quantity, such as ton, pound, quart, ounce, kilogram, gram, etc., customarily used by the taxpayer as a standard of measurement.

(2) Natural gas unit. The term "natural gas unit" means a unit of natural gas sold by a natural gas company. A natural gas unit does not mean a unit of natural gas as extracted or stored but means a unit as sold. A unit is any designation of quantity, such as 1,000 cubic feet, etc., customarily used by the taxpayer as a standard of measurement of sale.

(3) Timber unit. The term "timber unit" means a unit of timber recovered from the operation of a timber block. It does not mean the units of lumber, boards, or other wood products sawed from the timber, but refers to the actual logs felled prior to processing at the sawmill. The fact that more than one species of timber is cut by a taxpayer from a timber block shall not be taken into account and a timber unit shall not be established with respect to each species of timber. A unit is any designation of quantity such as board feet measure, log scale, cords, or other units customarily used by the taxpayer as a standard of measurement.

(c) Excess output. (1) The term "excess output" means the excess of the mineral units, the natural gas units, or the timber units for the taxable year over the normal output. If the taxpayer operated two or more timber blocks, the excess output shall be determined with respect to each such timber block and shall not be computed upon the basis of the aggregate of the timber blocks owned by the taxpayer. In any case in which more than one mineral property is owned or operated by a lessor or producer, such lessor or producer may treat the mineral properties as one property for purposes of computing exempt excess output. See paragraph (g) of this section. If two or more metals, coal, or nonmetallic substances are contained in the minerals extracted from a mineral property, the determination of the excess output of mineral products extracted from such mineral property for a taxable year shall be made with respect to each separate type of metal, coal, or nonmetallic substance, i. e., the amount by which the mineral units of each type for the taxable year exceeds the normal output of such type. The excess output of a mineral property from which minerals are extracted containing two or more types of metals, coal, or nonmetallic substances shall not be made upon an aggregate basis, i. e., the amount by which the aggregate of all types of mineral units for the taxable year exceeds the aggregate of the normal output of all such types.

(2) The mineral units for a taxable year shall be the number of units of metal, coal, or nonmetallic substances in the minerals recovered from a mineral property during the taxable year, which would be used in computing the allowance for depletion if the depletion of the mineral property were computed without regard to discovery value or percentage depletion. See § 29.23 (m)–2 of Regulations 111.

(3) The timber units for a taxable year shall be the number of units of timber felled during the year, which is used in the computation of the depletion allowance, but shall not include any timber cut by the taxpayer which owns, or has a contract right to cut, such timber and which has elected pursuant to the provisions of section 117 (k) (1) to treat such cutting as a sale or exchange of the timber as cut. As to the computation of the allowance for depletion, see § 29.23 (m)–21 of Regulations 111.

(4) The number of natural gas units sold during a taxable year shall be the aggregate number of units sold by the natural gas company, whether as a result of withdrawal, of release from storage, or of transportation by pipeline, and regardless of whether different portions of the natural gas property were used in the withdrawal or the transportation of the natural gas sold. Natural gas withdrawn and stored, or transported by pipeline and stored, during the taxable year but not sold during such year shall not be included in the computation of the number of natural gas units for such taxable year for the purpose of the computation of excess output for such year.

(5) The excess output of a lessor shall be computed in the same manner as the excess output of a producer, that is, as the excess of the mineral units or the timber units for the taxable year over the normal output of the mineral property or timber block. The mineral units or timber units of a lessor for the taxable year shall be computed in the same manner as in the case of a producer, except that in the case of a lessor of a timber block there shall not be included in the timber units for such year any timber which has been disposed of by the lessor and which is considered to have been sold under the provisions of section 117 (k) (2). If the disposal of timber by the lessor is not considered a sale of such timber under the provisions of section 117 (k) (2), the number of timber units of the lessor for the taxable year shall not be affected by the fact that the producer of such timber has elected to consider the cutting of such timber as a sale or exchange of such timber cut under section 117 (k) (1).

(d) Normal output. (1) The term "normal output" means the average annual mineral units or the average annual timber units recovered, or the average annual natural gas units sold, in the taxable years beginning after December 31, 1945, and not ending after June 30, 1950 (referred to in the regulations under section 453 as the normal period) of the person owning the mineral property, timber block, or natural gas property, whether or not such person is the taxpayer claiming relief under section 433 (a) (1) (I) and section 453. A person includes an individual, a trust, estate, partnership, company, or corporation. See section 3797. If the mineral property or timber block was not owned by the taxpayer for the entire normal period, the taxpayer should, in its first return in which the benefits of section 433 (a) (1) (I) and section 453 are claimed, state the name and address of each person owning the mineral property or timber block during the normal period and submit evidence establishing the mineral units or the timber units recovered from the mineral property or timber block by such other person during the period of its ownership, and the number of months in such period. If all or a portion of the natural gas property owned by the natural gas company during the taxable year was not owned by it during the entire normal period, the taxpayer should, in its first return in which the benefits of section 433 (a) (1) (I) and section 453 are claimed, state the name and address of each person owning such natural gas property, or any portion thereof, during the normal period and submit evidence establishing the natural gas units withdrawn, transported by pipeline, and sold by such other person during the period of its ownership, and the number of months in such period.

(2) In any case in which two or more metals, coal, or nonmetallic substances are contained in the minerals recovered from a mineral property, a normal output shall be computed with respect to each type of metal, coal, or nonmetallic substance in such minerals.

(3) In any case in which a natural gas company withdraws and sells natural gas at the mouth of the well, and in addition transports by pipeline and sells natural gas after such transportation, the normal output shall be computed as the aggregate of the sales prior to and subsequent to transportation.

(4) The average annual mineral units or timber units shall be computed by dividing the aggregate of the mineral units of each type of metal, coal, or nonmetallic substance, or the aggregate of the timber units for the normal period by the number of months for which the mineral property or timber block was in operation during the normal period and by multiplying the amount so ascertained by 12. The average annual natural gas units shall be computed by dividing the aggregate of the natural gas units for the normal period by the number of months for which the natural gas property was in operation during the normal period and multiplying the amount so ascertained by 12. In any case in which the taxpayer establishes that the operation of a mineral property, a timber block, or a natural gas property is normally prevented for a specified period each year by physical events outside the control of the taxpayer, the number of months during which such mineral property, timber block, or natural gas property is regularly in operation during a taxable year shall be used in computing the average annual mineral units, or timber units, or natural gas units, instead of 12. If any taxable year for which excess output is computed for the purposes of section 453 is a taxable year of less than 12 months, the number of months in such year, in lieu of 12 and in lieu of the number of months specified in the preceding sentence (if less than such number of months), shall be used in computing the average annual mineral units, timber units, or natural gas units.

(5) The mineral units for a taxable year in the normal period shall be the number of units of each type of metal, coal, or nonmetallic substance in the minerals recovered from a mineral property during the taxable year, which would be used in computing the depletion allowance if the depletion of the mineral property were computed without regard to discovery value or percentage depletion. See § 29.23 (m)–2 of Regulations 111. The timber units for a taxable year shall be the number of units of timber felled during the year used in the computation of the depletion allowance. See § 29.23 (m)–21 of Regulations 111. The natural gas units for a taxable year in the normal period shall be the aggregate of the number of natural gas units withdrawn from, stored in, or transported by, the natural gas property, and sold during such year by the person owning or operating the natural gas property. Natural gas withdrawn and stored, or transported by pipeline and stored, during a taxable year in the normal period but not sold during such year shall not be included in the computation of the number of natural gas units for such year for the purpose of the computation of normal output.

(6) A mineral property, or a timber block, or a natural gas property which was in operation for less than six months during the normal period shall, for the purposes of section 453, be deemed not to have been in operation during the normal period. Such months need not be consecutive months.

(7) The normal output of a lessor shall be computed in the same manner as the normal output of a producer, that is, as the annual average mineral units or the average annual timber units recovered during the normal period of the person owning the mineral property or the timber block. A mineral property or timber block which is owned by a lessor and which was in operation for less than six months during the normal period shall be deemed not to have been in operation during the normal period. Such months need not be consecutive months.

(e) Natural gas property. The term "natural gas property" means the entire property of a natural gas company which is used for the withdrawal, storage, and transportation by pipeline of natural gas but does not include any part of such property which is an emergency facility within the provisions of section 124A. As to what constitutes an emergency facility, see section 124A (d) and the regulations thereunder.

(f) Mineral property. (1) The term "mineral property" means a mineral deposit, the development and plant necessary for the extraction of the deposit, and so much of the surface of the land as is necessary for the purposes of such extraction. The term "mineral deposit" refers to the minerals in place. The taxpayer's interest in each separate mineral property is a separate "property." If the mineral deposit in which a taxpayer owns an economic interest extends beyond the boundaries of a single tract or parcel of land, a separate mineral property exists with respect to each tract or parcel of land into which the mineral deposit extends. Where two or more mineral properties are included in a single tract or parcel of land, the taxpayer's interest in such mineral properties may be considered to be a single "property," provided such treatment is consistently followed.

(2) The mineral property of a lessor need not necessarily be coextensive with the mineral property of the producer, but will be determined solely in the light of the economic interest owned by the lessor. For example, a lessor which owns a mineral property as described in this subsection may have leased one-half of such property to one lessee-producer, and the other half to another lessee-producer. The mineral property of each lessee would be limited to that portion of the property leased to it. The mineral property of the lessor would constitute the aggregate of the mineral property leased, unaffected by its subdivision for the purpose of the leasehold agreements. Similarly, an owner of a mineral property may have joined with another owner of an adjacent mineral property in a lease with a lessee in such manner that the lessee acquires a single mineral property. Nevertheless, insofar as the lessors are concerned, each is the owner of a separate mineral property.

(g) Alternative computation of exempt excess output for more than one mineral property. Section 453 (a) (10) provides that where more than one mineral property (as defined in paragraph (f) of this section) is owned or operated by a producer or lessor (as defined in paragraph (a) (1) and (2) of this section), such producer or lessor may elect to treat the mineral properties as one property for purposes of computing exempt excess output under section 453. The election shall be made in writing by a statement attached to Schedule EP (Form 1120). In the case of a taxpayer electing under section 453 (a) (10), the allowance for percentage depletion under section 23 (m) shall be computed in a manner consistent with such election for purposes of computing nontaxable income from exempt excess output under section 453 (b).

(h) Minerals. The term "minerals" means ores of the metals, coal, and such nonmetallic substances as abrasives, asbestos, asphaltum, barytes, borax, building stone, cement rock, clay, crushed stone, feldspar, fluorspar, fuller's earth, graphite, gravel, gypsum, limestone, magnesite, marl, mica, mineral pigments, peat, potash, precious stones, refractories, rock phosphate, salt, sand, shell, silica, slate, soapstone, soda, sulphur, and talc.

(i) Timber block. The term "timber block" means an operation unit which includes all the timber owned by the taxpayer during each year which would logically go to a single given point of manufacture. In those cases in which the point of manufacture is at a considerable distance, or in which the logs or other products will probably be sold in a log or other market, the block may be a logging unit which includes all of the taxpayer's timber which would logically be removed by a single logging development.

The timber block of a lessor need not necessarily be coextensive with the timber block of the producer, but will be determined solely in the light of the economic interest owned by the lessor in the same manner as in the case of a lessor of a mineral property. See paragraph (f) of this section.

(j) Normal unit profit—(1) In general. (i) The term "normal unit profit" means the average profit for the normal period per mineral unit for such period, determined by dividing the net income with respect to minerals recovered from the mineral property (computed with the allowance for depletion determined in accordance with the basis for depletion, cost basis depletion, discovery value depletion, or percentage depletion, applicable to the current taxable year) during the normal period by the total number of mineral units recovered from the mineral property during the normal period.

(ii) If two or more metals, coal, or nonmetallic substances are contained in the minerals extracted from a mineral property, a normal unit profit shall be established for each class of mineral unit. The normal unit profit for each class of mineral unit shall be determined by dividing the net income with respect to such type of metal, coal, or nonmetallic substance in the minerals recovered from the mineral property during the normal period by the total number of mineral units of such class for the normal period.

(2) Net income. (i) Net income with respect to minerals recovered from the mineral property (computed with the allowance for depletion) means the "gross income from the property" as defined in subparagraph (3) of this paragraph less the allowable deductions attributable to the mineral property with respect to which exempt excess output is computed and the allowable deductions attributable to the processes listed in subparagraph (3) of this paragraph insofar as they relate to the product of such property, including overhead and operating expenses, development costs properly charged to expense, depreciation, taxes, losses sustained, and including the allowance for depletion. The allowance for depletion shall be computed in accordance with the provisions of section 23 (m) and section 114 (b) and the regulations thereunder. The allowance for depletion for each year during the normal period shall, for the purposes of section 453, be computed upon the same basis used in computing the allowance for depletion during the taxable year for which the benefits of section 453 are claimed. Thus, if during the normal period the taxpayer computed the allowance for depletion with respect to a mineral property upon the cost basis, and if during each taxable year, for which the benefits of section 453 are claimed, the taxpayer computes the allowance for depletion based upon a percentage of income, the allowance for depletion for each year in the normal period shall be recomputed as a percentage of income under the law applicable to each such year. In cases where the taxpayer engages in activities in addition to mineral extraction and to the processes listed in subparagraph (3) of this paragraph, deductions for depreciation, taxes, general expenses, and overhead, which cannot be directly attributed to any specific activity, shall be fairly apportioned between (a) the mineral extraction and the processes listed in subparagraph (3) of this paragraph and (b) the additional activities, taking into account the ratio which the operating expenses directly attributable to the mineral extraction and the processes listed in subparagraph (3) of this paragraph bear to the operating expenses directly attributable to the additional activities. If more than one mineral property is involved, the deductions apportioned to the mineral extraction and the processes listed in subparagraph (3) of this paragraph shall, in turn, be fairly apportioned to the several properties, taking into account their relative production.

(ii) If two or more metals, coal, or nonmetallic substances are contained in the minerals extracted from a mineral property, a net income with respect to each type of metals, coal, or nonmetallic substance shall be established. Such net income shall be the gross income with respect to such type minus the allowable deductions for such year attributable to such type. The allowable deductions for any taxable year attributable to each type of metal, coal, or nonmetallic substance shall be computed as follows: There shall be determined an amount which bears the same ratio to the total allowable deductions (not including the allowance for depletion) attributable to the mineral property from which the minerals containing such type of metal, coal, or nonmetallic substance has been recovered, as the gross income from such type of metal, coal, or nonmetallic substance bears to the total gross income from such property. To this amount shall be added the allowance for depletion computed with respect to such type of metal, coal, or nonmetallic substance.

(3) Gross income from the property. (i) For the purpose of section 453, the term "gross income from the property" for any year in the normal period means the gross income from mining. The term "mining" as used herein includes not only the extraction of ores or minerals from the ground but also the ordinary treatment processes which are normally applied by the mine owners or operators to the crude mineral product after extraction in order to obtain the commercially marketable mineral product or products, and so much of the transportation of ores or minerals (whether or not by common carrier) from the point of extraction from the ground to the plants or mills in which the ordinary treatment processes are applied thereto as is not in excess of 50 miles unless the taxpayer establishes to the satisfaction of the Commissioner that the physical and other requirements are such that the ore or minerals must be transported a greater distance to such plants or mills.

(ii) If the taxpayer sells the crude mineral product of the property in the immediate vicinity of the mine, "gross income from the property" means the amount for which such product was sold, but, if the product is transported or processed (other than by the ordinary treatment processes described below) before sale, "gross income from the property" means the representative market or field price (as of the date of sale) of a mineral product of like kind and grade as beneficiated by the ordinary treatment processes actually applied, before transportation of such product. If there is no such representative market or field price (as of the date of sale), then there shall be used in lieu thereof the representative market or field price of the first marketable product resulting from any process or processes (or, if the product in its crude mineral state is merely transported, the price for which sold) minus the costs and proportionate profits attributable to the transportation and the processes beyond the ordinary treatment processes. If the taxpayer establishes to the satisfaction of the Commissioner that another method of computation, other than the computation of profits proportionate to costs, clearly reflects the gross income from the property, then such gross income shall be computed by the use of such other method.

(iii) The term "ordinary treatment processes," as used in this section, shall include the following:

(a) In the case of coal—cleaning, breaking, sizing, and loading for shipment;

(b) In the case of sulphur—pumping to vats, cooling, breaking, and loading for shipment;

(c) In the case of iron ore, bauxite, ball and sagger clay, rock asphalt, and minerals which are customarily sold in the form of a crude mineral product—sorting, concentrating, and sintering to bring to shipping grade and form, and loading for shipment;

(d) In the case of lead, zinc, copper, gold, silver or fluorspar ores, potash, and ores which are not customarily sold in the form of the crude mineral product—crushing, grinding, and beneficiation by concentration (gravity, flotation, amalgamation, electrostatic, or magnetic), cyanidation, leaching, crystallization, precipitation, or by substantially equivalent processes or combination of processes used in the separation of extraction of the product or products from the ore. The furnacing of quicksilver ores is included in the term "ordinary treatment processes." The following processes are not included in the term "ordinary treatment processes": electrolytic deposition, roasting, thermal or electric smelting, refining, or substantially equivalent processes.

(iv) In case any of the ordinary treatment processes are not applied in the immediate vicinity of the mining district in which the mine is located, so much of the transportation of ores or minerals (whether or not by common carrier) from the point of extraction from the ground to the plants or mills in which the ordinary treatment processes are applied thereto as is not in excess of 50 miles (unless the taxpayer establishes to the satisfaction of the Commissioner that the physical and other requirements are such that the ore or minerals must be transported a greater distance to such plants or mills) shall be included in the sale price of the product to determine "gross income from the property." Where the plants or mills in which the ordinary treatment processes are applied are in excess of 50 miles from the point of extraction from the ground (and where the taxpayer fails to establish to the satisfaction of the Commissioner that the physical and other requirements are such that the ore or mineral must be transported a greater distance to such plants or mills) then costs incurred for transportation in excess of 50 miles to the processing location and, if transported by the taxpayer, the proportionate profits attributable to such transportation, should be subtracted from the sale price of the product to determine "gross income from the property." If the taxpayer establishes to the satisfaction of the Commissioner that another method of computation, other than the computation of profits proportionate to costs, clearly reflects the gross income from the property, then such gross income shall be computed by the use of such other method.

(v) There shall be excluded in determining the "gross income from the property," for each year in the normal period, an amount equal to any rents or royalties which were paid or incurred by the taxpayer in respect of the property and were not otherwise excluded from the "gross income from the property." If royalties in the form of bonus payments were paid in respect of the property in a taxable year in the normal period or any prior years, or if advanced royalties were paid in respect of the property in any taxable year ending prior to December 31, 1939, the amount excluded from "gross income from the property" for a taxable year in the normal period on account of such payments shall be an amount equal to that part of such payments which is allocable to the product sold during the taxable year.

(vi) If the taxpayer paid rents, royalties, or bonuses with respect to the mineral property during the normal period, and in a taxable year for which the benefits of section 453 are claimed owns an economic interest in such property which does not require the payments of rents, royalties, or bonus payments, the amount of such rents, royalties, and bonuses paid during the normal period shall, for the purposes of section 453, not be deducted in the computation of the gross income from the property. If the taxpayer paid rents, royalties, or bonuses with respect to the mineral property during the normal period and in a taxable year for which the benefits of section 453 are claimed pays rents, royalties, or bonuses in amounts different from those paid during the normal period because of a change in its economic interest, the gross income from the property during the normal period shall be recomputed as if the new contractual terms pursuant to which the new rents, royalties, or bonuses are paid had been in effect during the normal period. If the economic interest of the taxpayer during the normal period was such that it did not pay rents, royalties, or bonuses, but such interest has changed so that during the taxable year for which the benefits of section 453 are claimed the taxpayer pays rents, royalties, or bonuses, the gross income from the property during the normal period shall be recomputed as if the contractual agreement pursuant to which rents, royalties, or bonuses are paid during the taxable year were in full force and effect during the normal period. If the economic interest of a person other than the taxpayer in the mineral property during any year in the normal period was different from the economic interest of the taxpayer in the taxable year for which the benefits of section 453 are claimed, the gross income of such person from the property during such normal period year shall be recomputed as if its economic interest in the mineral property were the same as the economic interest of the taxpayer in the taxable year for which the benefits of section 453 are claimed.

(vii) If two or more metals, coal, or nonmetallic substances are contained in the minerals extracted from a mineral property, the gross income from such property shall be allocated to each type of metal, coal, or nonmetallic substance for which a separate mineral unit is established. If the gross income from the property is determined by excluding the costs and proportionate profits attributable to transportation and to processes other than the ordinary treatment processes listed above, or if such gross income is an amount different from the gross proceeds received from the sale of the minerals, the gross income attributable to each type of metal, coal, or nonmetallic substance shall be an amount which bears the same ratio to the gross income from the property which the gross proceeds received from the sale of such type of metal, coal, or nonmetallic substance in the minerals bears to the total gross proceeds received from the sales of all such types.

(viii) In the case of a lessor, the computation of normal unit profit shall be made in a manner similar to that in the case of a producer except that the number of mineral units to be used in the computation of normal unit profit shall be the aggregate of the number of mineral units which were paid for during the normal period. If the lessor's economic interest in the mineral property during the taxable year for which the benefits of section 453 are claimed is different from what it was during the normal period, the gross income of the lessor from the property during the normal period shall be recomputed as if the lessor's economic interest which existed during the taxable year likewise existed in full force and effect during the normal period.

(k) Estimated recoverable units. (1) The term "estimated recoverable units" means the estimated number of units of metal, coal, or nonmetallic substances in the estimated recoverable minerals from the mineral property at the end of the taxable year for which the benefits of section 453 are claimed plus the excess output for such year. If the number of recoverable units of metal, coal, and nonmetallic substances in the minerals in the property have been previously estimated for the prior year or years, and if there has been no known change in the facts upon which the prior estimate was based, the number of recoverable units of metal, coal, and nonmetallic substances in the minerals in the property as of the taxable year will be the number remaining from the prior estimate. Thus, the recoverable units estimated to remain at the end of a taxable year shall be computed, generally, as the estimated recoverable units as of the beginning of the taxable year minus the output for the year. In any case in which it is ascertained either by the taxpayer or the Commissioner as the result of operations or development work prior to the close of the taxable year that the remaining recoverable mineral units are materially greater or less than the number remaining from the prior estimate, the estimate of the remaining recoverable units shall be revised and the revised estimate will be used for the purposes of computing exempt excess output under the provisions of section 453 (a) (12) and (e) of this section unless a change in the facts requires another revision. Regardless of the method of determining the estimated number of units of metal, coal, or nonmetallic substances in the estimated recoverable minerals from the mineral property at the end of the taxable year, the estimated recoverable units for the purposes of section 453 shall be the number of such units plus the excess output for such year. The estimated number of units of metal, coal, or nonmetallic substances in the estimated recoverable minerals means the metal, coal, or nonmetallic substance content of the minerals, and not the estimated recoverable units of the minerals which are the ores of the metals, coal, or nonmetallic substances. The estimated recoverable units from any mineral property shall be determined with respect to each type of metal, coal, or nonmetallic substance in the estimated recoverable minerals and shall not be determined as the aggregate of all classes of mineral units attributable to all such types of metal, coal, or nonmetallic substances. As to the determination of the estimated recoverable units of mineral products, see § 29.23 (m)–9 of Regulations 111.

(2) All estimates of recoverable units of metal, coal, and nonmetallic substances in the estimated recoverable minerals from the mineral property shall be subject to the approval of the Commissioner, and the determination of the Commissioner for the purposes of section 453 shall be final and conclusive.

(l) Exempt excess output. (1) The term "exempt excess output" for any taxable year means a number of units equal to the following percentages of the excess output for such year:

100 percent if the excess output exceeds 50 percent of the estimated recoverable units;

95 percent if the excess output exceeds 33⅓ but not 50 percent of the estimated recoverable units;

90 percent if the excess output exceeds 25 but not 33⅓ percent of the estimated recoverable units;

85 percent if the excess output exceeds 20 but not 25 percent of the estimated recoverable units;

80 percent if the excess output exceeds 16⅔ but not 20 percent of the estimated recoverable units;

60 percent if the excess output exceeds 14⅔ but not 16⅔ percent of the estimated recoverable units;

40 percent if the excess output exceeds 12½ but not 14⅔ percent of the estimated recoverable units;

30 percent if the excess output exceeds 10 but not 12½ percent of the estimated recoverable units;

20 percent if the excess output exceeds 5 but not 10 percent of the estimated recoverable units.

(2) Since the excess output and the estimated recoverable units, in the case of a mineral property from which are extracted minerals containing two or more types of metal, coal, or nonmetallic substances, shall be determined with respect to the mineral units comprising the excess output and the mineral units contained in the estimated recoverable units for each separate type of metal, coal, or nonmetallic substance, the percentage which the excess output is of the estimated recoverable units shall be based upon the excess output and the estimated recoverable units of each separate type and shall not be computed with respect to the aggregate of all classes of mineral units. The percentage so determined with respect to each separate type of metal, coal, or nonmetallic substance shall then be multiplied by the excess output of such type of metal, coal, or nonmetallic substance in the minerals recovered from the mineral property, and the product of the two shall be considered the exempt excess output of that type of metal, coal, or nonmetallic substance.

(m) Unit net income. (1) The term "unit net income" means the amount of net income per mineral unit of coal or ore or per timber unit for any taxable year for which the benefits of section 453 are claimed. It is ascertained by dividing the net income (computed with the allowance for depletion used in computing net income for normal tax and surtax purposes for such year) from the coal or ore, or the timber, recovered during the taxable year from the mining property, or the timber block, as the case may be, by the number of mineral units contained in the coal or ore recovered from such mining property or by the number of timber units recovered from such timber block, in such year. With respect to a natural gas company, the term "unit net income" means the amount of net income per natural gas unit for any taxable year for which the benefits of section 453 are claimed. It is ascertained by dividing the net income from the natural gas property during such taxable year by the number of natural gas units sold in such year.

(2) For the purpose of section 453 (a) (13) and section 453 (b) (2), a coal mining property shall include the aggregate of all tracts or parcels of land containing coal deposits in which economic interests were owned, and from which coal was extracted, by the taxpayer at any time after the beginning of the normal period (excluding, however, any tract or parcel of land in which an economic interest was acquired, and from which coal was extracted, by any other person subsequent to the last date of ownership and operation by the taxpayer) to the extent that the coal extracted therefrom by the taxpayer was processed at a single preparation plant, regardless of whether the economic interest in one such tract or parcel of land differed from that in another. The coal mining property of a lessor is the tract or parcel of land containing coal deposits in which an economic interest is owned by the lessor. It need not necessarily be coextensive with the coal mining property in the case of the producer.

(3) For the purpose of section 453 (a) (13) and section 453 (b) (2), a metal mining property shall include the aggregate of all tracts or parcels of land containing ore deposits in which economic interests were owned, and from which ore was extracted, by the taxpayer at any time after the beginning of the normal period (excluding, however, any tract or parcel of land in which an economic interest was acquired, and from which ore was extracted, by any other person subsequent to the last date of ownership and operation by the taxpayer) to the extent that such tracts or parcels of land were operated by the taxpayer as an operation unit, regardless of whether the economic interest in one tract or parcel of land differed from that in another. The metal mining property of a lessor is the tract or parcel of land containing ore deposits in which an economic interest is owned by the lessor. It need not necessarily be coextensive with the metal mining property in the case of the producer.

(4) The net income (computed with the allowance for depletion) from the coal or the ore recovered from the mining property during a taxable year for which the benefits of section 453 (b) (2) are claimed shall be the net income from the mining property from which such coal or ore is recovered, computed in a manner similar to that described in paragraph (j) of this section with respect to a mineral property as if such mining property were a mineral property, except that the amount of depletion allowed in the computation of such net income shall be computed according to sections 23 (m) and 114, and the regulations thereunder.

(5) The determination of net income from a timber block for a taxable year must be made with respect to each timber block separately and cannot be made with respect to the aggregate of the timber blocks owned by the taxpayer. Net income from timber recovered from a timber block (computed with the allowance for depletion) means the net income attributable to timber and logging operations, not including transportation of the logs to the log or other market. That portion of the taxpayer's net income attributable to transportation or to manufacturing or remanufacturing, if the taxpayer which is a producer of logs from a timber block carries its operations beyond the logging stage, must be eliminated. If the taxpayer is engaged in activities in addition to timber and logging operations, the net income attributable to timber recovered from a timber block shall be computed as provided in subparagraph (6) of this paragraph.

(6) Net income from timber recovered from a timber block (computed with the allowance for depletion) means the gross income from the timber block as defined in subparagraph (7) of this paragraph, less the allowable deductions attributable to the timber block with respect to which exempt excess output is computed and the allowable deductions attributable to timbering and logging operations, but not including transportation of the logs to the log or other market, insofar as they relate to logs cut by the taxpayer from the timber block, including overhead and operating expenses, development costs properly charged to expense, depreciation, taxes, losses sustained, and including the allowance for depletion. The allowance for depletion shall be that used in computing net income for the taxable year. In cases where the taxpayer engages in activities in addition to timbering and logging operations, including in such additional activities transportation of the logs to the log or other market, deductions for depreciation, taxes, general expenses, and overhead which cannot be directly attributed to any specific activity shall be fairly apportioned between (i) the timber and logging operations, and (ii) the additional activities, taking into account the ratio which the operating expenses directly attributable to the timber and logging operations bear to the operating expenses directly attributable to the additional activities. If more than one timber block is involved, the deductions apportioned to the timber and logging operations shall, in turn, be fairly apportioned to the several timber blocks, taking into account their relative production.

(7) (i) Gross income from the timber block means the amount for which the taxpayer sold the timber or the logs in the immediate vicinity of the timber block, but if the logs were transported or processed or manufactured or remanufactured before sale, it means the representative market or field price (as of the date of sale) of logs of like kind and grade before such transportation, processing, manufacture, or remanufacture. If there was no such representative market or field price (as of the date of sale), then there shall be used in lieu thereof the representative market or field price of the first marketable product resulting from any processing, manufacture, or remanufacture (or, if the logs were merely transported, the price for which sold) minus the costs and proportionate profits attributable to the transportation and the processes, manufacture, and remanufacture. If the taxpayer establishes to the satisfaction of the Commissioner that another method of computation, other than the computation of profits proportionate to costs, clearly reflects the gross income from the timber blocks, then such gross income shall be computed by the use of such other method.

(ii) In all cases there shall be excluded in determining the gross income from the timber block an amount equal to any rents or royalties which were paid or incurred by the taxpayer in respect of the timber block and are not otherwise excluded from the gross income from the timber block. If royalties in the form of bonus payments have been paid in respect of the timber block in the taxable year or any prior years or if advanced royalties have been paid in respect of the property in any taxable year ending prior to December 31, 1939, the amount excluded from gross income from the timber block for the current taxable year on account of such payments shall be an amount equal to that part of such payments which is allocable to the product sold during the taxable year. If advanced royalties have been paid in respect of the timber block in any taxable year ending on or after December 31, 1939, the amount excluded from gross income from the timber block for the current taxable year on account of such payments shall be an amount equal to the deduction for such taxable year taken on account of such payments pursuant to the rules provided in § 29.23 (m)–10 (e) of Regulations 111 with respect to advanced royalties paid in the case of mineral properties.

(8) The determination of net income from the natural gas property must be made with respect to the entire natural gas property of the taxpayer as a single property and cannot be made separately with respect to portions of such property. If the natural gas company is engaged in other activities in addition to the withdrawal, storage, and transportation by pipeline of natural gas, the net income from the natural gas company shall not include the income attributable to such other activities. For example, if a natural gas company is engaged in the distribution of natural gas, in addition to the withdrawal, storage, and transportation by pipeline of such gas, that portion of the net income from the sales of the natural gas which is attributable to the distribution of such gas shall not be included in the net income from the natural gas property. For the purposes of this subsection, distribution means the piping of gas, which has been received by the distribution facilities either at the end of a pipeline or at some intermediate point along the line, to the ultimate consumer of such gas. Likewise, the net income from the natural gas property does not include any net income attributable to any portion of the property of the taxpayer which is an emergency facility. So also, income derived from leasing storage facilities to other taxpayers engaged in the withdrawal, or transportation by pipeline, of natural gas shall not be included in the determination of net income from the natural gas property. If the taxpayer derives income from activities other than the withdrawal of natural gas and the transportation of natural gas by pipeline, or is engaged in such withdrawal and transportation by using, in part, property which is not included in the natural gas property, as, for example, an emergency facility, the net income from the natural gas property shall be computed as provided below.

(9) Net income from a natural gas property means the gross income from such property as defined in this subsection less the allowable deductions attributable to such property, including overhead and operating expenses, development costs properly charged to expense, depreciation, taxes, losses sustained, and including the allowance for depletion, if any. Any allowance for depletion shall be that used in computing net income for the taxable year. Deductions for depreciation and amortization of operating equipment can be charged directly to natural gas property and other property. Taxes, general expense, and overhead, which cannot be directly attributed to the natural gas property or to other property shall be fairly apportioned between (i) the natural gas property, and (ii) the other property of the taxpayer, taking into account the ratio which the operating expenses directly attributable to the property constituting the natural gas property bears to the operating expenses directly attributable to the other property of the taxpayer.

(10) Gross income from the natural gas property means the aggregate of the gross income received from the sale of natural gas at the mouth of the well or from storage plants in which the natural gas was stored, and from the sale of natural gas at the end of, or at any intermediate point along, the pipeline. It does not include any income derived from the distribution of natural gas after its transportation by pipeline. In the case of a natural gas company which transports natural gas by pipeline to a city and then distributes such gas within the city, the city gate shall be considered the end of the process of transportation by pipeline, and shall be considered the point at which distribution begins. In such a case, the market price at the city gate for the natural gas transported to that point, and subsequently sold, shall be considered to be the gross income from transportation by pipeline of such natural gas. If there is no market price at the city gate or if there is no city gate, the gross income from the natural gas property shall be determined by deducting from the gross income from the sale of such gas the costs and proportionate profits attributable to the local distribution within the city. If the taxpayer establishes to the satisfaction of the Commissioner that another method of computation, other than the computation of profits proportionate to costs, clearly reflects the gross income from the natural gas property, then such gross income shall be computed by the use of such other method.

(11) If any emergency facilities were used in the withdrawal, storage, or transportation of the natural gas, the gross income from the natural gas property shall be the gross income less the costs and proportionate profits attributable to the emergency facilities. Such proportionate profits shall be computed in the same manner as proportionate profits attributable to distribution facilities.

(12) In all cases there shall be excluded in determining gross income from the natural gas property an amount equal to any rents or royalties which were paid or incurred by the taxpayer in respect of the natural gas property and are not otherwise excluded from the gross income or deducted in computing the net income from the natural gas property. The treatment of royalties in the form of bonus payments or advanced royalties in respect to the natural gas property shall be the same as in the case of such royalties with respect to mineral properties. See paragraph (j) of this section.

(13) The net income from the coal or ore from the mining property, or from the timber block, or from the natural gas property shall be computed with the deduction of any net operating loss deduction attributable to the coal or ore from the mining property, to the timber block, or to the natural gas property. Such net operating loss deduction shall be determined by computing the net operating loss for any taxable year under section 122 (a), the net operating loss carry-overs and carry-backs under section 122 (b), and the adjustment under section 122 (c), as adjusted by section 433 (a) (1) (J), in accordance with the principles of determining net income from the coal or ore from the mining property, from the timber block, or from the natural gas property set forth in this paragraph.

(14) In the case of a lessor of a mining property or a timber block, the computation of unit net income shall be made in a manner similar to that in the case of a producer except that the number of mineral units or timber units to be used in the computation of unit net income shall be the number of mineral units or timber units which were paid for during the taxable year.

§ 40.453–3 Nontaxable income from exempt excess output. Nontaxable income from exempt excess output is excluded in the computation of excess profits net income under section 433 (a) (1) (I) and is determined as follows:

(a) General rule. (1) If the excess output of a mineral property which was in operation during the normal period exceeds 5 percent of the estimated recoverable units from such mineral property, computed as provided in § 40.453–2 (k) the nontaxable income from exempt excess output shall be an amount equal to the exempt excess output for such year (computed under § 40.453–2 (l)) multiplied by the normal unit profit (computed under § 40.453–2 (j)). In no event shall the amount of nontaxable income from exempt excess output exceed the net income (computed with the allowance for depletion) attributable to the excess output for such year. The net income attributable to excess output shall be that percentage of the net income from the mineral property which the excess output for the taxable year is of the total output for the taxable year. The net income from the mineral property shall be computed in accordance with the rules provided in § 40.453–2 (j) for the computation of net income from the mineral property for a taxable year in the normal period.

(2) If mineral units are determined for two or more tyes of metals, coal, or nonmetallic substances, the nontaxable income shall be determined with respect to the exempt excess output of each type of metal, coal, or nonmetallic substance. In no event shall nontaxable income from exempt excess output be determined with respect to any such type unless the mineral property was in operation during the normal period and unless the excess output of such type exceeds 5 percent of the estimated recoverable units of such type of metal, coal, or nonmetallic substance in the mineral property.

(3) If the minerals recovered from a mineral property contain two or more types of metals, coal, or nonmetallic substances, the nontaxable income from exempt excess output of such property for a taxable year shall be the aggregate of the nontaxable incomes from exempt excess output of each type of metal, coal, or nonmetallic substance. The nontaxable income from exempt excess output of each type of metal, coal, or nonmetallic substance shall be an amount equal to the exempt excess output of such type of metal, coal, or nonmetallic substance (see § 40.453–2 (l) multiplied by the normal unit profit for such type (see § 40.453–2 (j)). The nontaxable income from exempt excess output attributable to each type of metal, coal, or nonmetallic substance shall not exceed the net income (computed with the allowance for depletion) attributable to the excess output of such type for the taxable year. The net income attributable to the excess output of each type of mineral unit shall be determined as follows: The net income attributable to the mineral property for the taxable year shall be fairly allocated to each type of metal, coal, or nonmetallic substance contained in the minerals recovered from the mineral property in such year in accordance with the principles set forth in § 40.453–2 (j). The amount so allocated shall be divided by the total number of mineral units of such type of metal, coal, or nonmetallic substance for the taxable year, and the amount so determined shall be multiplied by the excess output of the mineral units of such type, determined in accordance with § 40.453–2 (c), for the year.

(4) The provisions of this paragraph may be illustrated by the following examples:

Example (1). Assume that the taxpayer, which is on the calendar year basis, owns a mineral property from which is extracted a mineral containing one nonmetallic substance. The total output of such property during the four calendar years in the normal period, the first of which began in 1946, was 416,000 tons and the aggregate of the net incomes for such years (including the allowance for depletion computed upon the same basis as for the year 1950) was $1,248,000. The normal output is 104,000 tons and the normal unit profit is $3 per ton. During 1950 minerals containing 200,000 tons of the nonmetallic substance were extracted from the property at a unit profit of $3.50 per ton. The net income for such year was $700,000. As of December 31, 1950, it is estimated that 1,000,000 tons of the nonmetallic substance remained in the mineral property. The amount of nontaxable income from exempt excess output to be excluded in the computation of excess profits net income for 1950 is $57,600, computed as follows:

1. Normal output (tons)	104,000
2. Output for 1950 (tons)	200,000
3. Excess output for 1950 (tons)	96,000
4. Estimated recoverable units for 1950 (1,000,000 tons plus item 3)	1,096,000
5. Percentage which item 3 is of item 4 (percent)	8.8
6. Percentage of item 3 to be used in computing exempt excess output (percent)	20
7. Exempt excess output for 1950 (tons) (item 3 times item 6)	19,200
8. Normal unit profit (per ton)	$3.00
9. Nontaxable income from exempt excess output (item 8 times item 7, but not in excess of item 12)	$57,600.00
10. Net income or 1950	$700,000.00
11. Unit net income for 1950 (per ton) (item 10 divided by item 2)	$3.50
12. Net income attributable to excess output for 1950 (item 3 times item 11)	$336,000.00

Example (2). Corporation A, which is on a calendar year basis, owns a mineral property from which it extracts minerals containing gold and silver. The output of silver for each of its four normal period years was 2,500,000 ounces, and of gold was 12,500 ounces. The "gross income from the property" for each normal period year was the sum of the net smelter returns of $1,500,000 received for silver and $437,500 for gold, a total of $1,937,500. Allowable deductions, excluding the allowance for depletion, amounted to $1,000,000. Of the amount of such deductions, $774,193.55 represented the amount allocable to silver production $\left(\frac{1,500,000}{1,937,500} \text{ times } $1,000,000\right)$ and $225,806.45 represented the amount allocable to gold production $\left(\frac{437,500}{1,937,500} \text{ times } $1,000,000\right)$. The net income from the mineral property (computed without the allowance for depletion) was $725,806.45 attributable to silver and $211,693.55 attributable to gold. The allowance for percentage depletion computed with respect to silver mining was $225,000 (15 percent of $1,500,000 but not in excess of 50 percent of $725,806.45); the allowance for such depletion computed with respect to gold mining was $65,625 (15 percent of $437,500 but not in excess of 50 percent of $211,693.55). For 1950, the total output of silver was 4,800,000 ounces and of gold was 8,000 ounces. The "gross income from the property" for 1950 was the sum of the net smelter returns of $3,360,000 received for silver and $280,000 received for gold, a total of $3,640,000. Allowable deductions, excluding the allowance for depletion, amounted to $1,280,000. Of the amount of such deductions, $1,181,538.46 represented the amount allocable to silver production $\left(\frac{3,360,000}{3,640,000} \text{ times } $1,280,000\right)$ and $98,461.54 represented the amount allocable to gold production $\left(\frac{280,000}{3,640,000} \text{ times } $1,280,000\right)$. The net income from the mineral property (computed without the allowance for depletion) was $2,178,461.54 attributable to silver and $181,538.46 attributable to gold. The allowance for percentage depletion computed with respect to silver mining was $504,000 (15 percent of $3,360,000 but not in excess of 50 percent of $2,178,461.54); the allowance for such depletion computed with respect to gold mining was $42,000 (15 percent of $280,000 but not in excess of 50 percent of $181,538.46). It is estimated that as of December 31, 1950, there were 19,200,000 units of silver and 32,000 units of gold remaining in the mineral property. There is no nontaxable income from exempt excess output of gold, since the normal output exceeds the 1950 output of that metal. The nontaxable income from exempt excess output of silver is $138,220.80, computed as follows:

	Silver	Gold
1. Normal output (ounces):
a. Silver (10,000,000 divided by 4)	2,500,000
b. Gold (50,000 divided by 4)		12,500
2. Output for 1950 (ounces)	4,800,000	8,000
3. Excess output (item 1a or 1b, minus item 2)	2,300,000	0
4. Estimated recoverable units as of Dec. 31, 1950 (ounces):
a. Silver (19,200,000 plus 2,300,000)	21,500,000
b. Gold (32,000 plus 0)		32,000
5. Percentage which item 3 is of item 4a or 4b (percent)	10.7
6. Percentage of item 3 to be used in computing exempt excess output (percent)	30
7. Exempt excess output (ounces) (item 3 times item 6)	690,000
8. Normal unit profit per ounce (item 17)	$0.20032	$11.68548
9. Nontaxable income from exempt excess output (item 7 times item 8) but not in excess of item 24	138,220.80	0
Normal unit profit
10. Gross income from the mineral property for each normal period year	1,500,000.00	437,500.00
11. Allowable deductions (excluding allowance for depletion) for each normal period year	774,193.55	225,806.45
12. Net income from the mineral property (excluding allowance for depletion) for each normal period year	725,806.45	211,693.55
13. Allowance for percentage depletion	225,000.00	65,625.00
14. Net income from the mineral property for each normal period year	500,806.45	146,068.55
15. Aggregate net income from the mineral property for the normal period	2,003,225.80	584,274.20
16. Aggregate mineral units recovered during normal period (ounces)	10,000,000	50,000
17. Normal unit profit (item 15 divided by item 16)	$0.20032	$11.68548
Net income attributable to excess output
18. Gross income from the mineral property for 1950	3,360,000.00	280,000.00
19. Allowable deductions (excluding allowance for depletion) for 1950	1,181,538.46	98,461.54
20. Net income from the mineral property (excluding allowance for depletion) for 1950	2,178,461.54	181,538.46
21. Allowance for percentage depletion	504,000.00	42,000.00
22. Net income from the mineral property for 1950	1,674,461.54	139,538.46
23. Unit net income for 1950 (item 22 divided by item 2)	0.348846	17.4423
24. Net income attributable to excess output (item 3 times item 23)	802,345.80	0

(5) If income attributable to a strategic mineral as defined in section 450 is exempt from the excess profits tax pursuant to the provisions of such section, nontaxable income from exempt excess output of such strategic mineral shall not be computed for the purposes of section 453 (b) (1) or of section 433 (a) (1) (I). The portion of gross income and allowable deductions attributable to such strategic mineral shall be excluded from the net income from the mineral property in determining the net income attributable to other metals or nonmetallic substances in the minerals recovered from such mineral property for the normal period and for the taxable year for which the benefits of sections 453 are claimed.

(b) Metal and coal mines. (1) The nontaxable income from exempt excess output of a metal or coal mining property which was in operation during the normal period shall be whichever of the following amounts the taxpayer elects—

(i) An amount equal to the the excess output of such metal or coal mining property, determined under this subsection, for such year multiplied by one-half of the unit net income determined under § 40.453–2 (m) from such property for such year, or

(ii) An amount determined under paragraph (a) of this section.

In order to elect the amount provided in subdivision (i) of this subparagraph, the excess output of the metal or coal mining property (as defined in § 40.453–2 (m)) which was in operation during the normal period need not exceed 5 percent of the estimated recoverable units in such property. As to the election with respect to the amount provided in this subdivision, see section 453 (b) (1) and paragraph (a) of this section.

(2) For the purposes of the computation of the amount described in subdivision (i) of subparagraph (1) of this paragraph for a taxable year—

(i) A metal mining property or a coal mining property (as defined in § 40.453–2 (m)) shall be considered to have been in operation during the normal period if any part of such property was in operation for six months or more during the normal period.

(ii) The excess output of a metal mining property or a coal mining property which was in operation during the normal period shall be computed upon the basis of the metal mining property or the coal mining property and shall be the excess of the aggregate of the mineral units extracted from such metal mining or coal mining property during the taxable year over the normal output of such property. The normal output of a metal mining property or a coal mining property shall be computed with respect to such property in a manner similar to that described in § 40.453–2 (d) with respect to a mineral property, as if such metal mining property or coal mining property were a mineral property.

(3) The election pursuant to section 453 (b) and this paragraph shall be made in a statement attached to Schedule EP (Form 1120) accompanying the income tax return, filed on or before the last day required by law for the filing of such return, for the taxable year for which the benefits of section 453 are claimed. The last day required by law for the filing of such return includes the last day of the period of any extension of time granted for such filing. Such election must be made for each taxable year for which the benefits of section 453 (b) (2) are claimed. An election made with respect to a taxable year to compute nontaxable income from exempt excess output pursuant to the provisions of section 453 (b) (2) and subparagraph (1) (i) of this paragraph does not preclude the taxpayer from electing for a subsequent year to compute nontaxable income pursuant to the provisions of section 453 (b) (1) and paragraph (a) of this section provided the taxpayer satisfies the requirements there provided, and vice versa. For any taxable year for which an election is made under section 453 (b) (2) and this paragraph, such election shall be made by the taxpayer by attaching to Schedule EP (Form 1120) a statement showing the method of computation and the amount of nontaxable income from exempt excess output elected under the provisions of section 453 (b) (2) and this paragraph. If the taxpayer has failed so to elect or desires to change its election, such election or change in election may, subject to the approval of the Commissioner, be made by the taxpayer filing with the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Washington, D. C., within the period of limitations for the filing of claims for credit or refund with respect to the year or years involved, a notice of its election or change in election accompanied by a recomputation of its income and excess profits taxes for such years. If the recomputation results in an overpayment for any of such years, the taxpayer should file a claim for refund on Form 843 in accordance with the provisions of section 322.

(4) The provisions of this paragraph may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. Assume that during the taxable year 1950 a corporation owned several tracts of land containing coal deposits which it had operated for more than six months during the normal period. During the taxable year 1950, the coal extracted by the taxpayer from such land was processed at a single preparation plant, so that for the purposes of the computation provided by subparagraph (1) of this paragraph such land constitutes a coal mining property. The normal output of the coal mining property was 350,000 tons. The output for the calendar year 1950 was 450,000 tons. The net income from the coal mining property during 1950 was $103,500. Assume that for the year 1950, the corporation elected to compute an amount of nontaxable income from exempt excess output of the coal mining property under the rule prescribed by subparagraph (1) (i) of this paragraph rather than under subparagraph (1) (ii) of this paragraph. Such amount of nontaxable income from the exempt excess output would be $11,500, computed as follows:

1. Normal output (tons)	350,000
2. Output for 1950 (tons)	450,000
3. Excess output (tons) (item 2 less item 1)	100,000
4. Net income from coal extracted from coal mining property in 1950	$103,500.00
5. Unit net income per ton for 1950 (item 4 divided by item 2)	$0.23
6. Nontaxable income from exempt excess output computed pursuant to section 453 (b) (2) and without regard to section 453 (b) (1) (item 3 times one-half of item 5)	$11,500.00

(c) Timber properties. (1) The nontaxable income from exempt excess output of a timber block which was in operation during the normal period shall be an amount equal to the excess output of such timber block for such year, determined under § 40.453–2 (c), multiplied by one-half of the unit net income from such timber block for such year, determined under § 40.453–2 (m).

(2) The provisions of this paragraph may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. Assume that the normal unit output of a timber block operated by Corporation T during the normal period was 20,000,000 board feet log scale. The output of timber units for the taxable year 1950 was 32,000,000 board feet log scale and the net income attributable to the timber block, and to timber and logging operations, not including transportation, was $320,000. The nontaxable income from exempt excess output of the timber block for 1950 is $60,000, computed as follows:

1. Normal output (M board feet log scale)	20,000
2. Timber units for 1950 (M board feet log scale)	32,000
3. Excess output (M board feet log scale)	12,000
4. Net income from timber block for 1950	$320,000
5. Unit net income per M board feet log scale for 1950 (item 4 divided by item 2)	$10
6. Nontaxable income from exempt excess output computed pursuant to section 453 (b) (3) (item 3 multiplied by one-half of item 5)	$60,000

§ 40.453–4 Mines, timber properties, and natural gas properties not in operation during normal period. In the case of a metal mining property, a coal mining property, a timber block, or a natural gas property which was not in operation during the normal period, nontaxable income from exempt excess output is excluded under section 433 (a) (1) (I) in the computation of excess profits net income. For the purposes of the preceding sentence, a metal mining property shall be deemed not to have been in operation during the normal period if, during the period it was in production during 1946, 1947, 1948, and 1949, the aggregate gross income derived therefrom was less than the aggregate of the deductions (allowed under section 23 without regard to any net operating loss deduction) attributable to such property during such period of production. Such nontaxable income from exempt excess output shall be an amount equal to one-third of the net income for the taxable year, computed with the allowance for depletion, from the metal mining property, coal mining property, timber block, or natural gas property as the case may be. Such net income shall be determined in accordance with the provisions of § 40.453–2 (m), relating to unit net income.

§ 40.453–5 Natural gas companies. In the case of a natural gas company, as defined in section 453 (a) (1) and section 40.453–2 (a) (3), any portion of the natural gas property of which, as defined in § 40.453–2 (e), was in operation for six months or more during the normal period regardless of whether such portion of such property is in operation during the taxable year, nontaxable income from exempt excess output is excluded in the computation of excess profits net income for any taxable year under section 433 (a) (1) (I). Such nontaxable income from exempt excess output shall be an amount equal to the excess output of such natural gas property for the taxable year determined under § 40.453–2 (c) multiplied by one-half of the unit net income from such natural gas property for such year determined under § 40.453–2 (m).

§ 40.453–6 Nontaxable bonus income. (a) The term "nontaxable bonus income" means the amount of the income derived from bonus payments made by any agency of the United States Government on account of the production in excess of a specified quota of either of the following:

(1) A mineral product or timber, if the exhaustion of the mineral property or the timber block from which such product or timber was recovered gives rise to an allowance for depletion under section 23 (m). Such amount, however, shall not exceed the net income (computed with the allowance for depletion) attributable to the output in excess of the quota. Such net income so attributable shall be an amount which bears the same ratio to the net income from the mineral property, computed as provided in § 40.453–2 (j), or the net income from the timber block, computed as provided in § 40.453–2 (m), as the output in excess of the quota bears to the total number of mineral units or timber units produced for the taxable year. If the taxpayer establishes to the satisfaction of the Commissioner that another method of computation clearly reflects the net income attributable to the output in excess of the quota, the net income so attributable shall be computed by the use of such other method. If two or more metals, coal, or nonmetallic substances are contained in the minerals recovered from a mineral property, nontaxable bonus income must be determined with respect to each such metal, coal, or nonmetallic substance, and net income from the property must be allocated fairly between each type of metal, coal, or nonmetallic substance. In the case of any such bonus paid with respect to any such type of metal, coal, or nonmetallic substance the nontaxable bonus income shall not exceed the net income attributable to the output in excess of the specified quota of such type. Such net income shall be an amount which bears the same ratio to the net income attributable to such type of metal, coal, or nonmetallic substance as the output in excess of the quota established for such type bears to the number of mineral units of such type produced for the taxable year. If the taxpayer establishes to the satisfaction of the Commissioner that another method of computation clearly reflects the net income attributable to the output in excess of the quota established for such type, then the net income so attributable shall be computed by the use of such other method.

(2) A mineral product extracted or recovered from mine tailings by a corporation which does not own an economic interest in the mineral property from which the ore containing such tailings was mined. Such amount, however, shall not exceed the net income attributable to the output in excess of the quota. Such net income so attributable shall be an amount which bears the same ratio to the net income computed with respect to the mineral product extracted or recovered from the tailings as the number of mineral units in the output of the mineral product recovered or extracted from the tailings in excess of the quota bears to the total number of mineral units in the mineral product recovered or extracted from the tailings in the taxable year. If the taxpayer establishes to the satisfaction of the Commissioner that another method of computation clearly reflects the net income attributable to the output in excess of the quota, then the net income so attributable shall be computed by the use of such other method. Net income computed with respect to the mineral product extracted or recovered from mine tailings shall be computed pursuant to § 40.453–2 (j), except with respect to the allowance for depletion, as if such mine tailings were a mineral property.

(b) The provisions of this section may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. Corporation C, which is on the calendar year basis, owns a mineral property from which it extracts copper ore. The output of copper for each of the four normal period years was 4,380,000 pounds. The 1950 output of copper was 5,500,000 pounds. With respect to Corporation C, a 1950 quota of 4,000,000 pounds of copper was established and a bonus of $0.05 per pound was paid for above quota production. The "gross income from the property" for 1950 was the sum of the net smelter returns, $660,000, and the bonus payments of $75,000, a total of $735,000. Allowable deductions, excluding the allowance for depletion, amounted to $579,700. Net income from the property, without regard to the allowance for depletion, was $155,300. Percentage depletion amounted to $77,650 (15 percent of $735,000 but not in excess of 50 percent of $155,300). As of December 31, 1950, it was estimated that 35,000,000 pounds of copper remained in the mineral property. Since the excess output for 1950 did not exceed 5 percent of the estimated recoverable units for 1950, nontaxable income from exempt excess output is not authorized by section 453 (b) (1). The amount of nontaxable bonus income for 1950 is $21,177 computed as follows:

1. Normal output (pounds) (17,520,000 divided by 4)	4,380,000
2. Output for 1950 (pounds)	5,500,000
3. Excess output for 1950 (pounds) (item 2 minus item 1)	1,120,000
4. Estimated recoverable units for 1950 (pounds) (35,000,000 plus item 3)	36,120,000
5. Percentage which item 3 is of item 4 (percent)	3.1
6. Gross income for 1950 from the mineral property	$735,000
7. Allowable deductions (excluding depletion)	579,700
8. Net income from the mineral property (excluding depletion)	155,300
9. Less percentage depletion	77,650
10. Net income for 1950 from the mineral property	77,650
11. Unit net income for 1950 (item 10 divided by item 2)	$0.014118
12. Quota for 1950 (pounds)	4,000,000
13. Above-quota production for 1950 (pounds) (item 2 minus item 12)	1,500,000
14. Net income attributable to above-quota production (item 13 times item 11)	$21,177
15. Bonus payments received	$75,000
16. Nontaxable bonus income (item 14 or item 15, whichever is the lesser)	$21,177

(c) If income attributable to a strategic mineral as defined in section 450 is exempt from excess profits tax pursuant to the provisions of such section, nontaxable bonus income attributable to such strategic mineral shall not be computed for the purposes of section 453 (c) or of section 433 (a) (1) (I). The portion of gross income and allowable deductions attributable to such strategic mineral shall be excluded from the net income from the mineral property in determining the net income attributable to other metals or nonmetallic substances in the minerals recovered from such mineral property for the normal period and for the taxable year for which the benefits of section 453 are claimed.

§ 40.453–7 Rule in case income from excess output includes bonus payment. (a) The nontaxable income attributable to exempt excess output pursuant to the provisions of section 453 (b) (1), (2), or (3) may include nontaxable bonus payments, as provided in section 453 (c). In such case, the taxpayer may elect to compute its nontaxable income attributable to the output in excess of the established quota as nontaxable income from exempt excess output pursuant to the appropriate provision of section 453 (b) and § 40.453–3 or as nontaxable bonus income pursuant to section 453 (c) and § 40.453–6. Such election shall be made in a statement attached to Schedule EP (Form 1120) accompanying the income tax return filed prior to the last day prescribed by law for the filing of such return for the taxable year for which the benefits of section 453 are claimed. The last day prescribed by law for the filing of the return includes the last day of the period of any extension granted for such filing. The election provided in section 453 (d) must be made for each taxable year for which income attributable to excess output includes bonus payments. An election made with respect to one taxable year to receive the benefits of nontaxable bonus income under section 453 (c) does not preclude the taxpayer from electing for a subsequent year to receive the benefits of nontaxable income from exempt excess output under section 453 (b), and vice versa. For any taxable year for which an election is made under section 453 (d) and this section, such election shall be made by the taxpayer by attaching to Schedule EP (Form 1120) accompanying its income tax return a statement showing the method of computation and the amount of nontaxable income from exempt excess output under section 453 (b) or of nontaxable bonus income under section 453 (c), whichever the taxpayer elects to exclude under section 433 (a) (1) (I) in the computation of excess profits net income. If the taxpayer has failed so to elect or desires to change its election, such election or change in election may, subject to the approval of the Commissioner, be made in an amended return filed by the taxpayer within the period of limitations for the filing of claims for credit or refund.

(b) The provisions of this section may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. Corporation P, which is on the calendar year basis, owns a mineral property from which is extracted minerals containing lead and silver. For each of the four taxable years in the normal period the output of lead was 1,000,000 pounds and of silver was 100,000 ounces. The "gross income from the property" for each year in the normal period was the sum of the net smelter returns of $50,000 received for lead and $70,000 for silver, a total of $120,000. Allowable deductions for each year, excluding the allowance for depletion, amounted to $40,000. Of the amount of such deductions $16,666.67 represented the amount allocable to lead production $\left(\frac{50,000}{120,000} \text{ times } $40,000\right)$ and $23,333.33 represented the amount allocable to silver production $\left(\frac{70,000}{120,000} \text{ times } $40,000\right)$. The net income from the mineral property (computed without the allowance for depletion) was $33,333.33 attributable to lead and $46,666.67 attributable to silver. The allowance for percentage depletion computed with respect to lead mining was $7,500 (15 percent of $50,000 but not in excess of 50 percent of $33,333.33); the allowance for such depletion computed with respect to silver mining was $10,500 (15 percent of $70,000 but not in excess of 50 percent of $46,666.67. For 1950, the output of lead was 1,600,000 pounds and of silver was 160,000 ounces. A quota of 900,000 pounds of lead was established with respect to the taxpayer and a bonus of $0.02¾ per pound was paid to the taxpayer with respect to production in excess of such quota. The "gross income from the property" for the year 1950 was $235,250 consisting of $123,250 attributable to lead (the sum of the net smelter returns of $104,000 received for lead and the bonus payment of $19,250 for above-quota production of lead) and $112,000 attributable to silver. Allowable deductions for the year excluding allowance for depletion amounted to $80,000. Of the amount of such deductions, $41,912.86 represented the amount allocable to lead production $\left(\frac{123,250}{235,250} \text{ times } $80,000\right)$ and $38,087.14 represented the amount allocable to silver production $\left(\frac{112,000}{235,250} \text{ times } $80,000\right)$. The net income from the mineral property (computed without the allowance for depletion) was $81,337.14 attributable to lead and $73,912.86 attributable to silver. The allowance for percentage depletion computed with respect to lead mining was $18,487.50 (15 percent of $123,250 but not in excess of 50 percent of $81,337.14); the allowance for such depletion computed with respect to silver mining was $16,800 (15 percent of $112,000 but not in excess of 50 percent of $73,912.86). It is estimated that as of December 31, 1950, there were 6,500,000 pounds of lead and 510,000 ounces of silver remaining in the mineral property. For 1950, the amount of nontaxable income from exempt excess output of lead was $3,099.60, the amount of nontaxable bonus income from lead was $19,250, and the amount of nontaxable income from exempt excess output of silver was $6,510.06.

Since the amount of nontaxable bonus income with respect to the output of lead which exceeds the established quota and which also constitutes excess output, i. e., 600,000 pounds, was $16,500 (item 33 in the following computation) and exceeded $3,099.60 representing the nontaxable income from exempt excess output of lead, Corporation P elected under section 453 (d) to exclude $16,500 with respect to such 600,000 pounds in the computation of excess profits net income. With respect to the remaining portion of its output in excess of the established quota, i. e., 100,000 pounds, Corporation P excluded nontaxable bonus income of $2,750 (item 34) in the computation of excess profits net income pursuant to section 453 (c).

COMPUTATION

	Lead	Silver
1. Normal output:
a. Lead (pounds) (4,000,000 divided by 4)	1,000,000
b. Silver (ounces) (400,000 divided by 4)		100,000
2. Output for 1950	1,600,000	160,000
3. Excess output (item 2, minus item 1a or 1b)	600,000	60,000
4. Estimated recoverable units as of Dec. 31, 1950:
a. Lead (pounds) (6,500,000 plus 600,000)	7,100,000
b. Silver (ounces) (510,000 plus 60,000)		570,000
5. Percentage which item 3 is of item 4a or 4b (percent)	8.45	10.53
6. Percentage of item 3 to be used in computing exempt excess output (percent)	20	20
7. Exempt excess output (item 3 times item 6)	120,000	18,000
8. Normal unit profit (item 17)	$0.02583	$0.05167
9. Nontaxable income from exempt excess output (item 7 times item 8) but not in excess of item 24	3,099.60	6,510.06
Normal unit profit
10. Gross income from the mineral property for each normal period year	50,000.00	70,000.00
11. Allowable deductions (excluding allowance for depletion) for each normal period year	16,666.67	23,333.33
12. Net income from the mineral property (excluding allowance for depletion) for each normal period year	33,333.33	46,666.67
13. Allowance for percentage depletion	7,500.00	10,500.00

SEC. 454. EXEMPT CORPORATIONS.

The following corporations, except a member of an affiliated group of corporations filing a consolidated return under section 141, shall be exempt from the tax imposed by this subchapter:

(a) Corporations exempt under section 101 from the tax imposed by this chapter.

(b) Foreign personal holding companies, as defined in section 331.

(c) Regulated investment companies, as defined in section 361 without the application of section 361 (b) (4).

(d) Personal holding companies, as defined in section 501.

(e) Foreign corporation not engaged in trade or business within the United States.

(f) Domestic corporations satisfying the following conditions:

(1) If 95 per centum or more of the gross income of such domestic corporation for the three-year period immediately preceding the close of the taxable year (or for such part of such period during which the corporation was in existence) was derived from sources other than sources within the United States; and

(2) If 50 per centum or more of its gross income for such period or such part thereof was derived from the active conduct of a trade or business.

(g) Any corporation subject to the provisions of Title IV of the Civil Aeronautics Act of 1938, in the gross income of which for any taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, there is includible compensation received from the United States for the transportation of mail by aircraft if, after excluding from its gross income such compensation, its adjusted excess profits net income for such year is zero or less. Such exclusion from gross income for such year shall also be made in computing the unused excess profits credit adjustment for any other taxable year, but only for the purpose of determining whether the corporation is exempted by this subsection from the tax imposed by this chapter for such other taxable year.

§ 40.454–1 Exempt corporations. (a) A corporation which has established its right under section 101 to exemption from income tax (whether or not subject to tax under Supplement U) need not again establish its right under section 454 (a) to exemption from excess profits tax. A corporation which has not established its right to exemption under section 101 and which claims exemption under section 454 (a) is required to establish its right to exemption under section 101 in the manner prescribed in the regulations thereunder in order to be held exempt under section 454 (a).

(b) A corporation which claims exemption under the provisions of section 454, other than the provisions of section 454 (a), (f), and (g), shall file with its return a statement showing under what paragraph of section 454 it claims exemption.

(c) A corporation which claims exemption under section 454 (f) shall attach to its return a statement showing for the 3-year period immediately preceding the close of the taxable year (or for such part thereof during which the corporation was in existence) (1) its total gross income from all sources, (2) the amount thereof derived from the active conduct of a trade or business, (3) a description of such trade or business and the facts upon which the corporation relies to establish that such trade or business was actively conducted by it, and (4) the amount of its gross income from sources within the United States. The gross income from sources within the United States shall be determined as provided in section 119 and the regulations prescribed thereunder.

(d) A corporation which claims exemption under section 454 (g) shall attach to its return for the taxable year for which exemption is claimed a statement showing for such taxable year (1) that it is subject to the provisions of title IV of the Civil Aeronautics Act of 1938, (2) the amount of the compensation included in gross income of the corporation as compensation received from the United States for the transportation of mail by aircraft, and (3) the computation and the amount of its gross income, net income, excess profits net income, excess profits credit, and adjusted excess profits net income, after excluding from its gross income the amount of such compensation received from the United States, including a separate computation of its unused excess profits credit adjustment for such year containing the information required by this subsection with respect to each taxable year entering into the computation of such unused excess profits credit adjustment.

(e) If any corporation described in subsection (d), (f), or (g) of section 454 is a member of an affiliated group of corporations filing a consolidated return under section 141, such corporation shall not be exempt under section 454 for such year.

SEC. 455. RELIEF FOR INSTALLMENT BASIS TAXPAYERS AND TAXPAYERS WITH INCOME FROM LONG-TERM CONTRACTS.

(a) Election to accrue income. Any taxpayer computing income from installment sales under the method provided by section 44 (a) or whose principal business consists in purchasing installment sales obligations may elect, in its return for the taxable year, for the purposes of the tax imposed by this subchapter, to compute, in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Secretary, its income from installment sales or installment sales obligations on the basis of the taxable period for which such income is accrued without treating any portion of such income as unrealized at the close of such period in lieu of the basis provided by section 44 (a). Such election shall be irrevocable when once made and shall apply also to all subsequent taxable years to which this subchapter is applicable and the income from installment sales or installment sales obligations for each taxable year before the first year with respect to which the election is made which ended after June 30, 1950, shall be adjusted for the purposes of this subchapter to conform to such election. In making such adjustments, no amount shall be included in computing excess profits net income for any excess profits tax taxable year on account of installment sales made in taxable years ending before July 1, 1950.

(b) Income from long-term contracts. Any taxpayer computing income from contracts, the performance of which requires more than 12 months may elect, in its return for the taxable year, for the purposes of the tax imposed by this subchapter, to compute, in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Secretary, such income upon the percentage of completion method of accounting. Such election shall be made in accordance with such regulations and shall be irrevocable when once made, and shall also apply to all subsequent taxable year to which this subchapter is applicable. The net income of the taxpayer for each year to which this subchapter is applicable prior to the year with respect to which the election is made shall be adjusted for the purposes of this subchapter. Income described in this section shall not be considered abnormal income under section 456.

(c) Adjustment on account of changes with respect to installment basis taxpayers and with respect to taxpayers with income from long-term contracts. If an adjustment specified in subsection (a) or subsection (b) is, with respect to any taxable year, prevented on the date of the election by the taxpayer under subsection (a) or subsection (b), as the case may be, or within two years from such date, by any provision or rule of law (other than this subsection and other than section 3761, relating to compromises), such adjustment shall nevertheless be made if in respect of the taxable year for which adjustment is sought a notice of deficiency is mailed or a claim for refund is filed, as the case may be, within two years after the date such election is made. If at the time of the mailing of such notice of deficiency or the filing of such claim for refund, the adjustment is so presented, then the amount of the adjustment authorized by this subsection shall be limited to the increase or decrease in the tax imposed by this chapter previously determined for such taxable year which results solely from the effect of subsection (a) or subsection (b), as the case may be, and such amount shall be assessed and collected, or credited or refunded, in the same manner as if it were a deficiency or an overpayment, as the case may be, for such taxable year; and as if on the date of such election, two years remain before the expiration of the period of limitation upon the assessment or the filing of claim for refund for the taxable year. The tax previously determined shall be ascertained in accordance with section 452 (d). The amount to be assessed and collected under this section in the same maner as if it were a deficiency or to be refunded or credited in the same manner as if it were an overpayment, shall not be diminished by any credit or set-off based upon any item, inclusion, deduction, credit, exemption, gain or loss, other than one resulting from the effect of subsection (a) or subsection (b), as the case may be. Such amount, if paid, shall not be recovered by a claim or suit for refund, or suit for erroneous refund based upon any item, inclusion, deduction, credit, exemption, gain or loss, other than one resulting from the effect of subsection (a) or subsection (b), as the case may be.

(d) Cross references. In the case of a taxpayer making an election under this section—

(1) For adjustment of excess profits net income for taxable years in the base period see section 433 (b) (7) and (8); and

(2) For adjustment in determining the excess profits credit, see section 441 (h).

§ 40.455–1 Taxpayers reporting income on installment basis; installment sales obligations.—(a) In general. Section 455 (a) provides that a corporation which computes income from installment sales under the method provided by section 44 (a), or whose principal business consists of purchasing installment sales obligations, may elect in its return for the purpose of the excess profits tax to compute its income from installment sales, or installment sales obligations, on the basis of the taxable period for which such income is accrued. No portion of such income shall be treated as unrealized at the close of the period for which the income is accrued. The election shall be made by a statement attached to the return or by the use of figures on the return which clearly reflect the election. The election is irrevocable and applies to all taxable years, including prior and subsequent taxable years, to which the excess profits tax is applicable. If a corporation makes the election, income from installment sales, or installment sales obligations, for each taxable year subject to the excess profits tax must, for the purpose of computing the excess profits tax, be adjusted to conform to such election. No amount, however, will be included in computing excess profits net income for any taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, on account of installment sales made in a taxable year ending before July 1, 1950. A taxpayer electing under section 445 (a) must also (for excess profits tax purposes only) compute its income for all preceding taxable years on the accrual method of accounting. Furthermore, in computing excess profits net income under section 433 (b), the normal-tax net income for the purpose of that section is first recomputed on the accrual method of accounting as if the taxpayer had used that method for all taxable years, and adjustments thereto under section 433 (b) are made in accordance with such recomputation. Except as provided in section 441 (h), if any prior or subsequent year is a factor in computing the excess profits tax, for example, in the case of the net operating loss deduction applicable in computing excess profits net income under section 433 (a) or (b), the computations for such prior or subsequent year are made on the accrual method of accounting. For adjustments in determining invested capital, net new capital addition, the base period capital addition, and the net capital addition or reduction, see section 441 (h). The election under section 455 (a) applies only for the purpose of the excess profits tax; it does not change the method of accounting for the purpose of the normal tax, surtax, etc.

(b) Definition. For the purpose of this section, an installment sale means any sale upon credit which the purchaser agrees to repay in two or more scheduled payments, regardless of the maturity of such credit or the amount of the down payment or of each payment, and which for the purposes of the tax imposed by sections 13, 14, and 15 is reported on the installment basis. An installment sale shall not include any casual sale of personal property, and shall not include any sale of real property unless the initial payments received in cash or property (other than evidences of indebtedness of the purchaser) during the taxable period in which the sale is made do not exceed 30 percent of the selling price and unless the taxpayer is regularly engaged in the business of selling real property upon such basis.

(c) Amended returns. If a taxpayer makes the election under section 455 (a) in its return for an excess profits tax taxable year other than its first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, an amended return (including an amended Schedule EP (Form 1120)) shall be filed for each taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, and prior to the taxable year for which the election is made, in order to reflect the effect of computation of income from installment sales, or installment sales obligations, on the accrual method for each such year for purposes of the excess profits tax. If the recomputation produces an overpayment for any of such years, the taxpayer should file a claim for refund on Form 843 with the amended return for such year.

§ 40.455–2 Computation of income on accrual method. (a) If the taxpayer has elected under section 455 (a) to compute for excess profits tax purposes its income from installment sales and installment sales obligations on the basis of the taxable year for which such income is accrued, the gross income of the taxpayer from installment sales and installment sales obligations shall be computed upon such accrual basis, and proper adjustment shall be made in computing all deductions and credits of the taxpayer for the taxable year. Thus, all deductions under section 23 allowable in computing net income and attributable to such sales, shall be computed upon the straight accrual basis.

(b) Any deductions under section 23 which are limited to a percentage of net income (computed without regard to such deductions, as for example, the deduction for charitable contributions allowed by section 23 (q)) shall be determined on the basis of such net income with income from installment sales determined upon the accrual method, and not on the basis of such net income for the purposes of the normal tax and surtax. The deduction for bad debts under section 23 (k) shall be allowed only with respect to debts which become worthless within the taxable year. No reserve for bad debts arising from installment accounts receivable may be set up for excess profits tax purposes only, and no bad debt deduction shall be allowed for any additions to such a reserve. Only those debts which have become worthless within the taxable year and which are allowed as a deduction in the computation of net income for the purposes of the normal tax and surtax for the taxable year shall be allowed in the determination of the bad debt deduction for excess profits tax purposes under section 455 (a). If a debt reflected in installment accounts receivable was created in a prior taxable year, and if the total amount of the profit represented by such installment accounts receivable is includible in gross income for such year under the accrual method of accounting, the amount of the deduction for the bad debt shall be computed upon the accrual method and shall not be limited to the unrecovered cost of the goods or articles sold in consideration of such debt.

§ 40.455–3 Taxpayers with income from long-term contracts.—(a) In general. Any corporation computing income from contracts the performance of which requires more than 12 months may elect in its return for the taxable year, for the purpose of the excess profits tax, to compute such income upon the percentage of completion method of accounting. The election shall be made by a statement attached to the return or by the use of figures on the return which clearly reflect the election. The election is irrevocable and applies to all taxable years, including prior and subsequent taxable years, to which the excess profits tax is applicable. If the corporation makes the election, the income from long-term contracts for each year subject to the excess profits tax will, for the purpose of computing the excess profits tax for all taxable years (including prior taxable years), be adjusted to conform to such election. Furthermore, in computing excess profits net income under section 433 (b), the normal-tax net income for the purpose of that section is first recomputed upon the percentage of completion method as if the taxpayer had used that method for all taxable years, and adjustments thereto under section 433 (b) are made in accordance with such recomputation. Except as provided in section 441 (h), if any prior or subsequent year is a factor in computing the excess profits tax, for example, the net operating loss deduction applicable in computing excess profits net income under section 433 (a) or (b), the computations for such prior or subsequent year are made on the percentage of completion method. For adjustments in determining invested capital, the net new capital addition, the base period capital addition, and the net capital addition or reduction, see section 441 (h). The election under section 455 (b) applies only for the purpose of the excess profits tax; it does not change the method of accounting for the purpose of the normal tax, surtax, etc.

(b) Amended returns. If the taxpayer makes the election under section 455 (b) in its return for an excess profits tax taxable year other than its first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, an amended return (including an amended Schedule EP (Form 1120)) shall be filed for each taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, and prior to the taxable year for which the election is made, in order to reflect the effect of computation of income from long-term contracts, for purposes of the excess profits tax, for such years on the percentage of completion method of accounting. If the recomputation produces an overpayment for any of such years, the taxpayer should file a claim for refund on Form 843 with the amended return for such year.

§ 40.455–4 Computation of net income upon percentage of completion method of accounting.—(a) Excess profits tax taxable year. If a taxpayer has elected under section 455 (b) to compute for excess profits tax purposes its net income from long-term contracts upon the percentage of completion method of accounting, gross income from such long-term contracts shall be reported for each excess profits tax taxable year upon the basis of percentage of completion of such contract in such year. Except as provided in section 441 (h), this is true wherever income is a factor in determining the excess profits tax and applies not only to the taxable year for which the excess profits tax is being determined but also to all prior and subsequent years which affect the excess profits tax liability for such year. There shall be deducted from such gross income for the taxable year all expenditures made during such year on account of the contract, account being taken of the material and supplies on hand at the beginning and end of the taxable year for use in connection with the work under the contract but not yet so applied. Any deductions under section 23 which are limited to a percentage of net income (computed without regard to such deduction, as for example, the deduction for charitable contributions which is allowed by section 23 (q) shall, for excess profits tax purposes, be determined upon the basis of such net income with the income from long-term contracts computed upon the percentage of completion method of accounting, and not upon the basis of net income for purposes of the normal tax and surtax. No reserve for bad debts arising from accounts receivable from long-term contracts may be set up for excess profits tax purposes unless a reserve has been established for income tax purposes.

(b) Taxable year in the base period. If a taxpayer elects, pursuant to section 455 (b), to compute its income from long-term contracts upon the percentage of completion method of accounting, the excess profits net income for a taxable year in the base period to be used in computing the average base period net income shall be computed pursuant to section 433 (b) but with income from long-term contracts computed upon the percentage of completion method of accounting as described in paragraph (a) of this section in lieu of the completed contract method. In such event gross income attributable to each long-term contract shall be placed in the appropriate year in the base period upon the percentage of completion method of accounting, regardless of whether such contract was completed in a subsequent year in the base period or in an excess profits tax taxable year and regardless of when gross income from such contract was reported for purposes of the normal tax and surtax. Likewise, gross income attributable to each long-term contract completed during a taxable year in the base period shall be included in income for such year only to the extent to which such income is attributable to the percentage of the contract completed in such year. Gross income attributable to the percentage of the contract completed prior to the base period shall be excluded in the computation of excess profits net income for a taxable year in the base period and consequently from average base period net income. There shall be deducted from such gross income for each taxable year in the base period all expenditures made during the taxable year on account of the contract, account being taken of the material and supplies on hand at the beginning and end of each year for use in connection with the work under the contract but not yet so applied.

§ 40.455–5 Adjustment on account of change arising under section 455 (a) or section 455 (b). (a) If the adjustment of the tax imposed for any taxable year, in order to give effect to the recomputations provided under section 455 (a) (in the case of a taxpayer with income from installment sales or installment sales obligations) or under section 455 (b) (in the case of a taxpayer with long-term contracts), is prevented on the date of the election by the taxpayer under section 455 (a) or section 455 (b), as the case may be, or within two years from such date by any provision of law (other than section 455 and other than section 3761, relating to compromises) or by any rule of law, including the doctrine of res judicata, an adjustment under section 455 (c) shall nevertheless be made if with respect to the taxable year for which such adjustment is sought a notice of deficiency is mailed or a claim for refund is filed, as the case may be, within two years after the date such election was made. Section 455 (c) applies only if at the time of filing of a claim for refund or the mailing of the notice of the deficiency the adjustment would otherwise be prevented by the running of the statute of limitations, by the execution of a closing agreement, by the operation of the rule of res judicata, or because of other reasons. For reference to provisions which would prevent adjustment except for the provisions of section 455 (c), see § 29.3801 (b)–0 of Regulations 111. Section 455 (c) is not applicable if, on the date of the filing of the claim for refund or the mailing of the notice of deficiency, adjustment of the tax liability is permissible without recourse to such section.

(b) The amount of the adjustment authorized by section 455 (c) is limited to the increase or decrease in the tax imposed previously determined for the taxable year which results solely from the revision of the excess profits tax liability effectuated by section 455 (a) or section 455 (b), as the case may be, and the collateral effects of such revision upon items of income, deductions, credits, average base period net income, etc., already taken into account in ascertaining the tax previously determined. The tax previously determined shall be ascertained in accordance with section 452 (d). If the amount of the adjustment determined under section 455 (c) represents an increase in tax, it is to be treated in the same manner, and assessed and collected as if it were a deficiency for the taxable year; if the amount of the adjustment represents a decrease in tax, it is to be treated, credited, or refunded, in the same manner as if it were an overpayment for the taxable year. In either case the increase or decrease shall be treated as if on the date of the election pursuant to section 455 (a) or section 455 (b), as the case may be, two years remain before the expiration of the period of limitation upon assessment or the filing of a claim for refund for the taxable year. The amount of the adjustment considered as a deficiency or as an overpayment, as the case may be, will bear interest to the extent provided by the internal revenue laws applicable to deficiencies and overpayments for the taxable year for which the adjustment is made.

(c) The amount of any adjustment under section 455 (c) to be collected in the same manner as if it were a deficiency and the amount of any adjustment to be refunded or credited in the same manner as if it were an overpayment, as the case may be, shall not be diminished by any credit or set-off based upon any item, inclusion, deduction, credit, exemption or gain or loss other than one resulting from the effect of section 455 (a) or section 455 (b), as the case may be.

(d) The amount of any adjustment under the provisions of section 455 (c) which is refunded may not subsequently be recovered in a suit for erroneous refund based upon any adjustment other than one resulting from the revision of excess profits tax liability occasioned by the recomputation of tax pursuant to an election under section 455 (a) or section 455 (b), as the case may be. The amount of any adjustment under section 455 (c) which is assessed and collected as a deficiency may not thereafter be recovered by the taxpayer in any suit for refund based upon any adjustment other than one resulting from the revision of excess profits tax liability occasioned by the recomputation of tax pursuant to an election under section 455 (a) or section 455 (b), as the case may be.

SEC. 456. ABNORMALITIES IN INCOME IN TAXABLE PERIOD.

(a) Definitions. For the purposes of this section—

(1) Abnormal income. The term "abnormal income" means income of any class described in paragraph (2) includible in the gross income of the taxpayer for any taxable year under this subchapter if it is abnormal for the taxpayer to derive income of such class, or, if the taxpayer normally derives income of such class but the amount of such income of such class includible in the gross income of the taxable year is in excess of 115 per centum of the average amount of the gross income of the same class for the four previous taxable years, or, if the taxpayer was not in existence for four previous taxable years, the taxable years during which the taxpayer was in existence.

(2) Separate classes of income. Each of the following subparagraphs shall be held to describe a separate class of income:

(A) Income arising out of a claim, award, judgment, or decree, or interest on any of the foregoing; or

(B) Income resulting from exploration, discovery, or prospecting, or any combination of the foregoing, extending over a period of more than 12 months; or

(C) Income from the sale of patents, formulae, or processes, or any combination of the foregoing, developed over a period of more than 12 months; or

(D) Income includible in gross income for the taxable year rather than for a different taxable year by reason of a change in the taxpayer's method of accounting.

All the income which is classifiable in more than one of such subparagraphs shall be classified under the one which the taxpayer irrevocably elects. The classification of income of any class not described in subparagraphs (A) to (D), inclusive, shall be subject to regulations prescribed by the Secretary.

(3) Net abnormal income. The term "net abnormal income" means the amount of the abnormal income less, under regulations prescribed by the Secretary, (A) 115 per centum of the average amount of the gross income of the same class determined under paragraph (1), and (B) an amount which bears the same ratio to the amount of any costs or deductions relating to such abnormal income, allowable in determining the normal-tax net income for the taxable year, as the excess of the amount of such abnormal income over 115 per centum of such average amount bears to the amount of such abnormal income.

(b) Amount attributable to other years. The amount of the net abnormal income that is attributable to any previous or future taxable year or years shall be determined under regulations prescribed by the Secretary. In the case of amounts otherwise attributable to future taxable years, if the taxpayer either transfers substantially all its properties or distributes any property in complete liquidation, then there shall be attributable to the first taxable year in which such transfer or distribution occurs (or if such year is previous to the taxable year in which the abnormal income is includible in gross income, to such latter taxable year) all amounts so attributable to future taxable years not included in the gross income for a previous taxable year.

(c) Computation of tax for current taxable year. The tax under this subchapter for the taxable year, in which the whole of such abnormal income would without regard to this section be includible, shall not exceed the sum of:

(1) The tax under this subchapter for such taxable year computed without the inclusion in gross income of the portion of the net abnormal income which is attributable to any other taxable year, and

(2) The aggregate of the increase in the tax under this subchapter for the taxable year (computed under paragraph (1)) and for each previous taxable year which would have resulted if, for each previous taxable year to which any portion of such net abnormal income is attributable, an amount equal to such portion had been included in the gross income for such previous taxable year.

(d) Computation of tax for future taxable year. The amount of the net abnormal income attributable to any future taxable year shall, for the purposes of this subchapter, be included in the gross income for such taxable year.

(1) The tax under this subchapter for such future taxable year shall not exceed the sum of—

(A) The tax under this subchapter for such future taxable year computed without the inclusion in gross income of the portion of such net abnormal income which is attributable to such year; and

(B) The decrease in the tax under this subchapter for the previous taxable year in which the whole of such abnormal income would, without regard to this section, be includible which resulted by reason of the computation of such tax for such previous taxable year under the provisions of subsection (c); but the amount of such decrease shall be diminished by the aggregate of the increases in the tax under this subchapter for the future taxable year as computed under subparagraph (A) and for the taxable years intervening between such previous taxable year and such future taxable year which have resulted because of the inclusion of the portions of such net abnormal income attributable to such intervening years in the gross income for such intervening years.

(2) If, in the application of subsection (c), net abnormal income from more than one taxable year is attributable to any future taxable year, paragraph (1) of this subsection shall be applied with respect to such future taxable year in the order of the taxable years from which the net abnormal income is attributable beginning with the earliest, as if the portion of the net abnormal income from each such year was the only amount so attributable to such future taxable year, and (except in the case of the portion for the earliest previous taxable year) as if the tax under this subchapter for the future taxable year was the tax determined under paragraph (1) with respect to the portion for the next earlier previous taxable year.

(3) If in the application of paragraph (1) to any future taxable year it is determined that the decrease in tax computed under paragraph (1) (B) with respect to the net abnormal income, a portion of which is included in the gross income for the future taxable year, does not exceed the aggregate of the increases in tax computed under paragraph (1) (B) with respect to such net abnormal income, then the portions of such net abnormal income attributable to taxable years subsequent to such future taxable year shall not be included in the gross income for such subsequent taxable year. For the purpose of computing the tax under this subchapter for a taxable year subsequent to the future taxable year, the portion of net abnormal income attributable to the future taxable year shall not be included in the gross income for such future taxable year to the extent that the inclusion of such portion of net abnormal income in the gross income for such future taxable year did not result in an increase in tax for such future taxable year by reason of the provisions of paragraph (1).

(e) Application of section. This section shall be applied only for the purpose of computing the tax under this subchapter as provided in subsections (c) and (d), and shall have no effect upon the computation of base period net income. For the purposes of subsections (c) and (d)—

(1) Net abnormal income means the aggregate of the net abnormal income of all classes for one taxable year.

(2) Under regulations prescribed by the Secretary, the tax under this subchapter for previous taxable years shall be computed as if the portions of net abnormal income for each previous taxable year for which the tax was computed under this section were included in the gross income for the other previous taxable years to which such portions were attributable.

(3) If both subsections (c) and (d) are applicable to any current taxable year, subsection (d) shall be applied without regard to subsection (c), and subsection (c) shall be applied as if the tax under this subchapter, except for subsection (c), was the tax computed under subsection (d) and as if the gross income and the other amounts necessary to determine the adjusted excess profits net income were those amounts which would result in the tax computed under subsection (d).

§ 40.456–1 Abnormalities in income in taxable year. (a) Section 456 applies if abnormal income (as defined in section 456 (a)) for any excess profits tax taxable year is attributable to other taxable years. The term "abnormal income" means income of any class described in § 40.456–2 includible in the gross income of the taxpayer for any excess profits tax taxable year (1) if it is abnormal for the taxpayer to derive gross income of such class, or (2) if the taxpayer normally derives gross income of such class but the amount of such income of such class is in excess of 115 percent of the average amount of the gross income of the same class determined for the four previous taxable years or, if the taxpayer was not in existence for four previous taxable years, the taxable years during which the taxpayer was in existence. It is abnormal for a taxpayer to derive income of any class only if the taxpayer had no gross income of that class for the four previous taxable years. For the purpose of determining abnormal income under this paragraph the gross income of the class for the previous taxable years is not to be increased or decreased by any allocation under the provisions of section 456. Abnormal income is to be determined by considering classes of income, and not merely particular items.

(b) Abnormal income must be adjusted, as provided in section 456 (a) (3), in order to determine net abnormal income. Net abnormal income must then be allocated to the various items included in abnormal income. The items of net abnormal income so determined are the amounts which may be attributed to other taxable years under these regulations. Net abnormal income and the allocated amounts which are items of net abnormal income are determined in the manner provided in paragraphs (c) and (d) of this section.

(c) Net abnormal income is determined as follows:

(1) The abnormal income of each class is computed;

(2) Such abnormal income is then reduced by 115 percent of the average amount of the gross income of the same class for the four previous taxable years or, if the taxpayer was not in existence for four previous taxable years, the previous taxable years during which it was in existence;

(3) The abnormal income is further reduced by an amount which bears the same ratio to the amount of any costs or deductions relating to such abnormal income, allowable in determining the normal-tax net income for the taxable year, as the abnormal income, reduced as provided in subparagraph (2), of this paragraph, bears to the abnormal income. The amount thus determined is the net abnormal income.

(d) The items of net abnormal income are determined as follows:

(1) Each item of abnormal income is reduced, but not below zero, by an amount equal to 115 percent of the average income, if any, for the four previous taxable years, arising out of the same property as the income represented by the item;

(2) Each item of abnormal income is further reduced, but not below zero, by an amount which bears the same ratio to the amount of any costs or deductions relating to such abnormal income, allowable in determining the normal-tax net income for the taxable year, as the amount of the item of abnormal income reduced in subparagraph (1) of this paragraph, bears to the amount of the item of abnormal income;

(3) The aggregate of the items as reduced under subparagraph (1) of this paragraph and (2) is determined;

(4) Net abnormal income is allocated to each item in the proportion that the item, reduced as provided in subparagraphs (1) and (2) of this paragraph, bears to the aggregate of the items so reduced, determined in subparagraph (3) of this paragraph. The amount so allocated is an item of net abnormal income.

(c) Example: For the taxable year 1950, the A Corporation, which makes its income tax returns on the calendar year basis, has gross income of $1,000,000 from judgments. This consists of two items, one of $800,000 for a judgment against X and the other of $200,000 for a judgment against Y. Its average income of this class for the four previous taxable years was $300,000. For 1950, it has deductible expenses of $160,000 applicable to the judgment against X. There were no deductible expenses applicable to the other judgment. The $1,000,000 is abnormal income, since it is in excess of 115 percent of the average income of this class for the four previous taxable years. The items of net abnormal income represented by the judgment are determined as follows:

(1) Abnormal income		$1,000,000
(2) Less 115 percent of average income ($300,000) for the four previous taxable years		345,000
(3) Excess of (1) over (2)		655,000
(4) Less an amount bearing same ratio to $160,000 (deductions applicable to items in this class) as $655,000 bears to $1,000,000		104,800
(5) Net abnormal income		550,200
(6) Gross income on account of the judgment against X	$800,000
(7) Less deductions applicable to such item	160,000
(8) Amount of (6) reduced by (7)		640,000
(9) Gross income on account of the judgment against Y	$200,000
(10) Less deductions applicable to such item	None
(11) Amount of (9) reduced by (10)		200,000
(12) Aggregate of (8) and (11)		840,000
(13) Portion of net abnormal income allocated to the judgment against X (640,000/840,000 of $550,200)		419,200
(14) Portion of net abnormal income allocated to the judgment against Y (200,000/840,000 of $550,200)		131,000

§ 40.456–2 Classification of income. (a) Section 456 (a) (2) (A), (B), (C), and (D) sets forth four separate classes of income. All the income which reasonably is classifiable in more than one class shall be classified under the one which the taxpayer irrevocably elects. Such election shall be made in the manner prescribed in § 40.456–3. The classification of income for any year must be consistent with the classification made under section 456 for previous years. The classification must also be consistent with any classification made in applying section 433 (b) (9) to the taxpayer.

(b) Other income, not within a class described in subparagraphs (A)–(D) of section 456 (a) (2), to which section 456 is applicable may be grouped by the taxpayer, subject to approval by the Commissioner on the examination of the taxpayer's return, in such classes similar to those specified in subparagraphs (A)–(D) of section 456 (a) (2) as are reasonable in a business of the type which the taxpayer conducts, and as are appropriate in the light of the taxpayer's business experience and accounting practice.

§ 40.456–3 Amount attributable to other years. (a) The mere fact that an item includible in gross income is of a class abnormal either in kind or in amount does not result in the exclusion of any part of such item from excess profits net income. It is necessary that the item be found attributable under the regulations in this part in whole or in part to other taxable years. Only that portion of the item which is found to be attributable to other years may be excluded from the gross income of the taxpayer for the year for which the excess profits tax is being computed.

(b) Items of net abnormal income are to be attributed to other years in the light of the events in which such items had their origin, and only in such amounts as are reasonable in the light of such events. To the extent that any items of net abnormal income in the taxable year are the result of such factors as high prices, low operating costs, increased demand, or decreased competition, such items shall not be attributed to other taxable years. Thus, no portion of an item is to be attributed to other years if such item is of a class of income which is in excess of 115 percent of the average income of the same class for the four previous taxable years solely because of an improvement in business conditions. In attributing items of net abnormal income to other years, particular attention must be paid to changes in those years in the factors which determined the amount of such income. No portion of an item of net abnormal income is to be attributed to any previous year solely by reason of an investment by the taxpayer in assets, tangible or intangible, employed in or contributing to the production of such income.

(c) Section 456 has no effect upon the computation of base period net income or of earnings and profits and therefore does not affect the computation of the excess profits credit. Similarly, it has no application in the determination of taxes other than the excess profits tax imposed by subchapter D of chapter 1 (except where the excess profits tax is applicable in the computation of other taxes). Amounts attributed to future years are to be included in gross income for such years for excess profits tax purposes only. If the taxpayer either transfers substantially all its properties or distributes any property in complete liquidation prior to the close of the last future taxable year to which any such amounts are attributable, then all amounts of net abnormal income attributable to years subsequent to both—

(1) The first taxable year in which such transfer or distribution in liquidation occurs, and

(2) The taxable year in the gross income of which such abnormal income would have been included except for section 456 shall be included in the gross income for the year referred to in (1) or the year referred to in (2), whichever is the later. For example, if a taxpayer realizes in 1951 net abnormal income attributable to the years 1950 to 1953, inclusive, and in 1952 begins to distribute its property in complete liquidation, the portion of the net abnormal income attributable to the future year 1953 is to be reallocated to and included in the gross income for 1952 (the first year of liquidation) in addition to the amount already attributed to that year. If the first distribution in liquidation occurred before the year of realization, for example, in 1950, the portions of the net abnormal income attributable to the future years 1952 and 1953 would be included in the gross income for 1951 (the year of realization) in addition to the amount already attributed to that year. In neither event will the allocation originally made to 1950 and 1951 be disturbed.

(d) A taxpayer claiming the benefits of section 456 shall file with its excess profits tax return a detailed statement in duplicate containing the following information:

(1) The amount and a description of each class of income claimed to be abnormal, and the amount and a description of each item in each such class;

(2) For each class of income claimed to be abnormal, the amount and a description of each item of income of the same class derived during the four taxable years, immediately preceding the taxable year, and the aggregate amount of such items for each taxable year;

(3) For each class of income claimed to be abnormal, the amount of net abnormal income, the amount of each item of net abnormal income, and the computations by which these amounts were determined;

(4) The transactions in which each such item had its origin, the method used in allocating such item, the amount allocated to each year, and the reasons therefor; and

(5) All other facts upon which the taxpayer relies.

If any item of income is reasonably classifiable in more than one class, the inclusion of such item in any one of such classes in the statement referred to above shall constitute an irrevocable election by the taxpayer for the purpose of section 456 (a) (2).

§ 40.456–4 Computation of tax for current taxable year. (a) The excess profits tax for the taxable year shall be the smaller of the following amounts:

(1) The excess profits tax computed without excluding from gross income any amounts attributable to other years under section 456, and so computed with the application of section 456 (d), relating to the tax for future taxable years to which net abnormal income is attributable, if such section is applicable to such taxable year; or

(2) The sum of (i) the excess profits tax for the taxable year computed without including in gross income the amount of items of net abnormal income attributable to other taxable years and so computed with the application of section 456 (d) if such section is applicable, and (ii) the aggregate of the amounts of additional excess profits tax which would have resulted for the taxable year in the computations under subdivision (i) of this subparagraph and for each previous excess profits tax taxable year if there had been included in the gross income for each previous taxable year the amount of the items, if any, of the net abnormal income attributable thereto. If the excess profits tax for any previous taxable years was computed under section 456, the increases in tax under subdivision (ii) of this subparagraph shall be computed on the basis of the computations made for such previous taxable years, that is, as if the gross income for all previous taxable years included the items of net abnormal income attributable to such previous taxable years from the other previous taxable years to which section 456 applied.

(b) Since the net abnormal income attributable to any taxable year, if included in the gross income for such taxable year, would reduce items, such as the net operating loss or unused excess profits credit, for such year which are taken into account in other taxable years through a carry-over or carry-back, such inclusion in gross income may also result in an increase in tax in such other taxable years in which such loss or unused credit is taken into account in computing the net operating loss deduction or unused excess profits credit adjustment. Section 456 requires that the increase in tax for the taxable year in which such net operating loss deduction or unused excess profits credit adjustment would be affected by the attributed income must be taken into account in computing the tax under section 456. Such income shall not be included in determining the net abnormal income for the taxable year to which it is attributable. The increase in tax caused by any adjustment under section 456 is the difference between the tax computed without such adjustment and the tax computed after making such adjustment.

(c) The computations required by sections 456 (c) may be illustrated by the following examples:

Example (1). The taxpayer, on the calendar year basis, sustains a net operating loss in 1951 which forms the basis for a net operating loss deduction of $10,000 for 1952. In 1952 it has $6,000 net abnormal income, all of which is attributable to 1951. Although there would be no increase in excess profits tax for 1951 if the $6,000 net abnormal income were included in gross income for that year, the $6,000 would offset the $10,000 net operating loss for 1951. Therefore, the net operating loss deduction for 1952 would be reduced to $4,000 and the excess profits tax for 1952 would be increased to the extent caused by such reduction of the net operating loss deduction. The tax for 1952 is whichever of the following is the lesser:

(i) The tax for 1952 computed without excluding any net abnormal income from gross income, or

(ii) The tax for 1952 computed after excluding from gross income the $6,000 net abnormal income attributable to 1951, plus the increase in the tax so computed which would result if, by reason of the $6,000 being included in gross income for 1951, the net operating loss deduction available in computing excess profits net income for 1952 were only $4,000 instead of $10,000.

The taxpayer had net income and adjusted excess profits net income for 1952 after giving effect to the net operating loss deduction of $10,000. For 1953 it has $8,000 net abnormal income, all of which is attributable to 1951. The tax for 1953 is whichever of the following is the lesser:

(A) The tax for 1953 computed without excluding any net abnormal income from gross income; or

(B) The tax for 1953 computed after excluding from gross income the $8,000 net abnormal income attributable to 1951, plus the increase in the tax for 1951 and 1952 which would be caused by the reduction in the net operating loss for 1951 if the $8,000 were included in gross income for 1951 so that it offset the net operating loss sustained in that year. In making these computations for 1951 and 1952, the adjustments made for those years in applying section 456 (c) to 1952 are retained, that is, the $6,000 net abnormal income attributable to 1951 from 1952 in applying section 456 to 1952 is treated as if it remained in gross income for 1951, and the $6,000 net abnormal income attributable to 1951 from 1952 is not included in the gross income for 1952 and the net operating loss deduction for that year (prior to any adjustment caused by applying section 456 (c) to 1953) is treated as being $4,000, not $10,000.

Example (2). The taxpayer, on the calendar year basis, has $30,000 net abnormal income in 1950 attributable in the amount of $10,000 to each of the years 1951 to 1953. This $10,000 amount is therefore included in gross income for each of these years. In 1953 it has $60,000 net abnormal income, all of which is attributable to 1951. The tax for 1953 is whichever of the following is the lesser:

(i) The tax for 1953 computed under section 456 (d) without excluding any net abnormal income for 1953 from gross income; or

(ii) The tax for 1953 computed under section 456 (d) after excluding the $60,000 net abnormal income for 1953 from gross income, plus the increase in the tax for 1953 as so computed, if any, and the increase in tax, if any, for all previous taxable years which would result if the $60,000 net abnormal income were included in gross income for 1951.

(d) For any taxable year for which the excess profits tax or the increase in excess profits tax is determined under section 456 (c), excess profits net income, for purposes of section 430 (a) (2), shall include any amounts of items of net abnormal income attributable to such year under the provisions of section 456.

§ 40.456–5 Computation of tax for future taxable years. (a) Amounts of items of net abnormal income attributable to a future taxable year shall be included in the gross income for such future taxable year for the purposes of the excess profits tax, except that if in the application of section 456 (d) (1) to any future taxable year it is determined that the decrease in tax computed under section 456 (d) (1) (B) for the taxable year in which the net abnormal income was realized does not exceed the aggregate of the increases in tax for other taxable years with respect to such net abnormal income, as computed under section 456 (d) (1) (B), then no portion of such net abnormal income shall be included in gross income for any taxable year subsequent to such future taxable year. For example, in 1950 the taxpayer, on the calendar year basis, has $30,000 net abnormal income, of which $10,000 is attributable to each of the years 1951 to 1953. In applying section 456 (d) to 1952, it is determined that the decrease in tax for 1950 caused by the application of section 456 (c) (computed with the exclusion of the net abnormal income from gross income) does not exceed the increase in tax for 1951 caused by the inclusion in gross income of the net abnormal income attributable to that year. Therefore, the net abnormal income for 1950 attributable to 1953 shall not be included in gross income for that year.

(b) For the purpose of applying section 430 (a) (2) to a future taxable year in the income of which amounts of items of net abnormal income are includible under section 456, excess profits net income for such future taxable year shall include such amounts of items of net abnormal income so includible.

(c) If net abnormal income is included in the gross income for any future taxable year, and if the tax for such year is the amount determined under the limitations of section 456 (d) (1) with respect to such net abnormal income, then for the purpose of computing the net operating loss deduction or unused excess profits credit adjustment for any taxable year subsequent to such future taxable year the gross income for the future taxable year shall be deemed to include only such portion of the net abnormal income as, when added to the other gross income for such future taxable year, would result without the application of section 456 (d) (1) in an excess profits tax equal to the amount determined under that section.

(d) Section 456 (d) (1) provides that the excess profits tax for a future taxable year in which any portion of the net income for a previous taxable year is attributed is the smaller of the amounts determined under subparagraphs (1) and (2) of this paragraph:

(1) The excess profits tax for such year computed with the inclusion in gross income of such portion of the net abnormal income;

(2) The sum of—

(i) The excess profits tax for such year computed without the inclusion in gross income of such portion of the net abnormal income, and

(ii) The excess of—

(a) The decrease in excess profits tax for the year of realization which resulted from the exclusion of net abnormal income from the gross income for such year, over

(b) The aggregate of the increase in excess profits tax for the future taxable year (as determined under subdivision (i) of this subparagraph) and for intervening years resulting from the inclusion in the gross income for such intervening years of the other portions of such net abnormal income.

(e) If net abnormal income from more than one previous taxable year is attributed to the future taxable year, the determinations under paragraph (d) (1) and (2) of this section are to be made first with respect to the portion of net abnormal income attributed from the earliest previous taxable year, the portions of net abnormal income from the later taxable years being treated as ordinary income for such future taxable year. The determinations under paragraph (d) (1) and (2) of this section are then to be made with respect to the portion of net abnormal income attributed from the next earliest previous taxable year, and for such purpose the excess profits tax for the future taxable year determined under paragraph (d) (1) of this section is considered the excess profits tax resulting from the determinations under paragraph (d) (1) and (2) of this section with respect to the net abnormal income attributed from the earliest previous taxable year, and the gross income referred to in paragraph (d) (2) of this section is considered that amount which would result in the tax reported under paragraph (d) (1) of this section if section 456 (d) (1) did not apply. The determinations for the other previous taxable years from which net abnormal income is attributed to the future taxable year are to be made in a similar manner in the order of such taxable years, and the amount so determined for the latest of such taxable years is the tax under section 456 (d) (1) for the future taxable year.

(f) If part of the income for a future taxable year, to which year net abnormal income of previous years is attributed, constitutes net abnormal income for such future year which is attributable to other taxable years, then the computations under section 456 (d) (1) shall be made without regard to the provisions of section 456 (c) which apply in determining the tax for such future taxable year. Section 456 (c) is applied after the tax is determined under the limitations of section 456 (d). In determining for the purpose of section 456 (d) (1) the increases and decreases in tax for previous taxable years, portions of net abnormal income for any of such previous taxable years attributable under section 456 (c) to other of such previous taxable years shall be treated as remaining in gross income in the years to which attributed.

§ 40.456–6 Income arising out of a claim, award, judgment, or decree, or interest thereon. (a) The first class of potentially abnormal income specifically set forth in section 456 (a) (2) is income arising out of a claim, award, judgment, or decree, or interest thereon. All items of such income are of the same class. Therefore, in determining whether income arising out of a judgment, for example, is abnormal either in kind or in amount, account must be taken not only of other judgment income, if any, received in preceding taxable years, but also of any income arising out of claims, awards, and decrees, and interest thereon, so received.

(b) In determining the portions of income of the class described which are attributable to other taxable years, due regard shall be given to the nature of the claim upon which the recovery is founded. Allocation will generally be made to the year or years during which occurred the exploitation, removal, or use, as the case may be, of the property right forming the subject matter of the claim, award, judgment, or decree. Thus, in the case of a judgment for infringement of a patent, the number of units produced through the use by the infringer of such patent in the respective years involved shall constitute a proper basis of allocation. Similarly, if the removal of minerals forms the basis of the recovery, the units removed in the respective years shall constitute a proper basis of allocation. The income arising from awards of a war claims commission, to the extent they constitute compensation for past losses, shall be attributed to the years during which such losses occurred. Interest shall be attributed to the years for which it was allowed.

(c) Example: (1) Based upon encroachment by the Y Corporation upon mineral property, the X Corporation in 1952 obtains judgment for and payment of $350,000. The X Corporation has not in any prior year derived income from any like source; nor are there any expenses involved in obtaining the judgment which are deductible for 1952. This amount, therefore, represents the net abnormal income, and is the only item included therein. As the judgment is based upon $1 per ton for ore removed in each year, the amount received is allocated as follows:

Year	Tonnage	Income attributed
1951	150,000	$150,000
1952	200,000	200,000
Total		350,000

There was no net operating loss deduction or unused excess profits credit adjustment in 1951 or 1952. For the purposes of the computation of the excess profits tax there shall be included in gross income for the year 1952 the amount of $200,000. The amount of $150,000 allocated to 1951 affects the total 1952 excess profits tax as explained below.

(2) The excess profits tax for the year 1952 shall be determined as follows:

(i) An excess profits tax for 1952 shall be computed without regard to section 456, that is, by including in gross income the item of $350,000, and

(ii) A partial excess profits tax for 1952 shall be computed on the net income arrived at by including in gross income only $200,000 of the item of $350,000, and to the partial tax so computed there shall be added the increase in the excess profits tax which would result from the inclusion in gross income for the year 1951 of $150,000 of the item of $350,000.

The excess profits tax for 1952 is either (i) or (ii), whichever is the lesser.

(3) To arrive at the increase in the excess profits taxes for 1951 which would result from the inclusion in the gross income for such year of $150,000 of the item of $350,000, the excess profits tax shall (but only for the purpose of determining the 1952 excess profits tax liability) be computed first by including the item of $150,000 in the gross income, and second by excluding such amount from the gross income. The excess of the amount obtained as the result of the first computation over the amount obtained as the result of the second computation represents such increase.

(4) If in the above example, in addition to the principal amount, interest had been added to the judgment, such interest would be also properly allocable as between 1952 and 1951 in accordance with the method sanctioned by the court in settling the amount of such interest. If the portion of the total interest attributable to the respective years cannot be ascertained from the judgment, such interest may be allocated among such years, upon the basis of the respective portions of the principal amount attributable to such years, giving effect to the period of time each portion remained unpaid.

§ 40.456–7 Exploration, discovery, prospecting. The second class of potentially abnormal income specifically set forth in section 456 (a) (2) is income resulting from exploration, discovery, or prospecting, or any combination thereof, extending over a period of more than 12 months. The exploration, discovery, or prospecting, must be that of the taxpayer. Income resulting from activities of such a character carried on by a predecessor is not entitled to the treatment provided in section 456, except as otherwise provided in section 462 (m).

§ 40.456–8 Sale of patents, formulas or processes. The third class of potentially abnormal income specifically set forth in section 456 (a) (2) is income resulting from the sale of patents, formulas, or processes or any combination thereof. The class also includes income resulting from the disposition of such property in an exchange upon which gain is recognized for the purpose of chapter 1.

§ 40.456–9 Change in method of accounting. The fourth class of potentially abnormal income specifically set forth in section 456 (a) (2) is income which is includible in gross income for the taxable year rather than for a different taxable year by reason of a change in the taxpayer's method of accounting. This class may include such items of income as are includible in gross income for the taxable year by reason of a change from the installment method to the straight accrual method of accounting, a change in inventory method, or a change from the reserve method to the specific charge-off method for the treatment of bad debts. Items of net abnormal income includible in gross income for the taxable year rather than for a different taxable year by reason of a change from the installment method to the straight accrual method of accounting shall be attributed to the year or years such items accrued. The method of allocating items of net abnormal income includible in gross income for the taxable year rather than for a different year by reason of other changes in accounting method is to be determined in each particular case upon consideration of all the facts in the case. See § 40.456–3 as to the statement required to be filed where the benefits of section 456 are claimed.

SEC. 457. CORPORATIONS COMPLETING CONTRACTS UNDER MERCHANT MARINE ACT.

(a) If the Federal Maritime Board certifies to the Secretary that the taxpayer has completed within the taxable year any contracts or subcontracts which are subject to the provisions of section 505 (b) of the Merchant Marine Act of 1936, as amended, then the tax imposed by this subchapter for such taxable year shall be, in lieu of a tax computed under section 430, a tax computed under subsection (b) of this section, if, and only if, the tax computed under subsection (b) is less than the tax computed under section 430.

(b) The tax computed under this subsection shall be the excess of—

(1) A tentative tax computed under section 430 with the normal-tax net income increased by the amount of any payments made, or to be made, to the Federal Maritime Board with respect to such contracts or subcontracts; over

(2) The amount of such payments.

§ 40.457–1 Corporations completing contracts under Merchant Marine Act of 1936. (a) Section 457 provides for an alternative tax in the case of a corporation which has been certified by the Federal Maritime Board (hereinafter referred to as the Board) to the Commissioner as having completed within the taxable year any contracts or subcontracts subject to the provisions of section 505 (b) of the Merchant Marine Act of 1936, as amended (hereinafter referred to as section 505 (b)). Under section 505 (b) a contractor or subcontractor is required to pay to the Board the amount of profit, if any, in excess of 10 percent of the total contract prices of such contracts or subcontracts.

(b) The alternative tax is in lieu of the excess profits tax computed under section 430 but only if such alternative tax is less than the tax under such section. Such alternative tax is the excess of (1) a tentative tax computed under section 430 with the normal-tax net income (used in computing excess profits net income) increased by the amount of any payments made, or to be made, to the Board with respect to contracts or subcontracts the completion of which during the taxable year has been certified to the Commissioner by the Board, over (2) the amount of such payments. If the excess profits tax is computed for a taxable year of less than 12 months, the tentative tax shall be the excess profits tax for such taxable year computed under section 433 (a) (2) except that for such purpose the normal-tax net income used in computing excess profits net income shall be increased by the amount of any payments made, or to be made, to the Board with respect to contracts or subcontracts subject to the provisions of section 505 (b).

(c) For the purposes of section 457, a certificate by the Board that the vessel or portion thereof covered by the contract or subcontract has been delivered subject to the provisions of section 505 (b) during the taxable year shall be deemed to be the certificate required by such section.

(d) A corporation claiming the benefit of section 457 shall attach to its excess profits tax return (1) a certificate of the Board showing each contract or subcontract subject to the provisions of section 505 (b) which the corporation has completed within the taxable year and (2) a statement showing the amount of payments made or to be made to the Board with respect to such contracts and subcontracts. If the amount of the payments made, or to be made, to the Board with respect to such contracts or subcontracts has not been ascertained at the time of filing the excess profits tax return, the corporation may estimate the amount of such payments for the purposes of section 457. In such cases, the Commissioner may require a bond from the corporation as a condition precedent to the computation of the tax under that section. If such a bond is required, it shall be on the form prescribed by the Commissioner and in such sum as the Commissioner may prescribe, and it shall be conditioned upon the payment by the corporation of any amount of tax found due upon redetermination of the tax made necessary by the estimated amount under section 457 (b) (2) proving incorrect, and upon such further conditions as the Commissioner may require. The bond shall be executed by the corporation as principal and by sureties satisfactory to the Commissioner. (See also section 1126 of the Revenue Act of 1926, as amended, paragraph 63 of the Appendix to Regulations 111 (Part 29 of this chapter).)

(e) If the amount actually paid, or to be paid, to the Board under section 505 (b) differs from the amount used in determining the tax under section 457, the corporation shall immediately notify the Commissioner of the amount actually paid, or to be paid, with respect to the particular contract. The Commissioner will thereupon redetermine the amount of the excess profits tax under section 457, and the amount of tax, if any, found to be due upon such redetermination shall be paid by the corporation upon notice and demand from the collector. The amount of tax, if any, shown upon redetermination to have been overpaid shall be credited or refunded to the taxpayer in accordance with the provisions of section 322.

SEC. 458. HISTORICAL INVESTED CAPITAL.

(a) Definition of historical invested capital. For the purposes of this subchapter the historical invested capital for any taxable year shall be the average invested capital for such year, determined under subsection (b). (For computation of invested capital in case of foreign corporations and corporations entitled to the benefits of section 251, see section 436 (b).)

(b) Average invested capital. The average invested capital for any taxable year shall be the aggregate of the daily invested capital for each day of such taxable year, divided by the number of days in such taxable year.

(c) Daily invested capital. The daily invested capital for any day of the taxable year shall be the sum of the equity invested capital for such day plus 75 per centum of the daily borrowed capital for such day determined under section 439 (b).

(d) Equity invested capital. The equity invested capital for any day of any taxable year shall be determined as of the beginning of such day and shall be the sum of the following amounts, reduced as provided in subsection (e)—

(1) Money paid in. Money previously paid in for stock, or as paid-in surplus, or as a contribution to capital;

(2) Property paid in. Property (other than money) previously paid in (regardless of the time paid in) for stock, or as paid-in surplus, or as a contribution to capital. Such property shall be included in an amount equal to its basis (unadjusted) for determining loss upon sale or exchange. If the property was disposed of before such taxable year, such basis shall be determined under the law applicable to the year of disposition, but without regard to the value of the property as of March 1, 1913. If the property was disposed of before March 1, 1913, its basis shall be considered to be its fair market value at the time paid in. If the unadjusted basis of the property is a substituted basis, such basis shall be adjusted, with respect to the period before the property was paid in, by an amount equal to the adjustments proper under section 115 (l) for determining earnings and profits. For the purposes of this section the fair value of additions and betterments made by the lessee to the physical properties of a lessor railroad corporation which have become the property of the lessor corporation by rejection of its lease (and fair value being determined as of the date such additions and betterments became the property of the lessor) shall be considered as a contribution to capital; and where the value of such improvements cannot be accurately determined by the old records thereof, because lost, incomplete, or inaccurate, the value of such improvements determined by the Interstate Commerce Commission for rate-making purposes shall be used in lieu of such fair value.

(3) Distributions in stock. Distributions in stock—

(A) Made prior to such taxable year to the extent to which they are considered distributions of earnings and profits; and

(B) Previously made during such taxable year to the extent to which they are considered distributions of earnings and profits other than earnings and profits of such taxable year;

(4) Earnings and profits at beginning of year. The accumulated earnings and profits as of the beginning of such taxable year;

(5) Deficit in earnings and profits of another corporation. In the case of a transferee, as defined in subsection (f) (4), an amount, determined under such paragraph, equal to the portion of the deficit in earnings and profits of a transferor attributable to property received previously to such day.

(e) Reduction in equity invested capital. The amount by which the equity invested capital for any day shall be reduced as provided in subsection (d) shall be the sum of the following amounts—

(1) Distributions in previous years. Distributions made prior to such taxable year which were not out of accumulated earnings and profits;

(2) Distributions during the year. Distributions previously made during such taxable year which are not out of the earnings and profits of such taxable year;

(3) Earnings and profits of another corporation. The earnings and profits of another corporation which previously at any time were included in accumulated earnings and profits by reason of a transaction described in section 112 (b) to (e), both inclusive, or in the corresponding provision of a prior revenue law, or by reason of the transfer by such other corporation to the taxpayer of property the basis of which in the hands of the taxpayer is or was determined with reference to its basis in the hands of such other corporation, or would have been so determined if the property had been other than money; and

(4) Deficit in earnings and profits transferred to another corporation. In the case of a transferor, as defined in subsection (f) (4), an amount, determined under such paragraph, equal to the portion of the deficit in earnings and profits of the transferor attributable to property transferred previously to such day.

(f) Rules for application of subsections (d) and (e)—(1) Distributions to shareholders. The term "distribution" means a distribution by a corporation to its shareholders, and the term "distribution in stock" means a distribution by a corporation in its stock or rights to acquire its stock. To the extent that a distribution in stock is not considered a distribution of earnings and profits it shall not be considered a distribution. A distribution in stock shall not be regarded as money or property paid in for stock, or as paid-in surplus, or as a contribution to capital.

(2) Distributions in first sixty days of taxable year. In the application of such subsections so much of the distributions (taken in the order of time) made during the first sixty days thereof as does not exceed the accumulated earnings and profits as of the beginning thereof (computed without regard to this paragraph) shall be considered to have been made on the last day of the preceding taxable year. This paragraph shall not apply with respect to distributions made during the first sixty days of the taxpayer's first taxable year under this subchapter.

(3) Computation of earnings and profits of taxable year. For the purposes of subsections (d) (3) (B) and (e) (2) in determining whether a distribution is out of the earnings and profits of any taxable year, such earnings and profits shall be computed as of the close of such taxable year without diminution by reason of any distribution made during such taxable year or by reason of the tax under this subchapter or chapter 1 for such year and the determination shall be made without regard to the amount of earnings and profits at the time the distribution was made.

(4) Deficit in earnings and profits—Earnings and profits of transferor and transferee. If a corporation (hereinafter called "transferor") transfers substantially all its property to another corporation formed to acquire such property (hereinafter called "transferee"), if—

(A) The sole consideration for the transfer of such property is the transfer to the transferor or its shareholders of all the stock of all classes (except qualifying shares) of the transferee. (In determining whether the transfer is solely for stock, the assumption by the transferee of a liability of the transferor or the fact that the property acquired is subject to a liability shall be disregarded);

(B) The basis of the property, in the hands of the transferee, for the purposes of this subsection, is determined by reference to the basis of the property in the hands of the transferor;

(C) The transferor is forthwith completely liquidated in pursuance of the plan under which the acquisition of the property is made; and

(D) Immediately after the liquidation the shareholders of the transferor own all such stock; for the purposes of this subchapter, in computing the equity invested capital for any day after the date of the acquisition of the property, the earnings and profits or deficit in earnings and profits of the transferee and the transferor shall be computed as if, immediately before the beginning of the taxable year in which such transfer occurs, the transferee had been in existence and sustained a recognized loss, and the transferor had realized a recognized gain, equal to the portion of the deficit in earnings and profits of the transferor attributable to such property.

(g) For special rules affecting computation of property paid in for stock in connection with certain exchanges and liquidations, see part III.

(h) The reserves of an insurance company shall not be included in computing equity invested capital under this section but shall be treated as daily borrowed capital as provided in section 439.

§ 40.458–1 Historical invested capital method of determining invested capital—(a) In general. A taxpayer computing its excess profits credit upon the basis of invested capital may, if it elects as provided by section 437 (b) (1), compute its invested capital under the so-called "historical invested capital" method. See § 40.437–2 for rules regarding election under section 437 (b) (1) and its effect. A foreign corporation and a corporation entitled to the benefits of section 251 may not compute invested capital under the historical invested capital method. See section 434 (b) and section 436 (b).

(b) Determination of historical invested capital. (1) Section 458 (a) defines "historical invested capital" as the "average invested capital" determined under section 458 (b). The "average invested capital" for any taxable year is defined by section 458 (b) as the aggregate of the "daily invested capital" for each day of such taxable year divided by the number of days in such taxable year. The "daily invested capital" for any day of the taxable year is defined by section 458 (c) as the sum of the "equity invested capital" for such day determined under section 458 (d), plus 75 percent of the "daily borrowed capital" for such day determined under section 439 (b). The historical invested capital shall in no event be an amount which is less than zero.

(2) The daily invested capital for any day is the sum of the equity invested capital for such day, determined under section 458 (d)–(h) (whether such equity invested capital be a positive amount or a negative amount), and 75 percent of the daily borrowed capital for such day, determined under section 439 (b). The daily invested capital of a transferee upon an exchange, as defined in section 471 (a), for any day after such exchange shall be reduced by the amount of any excess computed under the provisions of section 471 (c). If the amount of the equity invested capital determined under section 458 (d)–(h) is a negative amount and is not offset by borrowed invested capital, or if the amount of the reduction under section 471 (c) in daily invested capital is larger than the amount of such daily invested capital computed without regard to such reduction, the daily invested capital will be a negative amount.

(3) If, during the taxable year, a corporation is not involved in a tax-free liquidation and neither receives new capital, whether paid in or borrowed, nor makes any distribution other than out of earnings and profits of the taxable year, nor retires indebtedness of the character includible in borrowed capital, its average invested capital for the taxable year is an amount equal to its daily invested capital for the first day of the taxable year.

(4) In cases where the changes in invested capital are not numerous during the taxable year, the determination of the average invested capital may generally be simplified by taking the invested capital as of the first day of the taxable year and adding thereto such portion of each addition made during the year as the number of days remaining in the taxable year after such addition bears to the total number of days in the taxable year, and subtracting such portion of each reduction of capital as the number of days after such reduction bears to the total number of days in the taxable year. A simple method for determining average invested capital is illustrated by the following example:

Example. The daily invested capital of the X Corporation, which files its income tax returns on the calendar year basis, is $500,000 on January 1, 1951. The only changes in invested capital during the taxable year 1951 are as follows:

(a) On April 1, 1951, money amounting to $100,000 is paid in for stock.

(b) On October 1, 1951, a capital distribution is made amounting to $200,000.

Aggregate invested capital from Jan. 1 to Apr. 1, inclusive (91 days), $500,000×91	$45,500,000 00
Aggregate invested capital from Apr. 2 to Oct. 1, inclusive (183 days) ($500,000 plus $100,000)×183	109,800,000 00
Aggregate invested capital from Oct. 2 to Dec. 31, inclusive (91 days) ($600,000 minus $200,000)×91	36,400,000 00
Aggregate invested capital for 1951	191,700,000 00
Average invested capital for 1951 ($191,700,000 divided by 365, number of days in taxable year)	525,205 48

§ 40.458–2 Determination of equity invested capital; money and property paid in. The equity invested capital for any day is determined as of the beginning of such day. The basis or starting point is found in the amount of money and property previously paid in for stock, or as paid-in surplus, or as a contribution to capital. The terms "money paid in" and "property paid in" do not include amounts received as premiums by an insurance company subject to taxation under section 204. For the purpose of determining equity invested capital, the amount of any property paid in is the unadjusted basis to the taxpayer for determining loss upon a sale or exchange under the law applicable to the taxable year for which the invested capital is being computed. If the property was disposed of after February 28, 1913, and before such taxable year, such unadjusted basis shall be determined under the law applicable to the year of disposition, but without regard to the value of the property as of March 1, 1913; if the property was disposed of before March 1, 1913, its unadjusted basis shall be considered to be its fair market value at the time paid in.

(b) If the basis to the taxpayer is cost and stock was issued for the property, the cost is the fair market value of such stock at the time of its issuance. If the stock had no established market value at the time of the exchange, the fair market value of the assets of the company at that time should be determined and the liabilities deducted. The resulting net worth will be deemed to represent the total value of the outstanding stock. In determining net worth for the purpose of fixing the fair market value of the stock at the time of the exchange, the property paid in for such stock shall be included in the assets at its fair market value at that time.

(c) If stock having no established market value is issued for intangible property, and it is necessary to determine the fair market value of such property, the following factors, among others, may be taken into consideration in determining such value: (1) The earnings attributable to such intangible assets while in the hands of the predecessor owner; and (2) any cash offers for the purchase of the business, including the intangible property, at or about the time of its acquisition. A corporation claiming a value for intangible property paid in for stock should file with its return a full statement of the facts relating to such valuation.

(d) If the property was acquired after December 31, 1920, by a corporation from a shareholder as paid-in surplus or from any person as a contribution to capital, then the basis shall be the same as it would be in the hands of the transferor if the transfer had not been made. (See section 113 (a) (8).) If so acquired prior to January 1, 1921, the basis is the fair market value of the property at the time it was paid in. Where the basis is the transferor's basis, those adjustments shall be made to such basis with respect to the period before the property was paid in as are proper under section 115 (l) for determining earnings and profits. Thus, if A paid into a corporation in 1930 as paid-in surplus certain improved real estate purchased by him in 1920 for $20 000, with respect to which depreciation was allowed for the period held by him in amounts aggregating $6,000 (the full amount allowable), A's basis of $20,000 shall be reduced by $6,000 for the purpose of computing the invested capital of the corporation.

(e) The fact that the money or property paid in has been lost, destroyed, or otherwise disposed of shall not reduce the invested capital, except as such facts are reflected in the earnings and profits as of the beginning of the taxable year.

(f) As to determination of amount of property paid in for stock in connection with certain exchanges, see section 471 (b). See section 472 for rules for the elimination of duplication in invested capital as between two or more corporations.

(g) The fair value of additions and betterments made by the lessee to the physical properties of a lessor railroad corporation which have become the property of the lessor corporation by reason of its lease (such fair value being determined as of the date such additions and betterments became the property of the lessor) shall be considered as a contribution to capital; and where the value of such improvements cannot be accurately determined by the old records thereof, because lost, incomplete, or inaccurate, the value of such improvements determined by the Interstate Commerce Commission for rate-making purposes shall be used in lieu of such fair value.

§ 40.458–3 Determination of equity invested capital; distributions in stock. A distribution made prior to the taxable year by a corporation in its stock, or in rights to acquire its stock, to the extent to which it constitutes a distribution of earnings and profits of the corporation, constitutes an item of equity invested capital. Such a distribution made during the taxable year out of earnings and profits other than out of the earnings and profits of that year is also an item of equity invested capital. If a stock dividend is paid out of capital and not out of earnings and profits, or is of such a character as not to be subject to tax in the hands of a distributee because exempt as a stock dividend either by statute or otherwise, it is not deemed to constitute a distribution and does not reduce the earnings and profits account. See section 115 (h).

§ 40.458–4 Determination of equity invested capital; accumulated earnings and profits—(a) In general. (1) The term "accumulated earnings and profits" is not defined in the Internal Revenue Code. See, however, section 115 and the regulations prescribed thereunder as to the effect of certain transactions on earnings and profits, and § 40.458–5 as to the effect of the declaration and distribution of dividends. In general, the concept of "accumulated earnings and profits" for the purpose of the excess profits tax is the same as for the purpose of the income tax. In computing accumulated earnings and profits as of the beginning of the taxable year, a taxpayer keeping its books and making its income tax returns on the accrual basis shall subtract the income and excess profits taxes for the preceding taxable year. If there is a deficit in the accumulated earnings and profits as of the beginning of the taxable year, such deficit shall not be taken into account in determining invested capital, and in such cases the earnings and profits as of the beginning of the taxable year shall be considered as zero, but subsequent earnings and profits shall be applied against such deficit. Unrealized appreciation in value of property is not a factor in determining earnings and profits.

(2) If the earnings and profits of another corporation have been included in the earnings and profits of the taxpayer by virtue of a transaction of the character referred to in section 458 (e) (3), for the purpose of computing the equity invested capital of the taxpayer for each day after the day of such transaction there shall be included in the accumulated earnings and profits of the taxpayer as of the beginning of its taxable year in which such transaction occurred the proportionate part of any earnings and profits of the other corporation accumulated prior to the beginning of such taxable year and properly allocable to the taxpayer; and there shall be included in the current earnings and profits of the taxpayer for such taxable year the proportionate part of any earnings and profits of such other corporation accumulated after the beginning of such taxable year and properly allocable to the taxpayer. The amount so included in the earnings and profits of the taxpayer as of the beginning of its taxable year in which the transaction occurred or in its current earnings and profits for such year shall not exceed such proportionate part of the earnings and profits of such other corporation accumulated as of the day on which such transaction occurred.

(3) If the transaction which resulted in the transfer to the taxpayer of the earnings and profits of another corporation constitutes an intercorporate liquidation subject to the provisions of section 472, the rule of the subparagraph (2) of this paragraph shall apply only with respect to that portion of such earnings and profits attributable to the stock of such other corporation held by the taxpayer with a basis determined under section 472 to be a basis other than cost. Section 472 (d) (1) provides for the adjustment appropriate with respect to the earnings and profits of such other corporation taken over in the liquidation attributable to the stock of such other corporation held by the taxpayer with a basis determined to be a cost basis.

(b) Current earnings and profits. (1) Earnings and profits of any taxable year cannot be included in the computation of invested capital for that year. If a dividend is declared and paid during any year out of the earnings and profits of that year and the stockholders pay back into the corporation all or a substantial part of the amount of such dividends, the amount so paid back cannot be included in the computation of invested capital for that year unless the corporation shows by evidence satisfactory to the Commissioner that the dividends were paid in good faith and without any understanding, express or implied, that they were to be paid back.

(2) In any case in which the earnings and profits of another corporation are included in the accumulated earnings and profits of the taxpayer by reason of a transaction of the character referred to in section 458 (e) (3), the proportionate part of any such earnings and profits accumulated after the beginning of the taxable year of the taxpayer in which such transaction occurred and allocable to the taxpayer, but in an amount not to exceed the proportionate part of the earnings and profits of such other corporation accumulated as of the day of such transaction, shall be considered to be current earnings of the taxpayer for such taxable year.

(3) The earnings and profits for the taxable year in which an intercorporate liquidation has occurred subject to the provisions of section 472 shall be increased or decreased, as the case may be, by the plus adjustment or the minus adjustment computed under section 472 (b) with respect to the stock of the liquidated corporation held by the taxpayer with a basis determined under section 472 to be a cost basis. See section 472 (d) (1).

§ 40.458–5 Determination of equity invested capital; reductions by distributions. (a) The amount of the equity invested capital for any day as partially determined by taking the aggregate of the sums described in section 458 (d) shall be reduced by the amount of the distributions made in prior taxable years which were not out of accumulated earnings and profits plus the amount of the distributions previously made during the taxable year which were not out of the earnings or profits of such year. In determining whether a distribution is out of the earnings and profits of any taxable year, such earnings and profits shall be computed as of the close of such taxable year without diminution by reason of any distribution made during such taxable year or by reason of any income or excess profits tax imposed for such taxable year and without regard to the amount of earnings and profits at the time the distribution was made.

(b) For example, if a corporation making a return on the calendar year basis had accumulated earnings and profits as of the beginning of the taxable year of $50,000, and earnings and profits during the taxable year (without diminution by any distributions or by any income or excess profits tax for the taxable year) of $150,000, all earned during the last six months of the taxable year, and distributed $175,000 as dividends during the taxable year, $56,000 on April 1, $70,000 on July 1, and $49,000 on October 1, six-sevenths of each distribution will be deemed to have been paid out of earnings of the taxable year and one-seventh from accumulated earnings and profits, so that accumulated earnings and profits will be reduced by $8,000 beginning April 2, by an additional $10,000 beginning July 2, and by an additional $7,000 beginning October 2.

(c) In computing accumulated earnings and profits as of the beginning of the taxable year and in determining what distributions during the taxable year are made out of the earnings and profits of such year, for the purpose of section 458 (d) and (e), distributions made during the first 60 days of any taxable year, other than the taxpayer's first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, are deemed, to the extent they do not exceed the accumulated earnings and profits as of the beginning of the taxable year, to have been made on the last day of the preceding taxable year. In applying such rule, such distributions shall be considered in the order of time. For example, if a corporation on the calendar year basis has accumulated earnings or profits of $100,000 on January 1, 1952, and makes distributions of $75,000 on January 15, 1952, and $50,000 on February 15, 1952, the distribution of January 15, 1952, and $25,000 of the distribution of February 15, 1952, are considered as having been made on December 31, 1951.

(d) A distribution is considered to be made on the date it is payable, except that where no date is set for its payment, the distribution is considered to be made on the date when it is declared, and except that distributions payable during the first 60 days of any taxable year, other than the taxpayer's first taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, are considered to be distributions made on the last day of the preceding taxable year to the extent such distributions do not exceed the accumulated earnings and profits as of the beginning of the taxable year.

(e) The purchase by a corporation of its own stock for investment does not of itself result in a reduction of equity invested capital. But see § 40.440–1 relative to inadmissible assets. If, however, the corporation subsequently cancels such stock, equity invested capital is reduced, beginning with the day following such cancellation, by so much of the adjusted basis of such stock in the hands of the corporation as is not properly chargeable to earnings and profits of the taxable year. If stock is purchased for retirement, there is a distribution on the date of purchase of the amount paid therefor and the equity invested capital is reduced by the amount thereof not properly chargeable to earnings and profits of the taxable year.

(f) The amount of distributions by a corporation whether in bonds of such corporation, or in money or other property may exceed the amount of the equity invested capital computed without regard to such distributions. In such event, the equity invested capital of such corporation for such day shall be reduced by virtue of such distributions to a negative amount.

§ 40.458–6 Determination of equity invested capital, reduction by earnings and profits of another corporation. (a) Section 458 (e) (3) provides for the elimination of the duplication which occurs in the computation of the equity invested capital of the taxpayer following a transaction of the character referred to therein, as a result of which the earnings and profits of another corporation became the earnings and profits of the taxpayer.[1] The earnings and profits of such other corporation having been included at the time of the transaction in the earnings and profits of the taxpayer, they remain continuously thereafter a part of such earnings and profits account for the purpose of computing for any day after such transaction the earnings and profits, the accumulated earnings and profits at the beginning of the taxable year, and the earnings and profits of the taxable year. In addition, however, the amount of such included earnings and profits is also brought into computation of equity invested capital of the taxpayer under provisions of section 458 other than section 458 (d) (4) relating to accumulated earnings and profits as of the beginning of the taxable year. Thus, if the transaction is a reorganization to which section 113 (a) (7) is applicable, and in which the taxpayer receives all the assets of another corporation in exchange solely for its own stock, such amount has already been taken into account in property paid in for stock under section 458 (d) (2); or if the transaction is an intercorporate liquidation of another corporation involving a distribution with respect to stock of such other corporation held by the taxpayer with a basis determined under section 472 to be a basis other than cost, such amount has already been taken into account in the computation of equity invested capital of the taxpayer, as adjusted under section 472 (d) (2).

(b) To preclude this duplicate inclusion of the earnings and profits of another corporation in the invested capital of the taxpayer, section 458 (e) (3) provides, as a step in the computation of equity invested capital, for the reduction of equity invested capital otherwise computed by the amount of earnings and profits of another corporation previously at any time included in the earnings and profits of the taxpayer. This adjustment is to be made in the computation of equity invested capital for each day after the day of such transaction, regardless of whether the earnings and profits absorbed were produced during the taxable year of the taxpayer in which such transaction occurred or in a prior taxable year, and regardless of the condition of the earnings and profits account of the taxpayer immediately prior to or at any time subsequent to the date of such transaction.

§ 40.458–7 Determination of equity invested capital; deficit in earnings and profits of transferor transferred to transferee. (a) The determination of the amount of money or property paid in for stock or as paid-in surplus or as a contribution to capital of the transferee on account of certain tax-free exchanges is prescribed by section 471. Such amount of property paid in is computed with respect to the unadjusted basis for determining loss of the property in the hands of the transferee, adjusted for the period prior to the time the property was paid in by amounts equal to the adjustments proper under section 115 (l) for determining earnings and profits, minus, inter alia, any liability of the transferor assumed upon the exchange or to which the property received was subject. Since the unadjusted basis of the property received minus any liabilities assumed by the transferee or to which the property received was subject, will reflect the amount of any deficit incurred by the transferor, the equity invested capital of the transferee resulting from the exchange would be reduced by the amount of such deficit, although the amount of such deficit would not have reduced the equity invested capital of the transferor, prior to the exchange, below the amount of its accumulated earnings and profits.

(b) (1) In certain cases where, despite a reorganization of the transferor involving a tax-free exchange of its assets, the corporate identity of the transferor is preserved, section 458 (d) (5) provides that equity invested capital of the transferee shall be increased by that portion of the deficit in earnings and profits of the transferor attributable to the property transferred by the transferor to the transferee. Section 458 (e) (4) provides for the complementary reduction in the equity invested capital of the transferor for any day after such a transfer by the amount of the deficit in earnings and profits attributable to the property transferred.

(2) If the transferee has received substantially all, but not all, the property of the transferor upon the exchange, the deficit in earnings and profits of the transferor attributable to the property transferred shall be an amount which bears the same ratio to the total deficit in earnings and profits of the transferor as the excess of the basis of the property transferred to the transferee (adjusted by amounts equal to the adjustments proper under section 115 (l) for determining earnings and profits) over the amount of any liability of the transferor assumed upon the exchange and of any liability subject to which such property was so received bears to the excess of the basis of the total assets of the transferor immediately prior to the exchange (adjusted by amounts equal to the adjustments proper under section 115 (l) for determining earnings and profits) over the amount of any liability of the transferor, and the amount of any liability subject to which such assets were held immediately prior to the transfer.

(3) The adjustments provided by section 458 (d) (5) and section 458 (e) (4) are applicable only in case a corporation (called the transferor) transfers substantially all its property to another corporation formed especially to acquire such property (called the transferee), provided that—

(i) The sole consideration for the transfer of such property is the transfer to the transferor or its shareholders of all the stock of all classes (except qualifying shares) of the transferee. In determining whether the transfer is solely for stock, the assumption by the transferee of a liability of the transferor or the fact that the property acquired was received subject to a liability shall be disregarded;

(ii) The basis of the property in the hands of the transferee is determined by reference to the basis of such property in the hands of the transferor;

(iii) The transferor is forthwith completely liquidated in pursuance of the plan under which the acquisition of the property was made; and

(iv) Immediately after such liquidation the shareholders of the transferor own all the stock of the transferee received by the transferor.

(4) The earnings and profits of the transferee for any day after the date of acquisition of the property shall be considered to have been reduced by an amount equal to the amount by which the equity invested capital was increased pursuant to section 458 (d) (5), as if immediately before the beginning of the taxable year in which such transfer occurred the transferee had been in existence and had sustained a recognized loss equal to the portion of the deficit in earnings and profits of the transferor attributable to the property acquired by the transferee. The deficit in earnings and profits of the transferor for any day after the date of transfer of the property, and prior to the liquidation, must be decreased by the amount by which the equity invested capital is decreased pursuant to section 458 (e) (4), as if immediately before the beginning of the taxable year in which the transfer occurred the transferor had realized a recognized gain equal to the portion of the deficit in earnings and profits of the transferor attributable to the property transferred to the transferee.

(5) The provisions of section 458 (d) (5), section 458 (e) (4), and section 458 (f) (4) shall apply only in the case of a tax-free exchange involving a single transferor and shall not apply to instances where two or more transferors transfer property to a transferee in a tax-free exchange.

(6) The provisions of this section may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. In 1950 Corporation A, which was organized under the laws of the State of New York, found it necessary to incorporate under the laws of Delaware. Consequently a new Corporation B was organized under the laws of Delaware, and in exchange for all its stock received the entire assets of Corporation A. Immediately after the exchange Corporation A was liquidated, and the stock of Corporation B was transferred to the shareholders of Corporation A. Immediately prior to the exchange, the equity invested capital of Corporation A, consisting of money and property previously paid in for stock, was $500,000; in addition, Corporation A had a deficit in earnings and profits of $200,000. The adjusted basis of the assets of Corporation A at the time of the exchange properly adjusted under section 115 (l) for the computation of earnings and profits, and consequently the unadjusted basis of the assets to Corporation B at such time was $300,000. The equity invested capital of Corporation B, however, as of January 1, 1951, is $500,000, since section 458 (d) (5) requires the addition of Corporation A's $200,000 deficit to the equity invested capital of Corporation B, otherwise determined. As of January 1, 1951, Corporation B is also considered to have a deficit in earnings and profits of $200,000. If in 1951 Corporation B had earned $150,000, its equity invested capital as of January 1, 1952, would be $500,000 and its deficit in earnings and profits would be $50,000 ($200,000 minus $150,000). If in 1952 Corporation B had earned $75,000, its equity invested capital as of January 1, 1953, would be $525,000 ($500,000 plus $25,000 accumulated earnings and profits ($150,000 plus $75,000, minus $200,000)). Immediately after the exchange the equity invested capital of Corporation A would be $300,000 since section 458 (e) (4) requires the reduction of Corporation A's invested capital by the amount of any deficit in earnings and profits transferred to the transferee pursuant to the provisions of section 458 (f) (4), and Corporation A's deficit in earnings and profits computed pursuant to section 458 (f) (4) would be zero ($200,000 minus $200,000).

§ 40.458–8 Determination of equity invested capital; insurance companies. Section 458 (h) provides that the reserves of certain insurance companies shall not be included in computing equity invested capital but shall be treated as borrowed capital as provided in section 439. Section 458 does not apply to the computation of invested capital of mutual insurance companies other than life or marine. Such mutual insurance companies compute invested capital under section 437 (b) (3) only.

PART II—EXCESS PROFITS CREDIT BASED ON INCOME IN CONNECTION WITH CERTAIN EXCHANGES

SEC. 461. DEFINITIONS.

For the purposes of this part—

(a) Acquiring corporation. The term "acquiring corporation" means—

(1) A corporation which has acquired—

(A) Substantially all the properties of another corporation and the whole or a part of the consideration for the transfer of such properties is the transfer to such other corporation of all the stock of all classes (except qualifying shares) of the corporation which has acquired such properties, or

(B) Substantially all the properties of another corporation and the sole consideration for the transfer of such properties is the transfer to such other corporation of voting stock of the corporation which has acquired such properties, or

(C) Before December 1, 1950, properties of another corporation solely as paid-in surplus or a contribution to capital in respect of voting stock owned by such other corporation, or

(D) Substantially all the properties of a partnership in an exchange to which section 112 (b) (5), or so much of section 112 (c) or (e) as refers to section 112 (b) (5) is applicable.

(E) Properties either from one or more corporations or from one or more partnerships or from one or more corporations and one or more partnerships, other than from a corporation exempt under section 101, in an exchange, not otherwise described in this subsection, to which section 112 (b) (4) or (5), or so much of section 112 (c) or (e) as refers to section 112 (b) (4) or (5), is applicable.

For the purpose of subparagraphs (B) and (C) in determining whether such voting stock or such paid-in surplus or contribution to capital is the sole consideration, the assumption by the acquiring corporation of a liability of the other, or the fact that property acquired is subject to a liability, shall be disregarded. Subparagraph (C) shall apply only if the corporation transferring such properties is forthwith completely liquidated in pursuance of the plan under which the acquisition is made, and the transaction of which the acquisition is a part has the effect of a statutory merger or consolidation.

(2) A corporation which has acquired property from another corporation in a transaction with respect to which gain or loss was not recognized under section 112 (b) (6);

(3) A corporation the result of a statutory merger of two or more corporations; or

(4) A corporation the result of a statutory consolidation of two or more corporations.

(b) Component corporation. The term "component corporation" means—

(1) In the case of a transaction described in subsection (a) (1), the corporation which transferred the assets;

(2) In the case of a transaction described in subsection (a) (2), the corporation the property of which was acquired;

(3) In the case of a statutory merger, all corporations merged, except the corporation resulting from the merger; or

(4) In the case of a statutory consolidation, all corporation's consolidated, except the corporation resulting from the consolidation; or

(5) In the case of a transaction specified in subsection (a) (1) (D), the partnership whose properties were acquired.

(6) In the case of a transaction specified in subsection (a) (1) (E), the partnerships or corporations whose properties were required.

(c) Income of certain component corporations not included. For the purposes of section 434, section 462, section 463, and section 464, in the case of a corporation which is a component corporation in a transaction described in subsection (a)—

(1) Except as provided in paragraphs (2), (3), and (4), for the purpose of computing, for any taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, the excess profits credit of such component corporation or of an acquiring corporation of which the acquiring corporation in such transaction is not a component, no account shall be taken of the excess profits net income, or of the average base period net income if computed under section 442, 443, 444, 445, or 446, of such component corporation for any period before the day after such transaction, and no account shall be taken of capital additions in the base period computed under section 435 (f), and net capital additions or reductions computed under section 435 (g), of such component corporation to the extent that such computations relate to any period before such transaction.

(2) Except as provided in paragraphs (3) and (4), in case such transaction occurred in a taxable year of such component corporation ending after June 30, 1950, for the purpose of computing the excess profits credit of such component corporation for such taxable year, the amount of its average base period net income shall be limited to an amount which bears the same ratio to such average base period net income (computed without regard to this paragraph) as the number of days in such taxable year before the day after such transaction bears to the total number of days in such taxable year.

(3) Except as provided in paragraph (4), in the case of a transaction described in subsection (a) (1) (E), for the purpose of computing the excess profits credit of such component corporation or of an acquiring corporation of which the acquiring corporation in such transaction is not a component, no account shall be taken of that portion of the excess profits net income, or of the average base period net income if computed under section 442, 443, 444, 445, or 446, of such component corporation, for any period before the day after such transaction which is allocable to the acquiring corporation in such transaction under section 462 (i), and no account shall be taken of that portion of capital additions in the base period computed under section 435 (f), and net capital additions or reductions computed under section 435 (g), of such component corporation, to the extent that such computations relate to any period before such transaction, which is allocable to the acquiring corporation in such transaction under section 462 (i);

(4) In the case of a transaction described in subsection (a) (1) (E) which occurred in a taxable year of such component corporation ending after June 30, 1950, for the purpose of computing the excess profits credit of such component corporation for such taxable year, the amount of its average base period net income shall be limited to the sum of the following:

(A) An amount which bears the same ratio to such average base period net income (computed without regard to this paragraph), as the number of days in such taxable year before the day after such transaction bears to the total number of days in such taxable year; and

(B) An amount which bears the same ratio to that portion of its average base period net income as is allocable to such component corporation in such transaction under section 462 (i) (computed without regard to this paragraph), as the number of days in such taxable year after the day of such transaction bears to the total number of days in such taxable year.

For the purposes of section 462, in the case of a corporation which is a component corporation in a transaction described in subsection (a), in computing for any taxable year the average base period net income of the acquiring corporation in such transaction, no account shall be taken of the excess profits net income, or of the average base period net income, of such component corporation for any period beginning with the day after such transaction.

(d) For purposes of sections 435 (e), 442, 443, 444, 445, and 446, any taxpayer which is an acquiring corporation shall be considered to have been in existence and to have had taxable years for any period during which it or any of its component corporations was in existence, and such corporation shall be considered to have commenced business on the earliest date on which it or any of its component corporations commenced business. Except for purposes of the previous sentence, a component corporation in a transaction described in subsection (a), other than one described in subsection (a) (1) (E), shall be deemed not to have been in existence or to have commenced business prior to the day after such transaction for purposes of determining the applicability of sections 435 (e), 442, 443, 444, 445, and 446, to such corporation after such transaction. For purposes of the first sentence of this subsection, a corporation which was an acquiring corporation in a previous transaction shall be deemed to have been in existence for such period as is determined by the application of that sentence to that corporation with respect to that transaction. For purposes of this part, where sections 443 (b), 444 (c), 445 (b), and 446 (b) refer to the amount of a taxpayer's total assets as of the last day of its taxable year immediately preceding the taxpayer's first taxable year under this subchapter, such references, where appropriate, shall be taken to mean the amount of such taxpayer's total assets as of the last day of its base period.

(e) Component corporation which was an acquiring corporation in a previous transaction. In the case of a component corporation which was an acquiring corporation in a previous transaction, its average base period net income, for purposes of the later transaction, shall be determined under sections 435 (d), 435 (e), or 442 (c) with the application of section 462 (b), and of section 462 (c) or (d), where applicable, with respect to the previous transaction, and its average base period net income, for purposes of the later transaction, shall be determined under sections 442 (d), 443, 444, 445, or 446, with the application of sections 462 (d), (e), (f), (g), or (h), where applicable with respect to the previous transaction.

(f) Sole proprietorship. For the purposes of sections 461 (a) (1) (D), 461 (b) (5), and 462 (k), a business owned by a sole proprietorship shall be considered a partnership.

SEC. 462. AVERAGE BASE PERIOD NET INCOME—DETERMINATION.

(a) In general. In the case of a taxpayer which is an acquiring corporation, for the purposes of the determination of its average base period net income under section 435 (c), its average base period net income determined under section 435 (d) may be determined by computing its excess profits net income either with or without reference to section 462 (b), and its average base period net income under sections 435 (e) or 442 (c), subject to the rules provided in section 462 (c) or (d), may likewise be determined by computing its excess profits net income either with or without reference to section 462 (b). Its average base period net income under sections 442 (d), 443, 444, 445, and 446 shall be determined subject to the rules provided in sections 462 (d), (e), (f), (g), and (h). The excess profits net income of such acquiring corporation, computed with reference to section 462 (b), shall be the excess profits net income for each month of the acquiring corporation's base period, and for the additional period ending June 30, 1950, increased or decreased, as the case may be, by the addition or reduction resulting from including the excess profits net income for that month of all component corporations in the manner provided in subsection (b).

(b) Method of recomputation of excess profits net income of acquiring corporation. (1) The excess profits net income for each month in the base period of the acquiring corporation and for each month in the additional period ending June 30, 1950, shall be determined in the case of the acquiring corporation, and of any component corporation, as provided in section 435 (d) (1) without regard, however, to that part of such section which provides that in no event shall the excess profits net income of any corporation for any month be less than zero.

(2) For the purposes of this section, if the acquiring corporation was in existence, as provided in section 461 (d), at the beginning of its base period and, for any full month of such base period, either the acquiring corporation or any component corporation was not in existence, such corporation's excess profits net income for such month shall, notwithstanding the last sentence of section 435 (d) (1), be an amount equal to 1 per centum of the equity capital (as defined in section 437 (c)) of such corporation at the close of the day before the transaction described in section 461 (a) occurred, or at the close of the base period of such corporation, whichever is earlier, reduced by an amount determined under section 440 (b) (relating to ratio of inadmissible assets), by applying section 440 (b) as of the day before the transaction described in section 461 (a) occurred, or at the close of the base period of such corporation, whichever is earlier. In case either the acquiring corporation or any component corporation owned stock in any other such corporation on the first day of such owning corporation's first taxable year under this subchapter, the amounts computed under this paragraph with respect to such corporations shall be adjusted, under regulations prescribed by the Secretary, to such extent as may be necessary to prevent the excess profits net income of such corporations for the base period of the acquiring corporation from reflecting money or property having been paid in by either of such corporations to the other for stock or as paid-in surplus or as a contribution to capital, or from reflecting stock of either having been paid in for stock of the other or as paid-in surplus or as a contribution to capital. For the purposes of this paragraph, stock in either such corporation which has in the hands of the other corporation a basis determined with reference to the basis of stock previously acquired by the issuance of such other corporation's own stock shall be deemed to have been paid in for the stock of such other corporation.

(3) For every month of the acquiring corporation's base period and for each month thereafter for the period ending June 30, 1950, there shall be added to the excess profits net income of the acquiring corporation for that month, as determined under paragraphs (1) and (2), the excess profits net income of each component corporation for that month so determined. The excess profits net income of the acquiring corporation for any month, recomputed as provided in the previous sentence, shall, in no event, be less than zero.

(c) Use by acquiring corporation of alternative average base period net income based on growth provided for in section 435 (e). (1) In the case of a transaction described in section 461 (a), other than a transaction described in section 461 (a) (1) (E),

(A) Where, immediately prior to the date of the transaction, the acquiring corporation and all the component corporations (other than a corporation created incident to such transaction) had commenced business prior to the beginning of its base period (determined without reference to section 461 (d)) and met the requirements of section 453 (e) (1) (A) (1):

(i) The acquiring corporation shall not be denied the right to determine whether it is eligible for the benefits of section 435 (e) without reference to the recomputation of its excess profits net income provided for in section 462 (b) where the transaction occurred on or after July 1, 1950, but it shall be denied such right where the transaction occurred prior to July 1, 1950, and

(ii) The acquiring corporation shall be entitled to compute its average base period net income under section 435 (e) with reference to the recomputation of its excess profits net income provided for in section 462 (b) if the tests of section 435 (e) are satisfied. For that purpose, the acquiring corporation shall combine with its total payroll and its total gross receipts for that portion of its base period which preceded such transaction the total payroll and total gross receipts of such component corporations for that portion of such period and it shall combine with its net sales for that portion of the period prior to January 1, 1951, which preceded such transactions the net sales of such component corporations for that portion of such period. The allocation of payroll and gross receipts amounts of a component corporation to any such portion of such period shall be made in accordance with the rules provided in section 435 (e) (4) and (5). For purposes of qualifying under section 435 (e) (1) (A) (i) (relating to total assets of the taxpayer), such acquiring corporation shall combine its total assets on the date specified in section 435 (e) (1) (A) (i) with the total assets of each component corporation on such date. The Secretary shall prescribe by regulation such rules as may be necessary to insure that such combined total gross receipts do not reflect a duplication for purposes of this section;

(B) Where, immediately prior to the date of the transaction, either the acquiring corporation or one or more component corporations, had commenced business prior to the beginning of its base period (determined without reference to section 461 (d)) and met the requirements of section 435 (e) (1) (A) (1), but where either the acquiring corporation or one or more of such component corporations (other than a corporation created incident to such transaction) did not meet such requirements, the acquiring corporation shall not be entitled to compute its average base period net income under section 435 (e), regardless of the date on which the transaction occurred, or of whether or not, after the transaction, it determines its excess profits net income with reference to the recomputation provided for in section 462 (b). In any such case, where the transaction occurred on or after July 1, 1950, the monthly excess profits net income of the corporation entitled to the benefits of section 435 (e) for any month of the acquiring corporation's base period shall be, for purposes of the recomputation provided for in section 462 (b), one-twelfth of the average base period net income to which such corporation was entitled under section 435 (e).

(2) In the case of a transaction described in section 461 (a) (1) (E) which occurred after the close of the base period of the component corporation in which the component corporation, immediately prior to the date of the transaction, was entitled to the use of the alternative average base period net income based on growth provided for in section 435 (e), the acquiring corporation, if it determines its excess profits net income with reference to the recomputation provided for in section 462 (b), and the component corporation shall be entitled to compute their average base period net incomes under section 435 (e). Where the transaction occurred during the base period of the acquiring corporation, and the component corporation, immediately prior to the date of the transaction, had commenced business prior to the beginning of its base period (determined without reference to section 461 (d)) and met the requirements of section 435 (e) (1) (A) (1), the acquiring corporation, if it determines its excess profits net income with reference to the recomputation provided for in section 462 (b), and the component corporation, shall be entitled to compute their average base period net incomes under section 435 (e) provided, however, that they meet the tests of that section. For that purpose, the payroll and gross receipts of the component corporation for the period prior to the day of the transaction, determined in accordance with the rules provided in section 435 (e) (4) and (5), and the net sales of the component corporation for the period prior to the date of the transaction, shall be allocated as between the component corporation and the acquiring corporation in the same ratio as the excess profits net income of the component corporation allocated under subsection (i), and such allocated payroll, gross receipts, and net sales amounts shall be treated by the component corporation and by the acquiring corporation as the payroll, gross receipts, and net sales of the component corporation and the acquiring corporation for the period prior to the transaction. In the application of the test prescribed in section 435 (e) (1) (A) (i) (relating to total assets of the taxpayer) the component corporation and the acquiring corporation shall each be considered as having held the total assets of the component corporation as of the date applicable for purposes of section 435 (e) (1) (A) (i).

(3) Where any corporation, a party to a transaction described in section 461 (a), which had commenced business prior to the beginning of its base period (determined without reference to section 461 (d)), either was entitled at the time of the transaction to determine its average base period net income under section 435 (e) by reason of its having met the requirements of section 435 (e) (1) (B) or, where the transaction occurred prior to January 1, 1951, was furnishing at the time of the transaction a product or class of products of the type described in section 435 (e) (1) (B) (ii), the acquiring corporation shall be entitled to determine its average base period net income under section 435 (e) as provided in this subsection, substituting, for purposes of this paragraph, for the reference to the requirements of section 435 (e) (1) (A) (i), wherever it appears in paragraphs (1) and (2), a reference to the requirements stated in this paragraph, for the date July 1, 1950, wherever it appears in paragraph (1), the date January 1, 1951, and for the references, as they appear in paragraph (2), to transactions which occurred after the close of the base period of the component corporation and to transactions which occurred during the base period of the acquiring corporation, references to transactions which occurred after December 31, 1950, and to transactions which occurred prior to January 1, 1951, respectively.

(d) Use by acquiring corporation of alternative average base period net income provided in the case of base period abnormalities in section 442. (1) In the case of a transaction described in section 461 (a) which occurred during the base period of an acquiring corporation which commenced business (as provided in section 461 (d)) prior to the beginning of its base period, the acquiring corporation shall be entitled to determine its average base period net income under section 442 (c) or (d) if it satisfies the requirements of either such subsection and satisfies the other requirements of section 442. For purposes of section 442—

(A) In the case of such a transaction, other than a transaction described in section 461 (a) (1) (E), for purposes:

(i) Of determining excess profits net income for any month of the base period for purposes of section 442 (c) or (d), such acquiring corporation shall recompute its monthly excess profits net income as provided in section 462 (b), but without regard to the last sentence of section 462 (b) (3);

(ii) Of the computation provided in section 442 (d) (1) or (e) (1) (A) with respect to any day, the acquiring corporation shall be considered as having had the total assets of its component corporation or corporations on such day;

(iii) Of the interest adjustment provided in section 442 (d) (4) and (e) (1) (B), the acquiring corporation shall be considered as having paid or incurred the interest paid or incurred by its component corporation or corporations for that part of such periods as is referred to in those sections as preceded the date of the transaction; and

(iv) Of determining the existence of an abnormality under section 442 (a) with respect to the period prior to such transaction, the acquiring corporation shall be treated as if the component corporation's business during such period were its own; and

(B) In the case of a transaction described in section 461 (a) (1) (E), for purposes:

(i) Of determining excess profits net income for any month of the base period for purposes of section 442 (c) or (d), such acquiring corporation shall be considered as having had for that month that proportion of the excess profits net income (or deficit in excess profits net income) of the component corporation for such month which is allocable to such acquiring corporation under section 462 (i);

(ii) Of the computation referred to in subparagraph (A) (ii) of this paragraph and of the interest adjustment referred to in subparagraph (A) (iii) of this paragraph, the acquiring corporation shall be considered as having had the same portion of the items referred to in those subparagraphs as the ratio of its allocable share of the excess profits net income of the component corporation under section 462 (i) bears to the total excess profits net income of that corporation; and

(iii) Of determining the existence of an abnormality under section 442 (a) with respect to the period prior to such transaction, the acquiring corporation shall be treated as if that portion of the component corporation's business which was subsequently transferred to the acquiring corporation had been its own.

(2) In the case of a transaction described in section 461 (a) which occurred after the close of the base period of an acquiring corporation which commenced business (as provided in section 461 (d)) prior to the beginning of its base period, the acquiring corporation shall not be entitled to determine its average base period net income under section 442 except that:

(A) If all of the corporations, parties to the transaction, were, prior to the transaction, entitled to compute their average base period net incomes under section 442 (d) or under sections 442 (d), 443, 444, 445, or 446, the acquiring corporation may add an average base period net income of any such corporation computed under section 442 (d) to such other average base period net incomes for the purpose of determining its average base period net income after the transaction under the section applicable to it prior to the transaction, and

(B) If all of the corporations, parties to the transaction, were, prior to the transaction, entitled to compute their average base period net incomes under section 442 (c), if some were so entitled under section 442 (c) and the remainder under section 442 (d), or if some, but not all, were so entitled under either section 442 (c) or (d), then, for purposes of the recomputation of the excess profits net income of the acquiring corporation under section 462 (b), and for purposes of the allocation of a portion of the excess profits net income (or deficit in excess profits net income) of the component corporation to the acquiring corporation under section 462 (i) in the case of a transaction described in section 461 (a) (1) (E).

(i) In the case of an average base period net income computed under section 442 (c), the substitute excess profits net income of the corporation for any month determined under section 442 (c) (1) shall be treated as the excess profits net income of that corporation for that month; and

(ii) In the case of an average base period net income computed under section 442 (d), a figure obtained by dividing such average base period net income by 12 shall be treated as the excess profits net income of that corporation for any month of its base period.

(3) In the case of a transaction described in section 461 (a), where the acquiring corporation had not commenced business, within the meaning of section 461 (d), prior to the beginning of its base period, the acquiring corporation shall not be entitled to compute its average base period net income under section 442 in the manner provided therein or as provided in this section.

(e) Use by acquiring corporation of alternative average base period net income provided for change in products or services in section 443. (1) In the case of a transaction described in section 461 (a), other than a transaction described in 461 (a) (1) (E), where the acquiring corporation had commenced business, within the meaning of section 461 (d), on or before the first day of its base period, the following rules shall be applicable in determining the availability to the acquiring corporation of a right to compute its average base period net income under section 443—

(A) Except as provided in subparagraphs (B) and (D), where any corporation a party to the transaction, other than a corporation created incident to such transaction, had not commenced business, without regard to section 461 (d), on or before the first day of the acquiring corporation's base period, the acquiring corporation shall not be entitled to compute its average base period net income under section 443.

(B) In a case described in subparagraph (A) above, where the acquiring corporation, other than a corporation created incident to such transaction, and all of the component corporations were, prior to the transaction, entitled to compute their average base period net incomes under sections 442 (d), 443, 444, 445 or 446, the acquiring corporation may add an average base period net income computed under section 443 of any of the parties to the transaction to such other average base period net incomes for the purpose of determining its average base period net income after the transaction under the section applicable to it prior to the transaction.

(C) Where, at the time of the transaction, one or more of the corporations, parties to the transaction, had made a substantial change, within the meaning of section 443 (a) (1), in the products or services which it furnished, but where such corporations were not entitled at such time to compute their average base period net incomes under section 443, the acquiring corporation, if it recomputes its excess profits net income in the manner provided in section 462 (b) (but without regard to the last sentence of section 462 (b) (3)), shall be entitled to compute its average base period net income under section 443 if the requirements of that section are satisfied. For that purpose the gross income of all of the component corporations for taxable years beginning with, within, and subsequent to, the taxable year of the corporation which made the first such change in which such change was made shall be treated as having been earned by the acquiring corporation. The total assets of the component corporations as they existed on the last day of such year of the acquiring corporation which preceded the taxable year in which the transaction occurred shall be treated, for purposes of the determination of its average base period net income under section 443 for the taxable year of the transaction and for subsequent taxable years, as having been held by the acquiring corporation on such day. Interest paid or incurred by any component corporation prior to the day of the transaction shall be considered as having been paid or incurred by the acquired corporation at the time when it was paid or incurred by such component corporation. In any such case, each such change shall be treated as having been made by the acquiring corporation at the time when it was made by the corporation making the change.

(D) In the case described in subparagraph (A), where a corporation a party to the transaction commenced business during the 36-month period ending on the last day of the base period of the acquiring corporation, and the transaction occurred prior to December 1, 1950, the activities of that corporation shall be treated for purposes of section 443, and with respect to the activities of the other corporations parties to the transaction, as though they constituted a substantial change in products or services furnished, within the meaning of section 443 (a) (1), by the acquiring corporation and, for purposes of determining whether or not the acquiring corporation meets the requirements of that section, the rules prescribed in subparagraph (C) shall be applicable.

(E) Where there was a substantial change in the products or services furnished by the acquiring corporation subsequent to the date of the transaction, the acquiring corporation shall be entitled to determine its average base period net income under section 443 with respect to such change if it recomputes its excess profits net income in the manner provided in section 462 (b) (without regard to the last sentence of section 462 (b) (3)), subject to the application of the rules prescribed in subparagraph (C).

(F) Subject to the application of the above rules, an acquiring corporation shall not be deemed, for purposes of section 443, to have made a substantial change in the products or services furnished by it solely by reason of a change in such products or services resulting from the execution of a transaction described in section 461 (a).

(2) In the case of a transaction described in section 461 (a) (1) (E), the acquiring corporation shall only be entitled to compute its average base period net income under section 443 where:

(A) The component corporation was entitled to compute its average base period net income under section 443 prior to the date of the transaction, in which event such average base period net income shall be allocated as between the acquiring corporation and the component corporation in the manner provided in section 462 (i), or

(B) There was, after the date of the transaction, a substantial change in the products or services furnished by the acquiring corporation and the acquiring corporation determines its excess profits net income for each month of the base period by reference to the excess profits net income allocable to it in the manner provided in section 462 (i).

(3) In the case of a transaction described in section 461 (a), where the acquiring corporation had not commenced business, within the meaning of section 461 (d), on or before the first day of its base period, the acquiring corporations shall not be entitled to compute its average base period net income under section 443 in the manner provided therein or as provided in this section.

(f) Use by acquiring corporation of alternative average base period net income provided in the case of increase in capacity for production or operation in section 444. Where any corporation, a party to a transaction described in section 461 (a) which occurred after the close of the base period of the acquiring corporation, was entitled to compute its average base period net income under section 444, the acquiring corporation shall only be entitled to compute its average base period net income under such section where all of the corporations, parties to the transaction, (other than a corporation created incident to the transaction) were entitled to compute their average base period net incomes under sections 442 (d), 443, 444, 445 or 446, in which case the acquiring corporation may add an average base period net income computed under section 444, or an allocable portion thereof determined under section 462 (i), of any of the parties to the transaction to such other average base period net incomes for the purpose of determining its average base period net income after the transaction under the section applicable to it prior to the transaction. Where, in the case of a corporation entitled to compute its average base period net income under section 444, the transaction described in section 461 (a) occurred prior to the time at which any corporation a party to the transaction was entitled to compute its average base period net income under section 444, the Secretary, pursuant to regulations, shall provide for the extent to which and for the manner in which the acquiring corporation shall be entitled to compute its average base period net income under such section.

(g) Use by acquiring corporation of alternative average base period net income provided for new corporations in section 445. (1) In the case of a transaction described in section 461 (a) which occurred during the base period of the acquiring corporation, such acquiring corporation shall be entitled to compute its average base period net income under section 445, in the manner provided therein, if such corporation had not commenced business, within the meaning of section 461 (d), prior to the beginning of its base period and, in applying section 445, the number of taxable years since the acquiring corporation is deemed to have commenced business under section 461 (d) shall be determinative.

(2) In the case of a transaction described in section 461 (a) which occurred after the close of the base period of an acquiring corporation which had not commenced business, within the meaning of section 461 (d), prior to the beginning of its base period—

(A) Where such transaction is a transaction other than a transaction described in section 461 (a) (1) (E)—

(i) And the transaction occurred after the close of the third taxable year after the commencement of business of the component corporation or corporations and of the acquiring corporation (unless such corporation was created incident to the transaction), the commencement of business for each such corporation being determined without regard to section 461 (d), the average base period net income of the acquiring corporation after the transaction shall be determined, for purposes of section 445, in lieu of in the manner provided by section 445 (b), by adding together the average base period net incomes of the acquiring corporation and of the component corporation or corporations as determined under that section as of the first day of the fourth such taxable year of each such corporation;

(ii) And the transaction occurred prior to the close of the third taxable year after the commencement of business of either the acquiring corporation or of one or more of the component corporations, determined without regard to section 461 (d), but after the close of the third taxable year after the commencement of business of one or more of such corporations, the average base period net income of the acquiring corporation after the transaction shall be determined, for purposes of section 445, in lieu of in the manner provided by section 445 (b), by adding together the average base period net incomes determined under section 445 as of the first day of the fourth such taxable year of each such corporation in business for more than three taxable years and an average base period net income amount computed by the method specified in section 445 for each corporation not in business for three taxable years as though the day immediately prior to such transaction were the first day of such corporation's fourth such taxable year;

(iii) And the transaction occurred prior to the close of the third taxable year after the commencement of business of the acquiring corporation and of the component corporation or corporations, the average base period net income of the acquiring corporation after the transaction shall be determined, for purposes of section 445, by the method specified in section 445, and, in applying that method, the number of taxable years since the acquiring corporation is deemed to have commenced business under section 461 (d) shall be determinative;

(B) Where such transaction is a transaction described in section 461 (a) (1) (E)—

(i) And the transaction occurred after the close of the third taxable year after the commencement of business of the component corporation, the average base period net income of the acquiring corporation after the transaction shall be that portion of the average base period net income of the component corporation, determined under section 445, which is allocable to the acquiring corporation under section 462 (i);

(ii) And the transaction occurred prior to the close of the third taxable year after the commencement of business of the component corporation, the average base period net income of the acquiring corporation after the transaction shall be determined, for purposes of section 445, by the method specified in section 445 and, in applying that method, the number of taxable years since the acquiring corporation is deemed to have commenced business under section 461 (d) shall be determinative.

(3) In the case of a transaction described in section 461 (a) where the acquiring corporation had commenced business, within the meaning of section 461 (d), prior to the beginning of its base period, the acquiring corporation shall not be entitled to compute its average base period net income under section 445 in the manner provided therein or as provided in this section. In any such case, however, where the acquiring corporation (other than a corporation created incident to the transaction) and all of the component corporations were, prior to the transaction, entitled to compute their average base period net incomes under sections 442 (d), 443, 444, 445, or 446, the acquiring corporation may add an average base period net income computed under section 445 of any of the parties to the transaction to such other average base period net incomes for the purpose of determining its average base period net income after the transaction under the section applicable to it prior to the transaction.

(h) Use by acquiring corporation of alternative average base period net income provided for depressed industries in section 446. Where any corporation, a party to a transaction described in section 461 (a) which occurred after the close of the base period of the acquiring corporation, was entitled to compute its average base period net income under section 446, the acquiring corporation shall only be entitled to compute its average base period net income under such section where all of the corporations, parties to the transaction (other than a corporation created incident to the transaction), were entitled to compute their average base period net incomes under sections 442 (d), 443, 444, 445, or 446, in which case the acquiring corporation may add an average base period net income computed under section 446, or an allocable portion thereof determined under section 462 (i), of any of the parties to the transaction to such other average base period net incomes for the purpose of determining its average base period net income after the transaction under the section applicable to it prior to the transaction. Where, in the case of a corporation entitled to compute its average base period net income under section 446, the transaction described in section 461 (a) occurred prior to the time at which any corporation a party to the transaction was entitled to compute its average base period net income under section 446, the Secretary, pursuant to regulations, shall provide for the extent to which and for the manner in which the acquiring corporation shall be entitled to compute its average base period net income under such section.

(i) Allocation rules in the case of transactions described in section 461 (a) (1) (E). (1) The amount of the component corporation's excess profits net income for any month which shall be taken into account by the acquiring corporation in the computation of its excess profits net income as provided in subsection (b) shall be such portion of the component corporation's excess profits net income, or of its substitute excess profits net income if computed under section 442 (c), for such month as the fair market value of the assets transferred to the acquiring corporation bears to the fair market value of the total assets of the component corporation as they existed immediately prior to such transaction.

(2) In the case of a transaction which occurred after the close of the third taxable year after a component corporation commenced business, the amount of its average base period net income, if computed under section 445 (relating to new corporations), for such taxable year and for any taxable year thereafter which is allocable to the acquiring corporation shall be such portion of the component corporation's average base period net income computed under such section as the fair market value of the assets transferred by the component corporation to the acquiring corporation bears to the fair market value of the total assets of the component corporation as they existed immediately prior to the transaction.

(3) For the purposes of section 461 (c) (4) (B), the average base period net income allocable to the component corporation, other than in the case of an average base period net income computed under section 445 (b) (1), shall be such portion of its average base period net income computed under section 435 (c) as the fair market value of the assets not transferred in the transaction bears to the fair market value of the assets held immediately prior to such transaction.

(4) In the case of a transaction which occurred after the requirements of sections 442 (d), 443, 444, or 446 are met by the component corporation, the amount of the component corporation's average base period net income, if computed under any of such sections, for such taxable year, which is allocable to the acquiring corporation, shall be such portion of the component corporation's average base period net income computed under such section as the fair market value of the assets transferred by the component corporation to the acquiring corporation bears to the fair market value of the total assets of the component corporation as they existed immediately prior to the transaction.

(5) Pursuant to regulations prescribed by the Secretary, a determination of the fair market value of the properties and of the division thereof for the purpose of this subsection, may be made by agreement between all persons parties to the transaction, where the Secretary consents thereto. In no case shall the aggregate of the excess profits net incomes or of the average base period net incomes allocated under the above paragraphs be in excess of 100 per centum of the excess profits net income or of such average base period net income, as the case may be, of the component corporation.

(6) Pursuant to regulations prescribed by the Secretary, an allocation of excess profits net income or average base period net income for the purposes of this section may be made on the basis of the earnings experience of the assets transferred and retained in lieu of an allocation based on the fair market value of the assets if all of the parties to the transaction consent thereto and if it is established to the satisfaction of the Secretary that such an allocation fairly represents an identifiable earnings experience of each such group of assets. Except in the case of a transaction which occurred before December 1, 1950, in which the component corporation is a partnership, the aggregate of the excess profits net incomes or average base period net incomes allocated to the several parties to the transaction as provided in this paragraph shall not be in excess of 100 per centum of the excess profits net income or of the average base period net income as the case may be of the component corporation.

(7) In any case in which there is a determination of the fair market value of the properties or a determination of an allocation of excess profits net income or average base period net income based on identifiable earnings, such fair market values or excess profits net incomes or average base period net incomes so determined shall be binding upon all parties to the transactions for the excess profits tax taxable year for which determined and for all subsequent excess profits tax taxable years.

(8) Cross reference: For rules for the allocation of payroll, gross receipts, equity capital, borrowed capital, and capital additions and reductions, see sections 461 (c) (3), 462 (c), 463, and 464.

(j) (1) If, after December 31, 1945—

(A) The taxpayer acquired stock in another corporation, and thereafter such other corporation became a component corporation of the taxpayer, or

(B) A corporation (hereinafter called "first corporation") acquired stock in another corporation (hereinafter called "second corporation"), and thereafter the first and second corporations became component corporations of the taxpayer, then to the extent that the consideration for such acquisition was not the issuance of the taxpayer's or first corporation's, as the case may be, own stock, the average base period net income of the taxpayer shall be reduced, and the transferred capital addition and reduction adjusted, in respect of the income and capital addition and reduction of the corporation whose stock was so acquired and in respect of the income and capital addition and reduction of any other corporation which at the time of such acquisition was connected directly or indirectly through stock ownership with the corporation whose stock was so acquired and which thereafter became a component corporation of the taxpayer, in such amounts and in such manner as shall be determined in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Secretary. For the purposes of this paragraph, stock which has, in the hands of the taxpayer or first corporation, as the case may be, a basis determined with reference to the basis of stock previously acquired by the issuance of the taxpayer's or first corporation's, as the case may be, own stock, shall be considered as having been acquired in consideration of the issuance of the taxpayer's or first corporation's, as the case may be, own stock.

(2) If during the taxable year for which tax is computed under this subchapter the taxpayer acquires assets in a transaction which constitutes it an acquiring corporation, the amount includible under subsection (a), attributable to such transaction, shall be limited to an amount which bears the same ratio to the amount computed without regard to this subsection as the number of days in the taxable year after such transaction bears to the total number of days in such taxable year.

(k) In the case of a partnership which is a component corporation by virtue of section 461 (b) (5) and (6), the computations required by this part shall be made, under rules and regulations prescribed by the Secretary, as if such partnership had been a corporation.

(l) In the case of a taxpayer which becomes an acquiring corporation in any taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, if, at the beginning of the first taxable year of such corporation which ends after June 30, 1950, and at all times until the taxpayer became an acquiring corporation—

(1) The taxpayer owned not less than 75 per centum of each class of stock of each of the qualified component corporations involved in the transaction in which the taxpayer became an acquiring corporation; or

(2) One of the qualified component corporations involved in the transaction owned not less than 75 per centum of each class of stock of the taxpayer, and of each of the other qualified component corporations involved in the transaction, the average base period net income of the taxpayer shall not be less than (A) the average base period net income of that one of its qualified component corporations involved in the transaction the average base period net income of which is greatest, or (B) the average base period net income of the taxpayer computed without regard to the base period net income of any of its qualified component corporations involved in the transaction. As used in this subsection, the term "qualified component corporation" means a component corporation which was in existence and had commenced business (without regard to the provisions of section 451 (d)) on the date of the beginning of the taxpayer's base period.

(m) Treatment of abnormalities in income in taxable period. In the case where an acquiring corporation in a transaction described in section 431 (a) which occurred on or before December 31, 1950, receives income which, under the provisions of section 456 (relating to abnormalities in income in taxable period), would be attributable, under section 456 (b), to a taxable year of a component corporation of such acquiring corporation, which taxable year closed prior to or with the close of the base period of the acquiring corporation, for purposes of section 456, such income, and all other income of the same class, of the component corporation for such year and previous taxable years shall be treated as income of the acquiring corporation.

SEC. 463. CAPITAL CHANGES.

(a) Taxpayer using part II of this subchapter. For the purposes of section 435 (g), if the transaction which constitutes a taxpayer an acquiring corporation occurs in a taxable year of the taxpayer which ends after June 30, 1950, and the taxpayer's average base period net income is computed by application of this part, the following rules shall apply in computing the net capital addition and net capital reduction of such acquiring corporation after such transaction:

(1) Except with respect to a transaction described in section 461 (a) (1) (E), in the determination of the amounts of money and property paid in for stock or as paid in surplus or as a contribution to capital after the beginning of the taxable year of the acquiring corporation for the purposes of section 435 (g) (3) (A), there shall be added, as of the day after the transaction, the amounts of money and property paid in for stock or as paid in surplus or as a contribution to capital to a component corporation after the beginning of the taxable year of such component corporation and prior to the day of the transaction which constitutes such corporation a component corporation.

(2) Except with respect to a transaction described in section 461 (a) (1) (E), in the determination of the amounts of distributions to shareholders which were not out of the earnings and profits of the taxable year of the acquiring corporation for the purposes of section 435 (g) (4) (A), there shall be added, as of the day after the transaction, the amounts of distributions to shareholders of a component corporation not out of the earnings and profits of its taxable year in which such transaction occurred and prior to such day.

(3) Except with respect to a transaction described in section 461 (a) (1) (E), for the purpose of section 435 (g) (3) (B) and (g) (4) (B), for a taxable year of the acquiring corporation beginning after the date of the transaction the equity capital of the acquiring corporation at the beginning of the taxpayer's first taxable year under this subchapter shall be the aggregate of the equity capital of the acquiring corporation as of such date and the equity capital of a component corporation as of the first day of the first taxable year of such component corporation under this subchapter. This rule shall be modified pursuant to regulations prescribed by the Secretary under section 462 (j) to the extent that the transaction is subject to that subsection.

(4) Except with respect to a transaction described in section 461 (a) (1) (E), in the case of the taxable year in which the transaction occurred, for purposes of section 435 (g) (3), there shall be added as of the day of the transaction the amount, if any, by which the equity capital of a component corporation at the beginning of its taxable year in which the transaction occurred exceeds its equity capital at the beginning of its first taxable year under this subchapter, and, for purposes of section 435 (g) (4), there shall be added as of the day of the transaction the amount, if any, by which the equity capital of a component corporation at the beginning of its first taxable year under this subchapter exceeds its equity capital at the beginning of its taxable year in which the transaction occurred.

(5) Except in the case of a transaction described in section 461 (a) (1) (E), for the purposes of section 435 (g) (3) (C) and (g) (4) (C), in the computation of the daily borrowed capital of the acquiring corporation for the first day of such corporation's first taxable year under this subchapter there shall be added the daily borrowed capital of a component corporation for the first day of its first taxable year under this subchapter, and in the computation of the average borrowed capital of the acquiring corporation for its taxable year in which such transaction occurred there shall be included the daily borrowed capital of a component corporation for that part of the acquiring corporation's taxable year prior to the transaction.

(6) Except in the case of a transaction described in section 461 (a) (1) (E), for the purposes of section 435 (g) (5) (C) and (D), in the computation of the original inadmissible assets of the acquiring corporation there shall be added the original inadmissible assets of a component corporation, and in the computation of the average inadmissible assets of the acquiring corporation for the taxable year of the transaction there shall be added the daily amounts attributable to the inadmissible assets of a component corporation for that part of the acquiring corporation's taxable year prior to the date of the transaction.

(7) The Secretary shall prescribe by regulation such modification of the rules specified in this section as may be necessary to carry out the principles of such rules and the rules of section 435 (g) in cases involving intercorporate stock ownership, contributions, distributions, stock purchases, and loans between parties to a transaction described in section 461 (a), or their shareholders, prior to the date of such transaction.

(8) In the case of an acquiring corporation in a transaction described in section 461 (a) (1) (E), for the purposes of section 435 (g) (3) (B) and (g) (4) (B), so much of the equity capital of the component corporation at the beginning of its first taxable year under this subchapter shall be allocated to the acquiring corporation as is proportionate to the ratio which the equity capital transferred to the acquiring corporation in the transaction bears to the equity capital of the component corporation immediately prior to the transaction. The amount so allocated shall be deemed to be the equity capital of the taxpayer as of the first day of its first taxable year under this subchapter. For purposes of sections 435 (g) (3) (B) and 435 (g) (4) (B) the equity capital of the acquiring corporation at the beginning of its taxable year in which the transaction occurred shall be computed as of the day following the transaction.

(9) In the case of a transaction described in section 461 (a) (1) (E), for the purposes of section 435 (g) (3) (C) and (g) (4) (C), the daily borrowed capital of an acquiring corporation for the first day of such corporation's first taxable year under this subchapter shall be such portion of the daily borrowed capital of the component corporation for the first day of its first taxable year under this subchapter as the borrowed capital of the acquiring corporation immediately after the transaction bears to the borrowed capital of the component corporation as of the close of the day prior to the day of the transaction.

(10) In the case of a transaction described in section 461 (a) (1) (E), in the determination of the original inadmissible assets of an acquiring corporation for the purposes of section 435 (g) (5) (C) and (g) (5) (D), there shall be allocated to such corporation that proportion of the original inadmissible assets of the component corporation as is proportionate to the ratio which the inadmissible assets transferred to the acquiring corporation in the transaction bears to the total of the inadmissible assets held by the component corporation immediately prior to the transaction. The amount so allocated shall be deemed to be the original inadmissible assets of the acquiring corporation.

(11) For purposes of the determination under section 435 (g) (6) and (7) of the amount to be added to the daily capital reduction in the case of a corporation a member of a controlled group such determination shall be made, pursuant to regulations prescribed by the Secretary, in a manner consistent with the method provided in such sections.

(12) In the case of a transaction other than that described in section 461 (a) (1) (E), to the extent that stock of a component corporation was acquired in an exchange for other than stock of the acquiring corporation within the meaning of section 462 (j), the basis of the assets of the component corporation shall be redetermined as provided in section 470 and such redetermination basis shall be used for all purposes of section 435 (g).

(13) In the case of transactions described in section 462 (e) (1) (C), (e) (1) (B), and (e) (2) the net capital additions and reductions of the acquiring corporation after the transaction shall be determined under this section subject to the application, prior to the transaction, of section 443 (d) to each corporation which was a party to the transaction.

(14) In the case of transactions described in section 462 (g) (2) and the second sentence of (g) (3), the net capital additions and reductions of the acquiring corporation after the transaction shall be determined under this section subject to the application, prior to the transaction, of section 443 (f) to each corporation which was a party to the transaction.

(b) Rule where acquiring corporation is component of taxpayer. In cases where an acquiring corporation is a component of the taxpayer, and the transaction which constitutes such corporation an acquiring corporation occurs in a taxable year of such corporation which ends after June 30, 1950, for the purpose of determining the daily capital addition or reduction of the taxpayer the above rules shall be applied in a similar manner to determine the net capital addition or reduction of such acquiring corporation for each day after such transaction.

SEC. 464. CAPITAL CHANGES DURING THE BASE PERIOD.

For the purposes of section 435 (f), if the transaction which constitutes the taxpayer an acquiring corporation occurred during or after the beginning of the second taxable year preceding the first taxable year of the acquiring corporation under this subchapter, and the acquiring corporation's average base period net income is computed by application of this part, the following rules shall apply in computing the base period capital addition of such acquiring corporation:

(a) In the case of a transaction, other than a transaction described in section 461 (a) (1) (E), which—

(1) Occurred during or after the first taxable year of the acquiring corporation under this subchapter, for the purposes of section 435 (f), the base period capital addition of the acquiring corporation for the taxable year in which the transaction occurred shall be the sum of:

(A) The base period capital addition of the acquiring corporation, and

(B) So much of the base period capital addition of a component corporation as is proportionate to the ratio which the number of days in the taxable year of the acquiring corporation after the transaction bears to the number of days in such taxable year; and the base period capital addition of the acquiring corporation for any taxable year thereafter shall be the aggregate of the base period capital addition of the acquiring corporation and the base period capital addition of such component corporation.

(2) Occurred during the taxable year of the acquiring corporation immediately preceding its first taxable year under this subchapter, its base period capital addition shall be computed after—

(A) Adding to its yearly base period capital for the immediately preceding taxable year (as defined in section 435 (f) (2) (A) (ii)) of the acquiring corporation the yearly base period capital for the immediately preceding taxable year (so defined) of a component corporation, and

(B) Adding to its yearly base period capital for the second preceding taxable year (as defined in section 435 (f) (2) (A) (iii)) of the acquiring corporation the yearly base period capital for the second preceding taxable year (so defined) of such component corporation.

(3) Occurred during the second taxable year of the acquiring corporation preceding its first taxable year under this subchapter, its base period capital addition shall be computed after adding to its yearly base period capital for the second preceding taxable year (as defined in section 435 (f) (2) (A) (iii)) of the acquiring corporation the yearly base period capital for the second preceding taxable year (so defined) of a component corporation.

(b) In the case of a transaction described in section 461 (a) (1) (E) which—

(1) Occurred during or after the first taxable year of the component corporation under this subchapter, for purposes of section 435 (f), the base period capital addition of the acquiring corporation shall be such portion of the base period capital addition of the component corporation as is proportionate to the ratio which the fair market value of the assets transferred to the acquiring corporation in the transaction bears to the fair market value of the assets of a component corporation immediately prior to the transaction;

(2) Occurred during a taxable year of the component corporation which is or would be if it remained in existence, a taxable year preceding its first taxable year under this subchapter.

(A) The yearly base period capital of the acquiring corporation for the year in which the transaction occurred shall be computed as of the day following the transaction.

(B) If the taxable year of the acquiring corporation during which the transaction occurred is its first taxable year under this subchapter, its base period capital addition shall be computed by

(i) Treating as its yearly base period capital for the immediately preceding taxable year (as defined in section 435 (f) (2) (ii)) such portion of the yearly base period capital of the component corporation for the first day of the taxable year of the component corporation in which such transaction occurred, and

(ii) Treating as its yearly base period capital for the second preceding taxable year (as defined in section 435 (f) (2) (iii)) such portion of the yearly base period capital of the component corporation for the first day of the taxable year of the component corporation before the taxable year of the component corporation in which the transaction occurred as is proportionate to the ratio which the fair market value of the assets transferred to the acquiring corporation in the transaction bears to the fair market value of the assets of the component corporation immediately prior to the transaction.

(C) If the taxable year of the acquiring corporation during which the transaction occurred is its taxable year immediately preceding its first taxable year under this subchapter its base period capital addition shall be computed by treating as its yearly base period capital for the second preceding taxable years (as defined in section 435 (f) (2) (iii)) such portion of the base period capital of the component corporation for the first day of the taxable year of the component corporation in which such transaction occurred as is proportionate to the ratio which the fair market value of the assets transferred to the acquiring corporation in the transaction bears to the fair market value of the assets of the component corporation immediately prior to the transaction.

(3) Was a transaction in which a part of the assets of a component corporation were transferred to an acquiring corporation which had commenced business prior to such transaction, the base period capital addition of such acquiring corporation shall be computed pursuant to regulations prescribed by the Secretary.

SEC. 465. FOREIGN CORPORATIONS.

The term "corporation" as used in this part does not include a foreign corporation.

PART III—INVESTED CAPITAL IN CONNECTION WITH CERTAIN EXCHANGES AND LIQUIDATIONS

SEC. 470. ADJUSTED BASIS OF ASSETS RECEIVED IN CERTAIN INTERCORPORATE LIQUIDATIONS.

For the purposes of this subchapter (other than section 458)—

(a) Basis of assets acquired in intercorporate liquidation. The property received by a transferee in an intercorporate liquidation attributable to a share of stock having in the hands of the transferee a basis determined to be a cost basis, shall be considered to have an adjusted basis at the time so received determined as follows:

(1) The aggregate of the property (other than money) held by the transferor at the time of the acquisition by the transferee of control of the transferor (or, if such share was acquired after the acquisition of such control, at the time of the acquisition of such share, or, if such control was not acquired, at the time immediately prior to the receipt of any property in the intercorporate liquidation in respect of such share) shall be deemed to have an aggregate basis equal to the amount obtained by (A) multiplying the amount of the adjusted basis at such time of such share in the hands of the transferee by the aggregate number of share units in the transferor at such time (the interest represented by such share being taken as the share unit), and (B) adjusting for the amount of money on hand and the liabilities of the transferor at such time.

(2) The basis which property of the transferor is deemed to have under paragraph (1) at the time therein specified shall be used in determining the basis of property subsequently acquired by the transferor the basis of which is determined with reference to the basis of property specified in paragraph (1).

(3) The basis which property of the transferor is deemed to have under paragraphs (1) and (2) at the time therein specified shall be used in determining all subsequent adjustments to the basis of such property.

(4) The property so received by the transferee shall be deemed to have, at the time of its receipt, the same basis it is deemed to have under the foregoing provisions of this subsection in the hands of the transferor, or in the case of property not specified in paragraph (1) or (2), the same basis it would have had in the hands of the transferor.

(5) Only such part of the aggregate property received by the transferee in the intercorporate liquidation as is attributable to such share shall be considered as having the adjusted basis which property is deemed to have under paragraphs (1), (2), (3), and (4) of this subsection.

(b) Basis for equity capital credit. The adjusted basis which property received by the transferee in an intercorporate liquidation is considered to have under the provisions of subsection (a) at the time of its receipt shall be thereafter treated as the adjusted basis, in lieu of the adjusted basis otherwise prescribed, in computing any amount, determined by reference to the basis of such property in the hands of the transferee, entering into the computation of the equity capital of the transferee, or of any other corporation the computation of the equity capital of which is determined by reference to the basis of such property in the hands of the transferee.

(c) Statutory mergers and consolidations. If a corporation owns stock in another corporation and such corporations are merged or consolidated in a statutory merger or consolidation, then for the purposes of this section and section 437 such stock shall be considered to have been acquired (in such statutory merger or consolidation) by the corporation resulting from the statutory merger or consolidation, and the properties of such other corporation attributable to such stock to have been received by such resulting corporation as a transferee from such other corporation as a transferor in an intercorporate liquidation.

(d) Determinations—(1) Regulations. Any determination which is required to be made under this section (including determinations in applying this section in cases where there is a series of transferees of the property and cases where the stock of the transferor is acquired by the transferee from another corporation, and the determination of the basis and adjusted basis which property or items thereof have or are considered to have) shall be made in accordance with regulations which shall be prescribed by the Secretary. If the transferor or the transferee is a foreign corporation, the provisions of this section shall apply to such extent and under such conditions and limitations as may be provided in such regulations.

(2) Application to liquidation extending over long period. The Secretary is authorized to prescribe rules similar to those provided in this section with respect to the days within the period beginning with the date on which the first property is received in the intercorporate liquidation and ending with the day of its completion; and the extent to which, and the conditions and limitations under which such rules are to be applicable.

(e) Definitions—(1) Intercorporate liquidation. As used in this section, the term "intercorporate liquidation" means the receipt (whether or not after December 31, 1949) by a corporation (hereinafter called the "transferee") of property in complete liquidation of another corporation (hereinafter called the "transferor") to which

(A) The provisions of section 112 (b) (6), or the corresponding provision of a prior revenue law, is applicable or

(B) A provision of law is applicable prescribing the nonrecognition of gain or loss in whole or in part upon such receipt (including a provision of the regulations applicable to a consolidated income or excess profits tax return but not including section 112 (b) (7), (9), or (10) or a corresponding provision of a prior revenue law), but only if none of such property so received is a stock or a security in a corporation the stock or securities of which are specified in the law applicable to the receipt of such property as stock or securities permitted to be received (or which would be permitted to be received if they were the sole consideration) without the recognition of gain.

(2) Control. As used in this section, the term "control" means the ownership of stock possessing at least 80 per centum of the total combined voting power of all classes of stock entitled to vote and the ownership of at least 80 per centum of the total number of shares of all other classes of stock (except nonvoting stock which is limited and preferred as to dividends), but only if in both cases such ownership continues until the completion of the intercorporate liquidation.

§ 40.470–1 Adjusted basis of assets received in certain intercorporate liquidations. Section 470 provides specific rules applicable in determining the adjusted basis of assets received in certain intercorporate liquidations. These rules must be applied for all purposes of the excess profits tax except the computations under section 458, relating to the historical invested capital. These rules shall be applied in a manner consistent, to the extent appropriate, with the principles of the regulations relating to the corresponding rules provided in section 472.

SEC. 471. EXCHANGES.

For purposes of section 458—

(a) Definitions, Etc. For the purposes of this section—

(1) "Exchange", "transferor", and "transferee". The term "exchange" means a transaction by which one corporation (hereinafter called "transferee") receives property of another corporation (hereinafter called "transferor") and the basis of the property received, in the hands of the transferee, for the purposes of section 458 (d) is determined by reference to the basis in the hands of the transferor.

(2) Determination of basis of property received. The basis, in the hands of the transferee, of the property of the transferor received by the transferee upon the exchange shall be determined in accordance with section 458 (d).

(b) Rule. In the application of section 458 (d) to a transferee upon an exchange in determining the amount paid in for stock of the transferee, or as paid-in surplus or as a contribution to capital of the transferee, in connection with such exchange, only an amount shall be deemed to have been so paid in equal to the excess of the basis in the hands of the transferee of the property of the transferor received by the transferee upon the exchange over the sum of—

(1) The amount of any liability of the transferor assumed upon the exchange and of any liability subject to which such property was so received, plus

(2) The amount of any liability of the transferee (not arising out of any liability described in paragraph (1)) constituting consideration for the property so received, plus

(3) The aggregate of the amount of any money and the fair market value of any other property (other than such stock and other than property described in paragraphs (1) and (2)) transferred to the transferor.

(c) Reduction in daily invested capital. In the application of section 458 (c) to a transferee upon an exchange, the daily invested capital for any day after such exchange shall be reduced by an amount equal to the amount by which the sum of the amounts specified in paragraphs (1), (2), and (3) of subsection (b) exceeds the basis in the hands of the transferee of the property of the transferor received upon the exchange.

§ 40.471–1 Definitions and determinations. For the purposes of section 471 and of §§ 40.471–1, 40.471–2, and 40.471–3:

(a) Exchange, transferee, transferor. The term "exchange" means a transaction in which one corporation, called the "transferee," acquires property of another corporation, called the "transferor," and the basis to the transferee of the property acquired, for the purposes of determining the amount of money or property paid in for stock, or as paid-in surplus, or as a contribution to the captial of the transferee pursuant to the provisions of section 458 (d) as a result of such exchange, is a substituted basis under section 113 (b) (2) (A), i. e., is a basis determined by reference to the basis of such property in the hands of the transferor.

(b) Applicability of section 471 to various types of exchanges—(1) In general. A substituted basis within the provisions of section 113 (b) (2) (A) may result from—

(i) The application of section 113 (a) (7) to property acquired in an exchange in a taxable year beginning after December 31, 1917, pursuant to a plan of reorganization under the provisions of section 112 (g);

(ii) The application of section 113 (a) (8) to property acquired in a taxable year beginning after December 31, 1920, by a corporation by the issuance of its stock or securities, if immediately after such acquisition the transferor is in control of the corporation under the provisions of section 112 (b) (5), or by a corporation as paid-in surplus or as a contribution to capital;

(iii) The application of section 113 (a) (17) and section 372 in certain instances to property acquired in connection with exchanges and distributions in obedience to certain orders of the Securities and Exchange Commission;

(iv) The application of section 113 (a) (20) to property acquired in certain railroad reorganizations;

(v) The application of section 113 (a) (21) to property acquired by certain street, suburban, or interurban electric railway corporations;

(vi) The application of section 113 (a) (22) to property acquired in a taxable year beginning after December 31, 1933, in a reorganization of a corporation resulting from certain receivership and bankruptcy proceedings; and

(vii) The application of a provision of consolidated returns regulations to property acquired by a member of an affiliated group of corporations from another member of such group during a consolidated return period.

The rules provided with respect to the provisions of the Code mentioned in this section shall also be applicable with respect to corresponding provisions of prior revenue laws.

Example. In 1939 Corporation X, solely in exchange for 1,000 shares of its common voting stock (representing 5 percent of its total voting stock), acquired in a statutory reorganization under section 112 (g) (1) (C) all the assets of Corporation Y. Under section 113 (a) (7), (B), the basis of such assets in the hands of Corporation X would be determined by reference to the basis of such assets in the hands of Corporation Y. The amount to be included in the equity invested capital of Corporation X as the amount paid in for stock of Corporation X as a result of such exchange shall be determined under section 471.

The mere fact that property was acquired in an exchange pursuant to a plan of reorganization in which gain or loss was not recognized does not of itself invoke the provisions of section 471 if the basis of the property is not fixed by reference to the basis in the hands of the transferor. Thus, if the exchange described in the preceding example occurred in 1935, the basis of the assets to Corporation X would be fair market value at the date of the exchange because of failure of Corporation Y to retain the 50 percent control in such assets pursuant to section 113 (a) (7) (A), and the provisions of section 471 would be inapplicable in determining the amount includible in the equity invested capital of Corporation X as a result of the exchange.

(2) Exchanges constituting intercorporate liquidations. Since section 471 is applicable only in the determination of the amount paid in for stock, or as paid-in surplus, or as a contribution to capital, of a transferee upon an exchange, such section shall not be applicable in determining the equity invested capital of such transferee in the case of the receipt of property in any of the exchanges described in this section if the receipt of such property is a distribution in an intercorporate liquidation, in whole or in part, of the transferor within the provisions of section 472. In such cases, the exchange shall be considered to be an intercorporate liquidation subject to the provisions of section 472. For rules relating to the adjustment of equity invested capital in the case of intercorporate liquidations, see section 472 and § 40.472–7.

Example. Prior to 1940, Corporation A owned the entire outstanding capital stock of Corporation B. In 1940, Corporation C acquired all of the assets of Corporation A and Corporation B in a statutory consolidation constituting a reorganization under section 112 (g) (1) (A). Although Corporation C might be deemed to have acquired the assets of Corporation B with a basis determined by reference to the basis of such assets in the hands of Corporation B, the provisions of section 471 are not applicable to such exchange since section 472 (f) provides that, in such a case, Corporation C shall be considered to have acquired in the statutory consolidation the stock of Corporation B previously owned by Corporation A and to have received the assets of Corporation B in an intercorporate liquidation.

(c) Determination of basis of property received—(1) General rule. In determining the amount paid in for stock, or as paid-in surplus, or as a contribution to capital of the transferee for the purposes of section 458 (d) with respect to an exchange, the basis of the property received upon the exchange is to be determined in accordance with the rules provided by section 458 (d) (2), namely, the basis (unadjusted) to the transferee for determining loss, adjusted with respect to the period prior to its receipt by the transferee, by an amount equal to the adjustments proper under section 115 (l) for determining earnings and profits. For the purposes of determining such basis (unadjusted) to the transferee, the amount of any gain or loss recognized to the transferor upon the exchange shall be limited to the gain or loss taken into account under section 115 (l) in computing the earnings and profits of the transferor. If the property was not disposed of prior to the taxable year, such unadjusted basis shall be determined under the law applicable to the taxable year. If the property was acquired in a taxable year beginning after February 28, 1913, and prior to January 1, 1934, and the basis of such property was prescribed by section 113 (a) (6), (7), or (9) of the Revenue Act of 1932, or if the property was acquired in a taxable year beginning after February 28, 1913, and prior to January 1, 1936, and the basis of such property was prescribed by section 113 (a) (6), (7), or (8) of the Revenue Act of 1934, for the purposes of section 471 the basis of such property shall be the same as the basis prescribed by the Revenue Act of 1932 or the Revenue Act of 1934, respectively. See section 113 (a) (12) and (16). If the property was disposed of prior to the taxable year, such unadjusted basis shall be that prescribed by the law applicable to the year of disposition, but without regard to the value of the property as of March 1, 1913.

(2) Applicability of section 471 in case of statutory change. If the transferee received property in any taxable year in a transaction which, under the revenue law applicable to such year, did not constitute an exchange within the provisions of section 471 (a), and if—

(i) Such property is held in the taxable year, and under the revenue law applicable to such year such transaction qualifies as an exchange under section 471, or

(ii) Such property was disposed of in a taxable year subsequent to the year of acquisition and under the revenue law applicable to such subsequent taxable year, the transaction did qualify as an exchange under section 471, the provisions of section 471 are applicable in determining the amount paid in to the transferee as a result of such transaction. However, if such property was disposed of prior to a year in which the revenue law was changed so as to bring a transaction of such a character within the provisions of section 471, the provisions of section 471 shall not be applicable in determining the invested capital of the transferee attributable to the property acquired in such transaction.

Thus, if after December 31, 1917, a corporation acquired the entire assets of another corporation in exchange solely for 79 percent of its voting stock, although such transaction would constitute a reorganization and a tax-free exchange under the Revenue Acts of 1924, 1926, and 1928, the basis of the assets to the transferee would not be determined by reference to the basis of such assets in the hands of the transferor since an interest or control of 80 percent in the assets transferred did not remain in the transferor. See sections 203 (b) (3) and (4), 203 (h) (1) (A), and 204 (a) (7) of the Revenue Acts of 1924 and 1926, and sections 112 (b) (3) and (4), 112 (l) (1) (A), and 113 (a) (7) of the Revenue Act of 1928. The percentage of control necessary to establish a substituted basis for such property was reduced to 50 percent by section 113 (a) (7) of the Revenue Acts of 1932 and 1934. The Revenue Act of 1936 removed the necessity for any control under section 113 (a) (7), but preserved the basis established under the Revenue Act of 1932 or 1934. The Revenue Act of 1938 and the Code provide in section 113 (a) (7) (A) that with respect to property acquired by a corporation in connection with a reorganization after December 31, 1917, but in a taxable year beginning prior to January 1, 1936, 50 percent control is necessary for the property transferred to have a basis to the transferee fixed by reference to the basis of the property in the hands of the transferor. In the case of property acquired in connection with a reorganization after December 31, 1935, no such control is necessary.

Example. Assume that in 1926, Corporation C acquired all the property of Corporation D in exchange for 79 percent of its entire capital stock, all of which was voting stock. Although the transaction would have been a reorganization and a tax-free exchange, the basis of the property to Corporation C in any taxable year beginning before January 1, 1932, would not have been fixed by reference to the basis of such property in the hands of Corporation D. Consequently, if Corporation C had disposed of the property prior to January 1, 1932, the amount paid in to Corporation C as a result of the 1926 exchange would not be determined under section 471. If Corporation C had disposed of the property in a taxable year beginning subsequent to December 31, 1931, the basis of such property to Corporation C would be the basis to Corporation D, and the amount paid in to Corporation C as a result of the 1926 exchange would be computed under section 471.

(3) Inconsistent position. As to the effect of an inconsistent position in the determination of invested capital under section 471, or without regard to its provisions, see section 452 and the regulations thereunder.

§ 40.471–2 Determination of amount paid in for stock, or as paid-in surplus, or as a contribution to capital. For the purposes of section 458 (d), the amount of money or property determined to have been paid in for stock of the transferee, or as paid-in surplus or as a contribution to capital of the transferee in connection with an exchange defined in § 40.471–1 (a) shall be the excess of the basis (determined under § 40.471–1 (b)) in the hands of the transferee of the property of the transferor received by the transferee upon the exchange over the sum of—

(a) The amount of any liability of the transferor assumed upon the exchange and of any liability subject to which such property was so received, plus

(b) The amount of any liability of the transferee (not arising out of any liability described in paragraph (a) of this section) constituting consideration for the property so received, plus

(c) The aggregate of the amount of any money and the fair market value of any other property (other than such stock and other than property described in paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section) transferred to the transferor, whether or not such money or property was permitted to be received by the transferor without the recognition of gain.

If the sum of the amounts specified in paragraphs (a), (b), and (c) of this section exceeds the basis in the hands of the transferee of the property received from the transferor, such excess shall not be taken into account in computing the equity invested capital of the transferee but shall be used to reduce the daily invested capital of the transferee for each day after the exchange. As to the computation to be made in case of such excess, see § 40.471–3.

Example (1). In 1950 Corporation X transferred property which had an adjusted basis for determining gain or loss of $600,000 to Corporation Y in consideration (1) of 80 percent of the capital stock of Corporation Y which had a fair market value of $400,000; (2) of the assumption by Corporation Y of open account indebtednesss of Corporation X amounting to $20,000; (3) of the payment by Corporation Y of money and other property amounting to $120,000; and (4) of the issuance by Corporation Y to Corporation X of a bond in the amount of $110,000 secured by a lien upon the property acquired. Included in the property acquired by Corporation Y in connection with the foregoing exchange was a building which was subject to a mortgage liability of $100,000 which was not assumed by Corporation X and which was not assumed by Corporation Y. The money and other property received by Corporation X was not distributed in pursuance of the plan of reorganization and therefore the gain resulting from the exchange was recognized by such corporation in accordance with section 112 (d) (2). The amount includible in the equity invested capital of Corporation Y determined under the provisions of section 471 (b) with respect to the exchange is $370,000, computed as follows:

Gain to Corporation X Recognized Upon Exchange

Fair market value of capital stock of Corporation Y	$400,000
Amount of liabilities of Corporation X assumed	20,000
Bond secured by lien upon property	110,000
Money and other property	120,000
Mortgage liability subject to which building was transferred	100,000
Total consideration	750,000
Less: Adjusted basis of property transferred	600,000
Gain	150,000

The gain recognized to Corporation X, however, is limited to $120,000, representing the sum of the money and fair market value of other property received by Corporation X which, pursuant to the plan of reorganization, was not distributed (see sections 112 (d) (2) and 112 (k)).

471 (b) (1), (2), and (3) over the basis of the transferee of the property received upon the exchange is greater than the amount of the daily invested capital for any day after such exchange, the daily invested capital for such day shall be a minus quantity. In such case the average invested capital of the taxpayer computed under section 458 (b) shall be the aggregate of the daily invested capital for each day of the taxable year computed by taking into account any plus amounts in daily invested capital and any negative amounts in daily invested capital after the exchange resulting from the application of section 471 (c), divided by the number of days in such taxable year. In no case, however, shall such average invested capital be an amount which is less than zero.

Example (1). In 1951 Corporation O owned property with an adjusted basis for determining gain or loss of $400,000 but with a fair market value of $1,000,000. Corporation O had no accumulated earnings and profits or deficit in earnings and profits. On June 30, 1951, pursuant to a plan of reorganization, Corporation P acquired such property from Corporation O in exchange for 80 percent of its outstanding stock which had a fair market value of $400,000, $125,000 in cash, and $475,000 of its short-term notes. Immediately prior to the exchange Corporation P had an equity invested capital of $100,000, consisting of money and property paid in and of accumulated earnings and profits. Under section 112 (d) (1) no gain was recognized to Corporation O upon the exchange since immediately after the exchange and in pursuance of the plan of reorganization it distributed the cash and stock and notes of Corporation P to its shareholders. The daily invested capital of Corporation P for each day after the exchange was $256,250 and the average invested capital for the taxable year 1951 was $178,767, computed as follows:

Daily Invested Capital of Corporation P Immediately After Exchange
Equity invested capital immediately prior to exchange	$100,000
Amount deemed to have been paid in under sections 458 (d) and 471 upon the exchange	0
Borrowed invested capital of Corporation P (75 percent of $475,000)	356,250
Total daily invested capital prior to application of section 471 (c)	456,250
Less: Amount provided by section 471 (c) as reduction in daily invested capital:
Cash paid upon the exchange	$125,000
Notes issued by Corporation P	475,000
Total	600,000
Less: Basis of property received upon exchange	400,000
Reduction under section 471 (c)	200,000
Daily invested capital for each day after exchange	256,250

Average Invested Capital of Corporation P for 1951
Aggregate of daily invested capital for each day prior to and including the day of the exchange ($100,000×181 days)	$18,100,000
Aggregate of daily invested capital for each day after the exchange ($256,250×184 days)	47,150,000
Total aggregate daily invested capital for each day of the taxable year	65,250,000
Average invested capital ($65,250,000 divided by 365 days)	178,767

Example (2). In 1951 Corporation A owned property with an adjusted basis for determining gain or loss of $1,300,000 but with a fair market value of $7,500,000. Corporation A had no accumulated earnings and profits or deficit in earnings and profits. On June 30, 1951, pursuant to a plan of reorganization, Corporation B acquired such property from Corporation A in exchange for 80 percent of its outstanding stock which had a fair market value of $1,500,000, cash of $500,000, and bonds of $5,500,000. Immediately prior to the exchange Corporation B had an equity invested capital of $375,000 consisting of money paid in and of accumulated earnings and profits. Under section 112 (d) (1) no gain was recognized to Corporation A upon the exchange since immediately after the exchange and pursuant to the plan of reorganization it distributed the cash and bonds of Corporation B to its shareholders. The daily invested capital of Corporation B for each day after the exchange is minus $200,000 and the average invested capital for the taxable year 1951 is $85,137, computed as follows:

Daily Invested Capital Immediately After the Exchange
Equity invested capital of Corporation B immediately prior to the exchange	$375,000
Amount deemed to have been paid in upon the exchange	0
Borrowed invested capital (75 percent of $5,500,000)	4,125,000
Total daily invested capital prior to application of section 471 (c)	4,500,000
Less: Amount provided by section 471 (c) as reduction in daily invested capital:
Cash paid upon the exchange	$500,000
Bonds issued upon the exchange	5,500,000
Total	6,000,000
Less basis of property received upon exchange	1,300,000
Reduction under section 471 (c)	4,700,000
Daily invested capital for each day immediately after exchange (a minus quantity)	(200,000)

Average Invested Capital of Corporation B for 1951
Aggregate of daily invested capital for each day prior to and including the day of the exchange ($375,000×181 days)	$67,875,000
Aggregate of daily invested capital for each day after the exchange (($200,000) ×184 days) (a minus quantity)	(36,800,000)
Total aggregate daily invested capital for each day of the taxable year	31,075,000
Average invested capital ($31,075,000 divided by 365 days)	85,137

Amount Deemed To Be Paid in for Stock of Corporation Y Under Section 458 (d) and Section 471
Adjusted basis of property to Corporation X	$600,000
Add: Gain to Corporation X recognized upon exchange	120,000
Unadjusted basis for determining loss to Corporation Y	720,000
Deduct: Amount of liabilities of Corporation X assumed	$20,000
Bonds issued by Corporation Y secured by lien upon property received	110,000
Money and other property paid	120,000
Mortgage liability subject to which building was acquired by Corporation Y	100,000
	350,000
Amount deemed to have been paid in for stock of Corporation Y upon the exchange	370,000

Daily Invested Capital of Corporation Y Resulting From the Exchange
Amount deemed to have been paid in to Corporation Y upon the exchange	$370,000
Borrowed invested capital:
Mortgage liability on building not assumed	$100,000
Bond issued secured by lien upon property	110,000
Total borrowed capital	210,000
Borrowed invested capital (75 percent of $210,000)	157,500
Daily invested capital	527,500

Assume that in 1951, Corporation Y sold the properties acquired from Corporation X for $750,000, the purchaser paying cash in the amount of $650,000 and taking the building subject to the mortgage liability of $100,000. The gain recognized to Corporation Y, and included in its earnings and profits, is $30,000 ($750,000 minus $720,000). There were no other accumulated earnings and profits. Immediately thereafter Corporation Y redeemed and canceled the bond and mortgage it had issued to Corporation X at the time of the exchange. That portion of the daily invested capital of Corporation Y for the excess profits tax taxable year following the year of the sale and attributable to the acquisition and sale of the properties received from Corporation X would be $400,000, computed as follows:

Equity invested capital resulting from the exchange	$370,000
Earnings and profits from sale of properties	30,000
Daily invested capital	400,000

Example (2). Assume that in the preceding example the money and other property received by Corporation X upon the exchange were distributed pursuant to the plan of reorganization so that no gain was recognized to Corporation X as a result of the exchange (see sections 112 (d) (1) and 112 (k)). Consequently, the basis of the property received by Corporation Y would not be increased by any gain recognized to Corporation X pursuant to section 113 (a) (7), and would be $600,000, rather than $720,000. The amount deemed to have been paid in for stock of Corporation Y upon the exchange would be $350,000 instead of $370,000, and the daily invested capital of Corporation Y resulting from the exchange would be $407,500 instead of $527,500. Upon the sale of the property, however, a gain of $150,000, rather than $30,000, would be realized, and the accumulated earnings and profits of Corporation Y would be increased accordingly by $150,000 instead of $30,000. That portion of the daily invested capital of Corporation Y for the excess profits tax taxable year following the year of the sale and attributable to the acquisition and sale of the properties received from Corporation X would be $400,000 ($250,000 plus $150,000).

§ 40.471-3 Reduction in daily invested capital. For the purposes of determining the daily invested capital of the transferee upon an exchange pursuant to the provisions of section 458 (c) for any day after such exchange, the daily invested capital for each such day shall be reduced by an amount equal to the excess of the sum of the amounts specified in section 471 (b) (1), (2), and (3) over the basis (determined in accordance with § 40.471-1 (b)) to the transferee of the property of the transferor received upon the exchange.

In any case in which the excess of the sum of the amounts specified in section

SEC. 472. INVESTED CAPITAL ADJUSTMENT AT THE TIME OF TAX-FREE INTERCORPORATE LIQUIDATIONS.

For purposes of section 458—

(a) Definition of intercorporate liquidation. As used in this section, the term "intercorporate liquidation" means the receipt (whether or not after June 30, 1950) by a corporation (hereinafter called the "transferee") of property in complete liquidation of another corporation (hereinafter called the "transferor"), to which—

(1) The provisions of section 112 (b) (6), or the corresponding provision of a prior revenue law, is applicable or

(2) A provision of law is applicable prescribing the nonrecognition of gain or loss in whole or in part upon such receipt (including a provision of the regulations applicable to a consolidated income or excess profits tax return but not including section 112 (b) (7), (9), or (10) or a corresponding provision of a prior revenue law), but only if none of such property so received is a stock or a security in a corporation the stock or securities of which are specified in the law applicable to the receipt of such property as stock or securities permitted to be received (or which would be permitted to be received if they were the sole consideration) without the recognition of gain.

(b) Definition of plus adjustment and minus adjustment. For the purposes of this section—

(1) Plus adjustment. The term "plus adjustment" means the amount, with respect to an intercorporate liquidation, determined to be equal to the amount by which the aggregate of the amount of money received by the transferee in such intercorporate liquidation, and of the adjusted basis at the time of such receipt of all property (other than money) so received, exceeds the sum of—

(A) The aggregate of the adjusted basis of each share of stock with respect to which such property was received; such adjusted basis of each share to be determined immediately prior to the receipt of any property in such liquidation with respect to such share, and

(B) The aggregate of the liabilities of the transferor assumed by the transferee in connection with the receipt of such property, of the liabilities (not assumed by the transferee) to which such property so received was subject, and of any other consideration (other than the stock with respect to which such property was received) given by the transferee for such property so received exceeds the aggregate of the amount of the money so received and of the adjusted basis, at the time of receipt, of all property (other than money) so received.

(2) Minus adjustment. The term "minus adjustment" means the amount, with respect to an intercorporate liquidation, determined to be equal to the amount by which the sum of—

(A) The aggregate of the adjusted basis of each share of stock with respect to which such property was received; such adjusted basis of each share to be determined immediately prior to the receipt of any property in such liquidation with respect to such share, and

(B) The aggregate of the liabilities of the transferor assumed by the transferee in connection with the receipt of such property, of the liabilities (not assumed by the transferee) to which such property so received was subject, and of any other consideration (other than the stock with respect to which such property was received) given by the transferee for such property so received exceeds the aggregate of the amount of the money so received and of the adjusted basis, at the time of receipt, of all property (other than money) so received.

(3) Rules for application of paragraphs (1) and (2). In determining the plus adjustment or minus adjustment with respect to any share, the computation shall be made in the same manner as is prescribed in paragraphs (1) and (2) of this subsection, except that there shall be brought into account only that part of each item which is determined to be attributable to such share.

(c) Rules for the application of this section—(1) Stock having cost basis. The property received by a transferee in an intercorporate liquidation attributable to a share of stock having in the hands of the transferee a basis determined to be a cost basis, shall be considered to have, for the purposes of subsection (b), an adjusted basis at the time so received determined as follows:

(A) The aggregate of the property (other than money) held by the transferor at the time of the acquisition by the transferee of control of the transferor (or, if such share was acquired after the acquisition of such control, at the time of the acquisition of such share, or, if such control was not acquired, at the time immediately prior to the receipt of any property in the intercorporate liquidation in respect of such share) shall be deemed to have an aggregate basis equal to the amount obtained by (i) multiplying the amount of the adjusted basis at such time of such share in the hands of the transferee by the aggregate number of share units in the transferor at such time (the interest represented by such share being taken as the share unit), and (ii) adjusting for the amount of money on hand and the liabilities of the transferor at such time.

(B) The basis which property of the transferor is deemed to have under subparagraph (A) at the time therein specified shall be used in determining the basis of property subsequently acquired by the transferor the basis of which is determined with reference to the basis of property specified in subparagraph (A).

(C) The basis which property of the transferor is deemed to have under subparagraphs (A) and (B) at the time therein specified shall be used in determining all subsequent adjustments to the basis of such property.

(D) The property so received by the transferee shall be deemed to have, at the time of its receipt, the same basis it is deemed to have under the foregoing provisions of this paragraph in the hands of the transferor, or in the case of property not specified in subparagraphs (A) or (B), the same basis it would have had in the hands of the transferor.

(E) Only such part of the aggregate property received by the transferee in the intercorporate liquidation as is attributable to such share shall be considered as having the adjusted basis which property is deemed to have under subparagraphs (A), (B), (C), and (D) of this paragraph.

(2) Basis of stock not a cost basis. The property received by a transferee in an intercorporate liquidation attributable to a share of stock having in the hands of the transferee a basis determined to be a basis other than a cost basis shall, for the purposes of subsection (b), be considered to have, at the time of its receipt, the basis it would have had had the first sentence of section 113 (a) (15) been applicable.

(3) Definition of control. As used in this subsection, the term "control" means the ownership of stock possessing at least 80 per centum of the total combined voting power of all classes of stock entitled to vote and the ownership of at least 80 per centum of the total number of shares of all other classes of stock (except nonvoting stock which is limited and preferred as to dividends), but only if in both cases such ownership continues until the completion of the intercorporate liquidation.

(d) Adjustment of equity invested capital. If property is received by the transferee in an intercorporate liquidation, in computing the equity invested capital of the transferee for any day following the completion of such intercorporate liquidation—

(1) With respect to any share of stock in the transferor having in the hands of the transferee, immediately prior to the receipt of any property in such intercorporate liquidation, a basis determined to be a cost basis, the earnings and profits or deficit in earnings and profits of the transferee shall be computed as if on the day following the completion of such intercorporate liquidation the transferee had realized a recognized gain equal to the amount of the plus adjustment in respect of such share, or had sustained a recognized loss equal to the amount of the minus adjustment in respect of such share;

(2) With respect to any share of stock in the transferor having in the hands of the transferee, immediately prior to the receipt of any property in such intercorporate liquidation, a basis determined to be a basis other than a cost basis, there shall be treated as an amount includible in the sum specified in section 458 (d) the amount of the plus adjustment with respect to such share, or as an amount includible in the sum specified in section 458 (e) the amount of the minus adjustment with respect to such share.

(e) Invested capital basis. The adjusted basis which property received by the transferee in an intercorporate liquidation is considered to have under the provisions of subsection (c) at the time of its receipt shall be thereafter treated as the adjusted basis, in lieu of the adjusted basis otherwise prescribed, in computing any amount, determined by reference to the basis of such property in the hands of the transferee, entering into the computation of the invested capital of the transferee, or of any other corporation the computation of the invested capital of which is determined by reference to the basis of such property in the hands of the transferee.

(f) Statutory mergers and consolidations. If a corporation owns stock in another corporation and such corporations are merged or consolidated in a statutory merger or consolidation, then for the purposes of this section and section 458 such stock shall be considered to have been acquired (in such statutory merger or consolidation) by the corporation resulting from the statutory merger or consolidation, and the properties of such other corporation attributable to such stock to have been received by such resulting corporation as a transferee from such other corporation as a transferor in an intercorporate liquidation.

(g) Determinations.—(1) Regulations. Any determination which is required to be made under this section (including determinations in applying this section in cases where there is a series of transferees of the property and cases where the stock of the transferor is acquired by the transferee from another corporation, and the determinations of the basis and adjusted basis which property or items thereof have or are considered to have) shall be made in accordance with regulations which shall be prescribed by the Secretary. If the transferor or the transferee is a foreign corporation, the provisions of this section shall apply to such extent and under such conditions and limitations as may be provided in such regulations.

(2) Application to liquidation extending over long period. The Secretary is authorized to prescribe rules similar to those provided in this section with respect to the days within the period beginning with the date on which the first property is received in the intercorporate liquidation and ending with the day of its completion; and the extent to which, and the conditions and limitations under which, such rules are to be applicable.

§ 40.472–1 Intercorporate liquidation.—(a) General rule. For the purposes of section 472, the term "intercorporate liquidation" means the receipt, whether or not after June 30, 1950, by a corporation (hereinafter called the "transferee") of property in complete liquidation of another corporation (hereinafter called the transferor") to which—

(1) The provisions of section 112 (b) (6), or the corresponding provisions of a prior revenue law, are applicable, including the case in which an election has been made pursuant to the last sentence of section 113 (a) (15) of the Revenue Act of 1936, as amended by section 808 of the Revenue Act of 1938, or

(2) A provision of law is applicable prescribing the nonrecognition of gain or loss in whole or in part upon such receipt, including a provision of the regulations applicable to a consolidated return, but not including the provisions of section 112 (b) (7) relating to certain complete liquidations, or the provisions of section 112 (b) (9) relating to certain complete liquidations of railroad corporations, or the provisions of section 112 (b) (10) relating to reorganizations of corporations in certain receivership and bankruptcy proceedings. A liquidation of a member of an affiliated group during a taxable year, which is a consolidated return period, beginning prior to January 1, 1929, is not an intercorporate liquidation for the purposes of section 472, unless some provision of law other than regulations relating to consolidated returns is applicable prescribing the nonrecognition of gain or loss, in whole or in part, upon the liquidation. A liquidation of a member of an affiliated group during a taxable year, which is a consolidated return period, beginning after December 31, 1933, is not an intercorporate liquidation if it comes within the exceptions provided in consolidated returns regulations, such as articles 37 (a) and 38 (c) (3) of Regulations 89, article 37 (a) (1) and (2) of Regulations 97 and 102, § 23.37 (a) (1) and (2) of Regulations 104, and § 33.37 (a) (1) and (2) of Regulations 110.

The rules provided with respect to the sections of the Code mentioned in this section shall also be applicable with respect to corresponding sections of prior revenue laws.

(b) Exception. A transaction is an intercorporate liquidation within the meaning of the foregoing provisions only if none of the property received by the transferee is a stock or a security in a corporation, the stock or securities of which are specified in the law applicable to the receipt of such property as stock or securities permitted to be received (or which would be permitted to be received if they were the sole consideration) without the recognition of gain.

Thus, assume that Corporation P owned all the outstanding stock of Corporation S. Pursuant to a plan of reorganization, Corporation S transferred all its assets to Corporation S (1) in exchange for all the capital stock of Corporation S (1), and distributed such stock to Corporation P in liquidation. The entire property received by Corporation P upon the liquidation of Corporation S was stock in a corporation which pursuant to section 112 (b) (3) Corporation P was permitted to receive without the recognition of gain. Consequently, the transaction in which Corporation P acquired the stock of Corporation S (1) in complete liquidation of Corporation S is not an intercorporate liquidation within the provisions of section 472. If the reorganization had occurred in a taxable year beginning prior to January 1, 1934, and the stock of Corporation S (1) had been acquired pursuant to a plan of reorganization by Corporation P without the surrender of the stock of Corporation S, such acquisition by Corporation P of all the assets of Corporation S would not constitute an intercorporate liquidation within the meaning of section 472, since the stock of Corporation S (1) is a stock specified in section 112 (g) of the Revenue Act of 1932 and corresponding provisions of prior revenue laws as stock in a corporation permitted to be received without the recognition of gain. If the stock of Corporation S (1) was acquired by Corporation P in a taxable year beginning subsequent to December 31, 1933, without the surrender or cancellation or retirement of the stock of Corporation S, since the transaction would not be one in which gain or loss is not recognized to Corporation P, the transaction would not be an intercorporate liquidation under section 472. (See § 29.112 (g)–5 of Regulations 111.)

Assume that Corporation P owned the entire outstanding capital stock of Corporation S and that Corporation S owned the entire outstanding capital stock of Corporation S (1). If Corporation P acquired the stock of Corporation S (1) in a complete liquidation of Corporation S pursuant to the provisions of section 112 (b) (6), such liquidation would be an intercorporate liquidation within the provisions of section 472 since section 112 (b) (6) does not specify stock in any corporation as stock permitted to be received without the recognition of gain.

If, in connection with an intercorporate liquidation described in this section, there is also involved (1) the transfer by the transferor to the transferee of property not attributable to the shares of the transferor owned by the transferee in consideration of stock issued by the transferee in an exchange described in section 112 (b) (4) or in an exchange not within the provisions of section 112 (b), or (2) the transfer to the transferee by minority shareholders of the transferor of stock of the transferor in consideration of the issuance by the transferee of stock in an exchange described in section 112 (b) (3) or in an exchange not within the provisions of section 112 (b), the amount includible in the equity invested capital as a result of the receipt of such property or such stock in the exchanges described in (1) or (2) of this sentence shall be determined pursuant to the provisions of section 471 or of section 458 (d) (1) or (2), as the case may be. (See § 40.471–2 and section 458.)

(c) Statutory merger or consolidation. In any case in which one corporation owns stock in another corporation (hereinafter called the "transferring corporation"), whether or not such stock ownership amounts to control, and such corporations are merged or consolidated in a statutory merger or consolidation, for the purposes of section 472 and of section 458, the corporation resulting from the statutory merger or consolidation (hereinafter called the "resulting corporation") shall be considered first to have acquired the stock of such transferring corporation in the statutory merger or consolidation and then to have acquired the properties of such transferring corporation which are attributable to the stock considered to have been acquired by the resulting corporation in the statutory merger or consolidation as a transferee from the transferring corporation as a transferor in an intercorporate liquidation. The foregoing rule is equally applicable to all cases of statutory merger and consolidation, whether the resulting corporation operates under the charter of the parent, the subsidiary, or under a new charter.

(d) Intercorporate liquidation involving foreign corporation. An exchange which would otherwise be an intercorporate liquidation subject to the provisions of section 472, but which involves a foreign corporation as the transferor or transferee, shall not constitute an intercorporate liquidation for the purposes of section 472 if such exchange was consummated after June 6, 1932, and involved gain unless, prior to such exchange, it was established to the satisfaction of the Commissioner pursuant to the provisions of section 112 (i) and § 29.112 (i)–1 of Regulations 111 or the corresponding provisions of prior revenue laws and regulations, that such exchange was not in pursuance of a plan having as one of its principal purposes the avoidance of Federal income taxes.

§ 40.472–2 Definition of plus adjustment and minus adjustment. For the purposes of determining the adjustment of equity invested capital under section 472 (d) and § 40.472–7:

(a) Plus adjustment. The term "plus adjustment" means the amount computed with respect to an intercorporate liquidation and determined to be equal to the amount by which the aggregate of the amount of money received by the transferee in the intercorporate liquidation and of the adjusted basis at the time of receipt of all property, other than money, so received exceeds the sum of—

(1) The aggregate of the adjusted basis of each share of stock with respect to which the property was received in the intercorporate liquidation, and

(2) The aggregate of the liabilities of the transferor assumed by the transferee in connection with the receipt of the property in the intercorporate liquidation, of the liabilities (not assumed by the transferee) to which the property so received was subject, and of any other consideration other than the stock with respect to which such property was so received given by the transferee for such property so received.

(b) Minus adjustment. The term "minus adjustment" means the amount computed with respect to an intercorporate liquidation and determined to be equal to the amount by which the sum of—

(1) The aggregate of the adjusted basis of each share of stock with respect to which the property was received in the intercorporate liquidation, and

(2) The aggregate of the liabilities of the transferor assumed by the transferee in connection with the receipt of the property in the intercorporate liquidation, of the liabilities (not assumed by the transferee) to which the property so received was subject, and of any other consideration other than the stock with respect to which such property was so received given by the transferee for such property so received, exceeds the aggregate of the amount of money received by the transferee in the intercorporate liquidation and of the adjusted basis at the time of receipt of all property other than money so received.

(c) Rules applicable in determining plus adjustment and minus adjustment. For the purpose of determining the plus adjustment and the minus adjustment provided by section 472 (b):

(1) The adjusted basis of each share of stock with respect to which property is received upon the intercorporate liquidation shall be determined immediately prior to the receipt in the intercorporate liquidation of the property with respect to such share. As to the computation of the adjusted basis of such share, see § 40.472–4.

(2) The adjusted basis of property other than money at the time of receipt of such property shall be determined in accordance with the provisions of section 472 (c) and § 40.472–5 or § 40.472–6. This adjusted basis may be different from the adjusted basis otherwise determined under the provisions of section 113.

(3) A share of stock with respect to which property is received upon an intercorporate liquidation means outstanding stock of the transferor owned by the transferee at the time of such liquidation. Outstanding stock of the transferor shall not include shares of the transferor held by it in its treasury as treasury stock. In the case of a complete liquidation of a transferor under the provisions of section 112 (b) (6), such stock refers only to stock of the transferor owned by the transferee at the time of the receipt of the property.

(4) The plus adjustment or the minus adjustment with respect to each share of stock shall be computed in the manner prescribed in section 472 (b) (1) and (2), except that there shall be brought into account only that part of each item specified in such section which is determined to be attributable to such share. The amount of any consideration (other than the stock of the transferor with respect to which property was received upon the intercorporate liquidation) given by the transferee for the property received upon the intercorporate liquidation shall be prorated with respect to each share of stock (other than stock which is limited and preferred as to assets upon liquidation) upon the basis of the percentage which one share of stock is of the total shares of stock of the transferor owned by the transferee at the time of liquidation (not including stock which is limited and preferred as to assets upon liquidation).

(5) In no event shall there be taken into account any plus adjustment with respect to a share of stock which is limited and preferred as to assets upon liquidation of the transferor in excess of the sum of—

(i) The excess of that portion of the net assets to which such share is entitled upon liquidation of the transferor over the adjusted basis to the transferee of such share at the time of liquidation, and

(ii) The amount of any cumulative dividends in arrears upon such share.

(6) Property received by a transferee in an intercorporate liquidation in exchange for stock of the transferee issued by the transferee to the transferor or to minority shareholders of the transferor, whether or not in an exchange within the provisions of section 112 (b) (4) of the applicable revenue law, is not property received upon an intercorporate liquidation, but is property received upon an exchange under section 471 or property paid in under section 458 (d) (1) or (2). Consequently, other consideration given by the transferee for property received upon the intercorporate liquidation within the provisions of section 472 (b) (1) (B) or section 472 (b) (2) (B) does not include stock of the transferee issued in consideration for property which is received at the time of the intercorporate liquidation but which is received in an exchange under section 471 or which is paid in under section 458 (d) (1) or (2).

(d) Rules applicable in case intercorporate liquidation extends over period of time. If any distribution in an intercorporate liquidation occurs in an excess profits tax taxable year ending after June 30, 1950, to which the provisions of section 472 are applicable, and if the liquidation is consummated by a series of distributions covering a period of more than one taxable year, the application of the principles of section 472 in the computation of the equity invested capital of the taxpayer shall, in addition to the requirements set forth in section 472, be subject to the following requirements:

(1) The taxpayer shall file with its return for the first excess profits tax taxable year to which the provisions of section 472 are applicable with respect to the intercorporate liquidation a statement describing the plan pursuant to which the distributions in liquidation have been or will be made and setting forth the period within which the transfer of the property of the transferor to the taxpayer has been or is to be completed.

(2) If the intercorporate liquidation involves a distribution in liquidation pursuant to the provisions of section 112 (b) (6), the taxpayer shall comply with the requirements prescribed by § 29.112 (b) (6)–3 of Regulations 111. The bond required by such section shall also contain provisions unequivocally assuring prompt payment of the excess of income and excess profits taxes (plus penalty, if any, and interest) as computed by the Commissioner without regard to the provisions of section 472 over such taxes computed with regard to such section, regardless of whether such excess may or may not be made the subject of a notice of deficiency under section 272 and regardless of whether it may or may not be assessed.

(3) If the intercorporate liquidation involves a distribution in liquidation other than one pursuant to section 112 (b) (6), in addition to the statement required by subparagraph (1) of this paragraph for each of the taxable years which falls wholly or partly within the period of liquidation, the taxpayer shall, at the time of filing its return, file with the collector for transmittal to the Commissioner a waiver of the statute of limitations on assessment and collection. The waiver shall be executed on such form as may be prescribed by the Commissioner and shall extend the period for assessment of all income and excess profits taxes for such year to a date not earlier than one year after the last date of the period for assessment of such taxes for the last taxable year in which the transfer of the property of the transferor to the transferee may be completed pursuant to the plan filed by the taxpayer. Such waiver shall also contain such other terms with respect to assessment as may be considered by the Commissioner to be necessary to insure the assessment and collection of the correct tax liability for each year within the period of liquidation. For each of the taxable years which falls wholly or partly within the period of liquidation, the recipient corporation shall file a bond, the amount of which shall be fixed by the Commissioner. The bond shall contain all terms specified by the Commissioner, including provisions unequivocally assuring prompt payment of the excess of the income and excess profits tax (plus penalty, if any, and interest) as computed by the Commissioner without regard to the provisions of section 472 over such taxes computed with regard to such provisions, regardless of whether such excess may or may not be made the subject of a notice of deficiency under section 272 and regardless of whether it may or may not be assessed. Any bond required under this paragraph shall have such surety or sureties as the Commissioner may require. However, see section 1126 of the Revenue Act of 1926, as amended, providing that where a bond is required by law or regulations, in lieu of surety or sureties there may be deposited bonds or notes of the United States. Only surety companies holding certificates of authority from the Secretary as acceptable sureties on Federal bonds will be approved as sureties. The bonds shall be executed in triplicate so that the Commissioner, the taxpayer, and the surety or the depository may each have a copy.

(4) Pending the completion of the liquidation, if there is a compliance with this section and § 40.472–1 with respect to intercorporate liquidations, the equity invested capital of the taxpayer for each day following a distribution in liquidation of the transferor shall be determined under section 472, and the plus adjustment or minus adjustment for each such day shall be computed under section 472 (b) subject to the following rules:

(i) If a distribution in liquidation is in complete cancellation and retirement of any specific share or shares of stock of the transferor, a plus adjustment or a minus adjustment with respect to such share or shares shall be computed at the time such distribution occurred pursuant to the provisions of § 40.472–2 (c), and the money and property received upon the distribution, the liabilities of the transferor assumed at the time of the distribution, the liabilities to which the property received in the distribution was subject, and any other consideration (other than the stock of the transferor with respect to which the distribution was received) shall be taken into account in computing the plus adjustment or minus adjustment with respect to such distribution and shall not be allocated to any prior or subsequent distribution.

(ii) If the distribution in liquidation is not in complete cancellation and retirement of any specific share or shares, but extends ratably over all the outstanding shares of the transferor or over all the outstanding shares of a particular class of stock of the transferor, a plus adjustment or a minus adjustment shall be computed at the time of each distribution in accordance with the provisions of § 40.472–2 (c), and—

(a) The distribution shall be considered a distribution with respect to each share (or each share of a particular class) held by the transferee;

(b) The adjusted basis of each share for the purposes of computing the plus adjustment or the minus adjustment at the time of any distribution shall bear that ratio to the total adjusted basis of such share computed under § 40.472–4 as the excess of the aggregate of the money and adjusted basis (computed under § 40.472–5) of all property other than money received from the transferor as a distribution over the aggregate of the liabilities of the transferor assumed by the transferee or to which property received from the transferor was subject, bears to the excess of the aggregate of the money and adjusted basis of all property other than money (computed under § 40.472–5) held by the transferor at the time of the first distribution in liquidation over the aggregate of the liabilities of the transferor and liabilities to which the property held by the transferor was subject, at the time of the first distribution in liquidation. In no event, however, shall the portion of the total adjusted basis of a share of stock used in computing the plus adjustment or the minus adjustment under this paragraph exceed an amount which, when added to portions of such basis previously used in computing the plus adjustment or minus adjustment in connection with such intercorporate liquidation, equals the total adjusted basis of such share computed under § 40.472.4;

(c) The amount of any consideration (other than the stock of the transferor with respect to which the distribution was received) given by the transferee at the time of the distribution and the amount of any liability of the transferor assumed at the time of the distribution or any liability to which the property received in the distribution was subject shall be taken into account in computing the plus adjustment or the minus adjustment with respect to such distribution, and shall not be allocated to any other prior or subsequent distribution.

(iii) In no event shall the aggregate of the plus adjustments and minus adjustments computed with respect to an intercorporate liquidation extending over a period of time be different for each day after the last day of the last distribution in liquidation than the plus adjustment or minus adjustment which would have resulted had the intercorporate liquidation been commenced and completed entirely during such last day.

§ 40.472–3 Determination of basis of stock; cost basis or basis other than cost—(a) Cost basis. In all cases other than those in which the basis of stock is determined to be a basis other than cost under paragraphs (b) or (c) of this section, the basis of stock shall be determined to be a cost basis.

(b) Basis other than cost. Stock in any corporation shall be determined to have a basis other than cost if, as a result of the transaction in which such stock was acquired—

(1) The basis of such stock is fixed by reference to the basis of other property previously held by the acquiring corporation, not including any case in which the basis of such other property to such corporation was a cost basis if, at the time of the acquisition of such stock or immediately thereafter, the acquiring corporation or its shareholders were in control of the corporation from which such stock was acquired or the corporation from which such stock was acquired or its shareholders were in control of the acquiring corporation; or

(2) The basis of such stock is fixed by reference to its basis in the hands of a preceding owner not including any case in which—

(i) Such stock was acquired from another member of an affiliated group of corporations in a taxable year in which the acquiring corporation and the transferring corporation filed a consolidated return and

(a) The basis of such stock to the transferring corporation was a cost basis, or

(b) The basis of the stock of the transferring corporation or of any other member of the affiliated group holding stock of the transferring corporation, directly or indirectly, was a cost basis, whether or not the basis to the transferring corporation of the stock transferred was a cost basis (see § 40.472–4 (c) relating to amount of basis) except in those cases in which such stock would have a basis other than cost if it had been acquired in an intercorporate liquidation described in subdivision (ii) of this subparagraph or in an exchange described in subdivision (iii) of this subparagraph; or

(ii) Such stock was acquired in an intercorporate liquidation if immediaitely prior to such liquidation the stock of the liquidated corporation was held by the acquiring corporation with a cost basis (see section 472 (e)), or the stock which was acquired in such liquidation was held by the liquidated corporation with a cost basis; or

(iii) Such stock was acquired from another member of a controlled group of corporations and

(a) The basis of such stock to the preceding owner was a cost basis, or provided that if, in the opinion of the Commissioner, the liquidation of the transferor whose stock was acquired in a transaction subject to the provisions of subdivisions (i) and (iii) of this subparagraph has the effect of a substitution of one member of a controlled group for another member of such group, the provisions of subdivisions (i) and (iii) of this subparagraph shall not be applicable. For the purposes of this section a controlled group includes one or more chains of corporations connected through stock ownership with a common parent corporation if stock possessing at least 80 percent of the voting power of all classes of stock and at least 80 percent of each class of the nonvoting stock of each of the corporations (except the common parent corporation) is owned directly by one or more of the other corporations and the common parent corporation owns directly stock possessing at least 80 percent of the voting power of all classes of stock and at least 80 percent of each class of the nonvoting stock of at least one of the other corporations. As used in the preceding sentence, the term "stock" does not include nonvoting stock which is limited and preferred as to dividends.

(b) The basis of the stock of the transferring corporation or of any other member of the controlled group holding stock of the transferring corporation, directly or indirectly, was a cost basis, whether or not the basis to the transferring corporation of the stock transferred was a cost basis (see § 40.472–4 (c) relating to amount of basis) except in those cases in which such stock would have a basis other than cost if it had been acquired in an intercorporate liquidation described in subdivision (ii) of this subparagraph;

(c) Statutory merger or consolidation. In any case in which a corporation held stock in another corporation and such corporations were merged or consolidated in a statutory merger or consolidation, such stock, for the purposes of section 472 (f), shall be determined to have a cost basis in the hands of the corporation resulting from the merger or consolidation if such stock was held with a cost basis immediately prior to the statutory merger or consolidation and if, immediately thereafter, the shareholders of the holding corporation were in control of the corporation resulting from the statutory merger or consolidation. In all other cases, such stock shall be determined to have a basis other than cost in the hands of the corporation resulting from the statutory merger or consolidation.

(d) Control. For the purposes of this section, in determining whether the basis of stock is a cost basis or a basis other than a cost basis, the term "control" means the ownership of stock possessing at least 80 percent of the total combined voting power of all classes of stock entitled to vote and at least 80 percent of the total number of shares of all other classes of stock of the corporation (except nonvoting stock which is limited and preferred as to dividends).

(e) Series of stock transfers. The rules provided in this section shall be applicable in determining the basis of stock held by a transferee where there has been a series of transfers of such stock.

§ 40.472–4 Computation of basis of stock; amount of basis. The following rules are applicable in determining the adjusted basis of the stock with respect to which the property was received in the intercorporate liquidation, for the purposes of the computation of the plus adjustment or the minus adjustment under section 472 (b):

(a) Time of computation. The adjusted basis of each share of stock with respect to which property is received in an intercorporate liquidation shall be determined immediately prior to the receipt of any property in such liquidation with respect to such share. In case of the receipt by a corporation in a statutory merger or consolidation of shares of stock of another corporation, the properties of which are deemed to have been transferred to the acquiring corporation with respect to such stock, the adjusted basis of such stock shall be determined immediately prior to the statutory merger or consolidation.

(b) Determination of basis. The adjusted basis of each share of stock shall be the unadjusted basis for determining loss upon a sale or exchange, adjusted by amounts proper under section 115 (l) for determining earnings and profits, under the law applicable to the year in which the intercorporate liquidation began. If such stock has a basis fixed by reference to the basis of such stock in the hands of any preceding owner, the basis of such stock to the transferee upon its receipt shall be the basis to the prior owner determined without regard to its value as of March 1, 1913, and adjusted in the hands of the prior owner (and in the hands of any owners prior to such prior owner if the basis of such stock is determined by reference to the basis in the hands of such other prior owners) by an amount equal to the adjustments proper under section 115 (l) for determining earnings and profits. In any case in which such stock has a basis to the transferee fixed by reference to the basis of such stock in the hands of any preceding owner, and the basis of such stock in the hands of such preceding owner is different for invested capital purposes, because of the provisions of section 472, then for the purposes of determining gain or loss upon a sale or exchange, the basis of such stock for invested capital purposes, rather than the basis for determining gain or loss upon a sale or exchange, shall be used in determining the unadjusted basis of such stock to the transferee. If the basis of such stock to the preceding owner was a cost basis which is preserved to the transferee, and if the preceding owner was in control of the transferor as defined in section 472 (c) (3), the adjustments prescribed by this section with respect to stock owned by a transferee shall also be made with respect to the stock owned by the preceding owner for the purposes of determining the unadjusted basis of such stock to the transferee.

(c) Acquisition of stock from member of affiliated or controlled group. If stock of a corporation was acquired by a member of an affiliated group of corporations from another member of such affiliated group in a transaction subject to the provisions of § 40.472–3 (b) (2) (i) (b), or by a member of a controlled group of corporations as defined in § 40.472–3 (b) (2) from another member of such controlled group in a transaction subject to the provisions of § 40.472–3 (b) (2) (iii) (b), the basis of such stock to the acquiring corporation shall be an amount equal to the basis which such stock would have, determined pursuant to the provisions of section 472 (c) (1) and (e), if such stock were acquired as the result of an intercorporate liquidation of the corporation transferring such stock and of each member of the group owning stock of the transferring corporation, directly or indirectly, through which such stock would have passed prior to its acquisition by the member of the group.

(d) Nonapplication of adjustment based on loss during consolidated return period. If the transferee owns stock of a transferor with which it has made a consolidated return, the basis of such stock shall not be reduced pursuant to the provisions of section 113 (a) (11), or pursuant to a provision of consolidated returns regulations such as § 33.34 (c) of Regulations 110, or § 23.34 (c) of Regulations 104, or corresponding provisions of prior consolidated returns regulations, or similar rules of law applicable to consolidated returns, relating to decrease in basis of stock of a corporation on account of losses sustained by such corporation during a consolidated return period.

(e) Precontrol distributions in case of cost basis stock. As of the date of acquisition of control by the transferee (or as of the time of the intercorporate liquidation in case control was not acquired by the transferee), the basis of the aggregate assets of the transferor attributable to stock owned by the transferee with a cost basis is to be revalued to accord with such cost basis. See section 472 (c). Distributions from earnings and profits of the transferor between the date of acquisition of such stock and the date of acquisition of control (or the time of the intercorporate liquidation in case control was not acquired) may have the effect of reducing the assets of the transferor properly subject to revaluation. For the purpose of section 472 in the case of such distributions made with respect to stock having a cost basis, the basis of such stock shall be reduced by an amount proper to give effect to any such reduction in assets.

(f) Postcontrol distributions in case of cost-basis stock. If the stock of the transferor is deemed to have a cost basis to the transferee, the adjusted basis of the assets of the transferor must be recomputed pursuant to the provisions of section 472 (c) (1) and § 40.472–5 (a). A subsequent sale or other disposition of the assets of the transferor involved in such recomputation, or the use of such assets in the trade or business of the transferor, will affect the earnings and profits of the transferor in amounts determined by reference to the recomputed basis. In determining whether a distribution made by the transferor to the transferee after the acquisition of control by the transferee of the transferor is a dividend within the meaning of section 115 (a) or a distribution in reduction of the basis of the stock of the transferor under section 113 (b) (1) (D) for the purposes of the computation of the adjusted basis of such stock to be used in the computation of the plus adjustment or the minus adjustment under section 472 (b), the earnings and profits of the transferor recomputed in accordance with the method prescribed in this subsection shall be used in lieu of the earnings and profits of the transferor otherwise determined.

§ 40.472–5 Basis of property received in an intercorporate liquidation with respect to stock having a cost basis—(a) Determination. For the purpose of determining the plus adjustment or the minus adjustment to be used in adjusting the equity invested capital of a transferee in an intercorporate liquidation pursuant to section 472 (b) and (d), the property received by a transferee in an intercorporate liquidation attributable to a share of stock of the transferor having in the hands of the transferee a basis determined under § 40.472–3 to be a cost basis shall be considered to have at the time so received an adjusted basis determined as follows:

(1) Basis of property with respect to stock acquired on or before date of acquisition of control of transferor. With respect to a share of stock of the transferor acquired by the transferee with a cost basis on or before the date of acquisition by the transferee of control of the transferor, the aggregate of the property (other than money) held by the transferor at the time of the acquisition by the transferee of control of the transferor shall be considered to have an aggregate basis equal to the amount determined by—

(i) Multiplying the amount of the adjusted basis of such share in the hands of the transferee at the time of acquisition of control by the aggregate number of share units in the transferor at such time, the interest represented by such share being taken as the share unit,

(ii) Adding to the amount determined under subdivision (i) of this subparagraph the amount of the liabilities of the transferor at the time of acquisition of control, and

(iii) Subtracting from the sum of the amounts determined under subdivisions (i) and (ii) of this subparagraph the amount of money on hand in the transferor at the time of acquisition of control.

(2) Basis of property with respect to stock acquired after acquisition of control of transferor. If a share of stock of the transferor was acquired by the transferee with a cost basis after the transferee acquired control of the transferor, the aggregate basis of the property of the transferor (other than money) held by the transferor at the time of the acquisition by the transferee of such share of the transferor shall be determined in the manner prescribed in subparagraph (1) of this paragraph, except that such computation shall be made as of the time of the acquisition of such share. A share of stock shall be considered to have been acquired after the transferee acquired control of the transferor only if, after the acquisition of such share, the transferee did not lose control of the transferor. A share of stock shall be considered to have been acquired on or before the date of acquisition of control if, after the acquisition of such share, the transferee lost control previously held in the transferor and subsequently reacquired and retained control until the time of the intercorporate liquidation.

(3) Basis of property with respect to stock in transferor in which control is not acquired. If a share of stock is owned in a transferor and if immediately prior to the receipt of any property in the intercorporate liquidation in respect of such share the transferee does not have control of the transferor, the aggregate basis of the property of the transferor shall be determined in the manner prescribed in subparagraph (1) of this paragraph, except that such computation shall be made as of the time immediately prior to the receipt of the property in the intercorporate liquidation.

(4) Redetermination of basis of property to accord with basis of stock. The amount determined under subparagraphs (1), (2), or (3) of this paragraph, representing the aggregate basis of the property of the transferor at the time of acquisition of control of the transferor, at the time of acquisition of stock of the transferor subsequent to the acquisition of control, or at the time of the intercorporate liquidation may be greater or less than the amount of the aggregate adjusted basis of the property of the transferor at such time otherwise computed. Ordinarily, if—

(i) The aggregate basis of the property of the transferor determined under subparagraph (1), (2), or (3) of this paragraph exceeds the aggregate adjusted basis of such property otherwise computed, such excess shall be deemed to be the basis of an asset which, for the purposes of section 472, shall be called "positive good will," or

(ii) The aggregate basis of the property of the transferor determined under subparagraph (1), (2), or (3) of this paragraph is less than the aggregate adjusted basis of such property otherwise computed, such difference shall be deemed to represent a deduction from the aggregate basis of the property of the transferor otherwise computed; such difference shall be represented in a credit account to be called "negative good will."

If the fair market value of the property of the transferor at the time as of which the recomputation is made is greater or less than the aggregate adjusted basis of such property determined without regard to subparagraph (1), (2), or (3) of this paragraph, proper adjustment shall be made to the basis of such assets to reflect such difference.

(5) Basis of property acquired by transferor subsequent to determination of basis under (4). In any case in which the transferor, subsequent to the date as of which the redetermination of the basis of its property has been made pursuant to subparagraph (4) of this paragraph, acquires additional property, the basis of which is fixed by reference to the basis of the property redetermined under subparagraph (4) of this paragraph, the basis of such additional property shall be determined with respect to the basis of such property redetermined in accordance with the rules set forth in subparagraph (4) of this paragraph in lieu of the basis otherwise prescribed with respect to such property.

(6) Use of basis determined for subsequent adjustments. The basis of the property determined under subparagraph (4) or (5) of this paragraph shall be used in determining, for the purposes of section 472, all subsequent adjustments to the basis of such property, as for example, the adjustment based upon depreciation or depletion. Such basis shall also be used in lieu of the basis otherwise prescribed by section 113 in determining, for the purposes of section 472, the gain or loss resulting from a sale or other disposition of such assets by the transferor. The adjustments so obtained and the amount of gain or loss resulting from a sale or other disposition of such assets so determined shall, for the purposes of section 472, be used in computing the earnings and profits or the deficit in earnings and profits of the transferor to ascertain—

(i) Whether distributions subsequent to the date as of which the aggregate basis of the assets of the transferor is determined with respect to stock having a cost basis are out of earnings and profits of the transferor;

(ii) The amount to be included in the earnings and profits of the transferee as a result of such distributions out of earnings and profits of the transferor; or

(iii) The adjustment to be made to the basis of the stock of the transferor owned by the transferee resulting from any such distributions not out of earnings and profits of the transferor.

(7) Property received by transferee in intercorporate liquidation. The property received by the transferee in an intercorporate liquidation attributable to a share of stock of the transferor having a cost basis shall be considered to have, at the time of its receipt by the transferee in the intercorporate liquidation, a basis determined as follows:

(i) With respect to property so received which was owned by the transferor with a basis not determined by reference to this paragraph, for example property the basis of which had not been increased or decreased in a revaluation under subparagraph (4) of this paragraph or property acquired subsequent to the date of such revaluation, such property shall have the same basis to the transferee which it had in the hands of the transferor immediately prior to the intercorporate liquidation, adjusted, however, by adjustments proper under section 115 (l) for the determination of earnings and profits;

(ii) With respect to property so received which was owned by the transferor with a basis increased or decreased as the result of a recomputation provided by subparagraph (4) of this paragraph, and with respect to property so received which had a basis fixed, as provided by subparagraph (5) of this paragraph, by reference to other property the basis of which was recomputed pursuant to the provisions of subparagraph (4) of this paragraph, such property shall have the same basis to the transferee which it had in the hands of the transferor, so increased or decreased, immediately prior to the intercorporate liquidation adjusted, however, by adjustments proper under section 115 (l) for the determination of earnings and profits; only such part of the aggregate property received by the transferee in the intercorporate liquidation as is attributable to the share of stock with a cost basis shall be considered as having the recomputed basis which such property is deemed to have under subparagraph (4) or (5) of this paragraph.

(b) Control. For the purposes of this section, "control" means the ownership of stock possessing at least 80 percent of the total combined voting power of all classes of stock entitled to vote and the ownership of at least 80 percent of the total number of shares of all other classes of stock (except nonvoting stock which is limited and preferred as to dividends), and shall be determined under the following rules:

(1) Control must be continued until the completion of the intercorporate liquidation.

(2) If control is lost and later reacquired (except as otherwise provided in subparagraph (3) of this paragraph), the date of the last acquisition of control shall be considered to be the date of acquisition of control.

(3) If control, once acquired, was lost because stock of the transferor which did not possess voting power at the time such control was acquired became entitled to vote, and if control was reacquired either because the stock which became entitled to vote lost its voting power or through the acquisition of the requisite portion of such stock, and such control continues until the completion of the intercorporate liquidation, the date of acquisition of control shall be the date upon which control was first acquired.

(4) Except as otherwise provided in subparagraph (6) of this paragraph, if stock of a corporation was acquired from another corporation which had held such stock with a cost basis, and if such stock is determined to have a cost basis in the hands of the acquiring corporation fixed by reference to its basis in the hands of such other corporation, the acquiring corporation shall be deemed to have acquired such stock as of the date upon which such stock was acquired by such other corporation.

(5) If stock of a corporation was acquired from another corporation in a liquidation subject to the provisions of section 112 (b) (6), or the corresponding provisions of a prior revenue law, and if the stock of the liquidated corporation was held by the acquiring corporation with a cost basis but the stock acquired was held by the liquidated corporation with a basis other than cost, the acquiring corporation shall be deemed to have acquired the stock received in the liquidation as of the date upon which it had acquired the stock of the liquidated corporation.

(6) If stock of a corporation was acquired from another corporation in a liquidation subject to the provisions of section 112 (b) (6), or the corresponding provisions of a prior revenue law, and if the stock so acquired was held by the liquidated corporation and the stock of the liquidated corporation was held by the acquiring corporation, both with a cost basis, the acquiring corporation shall be deemed to have acquired the stock received in the liquidation as of the date upon which such stock was acquired by the liquidated corporation, or as of the date upon which the acquiring corporation acquired the stock of the liquidated corporation with respect to which the distribution was made, whichever date was the later.

(7) If stock of a corporation was acquired with a basis determined to be a cost basis under § 40.472–3 (b) (1) because the basis of such stock was fixed by reference to the cost basis of other stock in the hands of the acquiring corporation, the acquiring corporation shall be deemed to have acquired such stock as of the date upon which it had acquired such other stock.

(8) If the basis of the stock of a transferor in the hands of the transferee was increased as the result of a statutory merger or consolidation of the transferor and another corporation, or as the result of a transaction having the effect of a statutory merger or consolidation, and if the stock of such other corporation was held by the transferee with a cost basis, that portion of the transferee's stockholding interest in the transferor represented by the increase shall be deemed to have been acquired as of the date upon which the transferee had acquired the stock of such other corporation.

§ 40.472–6 Basis of property received in an intercorporate liquidation with respect to stock having a basis other than cost. For the purpose of determining the plus adjustment or the minus adjustment to be used in adjusting the equity invested capital of a transferee in an intercorporate liquidation pursuant to section 472 (b) and (d), the property received by a transferee in an intercorporate liquidation attributable to a share of stock of the transferor having in the hands of the transferee a basis determined under § 40.472–3 to be a basis other than cost shall be considered to have at the time so received by the transferee the basis it would have had if the first sentence of section 113 (a) (15) had been applicable, i. e., the basis of such property to the transferee shall be the basis which such property had in the hands of the transferor, adjusted by adjustments proper under section 115 (l) in determining earnings and profits. Such basis shall be used for the purposes of section 472 in lieu of the basis for determining gain or loss upon a sale or other disposition prescribed by any provision or rule of law such as the last sentence of section 113 (a) (15), or the corresponding provisions of a prior revenue law, or a provision of consolidated return regulations such as § 33.38 (c) (3) of Regulations 110, or § 23.38 (c) (3) of Regulations 104, or corresponding sections of other consolidated returns regulations. Only such part of the aggregate property of the transferor received by the transferee in the intercorporate liquidation as is attributable to a share having a basis determined to be a basis other than cost shall be considered as having the adjusted basis which property is deemed to have under section 472 (c) (2) and this section. Thus, if the aggregate basis of the assets to the transferor, properly adjusted by the adjustments required by section 115 (l) is $400,000, and if the transferee owns 90 percent of the stock of the transferor half of which was held with a basis other than cost, and receives 90 percent of the aggregate property of the transferor upon the intercorporate liquidation, the aggregate basis of the assets received by the transferee with respect to the shares held with a basis other than cost, for the purposes of section 472, is $180,000 (one-half of 90 percent of $400,000).

§ 40.472–7 Adjustment of equity invested capital. If property is received by the transferee in an intercorporate liquidation within the meaning of section 472 (a), the equity invested capital of the transferee for any day following the day in which such intercorporate liquidation is completed shall be computed with the following adjustments:

(a) Adjustment with respect to stock with cost basis. With respect to any share of stock in the transferor having in the hands of the transferee, immediately prior to the receipt of the property in the intercorporate liquidation, a basis determined under the provisions of § 40.472–3 to be a cost basis the earnings and profits or the deficit in earnings and profits of the transferee shall be computed as if, on the day following the completion of the intercorporate liquidation, the transferee had realized a recognized gain equal to the amount of the plus adjustment in respect of such share or had sustained a recognized loss equal to the amount of the minus adjustment in respect to such share, computed under the provisions of section 472 (b) and § 40.472–2. No other amount shall be included pursuant to any provision or rule of law in the earnings and profits of the transferee as a result of the intercorporate liquidation with respect to such share.

(b) Adjustment with respect to stock with basis other than cost. With respect to any share of stock in the transferor having in the hands of the transferee, immediately prior to the receipt of the property in the intercorporate liquidation, a basis determined under the provisions of § 40.472–3 to be a basis other than cost, there shall be treated as an amount includible in the sum specified in section 458 (d) (relating to equity invested capital) for each day following the intercorporate liquidation the amount of the plus adjustment computed with respect to such share under section 472 (b) and § 40.472–2 (a), or as an amount includible in the sum specified in section 458 (e) (relating to reduction in equity invested capital) for each day following the intercorporate liquidation the amount of the minus adjustment computed with respect to such share under section 472 (b) and § 40.472–2 (b).

(c) Illustration. The provisions of section 472 may be illustrated by the following example:

Assume that Corporation S was organized on December 31, 1928, with an authorized capital stock of $25,000 consisting of 1,000 shares of common stock with a par value of $25 per share. On that date, in a transaction within the provisions of section 112 (b) (5) of the Revenue Act of 1928, Corporation S issued to Corporation P 600 shares of its stock in exchange for a patent which had an adjusted basis to P of $15,000, and 400 shares of its stock to individuals in exchange for property with an adjusted basis to such individuals of $10,000. The basis to P of the 600 shares of stock of S is determined to be a basis other than cost. Section 113 (a) (6) and section 40.472–3 (b) (1). On December 31, 1931, P purchased for $80,000 in cash the remaining 400 shares of the stock of S which it retained until the liquidation of S on December 31, 1936, under section 112 (b) (6) of the Revenue Act of 1936, an intercorporate liquidation. The date of acquisition of control of S by P was December 31, 1931. Section 40.472–5 (b). On December 31, 1928, the patent acquired by S had a remaining life of 15 years; on December 31, 1931, the date of acquisition of control of S by P, the patent had a fair market value of $72,000. As of December 31, 1931, the fair market value of the remaining assets of S was identical with their adjusted basis.

Comparative balance sheets of S as of December 31, 1931, the date of acquisition of control by P, and as of December 31, 1936, the date of liquidation of S, are as follows:

	Dec. 31, 1931		Dec. 31, 1936
Assets:
Cash	$5,000		$55,000
Other current assets	60,000		150,000
Fixed assets (less depreciation)	80,000		130,000
Patent	$15,000	$15,000
Less: Reserve for amortization	3,000	8,000
		12,000		7,000
Total assets		157,000		292,000
Liabilities and capital:
Current liabilities	$12,000		$22,000
Mortgage on fixed assets	15,000		10,000
Capital stock	25,000		25,000
Surplus (earnings and profits)	85,000		235,000
Total liabilities and capital	157,000		292,000

The plus adjustment or the minus adjustment to be made to the invested capital of P resulting from the intercorporate liquidation of S is a direct addition to or subtraction from the equity invested capital of P with respect to the stock of S held with a basis other than cost (section 472 (d) (2)); it is deemed to be a recognized gain or loss to P as of the day following the intercorporate liquidation with respect to the stock of S held with a cost basis (section 472 (d) (1)). Moreover, the determination of the basis of property received with respect to stock held with a basis other than cost (section 472 (c) (2)) differs from the determination of such basis with respect to stock held with a cost basis (section 472 (c) (1)). Two separate computations must therefore be made.

(1) Stock with a basis other than cost. With respect to the 600 shares of stock of S held by P with a basis other than cost, P is deemed to have received 60 percent $\left(\frac{600}{1000}\right)$ of the assets and to have assumed 60 percent of the liabilities of S, as follows:

	Total assets	Assets received
Cash	$35,000	$21,000
Other current assets	120,000	72,000
Fixed assets (less depreciation)	130,000	78,000
Patent	$15,000	$9,000
Less: Reserve for amortization	8,000	4,800
	7,000	4,200
Total	292,000	175,200
	Total liabilities	Liabilities assumed
Current liabilities	$22,000	$13,200
Mortgage on fixed assets	10,000	6,000
Total	32,000	19,200

There is a plus adjustment to the equity invested capital of P in the amount of $141,000, computed as follows:

Money received by P		$21,000
Adjusted basis of all other property received by P		154,200
Total assets received		$175,200
Less: Adjusted basis to P of 600 shares of stock of S	$15,000
Aggregate liabilities assumed	19,200
Total		34,200
Plus adjustment		141,000

(2) Stock with a cost basis. With respect to the 400 shares of stock of S held by P with a cost basis, the basis of the aggregate property of S is to be recomputed, as of December 31, 1931, the date of acquisition by P of control of S, to accord with the basis of such stock (section 472 (c) (1) (A)), as follows:

Cost basis per share of stock ($80,000 divided by 400)		$200
Number of share units		1,000
Product of cost per share and number of share units		$200,000
Less: Money		5,000
Difference		195,000
Add: Liabilities:
Current liabilities	$12,000
Mortgage on fixed assets	15,000
		27,000
Basis of aggregate property other than money		222,000

The excess of the recomputed basis of the aggregate property of S, other than money, over the adjusted basis of such property prior to the recomputation is $120,000 ($222,000 minus $102,000). The only asset which had a fair market value in excess of its adjusted basis prior to the recomputation is the patent. In the recomputation, the basis of the patent is increased by $60,000 under section 472 (c) (1) (A) to its fair market value of $72,000. The remainder of the excess of the recomputed basis of the aggregate property of S other than money over the adjusted basis of such property prior to the recomputation ($120,000 minus $60,000) becomes the basis of an account entitled "positive good will."

As of December 31, 1931, the adjusted basis and the recomputed basis of the property of S would appear as follows:

	Adjusted basis	Recomputed basis
Assets:
Cash	$5,000	$5,000
Other current assets	60,000	60,000
Fixed assets (less depreciation)	80,000	80,000
Patent	$15,000	$75,000
Less: Reserve for amortization	3,000	8,000
	12,000	72,000
Positive good will	------	60,000
	157,000	277,000

Pursuant to section 472 (c) (1) (C), the recomputed basis of the patent is to be used in determining all subsequent adjustments to the basis of such asset. Thus, for each of the five years between December 31, 1931, and December 31, 1936, the date of the intercorporate liquidation, the patent will be amortized at $6,000 per year ($72,000 divided by 12), instead of $1,000 per year ($15,000 divided by 15). The total amount included in the reserve for amortization will be $33,000 ($3,000 plus $30,000) instead of $8,000 ($3,000 plus $5,000). As of December 31, 1936, P is deemed to have received with respect to the 400 shares of stock of S held with a cost basis 40 percent $\left(\frac{400}{1000}\right)$ of the assets of S including the positive good will account, revalued according to section 472 (c) (1) (A) and (C), and to have assumed 40 percent of the liabilities of S. (Section 472 (c) (1) (E).) The adjusted basis of the property of S as of December 31, 1936, prior to the recomputation and as recomputed, and the portion of the assets deemed to have been received and the liabilities deemed to have been assumed by P, are as follows:

Assets	Prior to recomputation	As recomputed	Assets received
Cash	$35,000	$35,000	$14,000
Other current assets	120,000	120,000	48,000
Fixed assets (less depreciation)	130,000	130,000	52,000
Patent	$15,000	$75,000	$30,000
Less: Reserve for amortization	8,000	33,000	13,200
	7,000	42,000	16,800
Positive good will	------	60,000	24,000
Total	292,000	387,000	154,800

Liabilities:	Total liabilities	Liabilities assumed
Current liabilities	$22,000	$8,800
Mortgage on fixed assets	10,000	4,000
Total	32,000	12,800

There is a plus adjustment deemed to be a recognized gain to P as of January 1, 1937, in the amount of $62,000, computed as follows:

Money received by P		$14,000
Adjusted basis of all other property received by P		140,800
Total assets received		$154,800
Less: Adjusted basis to P of 400 shares of stock of S	$80,000
Aggregate liabilities assumed	12,800
Total		92,800
Plus adjustment		62,000

The unadjusted basis to P of the property received from S in the intercorporate liquidation is computed as follows:

	Basis with respect to 600 shares	Basis with respect to 400 shares	Total
Cash	$21,000	$14,000	$35,000
Other current assets	72,000	48,000	120,000
Fixed assets (less depreciation)	78,000	52,000	130,000
Patent	$9,000	$30,000	$39,000
Less: Reserve for amortization	4,800	13,200	18,000
	4,200	16,800	21,000
Positive good will	------	24,000	24,000
Total	175,200	154,800	330,000

For the purpose of computing the earnings and profits and the adjusted basis of the patent received from S in the intercorporate liquidation to be used in the determination of the invested capital of P for each excess profits tax taxable year, the patent would be deemed to have an unadjusted basis to P of $21,000 as of January 1, 1937, and the annual amount of amortization from that date would be $3,000 ($21,000 divided by 7) instead of $1,000, the amount of amortization taken by S.

§ 40.472–8 Invested capital basis. For the purpose of computing any amount entering into the computation of the invested capital of the transferee, or of any other corporation the computation of the invested capital of which is determined by reference to the basis of property in the hands of the transferee, the adjusted basis which property received by the transferee in an intercorporate liquidation is deemed to have at the time of its receipt by the transferee, determined under section 472 (c) and § 40.472–5, shall be thereafter treated as the adjusted basis of such property in lieu of any other basis otherwise prescribed. Thus, items of depreciation or depletion or any other items computed by reference to the basis of property received in an intercorporate liquidation, shall, for the purpose of computing the invested capital of the transferee, be determined by reference to the adjusted basis of such property in the hands of the transferee computed under section 472 in lieu of any basis prescribed by section 113 or any other provision or rule of law. Likewise, the adjusted basis of stock or other assets received by the transferee in an intercorporate liquidation shall, for the purpose of determining the ratio of inadmissible assets to total assets under section 440 (b), be the adjusted basis as provided in section 472 (c) in lieu of the basis determined under section 113. So, also, for the purpose of determining the earnings and profits resulting from a sale or other disposition of an asset received in an intercorporate liquidation the adjusted basis of such asset shall be the adjusted basis as provided in section 472 (c).

In pursuance of the Internal Revenue Code, the foregoing regulations are hereby prescribed, applicable only to taxable years ending after June 30, 1950. In order that these regulations may be available for guidance to taxpayers for as long a period as possible prior to March 15, 1951 (the date prescribed for filing returns for taxable years ending before January 1, 1951), it is hereby found to be impracticable to incur the delay which would result from the issuance of these regulations with notice and public procedure thereon under section 4 (a) of the Administrative Procedure Act, approved June 11, 1946, or subject to the effective date limitation of section 4 (c) of said act.

[SEAL] FRED S. MARTIN,
Acting Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

Approved: March 1, 1951.

THOMAS J. LYNCH,
Acting Secretary of the Treasury.

TITLE 10—ATOMIC ENERGY

Chapter I—Atomic Energy Commission

[Domestic Uranium Program Circular 5, Revised]

PART 60—DOMESTIC URANIUM PROGRAM

GUARANTEED MINIMUM PRICE FOR URANIUM-BEARING CARNOTITE-TYPE OR ROSCOELITE-TYPE ORES OF COLORADO PLATEAU AREA

Section 60.5 and § 60.5a of Title 10, Code of Federal Regulations, are amended by increasing the prices and premiums to be paid after March 1, 1951, for uranium ores, so that § 60.5 and § 60.5a, as amended, shall read as follows:

§ 60.5 Guaranteed minimum price for uranium-bearing carnotite-type or roscoelite-type ores of the Colorado Plateau area—(a) Guarantee. To stimulate domestic production of uranium-bearing ores of the Colorado Plateau area, commonly known as carnotite-type or roscoelite-type ores, and in the interest of the common defense and security, the United States Atomic Energy Commission hereby establishes the guaranteed minimum prices specified in § 60.5a effective during the period, March 1, 1951, through March 31, 1953, for the delivery of such ores to the Commission at Monticello, Utah, in accordance with the terms of this section and § 60.5a.

NOTE: In §§ 60.1 and 60.2 (Domestic Uranium Program, Circulars No. 1 and 2), the Commission established guaranteed prices for other domestic uranium-bearing ores, mechanical concentrates, and refined uranium products.

(b) Effect on §§ 60.3 and 60.3a. Sections 60.3 and 60.3a, which also apply to carnotite and roscoelite ores, are not revoked by the issuance of this section and § 60.5a and sellers may elect to deliver ore under the provisions of §§ 60.3 and 60.3a rather than under this section and 60.5a, at their option, during the unexpired terms of §§ 60.3 and 60.3a (through April 11, 1951). It is believed, however, that in most cases the provisions of this section and § 60.5a will be more favorable to producers.

(c) Definitions. As used in this section and in § 60.5a, the term "buyer" refers to the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission, or its authorized purchasing agent. The term "ore" does not include mill tailings or other mill products. The term "seller" refers to any person offering uranium ores for delivery to the Commission. Weights are avoirdupois dry weights, unless otherwise specifically provided.

(d) Deliveries of not to exceed 1,000 tons per year. To aid small producers, any one seller may deliver without a written contract but otherwise in accordance with this circular up to, but not exceeding, 1,000 short tons (2,000 pounds per ton) of ores during any calendar year.

(e) Deliveries in excess of 1,000 tons per year. Sellers desiring to deliver in excess of 1,000 short tons (2,000 pounds per ton) of ores during any calendar year will be required to enter into a contract with the Commission providing for, among other things, a rate of delivery and the total quantity of ore to be delivered.

(f) Delivery. Seller, at his own expense, shall deliver and unload all ores at the buyer's depot at Monticello, Utah. Deliveries shall be in lots of not less than 10 short tons (2,000 pounds per ton) unless special arrangements have been agreed upon by buyer, but such lots may be delivered in more than one load. Days and hours during which ore may be delivered will be posted at the depot.

(g) Weighing, sampling and assaying. Buyer will bear the cost of weighing, sampling, and assaying. The net weight of each load will be determined by the buyer's weighmaster on scales which will be provided by the buyer at or in the vicinity of the purchase depot and such weight will be accepted as final. A weight ticket will be furnished seller or his representative for each load. Each lot of ores will be sampled promptly by the buyer according to standard practice and such sampling will be accepted as final. Seller or his representative may be present at the sampling at his own expense. The absence of seller or his representative shall be deemed a waiver of this right. Buyer will make moisture determinations according to standard practices in ore sampling. All final samples will be divided into four pulps and distributed as follows: (1) The seller, or his representative, will receive one pulp; (2) the buyer will retain one pulp; (3) the other two pulps will be reserved for possible umpire analysis. The buyer's pulp will be assayed by the buyer. The seller may, if he desires, and at his own expense, have his pulp assayed by an independent assayer. In case of disagreement on assays as to any constituent of the ores, an umpire shall be selected in rotation from a list of umpires approved by the buyer whose assays shall be final if within the limits of the assays of the two parties; if not, the assay which is nearer to that of the umpire shall prevail. The party whose assay is the farther from that of the umpire shall pay the cost of the umpire's assay for the constituent of the ores which is in dispute. In the event that the umpire's assay is equally distant from the assay of each party, costs will be split equally. In case of seller's failure to make or submit assays, buyer's assays shall govern. After sampling, the ores may be placed in process, commingled, or otherwise disposed of by buyer.

(h) Payment. Buyer will make payment promptly but payment will not be made until an entire minimum lot of ten short tons (2,000 pounds per ton) has been delivered and accepted, unless special arrangements have been agreed upon by buyer, in which case there may be an extra charge for assaying and sampling. Moisture determinations, analyses and settlement sheets, together with the check in payment, will be mailed to seller.

(i) Inquiries. All inquiries concerning the provisions of this section and § 60.5a, offers to deliver ores, or questions about the Commission's domestic uranium program in the Colorado Plateau area should be addressed to:

United States Atomic Energy Commission, Post Office Box 270, Grand Junction, Colorado; Telephone: Grand Junction 3000.

(j) Licenses. Arrangements will be made by the Commission for the issuance of licenses, pursuant to the Atomic Energy Act of 1946, covering deliveries of source material to the Commission under this section and § 60.5a.

(k) Limitation of commitment. Commitments by the Commission to accept delivery of ores are limited to the provisions of this section and § 60.5a as amended from time to time, or to written contracts between the Commission and sellers. Other commitments purporting to be made by the Commission's field personnel or other agents of the Commission will not bind the Commission unless they are in accord with the provisions of this section and § 60.5a or other official circulars.

§ 60.5a. Schedule I; minimum prices, specifications, and conditions—(a) Prices. Payment for delivery of the ores will be computed on the following basis:

(1) Uranium. (i) Ores assaying less than 0.10 percent: no payment. Any such ores which are delivered to the purchase depot shall, unless otherwise specifically agreed to by buyer, become the property of the buyer as liquidated damages for buyer's expense of weighing, sampling, and assaying, and after sampling may be placed in process, commingled, or otherwise disposed of by buyer. If seller has any question as to the quality of his ore, it is suggested that before shipment and delivery to the purchase depot a representative sample be submitted to the buyer or to one of the umpires for assay at seller's expense. The buyer at its discretion may assay a limited number of samples without charge.

(ii) Ores assaying 0.10 percent U_3O_8 and more, as follows:

U_3O_8 assay:	Payment per pound U_3O_8
0.10 percent	$1.50
0.11 percent	1.70
0.12 percent	1.90
0.13 percent	2.10
0.14 percent	2.30
0.15 percent	2.50
0.16 percent	2.70
0.17 percent	2.90
0.18 percent	3.10
0.19 percent	3.30
0.20 percent and more	3.50

(iii) Premiums on uranium: $0.75 per pound for each pound of U_3O_8 in excess of 4 pounds U_3O_8 per short ton (2,000 pounds per ton) of ore and an additional premium of $0.25 per pound for each pound in excess of ten pounds U_3O_8 per short ton. Fractional parts of a pound will be paid for on a pro rata basis to the nearest cent.

(2) Vanadium. V_2O_5 at $0.31 per pound up to, but not exceeding, ten pounds of V_2O_5 for each pound of U_3O_8 contained in ores. No factor will be included for V_2O_5 in excess of ten pounds for each pound of U_3O_8, although buyer may, from time to time, publicly announce that, for limited periods by written agreements with individual producers, V_2O_5 in excess of ten-to-one will be paid for. Any such announcement will be made by posting a notice to this effect at the Monticello depot and through such other channels as are deemed suitable to achieve maximum dissemination among producers. Excess V_2O_5 shall be deemed to be buyer's property.

(3) Allowances. (i) A development allowance of $0.50 per pound U_3O_8 contained in ores assaying 0.10 percent U_3O_8 or more in recognition of the expenditures necessary for maintaining and increasing developed reserves of uranium ores. Fractional parts of a pound will be paid for on a pro rata basis to the nearest cent. Sellers accepting this allowance are deemed to agree to spend such funds for the development or exploration of their properties. Sellers delivering less than 1,000 short tons per calendar year will not be required to submit an accounting record of expenditures for development or exploration pursuant to this agreement but sellers delivering in excess of 1,000 short tons per calendar year will be required, under the terms of their contracts, to submit proof satisfactory to the Commission that funds equivalent to the amount received as development allowance have been spent for development or exploration either during the contract period or within six months thereafter, unless otherwise provided in the contract.

(ii) A haulage allowance of 6¢ per ton mile for transportation of ore paid for under §§ 60.5 and 60.5a from the mine where produced to the purchase depot specified by the Commission, up to a maximum of 100 miles. The haulage distance from the mine to the purchase depot will be determined by the Commission and its decision will be final. Tonnages for purposes of this allowance shall be calculated on the basis of natural weights rather than dry weights.

(4) Adjustment of assays. Assays shall be adjusted to the nearest 0.01 percent for purposes of payment.

(b) Quality and size. Ores will not be accepted by buyer under §§ 60.5 and 60.5a which, in buyer's judgment:

(1) Contain less than 0.10 percent U_3O_8;

(2) Contain more than three parts of lime ($CaCO_3$) to one part of V_2O_5, or a total of more than 6 percent lime in the ore;

(3) Contain impurities deleterious to buyer's extraction process or for any other reason are not amenable to it;

(4) Contain lumps in excess of twelve inches in size.

NOTE: The Commission will be interested in discussing arrangements for delivery to it of types of uranium-bearing materials other than those for which guaranteed prices have been established, such as tailings, mill products, and ores of types not acceptable under §§ 60.5 and 60.5a.

Effective March 1, 1951 through March 31, 1958.

Dated at Washington, D. C., this 26th day of February 1951.

By order of the Commission.

TITLE 24—HOUSING AND HOUSING CREDIT

Chapter VIII—Office of Housing Expediter

[Controlled Housing Rent Reg., Amdt. 357]

[Controlled Rooms in Rooming Houses and Other Establishments Rent Reg., Amdt. 352]

PART 825—RENT REGULATIONS UNDER THE HOUSING AND RENT ACT OF 1947, AS AMENDED

LOUISIANA

Amendment 357 to the Controlled Housing Rent Regulation (§§ 825.1 to 825.12) and Amendment 352 to the rent regulation for Controlled Rooms in Rooming Houses and Other Establishments (§§ 825.81 to 825.92). Said regulations are amended in the following respects:

1. Schedule A, Item 129, is amended to read as follows:

Name of defense-rental area	State	County or counties under rent regulation	Maximum rent date	Effective date of regulation	Date by which registration statement to be filed
(129) Alexandria-Leesville.	Louisiana...	The parishes of Beauregard and Vernon.	Jan. 1, 1941	July 1, 1942	Aug. 15, 1942

This recontrols the Parishes of Beauregard and Vernon in Louisiana, portions of the Alexandria-Leesville, Louisiana, Defense-Rental Area. Vernon Parish was decontrolled as of June 1, 1947. As of October 31, 1947, in Beauregard Parish, the application of the following regulations was terminated: (a) §§ 825.81 to 825.92 (Rent Regulation for Controlled Rooms in Rooming Houses and Other Establishments) in its entirety, and (b) §§ 825.1 to 825.12 (Controlled Housing Rent Regulation) only with respect to furnished rooms, not constituting an apartment, located within the residence occupied by the landlord or his immediate family. As of October 30, 1948, Beauregard Parish was entirely decontrolled.

2. A new Item is hereby incorporated in Schedule B to read as follows:

81. Provisions relating to the Parishes of Beauregard and Vernon, Louisiana, portions of the Alexandria-Leesville, Louisiana, Defense-Rental Area.

Recontrol of the Parishes of Beauregard and Vernon, Louisiana, portions of the Alexandria-Leesville, Louisiana, Defense-Rental Area. Effective March 8, 1951, the provisions of §§ 825.1 to 825.12 and 825.81 to 825.92 shall apply to housing accommodations in the Parishes of Beauregard and Vernon, Louisiana, portions of the Alexandria-Leesville, Louisiana, Defense-Rental Area, except as modified by the following provisions:

a. As to housing accommodations in the Parish of Vernon, Louisiana, all orders in effect on May 31, 1947, in accordance with §§ 825.1 to 825.12 or 825.81 to 825.92, shall be in full force and effect.

b. As to housing accommodations in the Parish of Beauregard, the following orders shall be in full force and effect: (i) all orders in effect on October 30, 1947, in accordance with §§ 825.81 to 825.92; (ii) all orders in effect on October 30, 1947, with respect to furnished rooms not constituting an apartment located within the residence occupied by the landlord or his immediate family in accordance with §§ 825.1 to 825.12; (iii) all orders in effect on October 29, 1948, in accordance with §§ 825.1 to 825.12.

c. If, on March 8, 1951, there was a ground for adjustment under § 825.5 (a) or § 825.85 (a) for which no order had previously been issued, and a petition for adjustment is filed on or before April 8, 1951, the adjustment shall be effective as of March 8, 1951.

d. If, on March 8, 1951, the services provided with any housing accommodations are less than the minimum required by § 825.3 or § 825.83, the landlord shall either restore and maintain such minimum services or file a petition on or before April 8, 1951 requesting approval of the decreased services. If, on March 8, 1951, the furniture, furnishings or equipment provided with any housing accommodations are less than the minimum required by § 825.3 or § 825.83, the landlord shall file, on or before April 8, 1951, a written report showing the decrease in furniture, furnishings or equipment. Except as modified by this paragraph "d", the provisions of §§ 825.5 (b) and 825.85 (b) shall be applicable to all such cases.

e. In the case of any action which on March 8, 1951, was required or authorized by §§ 825.1 to 825.12 or 825.81 to 825.92 to be taken within a specified period of time, the same time period shall be applicable but such time period shall be counted from March 8, 1951.

f. The provisions of §§ 825.6 and 825.86 shall not apply to any case in which judgment was entered prior to March 8, 1951 by a court of competent jurisdiction for the eviction or removal of a tenant from housing accommodations.

(Sec. 204, 61 Stat. 197, as amended; U. S. C. App. Sup. 1894)

This amendment shall become effective March 8, 1951.

Issued this 8th day of March 1951.

TIGHE E. WOODS,
Housing Expediter.

TITLE 32A—NATIONAL DEFENSE, APPENDIX

Chapter I—Office of Defense Mobilization

[Defense Mobilization Order 7]

DMO 7—CREATION OF A COMMITTEE ON DEFENSE TRANSPORTATION AND STORAGE

By virtue of the authority vested in me by Executive Order No. 10193 of December 16, 1950, and in accordance with Executive Order No. 10219 of February 28, 1951, and in order to assist the Director of Defense Mobilization to improve the coordination and effectiveness of Federal policies and programs relating to transportation and storage, It is hereby ordered:

SECTION 1. There is established in the Office of Defense Mobilization the Committee on Defense Transportation and Storage, which shall consist of a Chairman and one representative each, designated by the Secretaries of State, Treasury, Defense, Interior, and Commerce, the Defense Production Administrator, and the Defense Transport Administrator, respectively, and such other members as the Director of Defense Mobilization may hereafter provide. The Chairman of the Committee shall be designated by the Director of Defense Mobilization.

SEC. 2. The Defense Transportation Committee shall:

(a) Advise the Director of Defense Mobilization on problems relating to defense transportation and storage.

(b) Review Federal policies, plans, and programs relating to defense transportation and storage, and advise the Director of Defense Mobilization concerning policies, methods, and measures for improving the coordination and obtaining the most effective utilization of the various forms and facilities of transportation and storage, including among other matters policies, methods, and measures for the coordination of inland and ocean transportation and the operation of ports.

(c) Review for the Director of Defense Mobilization such proposed legislation, Executive Orders, and administrative orders and regulations relating to transportation and storage as he may direct.

SEC. 3. In carrying out the responsibilities set forth in this order the Committee on Defense Transportation and Storage shall concern itself primarily with interagency problems, policies, and programs relating to defense transportation and storage and with matters relating to two or more forms of transportation under the jurisdiction of different departments or agencies.

(E. O. 10193, Dec. 16, 1950, 15 F. R. 9031, 3 CFR, 1950 Supp.)

This order shall take effect on March 13, 1951.

OFFICE OF DEFENSE MOBILIZATION,
C. E. WILSON,
Director.

Chapter III—Office of Price Stabilization, Economic Stabilization Agency

[Administrative Order 22]

AO 22—Delegation of Authority With Respect to Enforcement Functions

By virtue of the authority vested in me as the Director of Price Stabilization pursuant to Executive Order No. 10161 (15 F. R. 6105), Economic Stabilization Agency General Order No. 2 (16 F. R. 738), and Economic Stabilization Agency General Order No. 5 (16 F. R. 1273), and in order to further define the internal organization of the Office of Price Stabilization, particularly the duties, powers, and authority of the Assistant Director of Price Stabilization for Enforcement (Director of Enforcement), It is hereby ordered:

Section 1. Those functions relating to the enforcement of price stabilization which were delegated to the Director of Price Stabilization by Economic Stabilization Order No. 2 (16 F. R. 738), are hereby redelegated to the Assistant Director of Price Stabilization for Enforcement (Director of Enforcement), who shall have the authority to make and authorize successive redelegations.

Sec. 2. All functions delegated pursuant to this order shall be performed by the Assistant Director of Price Stabilization for Enforcement (Director of Enforcement) subject to such general supervision, direction and control as the Director of Price Stabilization deems expedient.

This order shall become effective March 12, 1951.

Issued this 12th day of March 1951.

Michael V. DiSalle,
Director of Price Stabilization.

[General Ceiling Price Regulation, Supplementary Regulation 11]

GCPR, SR 11—Manufacturers' and Wholesalers' Prices for Soft Surface Floor Coverings

Pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.), Executive Order 10161 (15 F. R. 6105), and Economic Stabilization Agency General Order No. 2 (16 F. R. 738), this Supplementary Regulation No. 11 to the General Ceiling Price Regulation (16 F. R. 808) is hereby issued.

Statement of Considerations

The General Ceiling Price Regulation froze the ceiling price of manufacturers of soft surface floor coverings at their January 26, 1951, level of prices. With respect to most carpets and rugs, wool constitutes half the cost of the finished product. Carpet wool is entirely an imported raw material and has not been brough under control. As a result of steadily increasing wool prices, carpet manufacturers are suffering a squeeze. This supplementary regulation relieves them of most of this squeeze.

The weighted monthly average cost of scoured wool per pound for a representative group of manufacturers, representing approximately 80 percent of the industry during two months of 1950 and the first five months of 1951, is as follows:

November 1950	$1.05
December	1.13
January 1951	1.39
February	1.76
March	1.91
April	2.03
May (3 companies)	2.11

The wool floor covering industry consists of approximately 30 manufacturers, all of whom sell from published price lists. In measuring the amount of price adjustment needed, reference was first made to the prices in effect at the end of June 1950 and beginning of July 1950. These prices were announced prior to June 25 and thus reflected manufacturing costs in existence prior to the outbreak of the Korean hostilities.

On the basis of data gathered from a representative group of manufacturers, increases in direct cost of cotton, jute, and rayon were calculated up to December 31, 1950. The price adjustment granted gives the manufacturers the benefit of such increases in direct costs. In addition, it gives them the benefit of increases in wool prices and direct labor costs up to the present time.

The price relief granted is expressed in the form of a 15 percent increase in the prices which were in effect between December 19, 1950, and January 15, 1951, pursuant to published price lists. Between June 1950 and January 15, 1951, the industry as a whole made several price increases which reflected in part the increased cost of wool. Virtually the entire industry published new lists between December 19, 1950, and January 15, 1951. This period, then, represents the last period in which fairly uniform prices prevailed. A few manufacturers published lists subsequently to January 15, 1951. Had the permitted increase been added to the ceiling prices in effect during the base period for the General Ceiling Price Regulation, December 19, 1950, to January 26, 1951, these manufacturers would have received an unjustified amount.

Retailers apply their mark-up only on the original price without the permitted increase. The amount of the permitted increase is then added to the price which the retailer arrives at. In this fashion the retailer obtains the same dollar margin that he previously enjoyed.

Most floor coverings are sold direct from manufacturers to retailers. Some manufacturers, however, use wholesale distributors. The uniform practice in the industry has been that the wholesalers sell at the same price as the manufacturers and that their mark-up is determined by a percentage discount from the list price. This discount is usually 12 to 14 percent.

The wholesaler performs a somewhat less complete function that in other fields. Usually he is guaranteed against overstocking and losses through obsolescence. The price structure of the industry would make it difficult to provide any absorption by the wholesaler which would benefit the retailer or consumer. In the light of this fact and the relatively small margin which the wholesaler receives, no provisions have been made in this temporary regulation for any absorption by the wholesaler of any part of the increase. The supplementary regulation, therefore, retains the customary discount to wholesalers.

The supplementary regulation provides interim relief. It is expected that a permanent regulation will be issued in due course which will deal more completely with the problems of the industry. In connection with the issuance of a permanent regulation the possibilities of absorption at both the wholesale and retail level will be given further study.

In the judgment of the Director of Price Stabilization, the provisions of the supplementary regulation are generally fair and equitable and are necessary to effectuate the purposes of Title IV of the Defense Production Act of 1950.

So far as practicable the Director of Price Stabilization gave due consideration to the national effort to achieve maximum production in furtherance of the objectives of the Defense Production Act of 1950; to prices prevailing during the period from May 24, 1950, to June 24, 1950, inclusive; and to relevant factors of general applicability.

Regulatory Provisions

Sec.
1. Applicability of supplementary regulation.
2. Ceiling prices for sales to persons other than wholesalers.
3. Ceiling prices for sales to wholesalers.
4. Ceiling prices for new articles.
5. Notification to retailers.
6. Miscellaneous.

Authority: Sections 1 to 6 issued under sec. 704, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong. Interpret or apply Title IV, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.; E. O. 10161, Sept. 9, 1950, 15 F. R. 6105.

Section 1. Applicability of supplementary regulation. This supplementary regulation establishes new ceiling prices for sales by manufacturers and wholesalers of soft surface floor coverings with pile fabrics of wool, synthetic materials, or a blend of both. These ceiling prices supersede the ceiling prices under the General Ceiling Price Regulation.

Sec. 2. Ceiling prices for sales to persons other than wholesalers. The ceiling price for any unit of floor covering covered by this order shall be 115 percent of list prices for the same unit of floor covering which was contained in the applicable manufacturer's price list in effect for deliveries at any time between December 19, 1950, and January 15, 1951.

Sec. 3. Ceiling prices for sales to wholesalers. Ceiling prices for all sales by manufacturers to wholesalers shall be the ceiling prices established in section 2, less discounts of a percentage no smaller than the discounts in effect during the period from December 19, 1950, to January 26, 1951.

Sec. 4. Ceiling prices for new articles. Ceiling prices for new units of floor covering not included in manufacturers' price lists in effect between December 19, 1950, and January 15, 1951, shall be established under the provisions of sections 4 and 5 of the General Ceiling Price Regulation for manufacturers and wholesalers, respectively. In applying these sections, the ceiling prices for a "comparison commodity" shall be the applicable ceiling prices fixed under section 2 or 3 of this supplementary regulation.

Sec. 5. Notification to retailers. Each manufacturer or wholesaler must break down his invoice price for each unit sold into two component parts:

The "original price", i. e. the price list price in effect between December 19, 1950 and January 15, 1951 and the "permitted increase", i. e. the amount of any increase above the "original price" permitted by this supplementary regulation. To each invoice shall be affixed by rubber stamp or otherwise the following statement:

> The amount on this invoice shown as the "original price" is the cost on which you apply your mark-up under OPS Ceiling Price Regulation 7. The amount shown as "permitted increase" may be added to your price after applying your mark-up. The total becomes your ceiling price.

Sec. 6. Miscellaneous. All other provisions of the General Ceiling Price Regulation, not inconsistent with the provisions of this supplementary regulation, shall remain in effect.

Effective date. This supplementary regulation to the General Ceiling Price Regulation shall become effective March 13, 1951.

Michael V. DiSalle,
Director of Price Stabilization.

March 9, 1951.

Chapter VI—National Production Authority, Department of Commerce

[NPA Order M-7, as Amended Mar. 9, 1951]

M-7—Aluminum for Civilian Use

This order as amended is found necessary and appropriate to promote the national defense and is issued pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950. In the formulation of this order, there has been consultation with industry representatives, including trade association representatives, and consideration has been given to their recommendation.

This amendment affects NPA Order M-7 as amended Feb. 21, 1951, as follows: Two items in the list of products in section 3 have been changed, a new paragraph (c) has been added to section 5, and section 6 has been revised to read as set forth below. NPA Order M-7 as amended (including Directions 1, 2, and 3, appearing herein as sections 21, 22, and 23) reads as follows:

Sec.
1. Purpose and scope.
2. Definitions.
3. Aluminum forms and products to which this order applies.
4. Application of order.
5. Use of aluminum.
6. Prohibited use of aluminum.
7. Maintenance, repair, and operating supplies.
8. Exceptions.
9. Inventories.
10. Applications for adjustment.
11. Records and reports.
12. Communications.
13. Violations.

Directions

21. Base period: applications for adjustment; December 1950 use.
22. Base period: applications for adjustment; use during first calendar quarter of 1951.
23. Application for adjustment—component parts.

Authority: Sections 1 to 23 issued under sec. 704, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong. Interpret or apply sec. 101, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.; sec. 101, E. O. 10161, Sept. 9, 1950, 15 F. R. 6105, 3 CFR, 1950 Supp., sec. 2, E. O. 10200, Jan. 3, 1951, 16 F. R. 61.

Section 1. Purpose and scope. The purpose of this order is to describe how the aluminum remaining after allowing for the requirements of national defense may be distributed and used in the civilian economy. It is the policy of the National Production Authority that aluminum and articles made of aluminum, not required to fill rated orders, shall be distributed equitably through normal channels of distribution, and that due regard shall be given by suppliers to the needs of new and small business.

Sec. 2. Definitions. As used in this order:

(a) "Person" means any individual, corporation, partnership, association or any other organized group of persons and includes any agency of the United States or any other government.

(b) "Base period" means the 6 months' period ending June 30, 1950.

(c) "Manufacture" means to put into process, machine, fabricate, or otherwise alter materials by physical or chemical means: Provided, however, That as applied to "Castings (foundry products as shipped by the producer)" specified in section 3 the word "manufacture" will also mean the assembly of said items into components or end products.

(d) "Maintenance" means the minimum upkeep necessary to continue a building, machine, piece of equipment or facility in sound working condition, and "repair" means the restoration of a building, machine, piece of equipment or facility to sound working condition when the same has been rendered unsafe or unfit for service by wear and tear, damage, failure of parts or the like: Provided, however, Neither maintenance nor repair includes the improvement of any such item with material of a better kind, quality or design.

(e) "Operating supplies" means any aluminum forms or products listed in section 3 which are normally carried by a person as operating supplies according to established accounting practice and are not included in his finished product, except that materials included in such product which are normally chargeable to operating expense may be treated as operating supplies.

Sec. 3. Aluminum forms and products to which this order applies. The word "aluminum" as used in this order means only the following aluminum forms and products:

Rod and bar.
Wire (under 3/8").
Cables (electrical transmission only).
Rivets.
Forgings and pressings (before machining).
Impact extrusions.
Castings (foundry products as shipped by the producer).
Rolled structural shapes (angles, channels, zees, tees, etc.).
Extruded shapes.
Sheet (coiled and flat), plate, circles and blanks.
Slugs.
Plain coil foil.
Tubing (extruded, drawn and roll formed).
Tube blooms.
Powder (including atomized, flake, paste and pigments).
Ingot, pig, billets, slabs, granulated.
Purchased scrap.

Sec. 4. Application of order. Subject to the exemptions stated in section 8, this order applies to all persons who use any aluminum for purposes of manufacture or construction, or for maintenance, repair, or operating supplies. It does not apply to persons (a) who produce aluminum in or convert it to the forms and products listed in section 3; or (b) who use aluminum in the production of other metals (including aluminized steel), or of metal alloys, the chief constituent of which is not aluminum, or of chemical salts of aluminum and compositions of aluminum used as a catalyst.

Sec. 5. Use of aluminum. Subject to the exemptions stated in section 8, and unless specifically directed by the National Production Authority, no person shall use in manufacture or construction:

(a) During December 1950, a quantity by weight of aluminum in excess of 100 percent of his average monthly use of aluminum during the base period.

(b) During the following months a total quantity by weight of aluminum in excess of the percentages specified with respect to each month of his average monthly use of aluminum during the base period:

	Percent
January, 1951	80
February, 1951	75
March, 1951	65

(c) During the calendar quarter commencing on April 1, 1951, a total quantity by weight of aluminum in excess of 65 percent of his average quarterly use of aluminum during the base period: Provided, however, That such use in any one month shall not exceed 40 percent of the permitted quarterly use.

Sec. 6. Prohibited uses of aluminum. (a) Commencing on April 1, 1951, no person shall use aluminum, or any component part made therefrom, in the manufacture or assembly of any item included in attached List A, except as permitted therein; and no person shall use in the manufacture or assembly of any item, whether or not included in List A, or any component part therefor, a greater quantity or better grade of aluminum than is necessary for functional or operational purposes, or use aluminum solely for decorative or ornamental purposes. However, these prohibitions shall not apply to the use of: (1) aluminum, or component parts made therefrom, on and after April 1, 1951, if such materials were contained in such person's inventory on said date and are wholly unsuitable for use in the manufacture or assembly by such person of any item not included in List A; or (2) any such materials covered by an order placed with a producer and included in such producer's schedule for the first calendar quarter of 1951 which is delivered to such person at his plant prior to May 1, 1951, to the extent that such materials are wholly unsuitable for use in the manufacture or assembly by such person of any item not included in List A. Every person who relies on the exceptions contained in the next preceding sentence shall prepare a detailed record showing: (1) the quantities of aluminum, and component parts made therefrom, which were contained in his inventory on the first days of January, February, March and April 1951, and which were wholly unsuitable for use in his manufacture or assembly of any item not included in List A; and (2) the quantities of such materials wholly unsuitable for such use which were delivered to him on or after April 1, 1951, the names and addresses of the suppliers thereof, and the dates of the orders and acceptances covering such materials together with the applicable mill schedule. Such record shall be retained for at least 2 years and shall be made available at the usual place of business where maintained for inspection and audit by duly authorized representatives of the National Production Authority.

(b) During March 1951, no person shall use in the manufacture or assembly of the items included in attached List A a total quantity by weight of aluminum, or of any component parts made therefrom, in excess of 65 percent of his average monthly use of such materials for such purposes during the base period. To the extent that manufacture or assembly of the items on List A is permitted on or after April 1, 1951, under paragraph (a) of this section, the limitations of section 5 shall apply during April and succeeding months.

(c) Commencing on July 1, 1951, no person shall use aluminum in the manufacture or assembly of any item in attached List B: Provided, however, That any such item may be completed if it was in process of manufacture or assembly on or before April 30, 1951, and such completion is effected not later than June 30, 1951: And provided further, That windows of the non-residential type may be completed on or before June 30, 1951, regardless of when manufacture or assembly is commenced if orders therefor were received by the manufacturer prior to February 20, 1951. During each of the months of March, April, May, and June, 1951, no person may use in the manufacture or assembly of ducts and windows of residential type included in the attached List B a total quantity by weight of aluminum in excess of 65 percent of his average monthly use of aluminum in the manufacture or assembly of such items during the base period.

(d) No person may use in construction any aluminum for any item included in attached List A after May 31, 1951, or for any item contained in attached List B after June 30, 1951: Provided, however, That this prohibition will not apply to such use of aluminum for any such item if it was manufactured within the time limits specified in this section.

(e) The prohibitions of this section apply notwithstanding the provisions of NPA Reg. 2 with respect to the filling of rated orders and are not affected by any of the exemptions stated in section 8.

SEC. 7. Maintenance, repair, and operating supplies. Unless specifically directed by the National Production Authority, during the 6 months' period commencing on December 1, 1950, and each 6 months' period thereafter, no person shall use for maintenance, repair, and operating supplies a quantity by weight of aluminum in excess of the quantity of aluminum that he used for such purposes during the base period.

SEC. 8. Exemptions. (a) The use of aluminum required by any person to fill an order that is rated under the priorities system established by NPA Reg. 2 (15 F. R. 6911, 7185), or to meet any other mandatory order of the National Production Authority, is permitted in addition to the use of aluminum authorized by the provisions of sections 5 or 7.

(b) Pending development of requirements for aluminum conductor (including transmission cable, wire, and bus bar) for the production, transmission, or distribution of electric energy, this order does not presently restrict the use of aluminum conductor, conductor accessories or pole hardware for such purposes, if these items are on hand or the suppliers have accepted orders for these items prior to November 13, 1950, for delivery prior to April 1, 1951. The use of other shapes and forms of aluminum listed in section 3 for the production, transmission, or distribution of electric energy remain subject to the restrictions of this order.

(c) The provisions of sections 5 and 7 do not apply to persons who use less than 1,000 pounds of aluminum during any period of twelve consecutive months: Provided, however, That persons who by reason of the provisions of section 5 would be permitted to use less than 1,000 pounds during any period of twelve consecutive months may use during such period a quantity up to 1,000 pounds.

(d) Commencing on February 1, 1951, the provisions of section 5 will not apply to the use of aluminum in the manufacture of collapsible tubes as defined in NPA Order M-27.

SEC. 9. Inventories. In addition to the provisions of NPA Reg. 1 (15 F. R. 6253), relating to Inventory Control, it is considered that a more exact requirement applying to users of aluminum is necessary. No person obtaining aluminum for use in manufacture or construction, or for maintenance, repair, or operating supplies, may receive or accept delivery of a quantity of aluminum if his inventory is, or by such receipt would become, in excess of that necessary to meet his deliveries or supply his services on the basis of his scheduled method and rate of operation pursuant to this order during the succeeding 60-day period, or in excess of a "practicable minimum working inventory" (as defined in NPA Reg. 1), whichever is less. For the purpose of this section, aluminum shapes and forms listed in section 3 in which only minor changes or alterations have been effected shall be included in inventory. NPA Reg. 1 will apply to aluminum except as modified by this section.

SEC. 10. Application for adjustment. Any person affected by any provision of this order may file a request for adjustment or exception upon the ground that his business operation was commenced during or after the base period, or because any provision otherwise works an undue and exceptional hardship upon him not suffered generally by others in the same trade or industry or its enforcement against him would not be in the interest of the national defense or in the public interest. Each request shall be in writing and shall set forth all pertinent facts and the nature of the relief sought, and shall state the justification therefor.

SEC. 11. Records and reports. (a) Persons subject to this order shall preserve the records which they have maintained and will maintain of inventories, receipts, deliveries, and uses of aluminum forms and products commencing with January 1, 1950.

(b) Persons subject to this order shall make records and submit such reports to the National Production Authority as it shall require, subject to the terms of the Federal Reports Act (P. L. 831, 77th Cong., 5 U. S. C. 139–139–F).

SEC. 12. Communications. All communications concerning this order shall be addressed to the National Production Authority, Washington 25, D. C., Ref.: M-7.

SEC. 13. Violations. Any person who wilfully violates any provisions of this order or any other order or regulation of the National Production Authority or wilfully conceals a material fact or furnishes false information in the course of operation under this order is guilty of a crime and upon conviction may be punished by fine or imprisonment or both. In addition, administrative action may be taken against any such person to suspend his privilege of making or receiving further deliveries of materials or using facilities under priority or allocation control and to deprive him of further priorities assistance.

NOTE: All reporting requirements of this order have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

This order, as amended, shall take effect, except as otherwise specifically stated, on March 9, 1951.

NATIONAL PRODUCTION AUTHORITY,
[SEAL] MANLY FLEISCHMANN,
Administrator.

LIST A

(See section 6)

The use of the forms and products of aluminum defined in section 3 in the items listed below (excluding repair parts) is subject to the prohibitions stated in this order, except as otherwise stated in this order or the list:

Airfoil (tubing) for windmills
Aluminum wool
Andirons, screens, and fireplace fixtures
Animal cages
Animal training equipment
Animal traps
Applicators for moistening envelopes
Arbors and trellises
Architectural and other building ornamentation
Ash trays
Automobile hardware and trim (except functional parts)
Awnings Badges
Balloon molds
Bar rails
Barber chairs
Batons
Bathtubs
Beauty parlor equipment
Beer equipment: all items
Bells
Beverage mixing and serving equipment, such as bottle coolers, cocktail shakers, ice buckets and pails, ice chippers and shavers
Bicycles
Bird and pet cages, houses, aquariums, accessories and equipment
Blackboard frames and chalk troughs
Boards: shampoo, tanning
Book covers
Book stacks
Boxes, including match, cigarette, typewriter ribbon
Brackets: light, shelf and wall
Brooms and brushes (except industrial)
Buckles, all types
Buckets, household
Burglar alarms
Burial vaults and urns
Buttons (except for work clothing where necessary to resist corrosion).
Cabinets: kitchen, medicine and radiator
Calendars, calendar pads and parts
Cameras, amateur box type still picture, fixed focus (except reflex)
Candle molds
Canes
Canopies
Cans, including ignition coil and motion picture humidor.
Caps: chimney and vent flue
Card tables
Cards, greeting
Carriages: baby, luggage, strollers, scooters (except functional parts)
Cases: Cigar Film
  Radio, home type
  Soft drink Spectacle
  Vanity
Caskets, and accessory devices
Caster cups, wheel casters and glides
Chicken crates
Chutes: coal, package and waste
Cigarette lighters
Cleaning accessories, such as carpet sweepers, dust pans and scrubbing sets Clothespins
Coasters
Combs
Containers, foil lined, shoe polish
Coops, brooder, chicken, quail, etc.
Copings
Cornices
Crayon molds
Cups
Curtain, drapery, and carpet hardware
Cutlery handles
Cuspidors
Desk pads
Dispensers, fixed or portable, for soap, lotion, paper, straws, etc.
Dolls
Domestic laundry accessories, such as tubs and boilers, washboards, drain board and tub covers, clothes hampers, ironing boards and tables, garment stretchers and dryers, clothes drying frames, and clothes line hardware
Door chimes
Doors, including, but not limited to:
  Coal
  Door frames
  Dumbwaiter
  Incinerator
  Screen Storm
Draperies
Dresser sets
Emblems, medals (except religious), crestings and plates
Fences, wire
Flag poles, stanchions and sockets
Floor scrubbers
Flower boxes, stands and pot holders
Forms, concrete vault casting, wax Fountains Frames:
  electric sign level picture Frames, Window Screen
Frozen fruit sticks
Furniture
Furniture, hardware (except functional parts)
Games
Garden tools and equipment
Garment hooks, brackets, racks, rods, trees and hangers
Giftware
Gutters, leaders and downspouts.
Hair curlers
Hand-tool handles
Hedge clipping machine
Highway markers, signals and signs
Holders: Brush
  Pen
  Soda fountain cup
Horse shoes
Hollow ware (tea sets, etc.)
Ice cream freezers for home use
Jewelry, all types (except religious goods)
Kick plates
Kitchen utensils and tools, and food processing equipment (except cooking and baking utensils)
Ladders and step stools (except industrial and fire)
Lawn and garden hose accessories, such as sprinklers, nozzles, couplings, clamps, menders, and reels
Lawn mowers, seeders, rollers and tampers
Ledger books
Letter openers
Lightning rods
Luggage fittings, trim and hardware
Machines: rowing, voting
Mail boxes
Maps and globes (world)
Marine construction:
  Boats: pleasure boats and fittings of all kinds Canoes
  Rowboats
  Sailboats
Markers: grave license plates price tee traffic tree
Medicine cabinets
Memorials and tablets
Mesh bags
Metal lath
Metal letters and numbers
Mops
Mouldings and trim
Mud scrapers
Nursing bottles
Oil cloth, foil-covered
Ornaments, Christmas tree Packaging:
  Containers for:
    Bath salt
    Cosmetic, except collapsible tubes
    Gift Powder
    Tube, for cigar
  Jars, beauty cream
  Shakers, talcum powder
  Foil for:
    Capsules
    Cartons, liquor
    Florist
    Household
    Labels
    Over wraps (except food)
    Wraps: gift, cosmetic, liquor
    Wine bottle
Paper clips
Plates: name, scuff (except instruction plates on equipment)
Playground equipment
Pleasure boat fastenings, fittings and hardware
Portable bleachers
Push plates
Roofing, residential type (including shingles).
Rulers
Saddlery, and harness hardware
Screening (except insect wire screening)
Shoe heels
Shovels, scoops, scrapers and pushers, (except as required for handling chemical products and grain)
Siding, (except industrial)
Signs, including advertising
Smokers' accessories
Soap dishes
Souvenirs and novelties, advertising specialties
Spandrels
Spools: wire, adhesive tape
Sporting goods, all kinds (except commercial fishery goods)
Spray guns (except paint spraying equipment and agricultural sprays)
Spurs, climbing
Statuary (except religious and artists originals)
Stencils
Store fronts, (except glass holding members)
Stove pipe
Tent poles, frames and pegs
Thermostatic containers, (except shoulders and cups on vacuum bottles of one quart and under size)
Toilet seats and covers
Tokens (except where necessary for electrical operation)
Tombstones
Tooth brush and tumbler holders
Towel bars
Toys
Tricycles and other children's vehicles
Umbrellas and parasols
Venetian blinds, fittings and accessories
Vending machines (except functional parts)
Waste baskets
Wheel barrows (except as required for handling chemicals)
Whistles
Windows, storm (except sash slides)

LIST B

(See section 6)

The use of the forms and products of aluminum defined in section 3 in the items listed below (excluding repair parts) is subject to the prohibitions in this order, except as otherwise stated in this order:

Ducts
Windows, residential type
Windows, non-residential type

SEC. 21. Base period; applications for adjustment; December 1950 use. (a) Section 5 (a) of the regulation states, among other things, that no person shall use in manufacture (as defined) or construction "during December 1950 a quantity by weight of aluminum in excess of 100 percent of his average monthly use during the base period."

(b) "Base period" is defined by section 2 (b) as the 6 months' period ending June 30, 1950.

(c) Section 10 states, in part, that "any person affected by any provision of this order may file a request for adjustment or exception upon the ground that his business operation was commenced during or after the base period, or because any provision otherwise works an undue and exceptional hardship upon him not suffered generally by others in the same trade or industry * * *"

(d) A number of requests for adjustment have been filed with the National Production Authority upon the ground that the applicants' business operations were commenced during or after the base period, or that the application of the base period to the applicants' business operations otherwise caused undue hardship upon the applicants not suffered generally by others in the same trade or business. Since many of these applications present common problems, this direction will constitute a determination of adjustment with respect to the limitation stated in section 5 (a) to the classes of cases described below, whether or not applications for adjustment have been filed with the National Production Authority under section 10. This determination is subject, however, to the conditions stated in paragraph (e) of this section.

(e) (1) Cases in which it is claimed that the base period specified in sections 1 to 13, inclusive, is inapplicable because: (i) The applicants commenced new business operations during or after the base period; (ii) although the applicants' business operations were commenced prior to the base period, the applicants produced or manufactured a new product during or after the base period; or (iii) the applicants brought additional productive or manufacturing capacity into operation during or after the base period.

(i) Direction. In any such case the applicant may apply as a measure of his permitted use of aluminum during December 1950, his average monthly use during October and November 1950.

(ii) Illustration 1. The X Company, a newly organized company, commenced its operations on March 15, 1950. This company will be permitted to use in manufacture or construction during December 1950 a quantity by weight of aluminum not in excess of 100 percent of his average monthly use of aluminum during October and November 1950.

(iii) Illustration 2. The Y Company had been engaged in the manufacture of several products incorporating aluminum. Subsequent to June 30, 1950, this company manufactured and marketed an additional line of products, requiring aluminum, not previously manufactured by it. The rule stated in Illustration 1 above applies to the use of aluminum during December 1950 in the manufacture of the new line of products. However, the limitation stated in section 5 (a) applies to the use of aluminum in manufacturing the company's other products.

(iv) Illustration 3. During August 1950, the A Company commenced operations for the first time in a new, additional plant. The A Company may use the months of October and November 1950 as the base period for the new plant whereas the base period specified in sections 1 to 13, inclusive, will apply to the operation of its original manufacturing facilities.

(2) Cases in which it is claimed that the base period specified in the order is inapplicable because of changes made during or after the base period in the design, specifications or operating features of certain of its products, and where these changes required the use of substantially larger quantities of aluminum to maintain the same unit output than were required during the base period specified in sections 1 to 13, inclusive.

(i) Direction. In any such case, the applicant may apply as a measure of his permitted use of aluminum during December 1950, his average monthly use during October and November 1950.

(ii) Illustration 1. During June 1950 the B Company redesigned a machine, its sole product, which it had manufactured and marketed for a number of years and its plant was retooled for its production. In order to conserve weight, aluminum was substituted for steel in various elements resulting in a 30 percent increase in the quantity of aluminum required for the manufacture of the machine. The B Company will be permitted to use in manufacture during December 1950 a quantity by weight of aluminum not in excess of 100 percent of its average monthly use of aluminum during October and November 1950.

(3) Cases in which it is claimed that the applicants' operations were substantially interrupted during the base period.

(i) Direction. In any such case in which production or manufacturing operations were shut down or suspended for more than 15 consecutive calendar days, the applicant in determining his base period may exclude from the base period specified in sections 1 to 13, inclusive, the month or months in which shut down or suspension existed.

(ii) Illustration 1. The C Company was shut down from February 16 through March 5, 1950. Its base period will comprise the months of January, April, May and June 1950.

(4) Cases in which it is claimed that operations during December 1950 cannot be fairly measured by the base period specified in sections 1 to 13, inclusive, because of seasonal fluctuations which will result in a substantially higher level of operations during December than the average rate of operations during the first six months of 1950.

(i) Direction. In any such case, in order to allow for the seasonal factor, the following formula may be applied: The ratio between the total quantity of aluminum used during December of the years 1947, 1948 and 1949, and the total quantity of aluminum used during the first six months of said years. Such ratio may be applied to the total quantity of aluminum used in the first six months of 1950 to determine the quantity that may be used during December 1950.

(ii) Illustration 1. By reason of a seasonal demand for its products, the E Company normally schedules its manufacturing operations during December at a rate substantially higher than the average monthly rate that prevailed during the first six months of the year. The ratio between the total quantity of aluminum used in the products manufactured by the E Company during December 1947, 1948 and 1949 and the total quantity of aluminum used during the first six months of these years is 20 percent. Accordingly, the company may use during December 1950 20 percent of the total quantity of aluminum used by it during the first six months of 1950.

(f) The above determinations of adjustment with respect to the classes of cases described are subject to the following conditions: (1) That every person relying on any such determination will promptly after December 1, 1950 prepare a detailed written record of the facts relating to the application of the determination to his operations and preserve same; (2) that a copy of such record will be promptly transmitted to the National Production Authority upon its request; and (3) that such record and all other records relating to production or manufacture and the use of aluminum forms and products listed in section 3 during 1950, and 1947, 1948, and 1949 to the extent applicable, will be made available at his usual place of business for inspection and audit by duly authorized representatives of the National Production Authority. [Direction 1]

SEC. 22. Base period; applications for adjustment; use during first calendar quarter of 1951. (a) (1) Section 5 (b) states, among other things, that no person shall use in manufacture (as defined) or construction "during the following months a total quantity by weight of aluminum in excess of the percentages specified with respect to each month of his average monthly use of aluminum during the base period:

	Percent
January 1951	80
February 1951	75
March 1951	65"

(2) "Base period" is defined by section 2 (b) as the 6 months period ending June 30, 1950.

(3) Section 10 states, in part, that "any person affected by any provision of this order may file a request for adjustment or exception upon the ground that his business operation was commenced during or after the base period, or because any provision otherwise works an undue and exceptional hardship upon him not suffered generally by others in the same trade or industry."

(4) A number of requests for adjustment have been filed with the National Production Authority upon the ground that the applicants' business operations were commenced during or after the base period, or that the application of the base period to the applicants' business operations otherwise caused undue hardship upon the applicants not suffered generally by others in the same trade or business. Since many of these applications present common problems, this direction will constitute a determination of adjustment with respect to the limitation stated in section 5 (b) to the classes of cases described below, whether or not applications for adjustment have been filed with the National Production Authority under section 10. This determination is subject, however, to the conditions hereinafter stated.

(i) Cases in which it is claimed that the base period specified in the order is inapplicable because: (1) The applicants commenced new business operations during or after the base period; or (2) although the applicants' business operations were commenced prior to the base period, the applicants produced or manufactured a new product during or after the base period.

(a) Direction. In any such case the applicant may apply as a measure of his permitted use of aluminum during the first quarter of 1951 as specified in the percentage limitations stated in section 5 (b), his average monthly use during October and November 1950.

(b) Illustration 1. The X Company, a newly organized company, commenced its operations on March 15, 1950. This company will be permitted to use in manufacture or construction during the following months a total quantity by weight of aluminum not in excess of the percentages specified with respect to each month of his average monthly use of aluminum during October and November 1950:

	Percent
January 1951	80
February 1951	75
March 1951	65

(c) Illustration 2. The Y Company had been engaged in the manufacture of several products incorporating aluminum. Subsequent to June 30, 1950, this company manufactured and marketed an additional line of products, requiring aluminum, not previously manufactured by it. The rule stated in Illustration 1 above applies to the use of aluminum during the first quarter of 1951 in the manufacture of the new line of products. However, the limitation stated in section 5 (b) as amended, applies to the use of aluminum in manufacturing the company's other products.

(ii) Cases in which it is claimed that the base period specified in the order is inapplicable because of changes made during or after the base period in the design, specifications or operating features of certain of its products, and where these changes required the use of substantially larger quantities of aluminum to maintain the same unit output than were required during the base period specified in the order.

(a) Direction. In any such case, the applicant may apply as a measure of his permitted use of aluminum during the following months a quantity by weight of aluminum not in excess of the following percentages specified with respect to each month of the quantity of aluminum that he would have used on an average monthly basis during the base period if during said period his products had been manufactured in accordance with the changed design, specifications or operating features:

	Percent
January 1951	80
February 1951	75
March 1951	65

(b) Illustration 1. During July 1950 the A Company redesigned a machine, its sole product, which it had manufactured and marketed for a number of years and its plant was retooled for its production. In order to conserve weight, aluminum was substituted for steel in various elements of the machine. In manufacturing this machine during the base period and prior to its redesign, 2 lbs. of aluminum had been required for each machine whereas each machine as redesigned required 3 lbs. of aluminum. The average monthly use of aluminum by A Company for this purpose during the base period was 1,000 lbs. During January 1951, the A Company will be permitted to use in manufacture a quantity by weight of aluminum not in excess of 80 percent of 1,500 lbs. of aluminum.

(iii) Cases in which it is claimed that the applicants' operations were substantially interrupted during the base period.

(a) Direction. In any such case in which production or manufacturing operations were shut down or suspended for more than 15 consecutive calendar days, the applicant in determining his base period may exclude from the base period specified in the order the month or months in which the shutdown or suspension existed.

(b) Illustration 1. The B Company was shut down from February 16 through March 5, 1950. Its base period will comprise the months of January, April, May, and June 1950.

(b) (1) The above determinations of adjustment with respect to the classes of cases described are subject to the following conditions: (i) That every person relying on any such determination will promptly after January 1, 1951, prepare a detailed written record of the facts relating to the application of the determination to his operations which will be signed by such person or by an authorized officer or representative, and preserve same, such record to include (a) use permitted under the order as amended, of the aluminum forms and products listed in section 3 during the first quarter of 1951, (b) permitted use of such forms and products during said quarter under this section and (c) basis of computation; and (ii) that such record shall be retained for at least two years and will be made available at his usual place of business for inspection and audit by duly authorized representatives of the National Production Authority.

(2) The National Production Authority reserves the right to modify or revoke adjustments made pursuant to this section. Any person affected by such a modification or revocation will be notified in writing of the nature of the action taken and the reasons therefor. Such actions will be effective upon such date or dates subsequent to the date of the notification as are specified therein. [Direction 2]

SEC. 23. Application for adjustment—component parts. (a) (1) Section 5 (b) states, among other things, that no person shall use in manufacture (as defined) or construction during March 1951 a total quantity by weight of aluminum in excess of 65 percent of his average monthly use of aluminum during the base period. The base period is defined by section 2 (b) as the six months period ending on June 30, 1950.

(2) Section 10 states, in part, that "any person affected by any provision of this order may file a request for adjustment or exception upon the ground that his business operation was commenced during or after the base period, or because any provision otherwise works an undue and exceptional hardship upon him not suffered generally by others in the same trade or industry."

(3) A number of requests for adjustment have been filed with the National Production Authority on the ground that the permitted use of aluminum in March 1951 for the manufacture of certain component parts requiring relatively small amounts of aluminum will unduly curtail the production of the end products for which these components are designed and would not be in the public interest. The following direction will constitute a determination of adjustment with respect to the limitation stated in section 5 (b) to the manufacture of component parts hereinafter described whether or not applications for adjustment have been filed with the National Production Authority.

(b) Direction: Any person who manufactures any component parts made wholly or partly of aluminum may use a total quantity by weight of aluminum in the manufacture of such component parts during March 1951 not in excess of 75 percent of his average monthly use of aluminum for this purpose during the base period: Provided, That (1) such component parts serve a functional purpose in the end product; (2) it is not practicable to substitute another material for aluminum before or during March 1951; (3) the total weight of the aluminum in such component parts in the end product is less than 1 percent of the total weight of the end product; and (4) the manufacturer of such component parts obtains a signed certification from the manufacturer or assembler of the end product evidencing the facts set forth in subparagraphs (1), (2) and (3) of this paragraph.

(c) (1) The above determination of adjustment is subject to the following conditions: (i) That every person relying on such determination shall on or before April 1, 1951, prepare a detailed written record of the facts relating to the application of the determination to his operations which will be signed by such person or by an authorized officer or representative; and (ii) that such record will be retained for at least two years and will be made available at his usual place of business for inspection and audit by duly authorized representatives of the National Production Authority.

(2) The National Production Authority reserves the right to modify or revoke adjustments made pursuant to this section. Any person affected by such a modification or revocation will be notified in writing of the nature of the action taken and the reasons therefor. Such action will be effective upon such date or dates subsequent to the date of notification as are specified therein. [Direction 3]

[NPA Order M-12 as Amended Mar. 9, 1951]

M-12—USE OF COPPER AND COPPER-BASE ALLOYS

This amendment to NPA Order M-12 is found necessary and appropriate to promote the national defense and is issued pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950. In the formulation of this order, there has been consultation with industry representatives, including trade association representatives, and consideration has been given to their recommendations. However, consultation with representatives of all trades and industries affected in advance of the issuance of this order has been rendered impracticable due to the necessity for immediate action and because the order affects a large number of different trades and industries.

This amendment affects NPA Order M-12, as previously amended, as follows: It amends paragraphs (a) and (b) of section 5, paragraphs (c) and (d) of section 6, revises section 9, adds paragraph (c) to section 11, and amends Lists A and B. As so amended, NPA Order M-12 reads as follows:

Sec.

1. What this order does.
2. Definitions.
3. Copper forms and products to which this order applies.
4. Application of order.
5. Production of brass mill products, copper wire mill products and foundry products.
6. Use of copper forms and products.
7. Prohibited uses of copper.
8. Maintenance, repair and operating supplies.
9. Exemptions.
10. Inventories.
11. Restrictions on delivery.
12. Applications for adjustment.
13. Records and reports.
14. Communications.
15. Violations.

AUTHORITY: Sections 1 to 15 issued under sec. 704, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong. Interpret or apply sec. 101, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.; sec. 101, E. O. 10161, Sept. 9, 1950, F. R. 6105 3 CFR, 1950 Supp., sec. 2, E. O. 10200, Jan. 3, 1951, 16 F. R. 61.

SECTION 1. What this order does. The purpose of this order is to describe how the copper remaining after allowing for the requirements of national defense may be distributed and used in the civilian economy. It is the policy of the National Production Authority that copper and articles made of copper, not required to fill rated orders, shall be distributed equitably through normal channels of distribution, and that due regard shall be given by suppliers to the needs of new and small business. It is the intent of this order that other materials which are not in short supply shall be substituted for copper and copper-base alloy wherever possible.

SEC. 2. Definitions. As used in this order:

(a) "Person" means any individual, corporation, partnership, association or any other organized group of persons and includes any agency of the United States or any other government.

(b) "Base period" means the six-months period ending June 30, 1950.

(c) "Manufacture" means to put into process, machine, incorporate into products, fabricate or otherwise alter the forms and products of copper defined in section 3 by physical or chemical means, and includes the use of copper in plating.

(d) "Maintenance" means the minimum upkeep necessary to continue a building, machine, piece of equipment or facility in sound working condition, and "repair" means the restoration of a building, machine, piece of equipment or facility to sound working condition when the same has been rendered unsafe or unfit for service by wear and tear, damage, failure of parts or the like: Provided, however, Neither maintenance nor repair includes the improvement of any such item with materials of a better kind, quality or design.

(e) "Operating supplies" means any copper or copper-base alloy forms or products listed in section 3 which are normally carried by a person as operating supplies according to established accounting practice and are not included in his finished product, except that materials included in such product which are normally chargeable to operating expense may be treated as operating supplies.

SEC. 3. Copper forms and products to which this order applies. This order applies to the following forms and products of copper: Copper, copper-base alloy, brass mill products, copper wire mill products, and foundry copper products and copper-base alloy products. For the purpose of this order, these items are defined as follows:

(a) "Copper" means unalloyed copper. (It includes electrolytic copper, fire refined copper and all unalloyed copper in any form including scrap.)

(b) "Copper-base alloy" means any alloy in the composition of which the percentage of copper metal by weight equals or exceeds 40 percent of the total weight of the alloy. (It shall include fired and demilitarized cartridge and artillery cases, and all copper-base alloy, as specified above, in any form including scrap.) It does not include alloyed gold produced in accordance with U. S. Commercial standard CS67-38.

(c) "Brass mill product" means sheet, including strip and plate; rod, including bars, forgings (rough as forged), and extruded shapes; wire; or tube, including pipe; made from copper or copper-base alloy. This does not include copper wire mill products.

(d) "Copper wire mill product" means bare wire, insulated wire and cable whatever the outer protective coverings may be, and uninsulated wire and cables, where the conductors are made from copper, copper-base alloy, or copper clad steel containing over 20 percent copper by weight. All copper wire mill products should be measured in terms of pounds of copper content.

(e) "Foundry products" means cast copper and copper-base alloy shapes or forms suitable for ultimate use without remelting, rolling, drawing, extruding or forging. (Includes the removal of gates, risers and sprues, and sandblasting, tumbling, or dipping, but excludes any further machining or processing.)

SEC. 4. Application of order. Subject to the exemptions stated in section 9, this order applies to all persons who produce brass mill products, copper wire mill products or foundry products as listed in section 3, or who use any of the forms and products of copper defined in paragraphs (a), (b), (c), (d) and (e) of section 3 for the purpose of manufacture, use in installation or construction, or for maintenance, repair or operating supplies. This order also contains limitations on the use of such copper forms and products in the manufacture or assembly of certain items. This order does not apply to persons who use copper or copper-base alloy in the production of other metals or metal alloys.

SEC. 5. Production of brass mill products, copper wire mill products and foundry products. Subject to the exemptions stated in section 9 or unless specifically directed by the National Production Authority:

(a) No person shall produce during the following months a total quantity by weight of brass mill products and copper wire mill products in excess of the percentages specified with respect to each month of his average monthly production of such products during the base period:

	Percent
January, 1951	85
February, 1951	85
March, 1951	80

During the calendar quarter commencing on April 1, 1951, no person shall produce a total quantity by weight of brass mill products and copper wire mill products in excess of 80 percent of his average quarterly production of such products during the base period: Provided, however, That such production in any one month shall not exceed 40 percent of the permitted quarterly production. The production of brass mill products and copper wire mill products, pursuant to a valid toll or conversion agreement or other arrangement whereby title to the material to be processed remains vested in the person who delivers it, is permitted in addition to the production permitted by this paragraph. In determining average monthly production during the base period, the brass mill products and copper wire mill products so produced shall not be included in the base period production of the brass mill or wire mill. Nothing contained in this paragraph shall affect the restrictions on toll and other similar agreements contained in NPA Order M-16.

(b) During each of the calendar quarters commencing on January 1, 1951, and April 1, 1951, no person shall produce a total quantity by weight of foundry products in excess of 100 percent of his average quarterly production of foundry products during the base period.

SEC. 6. Use of copper forms and products. Subject to the exemptions stated in section 9, or unless specifically directed by the National Production Authority, no person shall use in manufacture, installation or construction:

(a) During December 1950, a total quantity by weight of the forms and products of copper defined in paragraphs (a), (b), (c), (d) and (e) of section 3 in excess of 100 percent of his average monthly use of such material in October and November 1950.

(b) During the following months a total quantity by weight of the forms and products of copper defined in paragraphs (a), (b), (c), and (d) of section 3 (including copper forms and products produced under toll and conversion agreements or other similar arrangements) in excess of the percentages specified with respect to each month of his average monthly use of such material during the base period:

	Percent
January, 1951	85
February, 1951	85
March, 1951	80

(c) During the calendar quarter commencing on April 1, 1951, a total quantity by weight of the forms and products of copper defined in paragraphs (a), (b), (c), and (d) of section 3 (including copper forms and products produced under toll and conversion agreements or other similar arrangements) in excess of 75 percent of his average quarterly use of such copper during the base period: Provided, however, That such use in any one month shall not exceed 40 percent of the permitted use.

(d) During each of the calendar quarters commencing on January 1, 1951, and April 1, 1951, a total quantity by weight of foundry products in excess of 100 percent of his average quarterly use of such products during the base period: Provided, however, That in cases where a foundry product in the form of a casting is owned by one person and machined pursuant to a contractual agreement by another person, it shall be considered that the owner used the casting in manufacture.

SEC. 7. Prohibited uses of copper. (a) Commencing on March 1, 1951, no person shall use copper in the forms and products defined in section 3, or any component part made therefrom, in the manufacture or assembly of any item included in attached List A, except as permitted therein; and no person shall use in the manufacture or assembly of any item, whether or not included in List A, a greater quantity or better grade of such materials than is necessary for functional or operational purposes, or use such materials solely for decorative or ornamental purposes. However, these prohibitions shall not apply to such use of: (1) Any such copper forms and products, or component parts made therefrom, on or after March 1, 1951, if such materials were contained in such person's inventory on said date and are wholly unsuitable for use in the manufacture or assembly by such person of any item not included in List A; or (2) any such materials covered by an order placed with a producer and included in the producer's schedule for February 1951, which are delivered to such person at his plant prior to April 1, 1951, to the extent that such materials are wholly unsuitable for use in manufacture or assembly by such person of any item not included in List A. Every person who relies on the provisions of the next preceding sentence shall prepare a detailed record showing: (A) The quantities of such copper forms and products, and component parts made therefrom, which were contained in his inventory on the first days of December 1950, and of January, February and March 1951, and which were wholly unsuitable for use in his manufacture or assembly of any item not included in List A; and (B) the quantities of such materials wholly unsuitable for such use which were delivered to him on or after March 1, 1951, the names and addresses of the suppliers thereof, and the dates of the orders and acceptances covering such materials together with the applicable mill schedule. Such record shall be retained for at least two years and shall be made available at the usual place of business where maintained for inspection and audit by duly authorized representatives of the National Production Authority.

(b) Commencing on April 1, 1951, no person shall use copper in the forms and products defined in section 3, or any component part made therefrom, in the manufacture or assembly of any item included in attached List B, except as permitted therein. However, this prohibition shall not apply to such use of: (1) Any such copper forms and products, or component parts made therefrom, on or after April 1, 1951, if such materials were contained in such person's inventory on said date and are wholly unsuitable for use in the manufacture or assembly by such person of any item not included in List A or List B; or (2) any such materials that have been covered by any order placed with a producer which were included in the producer's schedule for March 1951, and are delivered to such person at his plant prior to May 1, 1951, to the extent that such materials are wholly unsuitable for use in manufacture or assembly by such person of any item not included in List A or List B. Every person who relies on the provisions of the next preceding sentence shall prepare a detailed record showing: (A) The quantities of such copper forms and products, and component parts made therefrom, which were contained in his inventory on the first days of January, February, March and April 1951, and which were wholly unsuitable for use in his manufacture or assembly of any item not included in List B; and (B) the quantities of such materials wholly unsuitable for such use which were delivered to him on or after April 1, 1951, the names and addresses of the suppliers thereof, and the dates of the orders and acceptances covering such materials, together with the applicable mill schedule. Such record shall be retained for at least two years and shall be made available at the usual place of business where maintained for inspection and audit by duly authorized representatives of the National Production Authority.

(c) Notwithstanding the provisions of paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section, copper or copper-base alloy may be used: (1) For plating any item included in List A or List B, or any component part thereof, where such plating is an undercoat for chromium, nickel, gold or silver; or (2) for brazing any item, or component part thereof, included in List A or List B.

(d) During February 1951, no person shall use in the manufacture or assembly of the items included in attached List A a total quantity by weight of the copper forms or products defined in paragraphs (a), (b), (c) and (d) of section 3, or any component part made therefrom, in excess of 85 percent, or of the foundry products defined in paragraph (e) of said section, or any component part made therefrom, in excess of 100 percent, of his average monthly use of such materials for such purposes during the base period. During March 1951, the same limitations shall apply to the manufacture or assembly of the items included in attached List B, except that the percentage limitation as to the copper forms and products defined in paragraphs (a), (b), (c) and (d) of section 3 shall be 80 percent instead of 85 percent. To the extent that manufacture or assembly of the items on attached List A or List B is permitted under paragraphs (a) or (b) of this section, the limitations of section 6 shall also apply during March 1951 and each succeeding month.

(e) Commencing on April 1, 1951, no person shall use in construction any brass mill product as such for any item included in List A or List B except as permitted therein.

(f) The following items included in List A or List B shall be exempt from the application of this section if they are used on vessels other than pleasure craft: (1) Furnishings, fittings, and fixtures when located within the sphere of the magnetic compasses; and (2) builders' hardware, building materials and snap hooks where the properties supplied by copper are essential and satisfactory substitutes not available.

(g) The prohibitions of this section apply notwithstanding the provisions of NPA Reg. 2 with respect to the filling of rated orders and are not affected by any of the exemptions stated in section 9: Provided, however, That such provisions of NPA Reg. 2 and paragraphs (a) and (b) of section 9 apply to such items included in attached List A or List B as are specifically designated as being permitted for the use of the Armed Forces of the United States, including the United States Coast Guard.

SEC. 8. Maintenance, repair and operating supplies. Unless specifically directed by the National Production Authority, during the calendar quarter commencing on January 1, 1951, and each calendar quarter thereafter, no person shall use for maintenance, repair and operating supplies a quantity by weight of the forms and products of copper defined in paragraphs (a), (b), (c), (d) and (e) of section 3 in excess of 100 percent of his average quarterly use for such purposes during the base period.

SEC. 9. Exemptions. (a) The production of brass mill, copper wire mill and foundry products and the use of such products is permitted to fill rated orders, or to meet any mandatory order of the National Production Authority, in addition to the production and use permitted by the provisions of sections 5, 6 and 8.

(b) Copper forms and products defined in section 3 acquired with ratings, or to meet a National Production Authority scheduled program may be used in addition to the quantities permitted by the provisions of sections 6 and 8.

(c) The provisions of sections 6 and 8 do not apply to persons who use less than 1,000 lbs. of the copper forms and products defined in section 3 during any calendar quarter; Provided, however, That persons who by reason of the provisions of sections 6 and 8 would be permitted to use less than 1,000 lbs. during any calendar quarter, may use during such period a quantity up to 1,000 lbs.

SEC. 10. Inventories. In addition to the provisions of NPA Reg. 1 relating to Inventory Controls, it is considered that a more exact requirement applying to producers of brass mill products, copper wire mill products and foundry products, and to users of the copper forms and products defined in section 3 is necessary.

(a) No person producing brass mill products, copper wire mill products or foundry products may receive or accept delivery of copper or copper-base alloy if his inventory is, or by such receipt would become, in excess of that necessary to meet his deliveries or supply his services on the basis of his scheduled method and rate of operation pursuant to this order during the succeeding 45-day period, or in excess of a "practicable minimum working inventory" (as defined in NPA Reg 1, whichever is less.

(b) No person obtaining copper forms or products defined in section 3 for use in manufacture, installation or construction, or for maintenance, repair or operating supplies, may receive or accept delivery of a quantity of such forms and products if his inventory is, or by such receipt would become, in excess of that necessary to meet his deliveries or supply his services on the basis of his scheduled method and rate of operation pursuant to this order during the succeeding 60-day period, or in excess of a "practicable minimum working inventory" (as defined in NPA Reg. 1), whichever is less.

(c) For the purpose of this section, any copper forms and products defined in section 3, in which minor changes or alterations have been effected, shall be included in inventory. NPA Reg. 1 will apply to all such forms and products except as modified by this section.

SEC. 11. Restrictions on delivery. (a) No person shall deliver any of the forms and products of copper defined in section 3 if he knows or has reason to believe that his customer may not accept delivery of such materials under this order or will use such materials in violation of this order.

(b) No person shall deliver any copper forms or products defined in section 3 unless the purchaser shall have furnished to the seller a signed certification as follows:

> The undersigned, subject to statutory penalties, certifies that acceptance of delivery and use by the undersigned of the copper forms or products herein ordered will not be in violation of NPA Order M-12.

This certification constitutes a representation by the purchaser to the seller and to the National Production Authority that delivery of such copper forms or products may be accepted by the purchaser under this order, and that such materials will not be used by the purchaser in violation of this order.

(c) The certification required by paragraph (b) of this section shall not be required in connection with the delivery of copper forms and products (1) to the General Services Administration for the stockpile of strategic materials, (2) to purchasers where delivery is made prior to April 1, 1951, pursuant to an order received prior to February 19, 1951, (3) to purchasers of quantities weighing 25 pounds or less, or (4) to purchasers in foreign countries.

SEC. 12. Applications for adjustment. Any person affected by any provision of this order may file a request for adjustment or exception upon the ground that his business operation was commenced during or after the base period, or because any provision otherwise works an undue or exceptional hardship upon him not suffered generally by others in the same trade or industry, or its enforcement against him would not be in the interest of the national defense or in the public interest. In considering requests for adjustment claiming that the public interest is prejudiced by the application of any provision of this order, consideration will be given to the requirements of the public health and safety, civilian defense, and dislocation of labor and resulting unemployment that would impair the defense program. Producers shall make such application on Form NPAF-11, "Copper and Copper-Base Alloys: Producer's application for Adjustment or Exception." Users shall make application on Form NPAF-12, "Copper Forms and Products: User's Application for Adjustment or Exception." Copies of these forms may be obtained from the nearest Department of Commerce Field Office.

SEC. 13. Records and reports. (a) Persons subject to this order shall preserve the records which they have maintained of production, inventories, receipts, deliveries and uses of copper forms and products defined in section 3 commencing with January 1, 1950.

(b) Persons subject to this order shall make records and submit such reports to the National Production Authority as it shall require subject to the terms of the Federal Reports Act (Pub. Law 831, 77th Cong., 5 U. S. C. 139-139F).

SEC. 14. Communications. All communications concerning this order shall be addressed to the National Production Authority, Washington 25, D. C. Ref: M-12.

SEC. 15. Violations. Any person who wilfully violates any provisions of this order or any other order or regulation of the National Production Authority or wilfully conceals a material fact or furnishes false information in the course of operation under this order is guilty of a crime and upon conviction may be punished by fine or imprisonment or both. In addition, administrative action may be taken against any such person to suspend his privilege of making or receiving further deliveries of materials or using facilities under priority or allocation control and to deprive him of further priorities assistance.

This order, as amended, (includes Lists A and B hereto attached. The order as amended including Lists A and B shall take effect, except as otherwise specifically stated, on March 9, 1951.

NATIONAL PRODUCTION AUTHORITY,
[SEAL] MANLY FLEISCHMANN,
Administrator.

LIST A

(See section 7)

The use of the forms and products of copper defined in section 3 and of any component parts made therefrom in the items listed below (excluding repair parts) is prohibited except to the extent permitted in the order or the list: Provided, however, That such material may be used in such items included in the list as are marked with an asterisk in cases where such items are to be used by the Armed Forces of the United States, including the United States Coast Guard.

BUILDERS' HARDWARE

Protective brass plating of all listed items of builders' hardware is permitted where other types of finishes are not practicable.
Butts, hinges and related items.
Checking floor closers, overhead concealed, semi-concealed and surface door closers (except gland nuts, regulating screw assemblies, and fusible links).
Closers, hanging brackets for.
Closers, screen door.
Cabinet hardware, including cabinet hinges.
Hangers, track and related items including:
- Sliding door hardware.
- Folding door hardware.
- Sliding-folding door hardware.
- Folding partition hardware.
- Upward acting door hardware.
- Fire door hardware (except bearings and fusible links).

Hardware for sash, screen, transom and casement and other shelf hardware items.
Locks, lock trim (except for cylinder assemblies and keys, for essential working parts of locks and latches, for faces of locks and latches and for trim of cylinder lock sets).
Spring hinges.
Sash balances.
Door holding devices.
Kick plates.
Push plates.
Door pulls.
Push bars.
House numbers.
Door knockers.
Letter boxes.
Nameplates.

BUILDING MATERIALS

Anchors and dowels (except window cleaner's safety anchors).
Bands on pipe insulation.

Bathtub enclosures and shower enclosures.
Blinds, including fixtures and fittings (except where essential for operating parts).
Caulking anchors.
Cement flooring and composition flooring (except that crude arsenical copper precipitate may be used for flooring in hospital operating and anesthesia rooms, for places where explosives are handled or stored and for places where explosive vapors may be present).
Chimneys and flues.
Conduits (except instrument assemblies).
Cornices.
Door sills.
Door frames.
Doors.
Downspouts and accessories thereto.
Drains (except strainer grids for showers and urinals).
Drip pans.
Elevators and escalators (except for worm gears and parts for conducting electricity).
Escutcheons and plates for floor, ceiling and wall use.
Fences and gates.
Food waste disposal units (except current-carrying parts, bearings, controls, impellers and sink strainers).
Gratings.
Grids (except for flooring in hospital operating rooms and anesthesia rooms, and for places where explosives are handled or stored and for places where explosive vapors may be present).
Grilles and shields, including fresh air inlet boxes and radiator and convector enclosures.
Gutters and accessories thereto.
Holdback hooks for curtains.
I. P. S. waste nipples.
Lavatory legs (except for hospital use).
Leaders and accessories thereto.
Linoleum stripping.
Louvres.
Marquees.
Metal siding.
Mouldings for joining cabinet sinks.
Ornamental metal work; including grille work, railings, and fittings.
Pipe, iron pipe sizes and fittings (except for industrial process piping and chemical and gas equipment and except for solder nipples, solder bushing and ferrules).
Radiator covers and shields.
Railings and fittings.
Reglets, moulding and trim.
Rim protectors for fixtures.
Robe hooks.
Roofing.
Roofing nails (except staples, clips and similar devices designed for the purpose of protecting shingles, flashings and siding against wind damage).
Shower curtain rods and bars (except for hospitals).
Shower door frames.
Shower goosenecks.
Skylights.
Stair and threshold treads, nosing and edgings.
Store fronts.
Straps and hangers for pipe supports.
Supply pipes, iron pipe sizes.
Switch plates.
Tanks for automatic storage water heaters.
Traps (except tube traps in 20 gauge without cleanouts and except traps cast from secondary metal).
Thresholds and saddles.
Towel bars and brackets.
Tube, tubing and fittings for piping systems in construction (except for Type K for underground water service connections; Types B, L, and M for domestic hot and cold water supply pipes, tank to oil burner hook-ups, and oxygen lines; Types B, K, L, and M for industrial process, food, chemical and gas equipment piping; and seamless tube for air temperature control apparatus).
Unit heaters, unit ventilators, unit ventilator inlet wall boxes and convectors, and blast heating coils, or any apparatus using such coils as part of its construction (except for valves, controls, fins, bearings or parts necessary for conducting electricity, and for water or steam courses and headers).
Ventilators.
Vents.
Weatherstripping.
Window frames.
Window sills.
Windows.

BURIAL EQUIPMENT

Burial urns.
Burial vaults.
Caskets and casket hardware (except copper or brass flash plate treatment necessary to prevent corrosion during period of manufacture and warehousing).
Memorial tablets.

CLOTHING AND DRESS ACCESSORIES, NOT INCLUDING SAFETY EQUIPMENT

Artificial flowers.
*Buckles and shoe buckles (except for foundation garments where strength, launderability and non-corrosiveness are essential).
*Buttons (except front shells of uniform buttons for police, firemen, guards, railroad and other transportation employees and similar uniforms, the backs to be made of steel with rust resistant plating; and work clothing and other utility (closure) purposes where launderability and non-corrosiveness are essential, provided that all strictly decorative and out-size buttons are eliminated).
Dress ornaments and trimmings.
*Pittings: belt, corset, garter, glove, hand bag, purse, suspender, luggage and supporter (except for foundation garments and sanitary belts where launderability and non-corrosiveness are essential).
*Insignia and decorations (awards).
*Metal clothes, laces, tassels, braids, embroidery, ribbons.
Millinery accessories and frames.
*Snaps, snap buttons, and hooks and eyes (except (1) irrespective of weight, in industrial safety clothing, work clothing and foundation garments; (2) for complete fasteners weighing 5 pounds or less per thousand units, on other wearing apparel exclusive of belts, suspenders, gloves, footwear, and other dress accessories, and billfolds, luggage, wallets and key cases; and (3) except for wire springs contained in snaps and snap buttons weighing in excess of 5 pounds per thousand complete units).

FURNISHINGS AND EQUIPMENT

Andirons, fireplace screens and fittings.
Candlesticks.
Curtain fasteners, rods and rings.
Cuspidors.
Gas heater and stove installation connections (except for high pressure LPG connections from tank to fixture).
Lamp shades.
Mops.
Mud scrapers.
Scrubbing boards.
Space heaters, flue connected and non-flue connected (except valves, controls and parts necessary for proper operation or for conducting electricity).
Stoves and ranges of all fuels for household cooking use (except valves, compression fittings, controls including timers, thermostats and parts for conducting electricity or necessary for safe operation).
Trays.
Upholsterers' supplies, including nails and tacks.
Vases, pitchers, bowls, and artcraft (except scientific laboratory).
Washing tubs and washing boilers.
Waste baskets, humidors and similar items.

FURNITURE AND FIXTURES

Barber shop and beauty parlor furniture.
Household furniture.
Mattresses and bedsprings (except hospital).
Partitions and shelving (except hospital and laboratory).
Public building and office furniture.
Reed and rattan furniture.
Restaurant furniture.
Venetian blinds (except where essential for operating parts).

HARDWARE, MISCELLANEOUS

Collars and other harness for pets.
Cutlery, table, kitchen, butcher and meat packing (except rivets and knife assemblies in matching silver-plated flatwear sets).
Fireplace fixtures and equipment.
Furniture (except in cylinder assemblies and keys and for essential working parts of locks).
Hand saw screws, nuts and washers for attaching saw blades to the handles.
Hand service tools, including hammers, pliers, wrenches, screw drivers, etc. (except essential parts of spiral ratchet and ratchet screw drivers and drills; hand and breast drills and bit braces; soldering irons; and blow-torches; except nonsparking tools necessary to prevent explosion hazards; and except portable spot welders).
Passenger transportation equipment, decorative hardware and ornamental metal work and trim and general hardware (except for locks).
Pleasure boat decorative hardware.
Pocket knives (except rivets and lining assemblies).
Puttying and scraping knives (except rivets).
*Saddlery and harness hardware (except for brass protective plating).
Scissors, shears, hedge and other trimmers, tinners and other snips.
Stairs and threshold treads and edgings.
Trunk and luggage hardware (except for brass protective plating and except in cylinder assemblies and keys and for essential working parts of locks).

HOUSEHOLD ELECTRICAL APPLIANCES

(Except for operational parts where the properties supplied by the copper are essential or where necessary for electrical conductivity)

Household electrical appliances including but not limited to:

Laundry equipment.
Vacuum cleaners.
Refrigerators.
Floor and furniture polishers.
Food mixers.
Electric irons.
Hair driers.
Toasters.

JEWELRY, GIFTS, AND NOVELTIES

All jewelry (except operational attachments such as screw and snap posts; cam assemblies; wire pegs; screws and or rivets; spring pins for wrist watches; catches and pin stems; and copper seal interlinings to prevent "bleeding" of silver through gold); gifts and novelties, including but not limited to:

Book ends.
Jewelry and instrument cases, including cosmetic.
Lighters (except necessary operational parts).
*Medals and emblems, including decorations (except religious goods).
Mirror and picture frames.
Napkin rings.
Smokers' accessories, including ash trays and humidors.
Souvenirs.

CIVILIAN TYPE MOTOR VEHICLE: PASSENGER AUTOMOBILES INCLUDING TAXICABS, STATION WAGONS, AMBULANCES, HEARSES, TRUCKS, TRUCK TRACTORS, TRUCK TRAILERS, MOTORCYCLES AND BUSSES

Decorative mouldings, both internal and external (except for glass run channels, window-glass frames, external windshield and rear window external mouldings where such mouldings are produced from strip 6 inches or narrower).
Defrosters and heaters (except (1) for conducting electricity and (2) radiators (heat exchangers) and supply and return hot water lines and (3) parts used in the operating controls of the heating and defrosting systems).
Gas tank caps (except valves and springs).
Horns (except parts for diaphragms, vibrators and conducting electricity).
Lighters (except parts for conducting electricity).
Lights, lamps, headlamps, and lighting accessories (except for doors, bezels, adjusting and attaching screws, retaining rings, copper flash plating on reflectors and parts for conducting electricity including light bulbs).
Motor vehicle hardware (except door handles, ventilator and regulator handles for windows and doors, working parts for locks, ventilator window latches, external lock cylinder caps and covers, external windshield wiper arm and blade assemblies and screw).
Rear-view mirrors and brackets (except copper flash plating on mirrors).
Smokers' accessories, including ash trays.
Wheel discs and wheel trim rings.

PASSENGER TRANSPORTATION EQUIPMENT

(Including railroad cars, street and interurban cars, busses, and trailers, but excluding locomotives)

All items under the heading "Furnishings and Equipment".
Bands on pipe coverings.
Door knockers, checks, pulls and stops.
Doors and windows, door and window frames and window sills.
Drinking water reservoirs.
Shower rods and pans.
Sinks and drainboards.
Towel and luggage racks.
Water containers for humidification.
Weatherstripping and insulation.

MISCELLANEOUS

Alarm and protective systems (except parts for conducting electricity or where essential to the proper service or functioning of the parts).
Antique reproductions.
Arch supports.
Atomizers (except for medicinal purposes and for use in the preparation of dried milk and dried eggs).
Barrels, boxes, cans, jars, and other containers.
*Badges (except for use by personnel where badges are required for protection and security by Government agencies or by industrial plants).
Bar and counter equipment and fittings.
Barber shop equipment and supplies (except for current-carrying parts).
Barrel hooks.
Bathroom accessories (including grab bars, tumbler holders, tooth brush holders, paper holders, and shelf brackets).
Beauty parlor equipment and supplies (except for replacement parts of commercial permanent wave equipment and commercial hair driers and for current-carrying parts).
Bicycles, and similar vehicles and equipment therefor (except valves for bicycle tires and tubes and except plating of operational parts).
Binoculars (except precision types) and opera glasses.
Bird and pet cages and stands.
Branding, marking, and labeling devices and stock for same (except engraved burning branding dies, and except where the devices and the stock are for affixing governmental, notarial and corporate seals).
Bronze ink (except use in the graphic arts industry where bronze ink and powder are an integral part of product identification and whose normal replating is less frequent than one year).
Brushes (except for the types used in electric motors and generators; and except for industrial brushes and tooth brushes).
Carpet rods.
Chimes and bells (except parts for conducting electricity or where non-magnetic gong material is required for electrically operated signaling devices used as adjuncts to communication systems and except bells for use on board ship where essential to the proper functioning of the parts).
Clips, paper.
Cleaning and polishing accessories, such as brooms, carpet sweepers, crumbing sets, dust pans, mops, pot scourers, whisk brooms and floor and furniture polishers.
Clock cases (except for marine use).
Clothes line pulleys and reels.
Cocktail shakers.
Coin-operated game and gambling machines (except tumblers for locks and current-carrying parts).
Coin-operated vending machines (except necessary operational parts and current-carrying parts).
Cooking utensils (except gauges and protective devices and plating of bottoms).
Daubers for shoe polish.
Dispensers, hand, for hand lotions, paper products, soap and straws (except for hospitals).
Flower pots, boxes and holders for same.
Fountain pens (except necessary operational parts).
Furniture grommets.
Garden tools and equipment (except for functional parts).
Hair curlers, hair brushes and combs (except for heat-carrying parts and for electrical conductivity).
Ice cream freezers for use in the home (except electric).
Juke boxes (except for current-carrying parts).
Kitchen utensils, devices and machines (except electrical appliances).
Lace tips.
Lamps, portable electric (except for current-carrying parts).
Lamps and lanterns, other than electric (except for generators, valves, controls, burners, wicks and founts).
Letter boxes and mail chutes.
Lighting fixtures (except (1) current-carrying parts, plating, rivets, eyelets, screws, small fasteners; (2) the threaded parts, clamping, sealing or attachment devices of exterior, explosion-proof, dust-tight and vapor-tight fixtures; (3) Marine and airport).
Loose-leaf binders.
Manicure implements.
Match and pattern plates, matrices, and flasks.
Mattress buttons and furniture glides.
Name plates (except instruction and data plates and identification plates for use on machinery or equipment without display or ornamentation).
Nonoperating or decorative uses of copper or copper-base alloy, or the use of the same in such parts of installations and equipment (mechanical or otherwise) as bases, frames, guards, standards and supports.
Package handles and holders.
Pari-mutuel gambling and gaming machines, devices and accessories.
Pencils, mechanical (except functional parts and plating).
Pins (except safety pins, common pins, laundry net and laundry identification pins, or safety catches on products otherwise permitted under this order).
Pleasure boat fastenings and fittings.
Razors operated by electricity (except functional parts and parts for conducting electricity).
Razors not operated by electricity (except (1) in making safety razors: heads, functional parts for heads, and plating; and (2) in making straight razors: rivets, pins and washers).
Razor blade magazines.
Reflectors (except photographic and except as an undercoating or an overcoating in electroplating with silver or chromium).
Signs and advertising displays (except current-carrying parts).
Sporting goods and equipment (except fishing equipment and supplies for commercial fishing use, firearms, ammunition, and except reel gears, bearings and spools, swivels and snaps, rod mountings and copper for plating of baits and lures for sport fishing use).
Staplers and stapler machines (not including foot-operated or power-driven stitching machines).
Stationery supplies including but not limited to:
Desk accessories.
Office supplies.
Pencils (except for ferrules).
Pens and penholders.
Statues and statuettes (except religious and artists' originals).
Sundials.
*Tent poles and parts.
Tobacco pipes.
Toys (except in motors and essential operating parts).
Unions and union fittings (except seats, and except for other parts of unions and union fittings (1) where and to the extent that the physical and chemical properties of the liquid or gas passing through the union or union fittings make the use of any other material dangerous or impractical, or (2) where the valve is of a type designed for use in an air conditioning or refrigeration "system", or (3) where use of copper and tubing and/or brass pipe is permitted).
Umbrellas and parasols.
Vacuum bottles and jugs.
Valve handles (except plumbing fixture trim).
Walking sticks and canes.
Weather vanes.
Weight reducing and exercising machines (except for current-carrying parts).
Wool (except metal sponges intended for use in dairy products processing plants and by the canning industry and for filtering purposes).

LIST B

(See section 7)

The use of the forms and products of copper defined in section 3 and of any component parts made therefrom in the items listed below (excluding repair parts) is prohibited except to the extent permitted in the order or the list: Provided, however, That such material may be used in such items included in the list as are marked with as asterisk in cases where such items are to be used by the armed forces of the United States, including the United States Coast Guard.

BUILDERS' HARDWARE

Protective brass plating of all listed items of builders' hardware is permitted where other types of finishes are not practicable.
Door knobs.
Letter slots.

BUILDING MATERIALS

Facias: Fittings for underfloor raceway systems.
Flashings (except (1) cap and base flashing for built-up roofing, (2) through-wall flashing in parapet walls, (3) flashing for chimneys, vent stacks and all other vertical surfaces rising through roof levels, (4) roof-to-side wall flashing, (5) valley flashing for slate, tile and cement shingle roofs, (6) door and window head flashing, (7) expansion joint flashing).
Gravel stops.
Shower pans.
Terrazzo strips.
Fins for: Unit heaters, unit ventilators, unit ventilator inlet wall boxes and convectors, and blast heating coils, or any apparatus using such coils as part of its construction.

CIVILIAN-TYPE MOTOR VEHICLE: PASSENGER AUTOMOBILES INCLUDING TAXICABS, STATION WAGONS, AMBULANCES, HEARSES, TRUCKS, TRUCK TRACTORS, TRUCK TRAILERS, MOTORCYCLES AND BUSSES.

Hubcaps (except for plating).
Radio antennae for vehicles.
Sidewalk or curbstone warning devices for automobiles.

CLOTHING AND DRESS ACCESSORIES, NOT INCLUDING SAFETY EQUIPMENT

*Slide fasteners (zippers) (except (1) for the following functional components: slider bodies, separating end-components and top and bottom stops; and (2) except for applications in safety garments, work clothing, rubber footwear, foundation and surgical garments were necessary for reasons of strength, launderability and anticorrosion).

FURNISHINGS AND EQUIPMENT

Refrigerator and water heater installation connections (except for high pressure LPG connections from tank to fixture).

FURNITURE AND FIXTURES

Fittings (except hospital and laboratory).

HARDWARE, MISCELLANEOUS

Tags for pets.

HOUSEHOLD ELECTRICAL APPLIANCES

(Except for operational parts where the properties supplied by the copper are essential or where necessary for electrical conductivity)

Coffee makers.
Home and farm freezers.
Ice cream freezers.
Waffle irons.

REFRIGERATION AND AIR CONDITIONING MACHINERY AND EQUIPMENT

(Commercial and Industrial)

(Except where copper products or copper-base alloy products are essential for the following: carbonators, complete condensing units less condensers, dehydrators, draft arms for soda fountain equipment, electrical controls and wiring, fittings, protective coatings, refrigerant circuits, refrigerant connections between compressor and cooling coils, refrigerant flow control valves, sight glasses, soldering and brazing materials, strainers, suction line heat exchangers, tube sheets, valves, water cooler low sides and pre-coolers, water flow control valves and water spray nozzles for evaporative condensers, evaporative coolers, and air washers)

Commercial and industrial refrigeration and air conditioning machinery and equipment including but not limited to:

Air conditioning systems, self-contained or remote.
Air washers.
Blast coolers.
Blast freezers.
Bottled beverage coolers.
Carbonated beverage dispensing systems (except coin operated).
Compressor stop valves (except valve seats, gaskets, bonnets, discs, disc screens, and protective coverings for valve stems).
Evaporative condensers.
Evaporative coolers (desert type).
Finned air-cooled condensers except those used for hermetic systems where the condenser is exposed to the outside air or for transportation systems.
Finned coils or evaporators.
Florist refrigerators.
Fountainettes.
Frozen food cabinets.
Ice cream cabinets.
Ice cube makers.
Malt beverage dispensing systems.
Mortuary refrigerators.
Non-carbonated beverage dispensing systems (except coin operated).
Packaged air conditioners (room, window, and store coolers).
Reach-in refrigerators.
Refrigerated display cases.
Refrigeration systems, self-contained or remote.
Reverse cycle heating and air conditioning systems (heat pumps).
Sandwich units.
Shell and tube or shell and coil condensers (except water courses, either straight or finned tube, where the refrigerant is in contact with the tube).
Shell and tube or shell and coil water chillers (except water courses, either straight or finned tube, where the refrigerant is in contact with the tube).
Soda fountains.
Space coolers.
Unit coolers.
Walk-in refrigerators.
Water coolers (except bubblers, bubbler connections, faucets and faucet connections).

MISCELLANEOUS

Ball point pens (except necessary operational parts).
Dehumidifiers for home and office use (except operational parts where the properties supplied by the copper are essential or where necessary for electrical conductivity).
Flashlight cases (except contact points for carrying current).
Garment hangers.
Hollow ware (except for hotels, restaurants, institutions and ecclesiastical use).
Identification and directional signs (except current-carrying parts).
Key chains and catches and fasteners therefor.
Lawn sprinklers (except working parts and propellers).
Outboard motors (except for operational parts).
Portable electric lanterns, such as railroad, miners' and industrial (except parts for conducting electricity and for plating).
Shells and caps for sockets.
Ties (except for explosives and other products where the properties supplied by copper are essential).

[NPA Order M-48]

M-48—BISMUTH

This order is found necessary and appropriate to promote the national defense and is issued pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950. In the formulation of this order there has been consultation with industry representatives, including trade association representatives, and consideration has been given to their recommendations. However, consultation with representatives of all trades and industries affected in advance of the issuance of this order has been rendered impracticable due to the necessity for immediate action, and because the order affects a large number of different trades and industries.

AUTHORITY: Sections 1 to 13 issued under sec. 704, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong. Interpret or apply sec. 101, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.; sec. 101, E. O. 10161, Sept. 9, 1950, 15 F. R. 6105, 3 CFR, 1950 Supp., sec. 2, E. O. 10200, Jan. 3, 1951, 16 F. R. 61.

SECTION 1. What this order does. The purpose of this order is to set forth the conditions under which bismuth and bismuth alloys may be delivered and accepted, and the processes and products in which these materials can be used. This order also establishes limitations on the acceptance of rated orders, and on inventories of bismuth, bismuth alloys and articles made therefrom. It explains the conditions under which reports are required in connection with the production, distribution, importation, use and inventories of these materials. It is the intent of this order that other materials which are not in short supply will be substituted for bismuth wherever possible.

SEC. 2. Definitions. As used in this order:

(a) "Person" means any individual, corporation, partnership, association or any other organized group of persons and includes any agency of the United States or any other government.

(b) "Base period" means the six months' period ending June 30, 1950.

(c) "Bismuth" means metallic bismuth in bars, ingots, pigs, sticks, slabs, kegs, moss powder or other shapes or forms suitable for use in the manufacture of industrial or medicinal products or bismuth alloys.

(d) "Bismuth alloy" means any alloy containing more than 1 percent bismuth.

(e) "Bismuth product" means any semi-finished or finished article containing bismuth commercially recognized.

(f) "Scrap" means all materials or objects which are the waste or by-product of industrial fabrications or processes, or which have been discarded for obsolescence, failure or other reason, including, but not limited to, items such as unused, discarded or broken tools, dies, or accessories for production equipment which have been unused for a period in excess of six months, and which contain bismuth commercially recoverable.

(g) "Producer" means any person producing bismuth or bismuth alloys for resale, and any person having bismuth or bismuth alloys produced for him under toll agreement.

(h) "Dealer" means any person who receives physical deliveries of bismuth, bismuth alloys or bismuth products and sells or holds same for resale without change in form.

(i) "Import" means to transport in any manner into the continental United States from areas outside the continental United States, including territories and possessions. It includes shipments into foreign-trade zones, customs bonded warehouses, and customs custody, except when such shipments are merely in transit through the continental United States, to destinations outside the continental United States, as shown by the bills of lading or other shipping documents. However, if any such material in transit is halted or diverted to a destination in the continental United States or subjected to processing or manufacture in the continental United States, it becomes an "import" for the purposes of this order.

SEC. 3. Limitations on use of bismuth and bismuth alloys. (a) Unless specifically authorized by the National Production Authority, commencing on April 1, 1951, no person shall put into process or otherwise use any bismuth or bismuth alloys in the manufacture, treatment, installation, or construction of any item or product, or in any process, or for any purpose, except those set forth in the Schedule appearing at the end of this order and to the extent permitted thereby. Uses not thus expressly authorized are prohibited.

(b) Paragraph (a) of this section does not prohibit the completion and subsequent sale of any items or the completion of any processes or installations if the manufacturing, processing, or installation was begun on or before April 1, 1951, and if such manufacturing, processing or installation is completed not later than April 30, 1951.

SEC. 4. Limitations on acceptance of rated orders. Notwithstanding the provisions of NPA Reg. 2 and unless otherwise directed by the National Production Authority:

(a) No producer shall be required to accept rated orders for shipment in any one month for a total weight of bismuth, bismuth alloys and bismuth products in excess of 50 percent of his scheduled production of such items, in terms of bismuth content, during that month.

(b) No dealer shall be required to accept rated orders for shipment in any one month for a total weight of bismuth, bismuth alloys and bismuth products in excess of 25 percent of the total quantity of bismuth, bismuth alloys and bismuth products available to him, in terms of bismuth content, during that month.

SEC. 5. Set aside from production and imports. In addition to the requirements of section 4 of this order, commencing on April 1, 1951:

(a) Each producer shall set aside a reserve of 20 percent of his monthly production of bismuth (including bismuth produced for him by others under toll agreement, but not bismuth which he produces for others under toll agreement). Except as otherwise directed by the National Production Authority, this reserve may be delivered only upon the specific authorization of the National Production Authority in accordance with the procedure stated in section 7 of this order.

(b) Any person who imports bismuth shall set aside in each month a reserve of 20 percent of his imports of bismuth during such month. Except as otherwise directed by the National Production Authority, this reserve may be delivered only upon the specific authorization of the National Production Authority in accordance with the procedure stated in section 7 of this order.

SEC. 6. Limitations on acceptance of delivery. Except as may be authorized in accordance with the procedure stated in section 7 of this order and subject to the inventory limitations contained in section 9 of this order, no person shall accept delivery from domestic sources in any month of a total quantity by weight of bismuth and bismuth alloys (bismuth content), in excess of 60 percent of his average monthly receipts of such materials (bismuth content), during the base period, or 100 pounds, whichever is greater.

SEC. 7. Application for delivery from set aside reserve. Any person who, in the public interest, considers that he requires more bismuth than he can obtain from commercial sources, may apply to the National Production Authority for a delivery of bismuth from the set aside. Such application shall be submitted by letter not later than the 25th day of the month preceding the month during which delivery is desired, and shall set forth: the quantity of bismuth desired, the public interest which will be served, the desired delivery date, the applicant's anticipated receipts of non-set aside bismuth, the applicant's anticipated inventory of bismuth at the beginning of the month during which bismuth from the set aside is desired, and such other facts as may be pertinent. If the request is approved, the applicant will be notified that a particular supplier has been directed to make delivery of the bismuth concerned, and that the applicant is thereby authorized to accept delivery of this additional quantity of bismuth for a specified use.

SEC. 8. Certification. (a) Commencing on April 1, 1951, no person shall sell or deliver, and no person shall purchase or accept delivery of, any bismuth or bismuth alloys unless the purchaser furnishes a signed certification as follows:

> The undersigned certifies, subject to statutory penalties, that acceptance of delivery of the bismuth or bismuth alloys herein ordered is permitted by NPA Order M-48, and this material will be used only for the purposes permitted thereby, as follows: ----------
> Specify end use

This certification constitutes a representation by the purchaser to the seller and to the National Production Authority that the bismuth or bismuth alloys delivered will be used only for the purpose or purposes set forth in the appended Schedule, that such use is not prohibited by other applicable orders or regulations of the National Production Authority, and that the receipt is in accordance with sections 6 and 9 of this order.

(b) This certification shall not be required in connection with: (1) The delivery of bismuth to the General Services Administration for the stockpile of strategic materials, (2) the delivery of bismuth or bismuth alloys pursuant to a specific authorization of the National Production Authority, or (3) the importation of bismuth or bismuth alloys.

SEC. 9. Inventories. (a) No person shall receive or accept delivery of a quantity of bismuth, bismuth alloys, bismuth products or scrap if his inventory of such material is, or by such receipt would become, more than the smallest quantity of such material which he reasonably requires to meet his deliveries or maintain his scheduled rate of operations during the next succeeding 30-day period, or in excess of a "practicable minimum working inventory" as defined in NPA Reg. 1, whichever is less.

(b) Except as otherwise provided by this section, NPA Reg. 1 (particularly § 10.11 Imported Materials) will apply to all materials mentioned in paragraph (a) of this section.

SEC. 10. Records and reports. (a) Any person who on any day of any month has in his possession or under his control a quantity of bismuth in excess of 100 pounds or who receives, uses or ships a quantity of bismuth in excess of 100 pounds during any month, shall complete and file Form NPAF-40 on or before the 30th day of March 1951 with respect to February 1951, and on the 15th day of each succeeding month with respect to such transactions, possession or use during the preceding month.

(b) Producers and importers of bismuth shall report by letter not later than March 20, 1951 with respect to April 1951, and not later than the 20th day of each month thereafter, the quantity of bismuth which they expect to set aside during the next succeeding month in accordance with section 5 of this order.

(c) The reports required by this section shall be filed with the National Production Authority, Washington 25, D. C.

(d) Each person participating in any transaction covered by this order shall retain in his possession for at least two years records of receipts, deliveries, inventories, production and use, in sufficient detail to permit an audit that determines for each transaction that the provisions of this order have been met. This does not specify any particular accounting method and does not require alteration of the system of records customarily maintained, provided such records supply an adequate basis for audit. Records may be retained in the form of microfilm or other photographic copies instead of the originals.

(e) All records required by this order shall be made available at the usual place of business where maintained for inspection and audit by duly authorized representatives of the National Production Authority.

(f) Persons subject to this order shall make such records and submit such other reports to the National Production Authority as it shall require subject to the terms of the Federal Reports Act (Pub. Law 831, 77th Cong., 5 U. S. C. 139–139F).

SEC. 11. Application for adjustment. Any person affected by any provision of this order may file a request for adjustment or exception upon the ground that his business operation was commenced during or after the base period, or because any provision otherwise works an undue or exceptional hardship upon him not suffered generally by others in the same trade or industry, or that its enforcement against him would not be in the interest of the national defense or in the public interest. In considering requests for adjustment which claim that the public interest is prejudiced by the application of any provision of this order, consideration will be given to the requirements of public health and safety, civilian defense, and dislocation of labor and resulting unemployment that would impair the defense program. Each such request shall be in writing and shall set forth all pertinent facts, the nature of the relief sought and the justification therefor.

SEC. 12. Communications. All communications concerning this order shall be addressed to the National Production Authority, Washington 25, D. C., Ref: M–48.

SEC. 13. Violations. Any person who wilfully violates any provision of this order or any other order or regulation of the National Production Authority or wilfully conceals a material fact or furnishes false information in the course of operation under this order is guilty of a crime and, upon conviction, may be punished by fine or imprisonment or both. In addition, administrative action may be taken against any such person to suspend his privilege of making or receiving further deliveries of materials or using facilities under priority or allocation control and to deprive him of further priorities assistance.

NOTE: All reporting and record-keeping requirements of this order have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

This order shall take effect, except as otherwise specifically stated, on March 9, 1951.

NATIONAL PRODUCTION AUTHORITY,
[SEAL] MANLY FLEISCHMANN,
Administrator.

SCHEDULE OF PERMITTED USES

[See Section 3]

The use of bismuth and bismuth alloys is permitted only for the following items, processes and purposes:

(a) Anchoring:
1. Bearings, bushings and parts in machinery.
2. Bushings in drill jigs.
3. Inserts and ceramics, plastics, etc.
4. Location members, pads and points in aircraft and automotive assembly, drill, inspection and welding fixtures.
5. Pole pieces in magnetic chucks and fixtures.
6. Precision parts for machining, testing and inspection.
7. Punches and dies for blanking, piercing and trimming.
8. Repairing broken dies.
9. Shafts in rotors of alnico, etc.

(b) Making chucks for:
1. Weil drill cores.
2. Holding irregular shapes for machining (split jaw).

(c) Making cores for:
1. Electroforming.
2. Intricate compound foundry cores.

(d) Making dies and punches for:
1. Sheet metal embossing and short run forming.
2. Form blocks for bending, forming and stretch press forming.

(e) Models and patterns for:
1. Dental and medical models and prosthetic devices.
2. Core dryer patterns.
3. Pantograph and Keller tracer models.
4. Master patterns for match plates.
5. "Lost Wax" patterns, precision castings.

(f) Molds for:
1. Duplicating plaster and plastic patterns.
2. Casting and forming plastics and plaster.
3. Holding irregular shaped parts.

(g) Production tooling:
1. Duplicate patterns for ceramics, plastics, pottery, etc.
2. Fixtures for assembly checking, die spotting, drilling, inspection.
3. Filler for mold and tube bending and for fabricating seamless fittings.
4. Hold-down clamp pads.
5. Masks for electroforming and spray painting.
6. Nests for drill jigs and dial feed stations.
7. Shimming pads in aircraft tooling fixtures.
8. Supporting parts while machining and grinding.
9. Repairing wood, plastic, masonite and plastic tooling.
10. Stripper plates in stamping dies.
11. Trim dies for die casting and plastics.

(h) Miscellaneous:
1. Filling blowholes and defects in castings.
2. Fusible elements in sprinkler head links, protective and safety equipment.
3. Heat and/or transfer and pressure medium in autoclave, textile dyeing and drying equipment and constant temperature heat treating baths.
4. Liquid seals for bright annealing nitriding furnaces.
5. Low temperature solders in delicate assemblies, instruments, ammunition, etc.
6. Proof casting, forging dies, molds, gun chambers, etc.
7. Sealing adjustment screws on instruments, torque wrenches, etc.
8. Hermetic and vacuum seals—glass and metal.
9. Selenium rectifiers.
10. Shielding—X-ray equipment and therapeutic short wave equipment.
11. Low melting solders for ammunition boxes, shell cases, fuse sealing, etc.

(i) To comply with safety regulations issued under governmental authority which require the use of bismuth as a fusible alloy for protective devices.

(j) In research laboratories where and to the extent that the physical or chemical material requirements make the use of any other material impracticable.

(k) As an alloying material in the production of aluminum, stainless steels and malleable iron and cast iron to the extent necessary to improve machinability.

(l) To make bismuth salts used in pharmaceutical preparations.
